

The Gold Bug Presents:

FLOWING, 1965

Gala Festivities Herald "An Evening In Paris"

Homecoming festivities begin at 6:45 pm tonight with the traditional parade through campus. Leading the parade will be the majorettes, pom pom girls, pep club, and cheerleaders. All students are invited to march with these groups and the WMC band. Following the parade a bonfire will be held behind the Hoffa Field stadium. The cheerleaders will lead several cheers; the pom poms and majorettes will perform; and the tri-football captains, Gary Kulick, Alan Ingrassia, and Richard White, will throw the Lycoming dummy into the bonfire. Carolyn Jennings, co-captain of the cheerleaders, requests everyone to bring his loudest voice and noisemaker to this event.

Parade Starts at 12:45
Tomorrow features a parade through Westminster, the football game with the Lycoming Warriors, and all the Homecoming events. The parade will begin at 12:45. Starting at the Westminster Armory, the parade will proceed up Main Street until it reaches the campus. Organizing the many participants in the parade will be Bruce Wells, the parade marshal. He will be followed by the ROTC Honor Guard, the majorettes, and the pom pom and cheerleading squads.

Floats Are Featured

Princeton Chaplain Speaks Sunday Night

Dean Ernest Gordon, dean of the chapel at Princeton University, will speak October 10 at the chapel service in Baker Memorial Chapel.
The Princeton chaplain was born in Greenock, Scotland and was educated there and in the United States. He is now a United States citizen. During World War II, the dean was Company Commander of the Second Battalion of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders and was a Japanese prisoner of war. He has been at Princeton since 1955.

DEAN ERNEST GORDON
Dean Gordon is the author of "A Living Faith for Today," "Through the Valley of the Kwal," "Miracle on the River Swai," and "Relevance of Religion to the World."
Dean Gordon's topic is "A father of Authority." The able is invited to attend chapel services at 7:15 p.m.

rated for the occasion. After the game, the demonstrators will be open to visitors during open house. Also, fraternity and sorority clubrooms will be open for guests' inspection that afternoon. The ISC will sponsor an Alumni Tea immediately after the football game in McDaniel Lounge.

Melwormen Will Appear
Climaxing the Homecoming weekend, will be a semi-formal dance, "An Evening in Paris," sponsored by Pi Alpha Alpha fraternity Saturday evening. The evening's entertainment will be provided by the Melwormen who have appeared at many engagements throughout the Maryland area. Commencing at 8:30 pm in Gill Gym, the dance will represent a typical Paris scene. Tickets for the dance are $3.50 and will be available at the door. Chairmen of the dance committee are Alva Baker and Leonard Owens.

Faculty Focus On Creativity October 23

"Workshops in Creativity," the theme of the 1965 "Focus" program, will be held Saturday, October 23. "Focus," the continuing education program presented annually for Western Maryland College alumni, spotlights the benefits of a liberal arts education. The program will illustrate its theme through a series of workshops on drama, music, and writing.

Dr. Reuben Holthaus will open the session with a lecture on the creativity of philosophy. The drama workshop will be opened with "Kid Blue," an original one act play by Larry Eisenberg, Class of 1963. Following the presentation, Mr. William Tribby, Mr. Jerry L. Solomon, and Mr. Eisenberg will lead an informal discussion of the play.

IBM Composes Music
Using works from several periods, the music workshop will present several approaches to composition through the live performances of Mr. Oliver Spangler, Dr. Arleen Hegge-meier, and the College Madrigal Choir. A record "Music by Mathematics," will be representative of music composed by an IBM computer.
Mr. Keith N. Richwine will begin the workshop on writing with a lecture on poetry. Poet M. Charles Ribert, Class of 1941, will then discuss his own work and methods; and Mrs. Edith Ridington will discuss a popular form of poetry, the haiku.

Morelli Exhibits Work
During the entire program an exhibit by Paulette Morelli, a Paris born artist, will be on display in Gallery One of the Fine Arts Building. A semi-abstract artist, Mrs. Morelli achieves a feeling of depth in her work through color and texture variation.
All reservations for participation in the program must reach "Focus," care of Western Maryland College, by Friday, October 15. A $3.00 fee includes registration and lunch.

Over 300 university presidents from all over the world met in Tokyo last month to discuss (what else?) university problems. Of this number, 55 delegates were from American schools. Western Maryland College was not represented.

3M Awards WMC Teaching Aids

The 3M company of St. Paul, Minnesota has awarded Western Maryland College $2,000 worth of classroom teaching equipment and reference materials as part of the company's $1.5 million grant program to assist in the training of future teachers of America.
3M's Assistance Grant to Education program enables teacher training colleges in the United States to expose future teachers to modern teaching techniques that will help them cover material more effectively in the classroom.

Herzog Cites Growth
According to R. H. Herzog, Vice President of 3M, the program evolved from the company's first assistance grant, a 1963 program that awarded $1.5 million in equipment to schools across the country. It brings to $3 million the amount that 3M has given to schools through grant programs.

Western Maryland will receive a $2,000 grant consisting of a complete teacher training unit in visual classroom communications. Included will be a unit of instruction in the use of visual aids, reference books, sets of transparency originals of illustrative material of 70 different subjects, transparency making equipment, and classroom and portable overhead projectors and supplies.

Aid Is Responsibility
Herzog said that the 3M Company feels strongly that private industry has a responsibility to support our educational system, and that the 3M program seeks to do this through better trained teachers. "By improving our educational system at its roots—where teachers themselves are trained—we would hope ultimately to help improve the students."

Queen Joyce, Court Reign As Campus Salutes Autumn

Senior Joyce Neff Magnotto will reign as 1965 Homecoming Queen over the annual event from October 8 until October 10. Attending the queen are Linda Mahaffey Spear, Class of '66; Anne Spencer, Class of '67; Anne Cooney, Class of '68; and Nancy Higdon, Class of '69.

The Homecoming Court will be presented by their ROTC escorts at the half-time show at the football game. The Queen will then present Mrs. L. S. Ensor with a bouquet of flowers. Also, the Pom-Pom squad, the ROTC band, the Honor Guard, and the Majorettes will honor the Queen and her court. Later at the Homecoming Dance, Queen Joyce will again be presented.

Joyce Serves as Trumpeter

Joyce, who became Mrs. Tony Magnotto in January of this year, is formerly of Silver Spring, Maryland and is now residing in Westminster. A 21 year-old English-Library Science major, Joyce is a member of the Argonauts and was chosen as one of this year's Trumpeters.

She is a member of Iota Gamma Chi and is serving as president of the Intersorority Council. In her junior year, Joyce participated in the Junior Follies and in her freshman and sophomore years, she was an attendant in the May Court. After graduation, Joyce will travel with her husband who will be in the service.

The queen will attend the game on Saturday afternoon. Joyce usually attends the games as co-captain of the Cheerleaders. "It will seem strange," she said, "to be cheering from the stands instead of on the field—but I still hope we win!"

Seniors Select Spear

Senior Linda Spear, originally from Pocomoke City, is a 21 year-old English-education major. Linda married Mr. Joseph Spear in May and they are now living in Westminster. Besides serving as Editor-in-chief of the Gold Bug, Linda is also a Trumpeter and a member of Phi Alpha Mu Sorority. She belongs to the Student Life Council, was co-author of the Junior Follies, and was an attendant on the Homecoming Court in her sophomore and junior years. Linda plans to teach after graduation.

Spencer Represents Junior

Anne Spencer, a 20 junior from Baltimore, is an attendant in 1965 Homecoming Court. Anne