A little graystone Chapel, ivy-clad,
Watching beside a way of hurrying feet;
Brooding in silence on its memories
Drawn from the years—happy, and sweet, and sad.

Serene it stands, a symbol to our Hill
That without Faith, life cannot be complete.
Sending this message out to all its own—
"Your greatest blessing is to do God’s will."

FOR forty-six years it has stood, typical of that for which Western Maryland stands. Its tall spire reaches skyward, towering above the surrounding buildings, suggesting the purpose of the founders of the College,—pointing the students’ attention to God. By day, the ivy that clings to its walls swathes the building in nature’s deepest green. By night, the inner lights shine through the multi-colored windows beautifully revealing the scene of the child Jesus in the temple. The cruciform structure makes the chapel unique both from within as well as from without. In the recessed pulpit hangs an unusually appealing reproduction of “Christ and the Rich Young Ruler.” Adjacent to the pulpit is a tablet stating the source of the gift and dedicating the chapel “To the glory of God and in grateful recognition of the mercy that spared the life of a beloved son.”
For nearly forty years the Sunday evening chapel services were held in this edifice. High in the memory of graduates of that era is the inspiration of a service in Baker Chapel. The student body has long since outgrown the building, erected to seat two hundred fifty persons. With an enrollment more than twice that size and a staff of nearly sixty, it has become necessary to move the Chapel Service to Alumni Hall. Despite the richer service possible with the use of the large organ and the choir of fifty voices, the spirit of worship in Baker Chapel cannot be recaptured. Alumni Hall is used almost daily for such varied non-sectarian functions that it is impossible to make it an adequate place of worship. Western Maryland's need of a chapel, commanding a central place on the larger college campus, is imperative.

Baker Chapel is still used for informal religious services. Two student organizations meet here weekly. The College Sunday School convenes Sunday morning at nine-fifteen. This organization is now completely in charge of the students. The Student Christian Association holds a mid-week service each Wednesday evening following dinner. Baker Chapel is the frequent meeting place of this group. In addition, the chapel is often used for weddings of persons who are graduates of Western Maryland College.

Beyond these practical uses, it must also be said that this chapel has exercised a silent influence. It stands as a symbol of the fact that Western Maryland's philosophy of education is based on belief in God.

Seventy-Fifth Anniversary Celebration

Your Alma Mater, opened in 1867, will complete 75 years of service in 1942.

The 75th Anniversary Committee is planning an elaborate celebration for Commencement Week, May 29-June 1, 1942.

Put the date in your calendar now.

PLAN TO ATTEND
Alma Mater

College ties can never be broken, Formed at W. M. C.

For our passing wealth unspoken, Ever may they be.

CHORUS:

Western Maryland! Hail, all Hail! Echo softly from each heart.

We'll be ever loyal to thee Till we from life shall part.

When our college days are over, Round our hearts shall cling Memories of our Alma Mater, Every day shall bring.

But our life is swiftly passing, Soon its course is run
What e'er our lot we'll ever cherish, Friendships here begun.

Seventy-Fifth Anniversary

May 29-30-31, June 1, 1942
The main building was erected in five separate units. The title Old Main belongs only to the original college structure which is the central building in this span. It was erected in 1866 and contained all the college facilities at that time. The tower, of course, is a later addition.

Smith Hall, built to the north, was erected in 1887; Hering Hall to the south in 1890. Ward Hall, as it now stands, was constructed in 1895; McKinstry Hall in 1907. A third unit, known as Owings Hall, built in 1899, was razed in 1939.

The various portions of the buildings have been used for so many functions that space would not permit a recounting of them. At present Ward Hall and McKinstry Hall are both dormitories for men. The auditorium in Smith Hall remains as it has been over a period of many years. Adjoining the auditorium is a room for women day students. The second floor of Smith Hall and a portion of Old Main contain rooms for unmarried teachers. The men’s infirmary is also located in this Hall. Old Main contains, in addition, rooms for the Aloha and Gold Bug and a faculty parlor. The old social parlor is now occupied by the Art Department. Beneath it are rooms equipped for the Department of Home Economics.

The ground floor space in these buildings is given over to a day student room for men, the coffee shop, game room for men, post office, bookstore, college laundry depot, and the college shop.

The main building has a frontage of 280 feet. Because it is so closely hemmed in by other buildings it is now very difficult to photograph. A listing of the facilities which it houses should impress one not only with the enormity of the structure but also with the manifold functions for which the college must provide.
Seventy-Fifth Anniversary

The Seventy-Fifth Anniversary of Western Maryland College will be celebrated May 29-30-31, June 1, 1942. The college first opened on September 4, 1867. It was chartered by the State on March 30, 1868. Apparently no special observation of the event was made when the college reached her twenty-fifth year. Many, however, will recall the Golden Jubilee Celebration held during Commencement in 1917.

That our Diamond Jubilee is worthy of a gala celebration is obvious. The history of the school is both long and distinguished. As she has grown older in years, she has become younger in spirit. Her growth has been constant and her progress steady. When we shall assemble to celebrate her birthday, we shall not witness an Alma Mater heavy with age, but fresh, vibrant, on every hand visible expressions of newness and her adaptability to the present age.

On the other side it is to be said that the college is also rich in traditions. She does not break upon the scene as a youth who is completely of this generation. She goes back to a rich heritage. She is like a householder who brings out of his treasure "things new and old." While our Alma Mater overflows with life, she none the less stands as one who calls also to the past, as one who recognizes the value of a heritage.

To give adequate celebration for our Diamond Jubilee, the Board of Trustees appointed the following committee: L. Irving Pollitt, Chairman; Henry Gilligan, Robert J. Gill, William C. Scott, and John N. Link. This committee was enlarged by the addition of the following: from the Alumni, Frank Bowers and T. K. Harrison; from the Faculty, Samuel B. Schofield and L. M. Bertholf; from the Student Body, Frank Tarbutton and Anna Robey. This committee has already been at work and has initiated a program, the broad outlines of which will be found elsewhere in the bulletin.

A special feature of the celebration will be an historical exhibit. We plan to visualize the growth of the college from the earliest days up to the present time. We are particularly interested in securing pictures of earlier years. Alumni and friends of the college are asked to lend, for this occasion, any pictures that will be appropriate for an exhibit of this type. We shall be glad to hear about other material which will be appropriate for this purpose. Communications relative thereto may be addressed to the President's Office.

The program as planned will in no sense interfere with the usual Commencement festivities. Every event, however, will be heightened by the 75th anniversary emphasis. Unusual features have been planned for the Garden Party, for instance, and the Alumni Banquet will assume gala aspects.

Your Alma Mater sincerely requests that you adjust your calendar now so as to make possible your attendance at the Seventy-Fifth Anniversary celebration.

THIS ARCH WAS ERECTED AS A MEMORIAL TO DR. J. T. WARD, THE FIRST PRESIDENT OF THE COLLEGE

The die is cast. The United States of America is at war with the Japanese Empire. As this College Bulletin goes to press the campus is agog with the excitement caused by the brazen and unprovoked attack of Japan upon the possessions of the American government. The question as to whether or not the United States could stay at peace in the midst of a world torn by war has been answered with unbelievable suddenness by the fact that she cannot. Never in her history has there been more of a will for peace on the part of the American people than in this crisis. Yet never before has there been such a unanimous agreement with the position of the government that a state of war between our people and the Japanese must be acknowledged.

In no one segment in American life has the reaction been more tense than on college campuses. This is not surprising in view of the part which American youth must play in the conflict. I have not, in the three days since the terrible news has come, heard the slightest adverse reaction to the position which our government has taken.

Since a college represents the segment of life most affected by the crisis, one naturally thinks in terms of the specific relationship of this present conflict to Western Maryland College.

The defense program has already curtailed the enrollment of men in the colleges of the land. We may expect a further curtailment. In an endeavor to offset this, so far as our own Alma Mater is concerned, we shall need the cooperation of every alumnus and friend of the college in leading young men and young women of college age to enroll at Western Maryland. We have been in that fortunate group of schools whose enrollment this year has remained at a normal level. I attribute this, among other factors, to the diligence of our own graduates in sending the names of prospective students to us. I am asking that you cooperate again to this end.

Furthermore, we must not forget that whatever the exigencies of the present may be we must not neglect the education of a future citizenry who will become well-equipped and courageous leaders of the future. Education has been under severe criticism in recent years. So has government! So has business! So has labor! No one is more conscious of the weaknesses of our educational system than educators themselves. Diagnosis is always easier than cure. Yet when all this is said, it must be acknowledged that our educational system has been tremendously effective and that it can still function with a remarkable degree of efficiency. It still has a responsibility second to none. It is our task to see to it that our youth has an opportunity for the best education. It is our duty to see to it that we are educating our youth for leadership in the nation of tomorrow.

It is an interesting coincidence that Western Maryland College celebrated her Fiftieth Anniversary in the first World War and that she celebrates her Seventy-fifth in the midst of this World War. We trust that the emergency will not curtail the spirit of celebration of an event which must strike a responsive cord in every lover of Western Maryland College. Perhaps we can look ahead to this event as a bright spot in the routine of busy war days. It is my hope that every Western Marylander who possibly can come will plan to be present for this gala event—The Diamond Jubilee of the College, May 30, 1942.

The fact that only twenty-five years have intervened between the last war and this must be a shock to the moral sensitiveness of every citizen. Here on the eve of Christmas, when we commemorate the birth of the Prince of Peace, we find ourselves again at war. We must not, we shall not lose faith. We shall set ourselves to the task before us. We shall complete it and that successfully. But we shall do it in the vision of that greater day yet certain to come when the stars shall always shine, when shall appear, brighter than all, "the bright and morning star" that brings light and peace to the world.
Christmas On The Hill

Members of the Tri-Beta enjoyed a visit from Santa Claus at their annual party in McDaniel Lounge. Evidently they had all been good students for Santa gave each one a gift.

As has been the custom for several years, the Home Economics students sponsored a Christmas party for a group of children from the vicinity of Westminster. A Christmas tree, stockings filled to overflowing, gifts brought in Santa's pack, and goodies made by the students provided for the children a happy afternoon.

Another feature of the program for the season was the annual Christmas dinner held in the festively decorated dining room for the students and faculty. This is one of the occasions when the faculty members living away from the College have the opportunity of dining with the student body.

Probably the most outstanding and spectacular feature of all the activities was the annual Christmas Vesper service. This service, which attracted a capacity house in Alumni Hall, emanated the story of Christmas in song, music, and play.

The College Players most ably presented the nativity play, "The First Christmas," by Marjorie Marquis, featuring Edna Truesler as the Madonna. The play, directed by Miss Esther Smith, was presented in two scenes, scene one taking place on the hilltop of Judea, and scene two taking place in the interior of the stable. The theme of the play was that of the reconciliation of the shepherds by the announcement of the birth of Christ.

When December 19, the day for the Christmas vacation to begin, came around the students were imbued with the spirit of Christmas and with gay farewells left for their homes to enjoy the holiday season.
Class of 1941

"They're gone out from their Alma Mater."

On June 1, 1941, one hundred thirty-four students became graduates of Western Maryland College. After four years of close fellowship on the Hill, the members of this class are now scattered over the entire United States.

The graduates of the Senior R. O. T. C. course attended the infantry school at Ft. Benning, Ga. After graduation from that school they were assigned to various camps throughout the country. The following is the list of these assignments according to the information available at present (some transfers may have been made since this list was compiled):

- Camp Polk, La.—William Banks, Lester Knepp, Mack McPike, Francis Smith.
- Camp Wolters, Texas—Thurston Applegarth, Robert Lambert, Joseph Rouse.
- Camp Roberts, Calif.—Robert Hahn, Thomas Lewis, Guy Windsor.
- Clef O. Sumner is stationed in London, England, as an observer with a signal unit. On October 5, he was married to Miss Margaret Patricia Vaughn in the Kenwood Presbyterian Church, Raspeburg. Ralph G. Hawkins, who is now working at the Glenn L. Martin Plant, was the best man.

On November 1, Miss Rita Emma Graff of Baltimore, became the bride of Francis X. Smith.

The engagement of Robert Walters and Kathleen Coe has been announced by Dr. and Mrs. Robert Coe. Lieut. Walters is now stationed at Ft. Bragg, N. C.

At the last report, Benjamin Allnut was stationed at the Field Artillery Replacement Center at Ft. Bragg; Leigh Venzke was at Camp Lee, Va.; Donald Honeman was with the army in Oklahoma; Neilson Eckenrode was in the army at Baker’s Training School; Clyde Baden was at Ft. Meade; and Arnold Fleagle reported there on December 9.

Clyde Thomas is Student Instructor of Airplane Construction at Camp Chanute, Ill.

A former member of this class, Walter W. Price, Jr., is a member of the Naval Academy’s senior class to be graduated December 19, six months ahead of schedule.

As usual, the teaching profession claims many of the W. M. C. graduates. The Education Department has reported the following placements:

- Allegany County—Willard Everett, Anita Twigg.

ATTENTION MINISTERS!
As a feature for the Seventy-Fifth Anniversary Celebration, we are planning a conference for our graduates who are in the ministry. We are endeavoring to secure an outstanding speaker for a conference on present-day church problems. We urge you to set aside Saturday, May 30, 1942, for the anniversary celebration and note that the hour for the ministers' conference is 1:30.

ATTENTION TEACHERS!
As part of our Seventy-Fifth Anniversary Celebration, we plan a conference of our alumni who are in the teaching profession. An outstanding educator will address the group and an open discussion will follow. This will be an unusual opportunity to fraternize with other alumni in the teaching profession. Please reserve 1:30, May 30, 1942, for this event.

Announcement is made of the appointment of Mr. Milson C. Raver as Public Relations Officer of Western Maryland College. A graduate of Johns Hopkins University, Mr. Raver has done an additional year's study at Western Maryland. He has been a member of our staff for nine years. In this time he has won a place in the life of our college and developed a love for our college of unusual order. We believe that he is entirely competent for the office to which he has been appointed and commend him to the alumni and friends of Western Maryland College.

WESTERN MARYLAND AND THE NATIONAL CRISIS

Few American institutions are so greatly affected by the war as are our colleges and universities. The calling of young men into military service, the abundance of remunerative positions for high school graduates, the paucity of teaching personnel are primary factors in the impact of the war upon the colleges.

Western Maryland is fortunate to be in the group of colleges which boasts a normal enrollment for the current year. The average decrease the country over is ten percent. Many colleges report large withdrawals of students since the declaration of war. Our withdrawals have been negligible.

To relate the affairs of the college to the defense program, a Committee on Cooperation, headed by the president, has been raised. Numerous sub-committees have been appointed, taking care of matters such as morale, blackouts, first-aid, Red Cross, etc.

Elsewhere in this bulletin is announced the accelerated program, whereby students may complete the regular four-year course in three years. This has made necessary a shortening of our present academic year. All vacations have been eliminated and Commencement will be held on May 18. Alumni and friends are asked to note this change, which also makes necessary the holding of our 75th Anniversary Celebration on Saturday, May 16.

In practically every corner of the globe, Western Maryland men will be found in our armed forces. Nearly every available member of the Reserve Officers of the college has been called to active duty. Word has been received that many others have been called under the draft regulations. The administration of the college will appreciate receiving addresses of alumni in the armed forces, if such can be made available. It is our purpose to keep in touch with our soldiers during the war.

SEVENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

The 75th Anniversary Celebration Committee decided not to curtail the program because of the war. It was felt that our alumni and friends would look forward to such an event with great anticipation. It will give us a day of inspiration and fellowship in the midst of a tense routine. Saturday, May 16, will be given over completely to the celebration. The Convocation at 10:30 A. M. will attract alumni, friends, and students, as well as the invited representatives of colleges and government. At 1:30 in the afternoon separate conferences will be held for alumni who are lawyers, physicians, ministers, teachers, business men, and homemakers. The Garden Party in the afternoon will have some special features. The Alumni Association will hold its annual meeting following the party. The day will reach its climax in the 75th Anniversary Banquet and Dance. Reservations should be made with Mr. T. K. Harrison.
THE ACCELERATED PROGRAM AT WESTERN MARYLAND COLLEGE

I. To make possible the completion of the regular four-year course in three years, the college has instituted an accelerated program. This program will serve, among others, the following groups:

a. Young men desiring to complete a college education before induction into military service.

b. Young men and young women anxious to begin their earning capacity as soon as possible.

c. Persons who wish to expedite their preparation for the professions, particularly when they must continue on into graduate school; e.g., medicine, dentistry, ministry.

d. Persons who seek to fill the shortage now found in the teaching profession.

II. The college year will be divided into four terms, two short and two long. The long terms will extend from September to January and February to May. The short terms will extend from June to July and August to September. The probable short term dates for 1942 are June 15—July 25; July 27—September 5. The short term curricula will be greatly enriched thus replacing all of the normal summer session except the workshop. Students may enter college either in February, June, or September. Fourteen hours credit may be earned in the two short terms; thirty-six in the two long terms. The graduation requirement of 136 hours still maintains. Accordingly, a student in the accelerated plan may complete the requirement in three years.

The accelerated program is an alternative to the usual four-year course. Students who choose to follow the four-year plan will enter in September. This procedure will especially commend itself to those who will find it necessary to secure employment in the summer months in order to help finance their education.

Students may change from one program to the other at the beginning of any term. Persons interested in either program are invited to write the college for additional information. The annual catalogue, published in March, will contain detailed statements as to courses, costs, etc.
THE EDUCATION WORKSHOP

In connection with the Summer Session there will be conducted a Curriculum Workshop, Monday, July 6, through Friday, August 11. The Workshop will deal with curriculum problems of the Junior and Senior High School grades. It will be set up on much the same pattern and conducted on much the same plan as last summer, when each participant was given the opportunity to make an intensive study of an interest growing out of his experience as a teacher, or to join a group in activities designed to meet his needs and those of his fellow workers, counseling frequently with a staff of specialists in the several fields.

A special announcement of the plan and personnel of the 1942 Workshop will be made later.

GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR

Western Maryland College is proud of the fact that General MacArthur, who is leading our forces in the Orient so valiantly, is the recipient of an honorary degree from Western Maryland. The following is his letter of appreciation:

July 8, 1942.

Dear Dr. Ward,

It is with a sense of great distinction that I have just read your letter of June 5th informing me that Western Maryland College has conferred upon me the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. My pleasure is proportionate to the feeling of respect and admiration which I entertained for the College during my association with it while in command of the Third Corps Area. No institution in our country has reflected and responded more to the nation's needs both in peace and in war. It makes me proud indeed to have my name upon its rolls and I trust that you will express to the Board of Trustees the cordial appreciation I feel for their thoughtful and generous consideration of me.

With sincerest personal regards,

Faithfully,

DOUGLAS MACARTHUR.

Vocational Objectives and Western Maryland College

Entered as second class matter, May 19, 1921, at the Postoffice at Westminster, Md., under the act of August 24, 1912. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, act of October 3, 1917.
VOCATIONAL OPPORTUNITIES AT WESTERN MARYLAND COLLEGE are available against a rich background of liberal arts study. In this day of changes, a too specialized course of study will often fit a young man or a young woman for an opportunity that no longer exists when the education has been completed. The liberal arts curriculum at Western Maryland helps to prevent such misfits by offering a well rounded course of study. A liberal arts course of study results in an education, in addition to some specialized training. As has been frequently pointed out, many of our foremost leaders today were not trained in highly specialized institutions but are the products of liberal arts schools.

THE CHOICE OF A VOCATION AT WESTERN MARYLAND COLLEGE may be delayed until the latter part of the sophomore year, since these first two years are spent largely in a more general educational background. This delay offers each student the opportunity to make a more mature decision.

The individual is aided in this choice by members of the faculty, acting in an advisory capacity. He may discuss this problem with counselors who have been trained in the various fields by advanced study and, in many cases, by practical experience in their own fields. He may measure his interests, abilities and personality traits by various tests given in a guidance clinic. Expert counsel is given here, pointing to the student's greatest possibilities. A personal survey of these fields and a consideration of his own achievements in his course of study will help in making a final decision. Of course, the earlier a student can wisely choose his life work the more efficiently can he plan his educational development.
STUDENTS CHOOSE THEIR COLLEGE largely because of certain vocational interests. Western Maryland College serves well in preparation for many fields of endeavor. The following list suggests the wide range.

ART—A well rounded course of study here leads to the professions of commercial art and the teaching of art. Creative work in this field requires advanced study.

BUSINESS—In addition to the fundamental courses in Personnel Administration, Business Law, Labor Problems, etc., a liberal arts curriculum makes it possible to include courses in Economics, History, Sociology, Languages, etc. Those who choose this field for a career will find that such a broad course of study will result in a distinct advantage in later practice.

CHEMISTRY—This field offers an opportunity to qualify for immediate employment after graduation in positions where workers are badly needed to aid in our National Defense. To prepare for the greatest opportunities, however, a course of study in this field should be followed by graduate training.

DENTISTRY—A minimum of two years of study at the college level is required by some dental schools. The complete pre-medical course of study however, results in a much sounder preparation for this profession.

DIETETICS—There are many openings for individuals who pursue this phase of Home Economics. This is a field in which women may prepare to take an active part in our National Defense. Greater opportunities will result, however, from advanced study, or additional training in some institution such as a medical school or hospital.

ENGINEERING—Students find that the completion of the work for a liberal arts degree before entering an engineering school results in a better background. There is a great need in this profession for men who have had training in Economics, History, Literature and Languages, as well as in the technical courses.
HOME ECONOMICS—Numerous careers for women, including teaching, nursing, and home-demonstration follow preparation in this department.

JOURNALISM—Persons may prepare for a career in this field by majoring in English, with a broad liberal arts background. Practical experience is available through the student publications.

LABORATORY TECHNICIANS—There are chances for immediate employment of this type for those who major in Biology, Chemistry, Mathematics or Physics. Our National Defense effort has caused a severe shortage of trained workers in this field.

LANGUAGES—The college offers training in French, German, Greek, Latin and Spanish. Aside from the cultural value, those who major in these fields may become language teachers or prepare to read, write and speak the modern forms. Courses in the literature of each language are available.

LAW—Basic training is offered for entry into the professional schools. Anyone attempting to enter this field before completion of his college work will find himself seriously handicapped.

LIBRARY SCIENCE—Graduates may become certified as High School Librarians, or through further preparation, become professional librarians.

MATHEMATICS—Besides teaching, one may become a statistician in the field of science or industry. Preliminary courses are available here in preparation for entrance into the navigation and artillery schools of the armed forces.
MEDICINE—Students find a distinct advantage in following a liberal arts course of study in preparation for entry into medical school. More emphasis is now being placed on a broad education in the social sciences and the fine arts.

MEDICAL TECHNOLOGIST—Individuals interested in becoming this type of laboratory technician should pursue a program similar to that of the pre-medical course of study. This must be followed by further training in an institution such as a hospital school.

MILITARY SCIENCE—Young men may enter a military career by studying in the Reserve Officers Training Corps at Western Maryland. Completion of the four years course leads to a commission as Second Lieutenant in the Reserve Officers Corps of the United States Army.

MUSIC—The college offers training for organ, piano, violin, and voice, in a modern conservatory, excellently equipped. Those who graduate from this department may be certified to teach public school music.

NURSING—Many hospitals are requiring a college background for those who will enter the course in nursing. Larger opportunities are available for graduate nurses who are also holders of a Bachelor’s degree.

PHARMACY—Most schools of pharmacy will allow as much as a year of advanced standing for a college graduate.

PHYSICAL AND HEALTH EDUCATION—Persons may prepare directly for the teaching profession as well as the supervision of athletics and recreation in schools, military and summer camps, and on the public playgrounds.
PHYSICS—In this department opportunity is given to fill one of our greatest needs in National Defense immediately upon graduation. A complete course of study with special work has been arranged for those who wish to train for technical work in the armed forces or defense industries.

SOCIAL SERVICE—Students majoring in Sociology find an increasingly large number of positions available in both public and private welfare.

TEACHING—Our graduates have a superior reputation in the effectiveness of their work in public education. The national emergency has produced a serious shortage in this field and many positions are now available.
Of the 19 million workers needed to carry out the national program, only about 7 million are now available. The schools must supply the rest. As many of these jobs are highly technical in nature the colleges and universities must train them. It is, therefore, the patriotic duty of every young man and young woman, having the necessary "mental and physical equipment" to go on from high school to college for this training. For the same reason college graduates, properly equipped, must continue their training in the graduate institutions in order to meet the needs in our national crises.

Students should also bear in mind that following the war, there will be a great demand for trained leaders in the period of reconstruction. These young people should plan their educational program in such a way that society will obtain the maximum benefit from their training.

"The Message I would emphasize to you this year is that America will always need men and women with college training. Government and industry alike need skilled technicians today. Later, we shall need men and women of broad understanding and special aptitudes to serve as leaders of the generation which must manage the post-war world. We must, therefore, redouble our efforts during these critical times to make our schools render ever more efficient service in support of our cherished democratic institutions."

HEADQUARTERS SECOND INFANTRY TRAINING REGIMENT
Camp Wheeler, Georgia

March 2, 1942.

Dr. Fred G. Holloway
President Western Maryland College
Westminster, Maryland

Dear Dr. Holloway:

Following the lead of several other college and university alumni groups, I advertised in our daily bulletin for a Western Maryland roll call. The results were little short of amazing considering the comparative size of our student body and the distance of our college from this post.

We had a meeting Saturday night and organized a club. There were twelve officers who answered the roll-call and one lady, Mrs. Lydia Fogle Schwieker, Class of '35, while one private, Kenneth Baumgardner, was reported attending officer candidate school at Fort Benning.

We find that we Western Marylanders carry a fine reputation. Lieutenants Blissman and Chandler have been selected to go to other posts to train selectees in newly-formed combat divisions; Dickson has gone to the parachute troops; Otto has the responsible duty of battalion adjutant; I am plans and training officer of my regiment and have selected Schwieker as my assistant. All the others are company commanders or platoon leaders except Gault, who is battalion chaplain.

I am enclosing a roster of our club, which you might like to publish.

Incidentally, one of the speakers sent down by the War Department to lecture on the situation in the Far East was Dr. Yap. When he learned that I was a Western Maryland Alumnus, he greeted me as a long-lost brother.

He said he always felt that he was among friends when with a Western Marylander. He said further that his association with you and the college were among the finest he has enjoyed in America.

With best personal regards, I beg to remain

Respectfully yours,

CLARENCE T. DEHAVEN,
Captain, Infantry,
S-3

Enclosure: (Herewith was given list of all the Western Marylanders answering the roll call.)

The committee is striving to keep in contact with all Western Maryland Alumni who are engaged in the armed forces of the country. With the help of the college Alumni it is building and trying to maintain an accurate list of these people and attempting to keep in touch with them. These names and addresses have been placed on the college mailing lists in order that they might receive the Bulletin and the Gold Bug. The latter is being sent to them through the courtesy of the Gold Bug Staff; two copies have already been mailed. The list is only partially complete at present but more communications like that above will help to extend it to all Western Marylanders. The committee will appreciate any information that you can give them about yourself as well as about others; particularly when a change of address is involved. Be sure to give the correct title, division or battalion assignment and the camp address. It is understood that if the last known address in this country is given the postal authorities will forward all mail to the addressee. Please send all information to the President's Office or Col. T. K. Harrison, addressed to the college.

For the Committee,
Milson C. Raver, Chairman.

SHE REMEMBERS PEARL HARBOR: Mrs. Ann Johnson Etzler, '33, has traveled some 10,000 miles since “sometime in March,” when she arrived in Salisbury, Md., from Schofield Barracks, Hawaii, and then, after a space of several weeks, returned to Los Angeles to meet her husband, Capt. Charles R. Etzler, '32, who had also just arrived from Hawaii. Mrs. Etzler promised to write something of her experiences on and following December 7 at Schofield Barracks, but her sudden return to the west coast prevented her from doing so. As she talks one gets a picture of the efficient and courageous American soldier, with high morale while under fire, clean-cut boys, a high percentage of whom are college men. She is also proud of the behavior of her own sex while under fire.

At the time of the surprise attack on Pearl Harbor on December 7, Captain and Mrs. Etzler were stationed at Schofield Barracks where he was aide-de-camp to General Rapp Brush. They were awakened that fatal morning by the sound of bombs, the explosions of which shook their quarters severely. Rushing to the window, Mrs. Etzler remarked to her husband, “We'll know what it is to be attacked by the enemy after this.” They then saw a plane circle low over the fort with the emblem of the Rising Sun plainly visible upon it as it banked barely 300 feet above their quarters.

All army personnel were summoned to their posts and the women and children assembled in the barracks, from which they were evacuated to Honolulu during Sunday night. There they were housed in the schools, sleeping on blankets on the floor for several days. They were then allowed to return to their houses. Gas masks were issued to every man, woman, and child and they were required to carry them at all times. The entire island was completely blacked out, even the smoking of cigarettes was prohibited after sunset. No civilians were allowed in the streets from 6 P.M. until 6 A.M. and all stores, theaters, and other places of business were closed during that time.

In response to questioning, Mrs. Etzler said that one could entertain guests in the evening provided that one could keep them all night as they were not allowed outside after dark. She also said that many articles were severely rationed although food was plentiful. Mrs. Etzler came to San Francisco in a convoy along with many other army families.

Another Alumnus at Schofield Barracks: Capt. Lester L. Wheeler, ex-'34, when last heard from, was in Schofield Barracks, Hawaii. Capt. Wheeler entered West Point from Western Maryland and was commissioned as Lieutenant in 1936.

Returned from Hawaii: Rosalie Gilbert Folda, '36, has recently returned to her former home at Havre de Grace, by plane, from Schofield Barracks, Hawaii.

With MacArthur: Leonard Carvel Graham, '38, was located at Fort McKinley, near Manila. A message received on December 24, stated that he was with General MacArthur.

Appointed Home Demonstration Agent: Marianna Lee Long, '40, was recently appointed Home Demonstration Agent for Garrett County. She was formerly associated with the B. F. Shriver Company, of Westminster, as Home Economist.

Stranghan, '99, President of the Board of Trustees, and President Fred G. Holloway, '18. Guest speaker of the evening was Judge Samuel K. Dennis, of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore City. Stevens, '24, and Mrs. Rebecca Groves Smith, '37, both Vice-presidents of the Alumni Association.

New York City: The annual dinner was held in the Rainbow Grill, R.C.A. Building, on February 27, under the leadership of Mr. Charles A. "The history of a college," it has been truly said, "is best read in the lives of her sons. To take in the grand sweep of her influence, we must follow them as they go forth into the world to mould and direct the elements that surround them." Western Maryland College is willing to have her history thus read.

Aloha, 1893.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO, when plans were being discussed for celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of Western Maryland College, it was decided to attempt three things: arrange a special festival or program appropriate to such an occasion, collect $50,000 as a gift to the endowment fund, and write a history of the college. The first two objectives were so nearly accomplished as to count them done. The third aim has never been realized. It is manifestly easier to collect $50,000 for the benefit of a college than it is to write a history of that college.

It must be remembered, however, that several sketches of the early years of Western Maryland have been written and, incomplete though they are, these sketches serve as a valuable record of the external and material growth of the institution. How buildings were financed and when they were erected, how many students were enrolled and how these students were governed, the courses which were provided and the changes in academic emphasis—all these and many other facts have been recorded. For the things that meet the eye, there have been chroniclers a few; but no one so far has attempted the challenging and arduous task of telling the complete history of the college.

This greater and as yet unwritten history will record both the ideal and the actual, the dream and the reality; it will report what was accomplished and also what was nobly planned but never accomplished. It will be concerned less perhaps with buildings and endowments than with the personalities who envisioned the formation and growth of the institution and whose dreams overcame doubts, discouragement, and reverses. It will undoubtedly relate stories of gallant, if sometimes unsuccessful, enterprises connected with the origin and development of the college. These stories, now found only in personal documents or kept alive by the memory of the descendants of the early leaders, support the belief that it is to faith as much as to works that we must credit the existence of Western Maryland College.

The first task of the future historian will be to revive both the spirit and the deeds of the little group of founders. It is his good fortune to have some first-hand records of the circumstances leading to the inception of the school.

From the pen of James Thomas Ward, first president, comes an account of the conditions which brought him to Westminster in time to assume leadership of the project that the Maryland Annual Conference was contemplating. Dr.
Ward explains that failing health had made it impossible for him to endure any longer the life of an itinerant minister and, casting about for a place to establish himself permanently, he found direction in an unusual, if not mystical, fashion. He writes:

My thoughts turned to several points where I had, during my active years, found pleasant associations, and I visited these points looking for some suitable little homestead where I might settle. At length my attention was providentially directed to Westminster, and in September, 1865, I concluded to purchase the property known as "Rose Hill," which then belonged to my friend and Christian brother, Henry L. Norris, and had formerly been the residence of the Rev. Isaac Webster, who died there in February, 1851. After I had fully arranged for the purchase of this place my health seemed somewhat to improve, so that I hesitated about withdrawing from the active work of the ministry. Then again the feeble state of my health seemed to demand that I should retire from the active work, and so I was revolving the subject in my thoughts, when one day in January, 1866, I happened to find that the words, "Westminster, Maryland," formed the anagram, "my mind wants real rest," and I believed that I should enjoy this by settling at Rose Hill.

Dr. Ward came to Westminster on March 29, 1866, and was soon settled in his modest but comfortable home on Pennsylvania Avenue. At that time Fayette R. Buell, a man of zeal and vision, was conducting a private school at the corner of Main and Bond Streets. Mr. Buell's success in this school fired his ambition to raise its standing to that of a college. He appealed to some men of influence in the town who were Methodist Protestants, and they saw the chance they had been looking for—an opportunity to establish a college chiefly for the Christian education of the children of their denomination. Accordingly, plans were made and a building was begun on "the Common"—now College Hill—which had been the playground for children, the haunts of young men and maidens, the village picnic ground, the scene of Civil War skirmishes, political meetings, and patriotic celebrations. Before the cornerstone was laid on September 6, 1866, Dr. Ward was named principal, and before the building was completed, Mr. Buell, discouraged by administrative and financial obstacles, transferred his interest in the college to the board representing the Maryland Annual Conference.

Western Maryland College was formally opened on September 4, 1867. A college had been founded, but the struggle for its perpetuation had only just begun. For years the work was hard and depressing. Dr. Ward, with his hand on every activity and his mind and heart on success, supplied the faith needed to carry on the undertaking and finally succeeded in an enterprise until then untried south of the Mason and Dixon Line—co-education.
Thomas Hamilton Lewis, second president of the college, was a member of the class of 1875. He married Mary Ward, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. T. Ward. His close association with the first president, his own brilliant mind, his prominence in the Methodist Protestant ministry, his experience as organizer and first president of the Westminster Theological Seminary, and his natural gift of leadership admirably fitted him to be the successor of Dr. Ward.

When he came into office in 1886, he found the college enjoying the respect of the Maryland Annual Conference, the patronage of the church, and the approval of the state of Maryland; but there was the handicap of a heavy debt. This together with the crying need for improvements and equipment might easily have deterred a man less energetic and capable, but it only challenged the abilities of this young, enthusiastic financier, and each year he managed to make the needed repairs, to make additions to the equipment and plant, and to reduce the debt until it was finally liquidated.

This administration was called by some “the building era,” for under its management there were built dormitories for men and women, the primary school building, a gymnasium, an assembly hall, a chapel, a recitation hall, a library, the president’s house, and houses for the professors and employees, giving accommodations for two hundred and fifty students and twenty-five faculty members.

The achievements of Dr. Lewis were not alone those of a visible and material kind. He won for W.M.C. a high place in the list of the colleges of Maryland by revising the courses of study, adding new ones, and leading in the general educational projects and practices of the times.

Nor were his energies limited to his own college. He was called to serve the state of Maryland as the President of its Board of Education, and later he became National Superintendent of the Methodist Protestant Church.
Twice during his administration did his health demand a rest. The Trustees, realizing this need, granted him a leave of absence, which he spent in travel. During this first leave he went around the world, and Dr. James W. Reese was chosen acting president in his absence.

Dr. Reese was educated and prepared for the position of clergyman in the Protestant Episcopal Church but was prevented by a chronic throat malady from engaging in the work of his profession. He was, however, a scholar of unusual attainment and in consequence was ably fitted to teach Latin and Greek. He was offered the chair of ancient languages in the early days of the college and took up the duties of president in addition to those of teaching. His term in this substitute position was brief, but he measured up to the confidence placed in him and represented the college with dignity whenever occasion demanded it.

During Dr. Lewis' second leave, Dr. William R. McDaniel, then vice-president, assumed the duties of president at the request of the Board of Trustees. His thorough knowledge of the academic, financial, and social relations of the college eminently fitted him to take up the reins of government in the absence of Dr. Lewis. So ably did he perform the duties of this position that later, when a third president was being sought, he was urged to accept the office. His experience, his interest in young people, and his loyalty to the institution which he had served so faithfully since the call to Western Maryland College to teach mathematics interrupted his graduate work at the Johns Hopkins University, made him the unanimous choice, but he declined the honor of the position.

After thirty-four years of noble service, of management based on careful study of conditions, of rigid economy, and of numerous personal sacrifices, Dr. Lewis resigned the presidency to the great regret of all who knew his worth.

In 1920 Albert Norman Ward, D.D., was called from Kansas City University to be the third president. A Methodist Protestant minister, a native of Maryland, and a graduate of Western Maryland who had served three years as vice-president of his alma mater and a brief term as Chancellor of Kansas City University, he gave promise of being a worthy chief, and he did ultimately surpass all expectations. He adopted the slogan of “A Greater Western Maryland” and worked with unabated interest and enthusiasm to realize his dream. He saw the need of doubling the enrollment of two hundred and fifty students in order to meet the demands of the times. Compulsory education laws, standardization of schools of higher education, and stricter academic requirements for teachers all lent incentive to a revised curriculum and a larger student body. More students required more and better equipment, finer facilities for class work, and a larger faculty. All these Dr. Ward made realities during the fifteen years of his presidency. He also added largely to the endowment, built modern dormitories for women, and furnished them comfortably. He enlarged and modernized the laboratories and the dining room, added athletic facilities for men and women, and greatly enhanced the natural picturesqueness of the grounds. Within and without the buildings he aimed to make every prospect please. A man of vision and varied interests, he rose to prominence in wide educational fields by his efforts in behalf of the small college, of which he was a firm ally, and in the annals of the Methodist Church he will be known as one of the staunchest proponents of church union.

No record of a co-educational college could be complete without some account of the women who have figured in its advancement. This writing can serve only to testify that Western Maryland has had its great ladies and to enumerate some whose accomplishments deserve far more extended account. Many of these women have labored as helpmates of the men who have been its founders and its leaders.

Catherine Light Ward, wife of President J. T. Ward, performed a noble service in managing their home and in meeting the demands imposed by their natural hospitality and social responsibilities. She so intelligently watched over the health of Dr. Ward that he was able in spite of impaired health to carry on the duties of his position. She measured up to the stature of her husband in her sphere.

Mary Ward Lewis inherited the gentleness, goodness, and graces of her parents. No one could more successfully have banished unnecessary formality in society, and the ease with which she presided in her home made her most acceptable in the capacity of the president’s wife. She shared the labors and sacrifices of her husband and all that she did was done most cheerfully.
Unfortunately the wife of Dr. Reese was not living when he was acting as president. He bore "the heat and burden" of that day alone.

Ada Smith McDaniel, daughter of the first president of the Board of Trustees and wife of W. R. McDaniel, has also made to the college a contribution of a very special nature. She is gracious of manner, capable in all she undertakes, and prominent in social, civic, church, and college life.

Blanche Murchison Ward, wife of the third president, Dr. Albert Norman Ward, was a modest little lady who fitted into the varied experiences of her husband with interest and enthusiasm. She also had the qualities of leadership; she had ideas and the ambition and energy to put them into execution. Much of the success of Dr. Ward was certainly due to the incentive and backing she gave him in his many undertakings.

Deserving special mention not only for the goodness of their character but also for their wise performance in a position made hard by the changing social attitudes of their time are the deans of women, all of them estimable, and some of them great and worthy to be revered. In the early days the dean was called a "preceptress." The old term was correctly chosen, for if ever any one was called upon to give precept upon precept, it was those women upon whom was placed the responsibility of guiding the college girl into an approved and womanly course.

The first woman to hold the office of preceptress was Miss Annie Hance. There were several whose coming to this position was a sort of meteoric appearance, visible for a short time only then vanishing entirely. But there are five whose tenure lasted several years and whose names are pleasant memories to the girls they "precepted": Miss Clara Newson—later Mrs. Cushing, Miss Susan Ferris—now Mrs. G. W. Ward, Miss Mary A. Scott—now Mrs. C. E. Forlines, and Mrs. Fannie M. Stover.

There were in this position two other women of intelligence and high ideals whose constant concern through two decades was the best interests of the girls they directed. To Miss Lottie A. Owings and Miss Margaret M. Robinson belong the respect of the students and the gratitude of the Board of Trustees.

Since limited space precludes appropriate tribute to each of these excellent women, a few lines written by Dr. Lewis at the time of the death of Miss Lottie Owings may well serve as a memorial not only to her but also to the others for whom no particular encomium is here provided. Of Miss Owings, Dr. Lewis wrote:

It is just twenty years ago that Miss Lottie Owings began her connection with the college. . . . I bear willing testimony to the loyalty, the intelligent, self-sacrificing devotion of that service during the eight years we served together. Her patience, her counsel, her tact, her wise discriminating judgment were invaluable to me and prevented much loss to the college through my mistakes and ignorance. Her place will not easily be filled and to those nearest her the loss is irreparable.

There are many other western Marylanders worthy to be remembered. The college has its illustrious alumni, who in distinguishing themselves have also ennobled their alma mater; it has its farsighted and generous patrons, whose benevolence has made possible some of its most important functions. Not to be overlooked, moreover, are the men who have given long and exacting service as members of the Board of Trustees. Theirs has been the difficult responsibility of sanctioning important changes and extensions—of liberalizing without sacrificing the best traditions of the institution. Finally it must be said that the college has had its share of great teachers, both men and women, and these, too, perhaps will have their chapters in the history of the greater Western Maryland College.

Nannie C. Lease, '95.
Fred Garrigus Holloway, the fourth President of Western Maryland College, is a native of Newark, N. J. He is the son of Frank DeMott and Alice (Garrigus) Holloway. In 1925 he was married to Winifred Maxwell Jackson. He was educated in Western Maryland College, Westminster Theological Seminary, and Drew University. Western Maryland College honored him, in 1932, by conferring upon him the degree of D.D., and in 1936, Dickinson College honored him by conferring upon him the degree of LL.D.

For a number of years he was a successful pastor in the Maryland Annual Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church. In 1926, he was appointed Professor of Biblical Languages in Westminster Theological Seminary. He was a very successful teacher. Upon the resignation of President Hugh Latimer Elderdice, in 1932, Professor Holloway became President Holloway of Westminster Theological Seminary. So successful was he in this position that upon the death of President Albert Norman Ward, in 1935, he was chosen President of Western Maryland College.

He inherited a great tradition, a tradition which he well knew and which he has well preserved. President Albert Norman Ward had started a program for building a "Greater Western Maryland". That program Fred Garrigus Holloway is successfully carrying forward. Already, under his administration, two new buildings have been erected. ALBERT NORMAN WARD HALL is a splendidly furnished dormitory for men. GILL GYMNASIUM is one of the largest and best equipped gymnasiums in the state of Maryland. Higher educational standards have been established. This began by raising higher the standard for admission into the college. This made possible the selection of more desirable students. And this, in turn, made possible a higher standard of teaching. The faculty has been enlarged and its academic standing improved. The public relations of the college have been greatly multiplied. So many and varied are these relations that it is now necessary for one member of the administrative staff to give his whole time to these relations. President Holloway himself has been called upon by the government to head important defense committees. His public speaking engagements are very numerous. What used to be the summer vacation at the College is now no vacation at all. A successful summer school is conducted. From early in June to the middle of September the campus is alive with conferences, conventions, institutes, retreats, etc. The college is now doing successfully an all-year service.

We are pleased to record here the name of every alumnus we know to be in the armed forces of our country. Any omissions or inaccuracies are certainly not intended. It is our hope to list each and every one. The women, too, are being taken into the service—some, as nurses, probably already are serving. WILL YOU CORRECT any mistakes and add to our list, so that later issues may bring the list up to date. Thank you.

GENERAL DOUGLAS MacARTHUR
In June, 1929, when General MacArthur was Commanding General of the Third Corps Area, with headquarters at Baltimore, Western Maryland College conferred upon him the Degree of Doctor of Laws (LL.D.).

At the Annual Banquet of the Alumni Association, your secretary was instructed to (and did) send him the following:

"General Douglas MacArthur: Assembled Western Maryland College Alumni pledge their utmost cooperation to have the pen of history write of you 'he came, he saw, he conquered.'"

In incredibly short time the President's office received this reply:

"As the honored president of Western Maryland College I send to you my filial greetings and my deep gratitude for your message stop I want you and my fellow alumni to know that in the vital struggle that lies ahead I shall always have as one of my greatest inspirations the traditions that through the years have so distinguished this great school of Character Building."

MACARTHUR.

WILLIAM ROBERTS McDANIEL
A. B., A. M., SC. D.
"Billy Mac"

Were this minute for the eyes only of the personnel of the Board of Trustees as it is today, then it were better that it might never be inscribed. For there remains for those who knew and who loved him—and the two are, in his case, synonymous—a memory that neither written phrase nor spoken word may adequately express.

But there will be others, of another day, who will ask: "Who was this Dr. McDaniell whence was he? what was he?" "We know that he was a Western Maryland Alumnus. We know he was a teacher, a Trustee, Faculty Secretary and College Treasurer. Others, conceivably, might have been some, even all, of these. Who was he?"

The Board of Trustees of which he had been a member for thirty-one years answers:

William Roberts McDaniel was born near St. Michaels, Md., on August 11, 1861, his father and mother being John and Ann McDaniel. In the fall of 1877, he entered Western Maryland College from which he graduated, salutatorian of his class, in June, 1880. He taught a year in Buckeystown—two members of this Board were among his pupils. He then returned to Western Maryland College, as an assistant instructor. In 1882, and until March when he returned to Western Maryland to become the head of the department of mathematics, he did graduate work in Johns Hopkins. On November 21, 1895, he married Miss Ada Smith, daughter of John Smith of Wakefield and the first President of this Board. She and a daughter, Dorothy (Mrs. Ober Herr), survive him. For forty years he was Secretary of the Faculty. From 1895 till his death he was the Treasurer of the College. For thirty-five years he had been vice-president of the College. The office ceased with his death. He was treasurer of the Alumni Association for over fifty years—and until his death. He was a mason, a churchman, a scholar, a gentleman. He died on April 19, 1942, aged 80 years and 8 months. Funeral services were held in Baker Chapel on the morning of April 22, conducted by President Fred G. Holloway, assisted by President Charles E. Forlines of the Seminary, and his pastor, Rev. L. S. Ensor. Members of the Board of Trustees were honorary pall-bearers. Active pall-bearers were his oldest Faculty associates, and members of his immediate family. Interment was in Westminster Cemetery.

The narrative might end here. In days to come, those who might read it might comment that he apparently was a useful man.
Dr. McDaniel was a master of detail. From the records of a student and of a Faculty meeting, to the exacting minutiae of a Commencement, there were no mistakes, no missing links.

Few detail men are able policy makers and administrators. Dr. McDaniel was. Acting chairman of the Faculty many times, a number of times acting President of the College, he was always acceptable to all.

In the year he was elected a Trustee, 1911, Western Maryland for the first time conferred the degree of Doctor of Science—naturally on William R. McDaniel.

When the first College paper was started, it was through his wise and tactful hands copy passed, and continued to do so until college journalism was on a firm basis.

He organized the College Sunday School and was its Superintendent for many years. Its reputation was state-wide. It blessed many lives.

College athletics—as such—many progressive steps in College discipline, social life and curricular expansion, owed their inception to him.

For more than a half century the Alumni Association was continually wanting to honor him: in 1913, he was its guest of honor at the annual Mid-winter Banquet, the occasion taking the form of a celebration of his thirty years as the head of the Department of Mathematics. A silver service was presented to him. Again, in 1930, he was the guest of honor at a similar Banquet, and his portrait was presented to him. It hangs in McDaniel Hall. Alumni, all, loved him, and through all the years. They loved him because he was a just teacher; because he was always a gentleman—and treated others as gentlemen; he was human—in his sympathies, attitudes, exactions; he had all the refinements and none of the shams of life.

He did not live apart from his community. He was active in the civic life of Westminster. He had been highly honored in masonry. He was active in his church and long a member of its official board.

He was lovely—lovely—in his home and in his home life. How well we know he was!

“God gave us memory that we have roses in December.”

To us who knew him well in the long-ago, and then on to the end, already come “roses in December.”

Still other hundreds, who knew him best in the meridian of his life, will tell their children and their children’s children of his great and useful life.

And so, on this April day, he passed over. And who but shall say that all the trumpets must have sounded for him on the other side.

And somehow or other, one feels that the life of William R. McDaniel will be interwoven into the destiny of Western Maryland College, as his life has been into every decade of its history. For while William R. McDaniel, the mortal, is gone, William R. McDaniel, the spirit, lives—and motivates the lives of others. It will continue to do so till time and eternity meet.

SPECIAL NOTICE — DUES

$206.00 stands on the books of the Treasurer, to the credit of “Club Dues”. That section of the constitution which authorized the collection of this money also provided that where no local club was chartered within four years, the money should be credited to the next ensuing annual dues. Therefore, the required four years having elapsed, each person will have his or her payment credited to the regular “dues” account.

CHARL L. SCHAEFFER
A.B., B.S.E.

Born on a farm near Silver Run, he received his basic education in the public schools of Carroll county. He entered W. M. C. in the Fall of 1910, graduated in 1914 and entered the Engineering School of Hopkins, where he received the degree of B.S. (C.E.) in 1917. World War I took him into France with the 312th F.A., 79th Div. With his honorable discharge in 1919 he became Professor of Physics at Western Maryland. In 1933 he was appointed Assistant Treasurer and upon the death of Dr. McDaniel he was elected treasurer of the College in April, 1942. Quiet, friendly and hard working, he guards the finances of your Alma Mater, the while continuing his classwork in Physics.

He is also Treasurer of the Alumni Association.

Our Diamond Jubilee

The celebration of a seventy-fifth anniversary is an illuminating affair. A recital of all that occurred in connection with our celebration would require a small volume in itself. How well our forbears built was somewhat demonstrated by the character of friends and families who came to celebrate with us.

In spite of the speeding up of commencement time by many institutions other than Western Maryland, making their commencements jam mid-May with programs, normally spread over the entire month, the Convocation of Saturday, May 16th was exceptionally well attended by delegates from a large number of colleges and other institutions. Rain on the morning of the 16th marred what would have been a colorful procession from Old Main to Alumni Hall. This did not dampen the ardor of those who attended, and President George F. Zook, of the American Council of Education, rendered an able address. The buffet luncheon following these exercises brought those attending together for a social hour and, at 1:30, the conferences of professional groups (education, homemaking, law, medicine, and the ministry), convened. These proved so interesting and well-liked that already the suggestion is made that such conferences be repeated.

The Garden Party, planned for Robinson Garden, turned into a reception in McDaniel Lounge. This is one of the bright spots annually, and it is the one which is most difficult to break up, in order that the program of the day may go on.

The Seventy-fifth Anniversary Dinner was notable for the enthusiasm of those who attended. Nearly four hundred-fifty enjoyed a splendid dinner, the keynote of which was the continuation of our birthday celebration. Leading in this was the Golden Jubilee Class of 1892, with nine members present, which had graduated on our twenty-fifth anniversary, and had celebrated their twenty-fifth with our fiftieth anniversary.

From the Pacific Coast, Florida, and the Canadian border, loyal Alumni came to help make this occasion linger long in our memories.

Topping off the day, already crowded with good times, was the Diamond Jubilee Ball, held in Gill Gymnasium.

The celebration of our seventy-fifth anniversary actually began with the resumption of the Baltimore mid-winter banquet on February 6th, followed by similar dinners in New York, Philadelphia, Indiana, Pa., Washington, D. C., and Cumberland. Later in the spring “The Song-stress,” one of the unpublished works of Haydn, was presented as an added feature of our celebration. (This opera has been presented only once previously in this country.)

The foregoing, plus May Day, Visitors’ Day, Lantern Chain, Class Teas, Club Reunions, and Senior Play all built up the enthusiasm which brought about a happy conclusion to our seventy-fifth birthday party.

COLLEGE ENROLLMENT

A last minute check-up with the Registrar reveals the fact that we are about a month ahead of any previous year on enrollment of male students. The enrollment of girls is also well up. While there is room for more, why not send in the name of another good prospect.

Charles E. Forlines, ’97, was placed on the retired list of the Baltimore Annual Conference at its recent session by virtue of the fact that he had reached the maximum years for active service. He was continued as acting President of the Westminster Theological Seminary until his successor as President has been secured. He will continue as Professor of Doctrinal Theology.

"EDUCATION NOT RATIONED"

Seen in a little paper edited by an alumnus. That should remind you to send to the College the name of that boy who can and will go to some college—why not give your Alma Mater a chance, and do the boy a good turn, too.

I have had no notice that "Dues" have been rationed, either. Only a "buck" a year; but why bring that up?

Extracts from the business meeting:

Two new members of the Board of Governors were elected for a three-year term:
- Ira D. Scott, Dr. C. Gardner Warner.

Three Visitors to the Board of Trustees:
- Miss N. C. Lease, three-year term;
- Dr. E. D. Stone, Jr., three-year term;
- Mrs. Emily Sillin, two-year term.

The Constitution was amended to provide for vacancies in the Board of Governors and Visitors to the Board being filled by the President with the sanction of the Board of Governors.

Three hundred dollars ($300.00) was contributed by the Association to the College for its Chemistry Laboratory Fund.

More than a hundred new members were added to the Association Roll by the induction of the nineteen forty-two class into membership.

MISS KATIE SMITH

Soon after her graduation in 1881, Miss Katie became principal of the Preparatory department of the Preparatory department, which was housed in Levine Hall, now Levine Hall of Music.

She resided there until she became Preceptress at the college. She filled this position until her marriage to Mr. Walter Gray, a lawyer, when she returned to her native Charles county.

She was kind, efficient and sensibly conscientious, guiding the lives of those entrusted to her in a Christian way.

Her last ten years were spent as an invalid and she passed away July 11th, 1941, still loved and respected by her old girls.

Alumni News

The publication of alumni news depends almost entirely upon the cooperation of the alumni themselves. Therefore, it is hoped that the alumni will send in personal items about themselves or other Western Marylanders—such as changes of address, new business or professional connections, appointments, or election to office, publications, marriages, births, etc.

DEFENSE STAMPS

In previous issues a suggestion was made that members send in Defense Stamps with which we hoped to get Defense Bonds for the Student Loan Fund. Forty-two 25 cent stamps were received. In the meantime, a regulation prohibits the sale of Defense Bonds to associations, agents, corporations, etc. The value of these stamps will be credited to the original donors as a direct contribution to the Student Loan Fund and added to their class memorials.

I enclose $...................... to be applied as follows:—

1942 SUMMER SCHOOL

The accelerated program, which called for a summer session of twelve weeks during which one may earn fourteen semester hours credit, began on June 12th. The enrollment is quite satisfactory and consists of new freshmen, old students, workshop students and teachers working toward degrees. Summer school closes on September 3rd.

"Some defeats are only installments of victory." I'm glad to see by the paper that installments have been curtailed.

Homecoming Day
October 17

The Homecoming Game will be played with Mt. St. Mary's on Hoffa Field October 17th. We hope to have an excellent attendance. Any further program will be announced later.

" Keep on buying OFFENSE BONDS.
The enemy may shell in if we don't shell out."

ATTENTION PLEASE

There were so many items that just demanded to be carried in this issue of the "Bulletin" that the size had to be increased. Appropriations did not cover this added space. It is hoped that the readers will recognize this and remit their dues, so that there will be sufficient funds to liquidate.

MR. T. K. HARRISON,
Executive Secretary.
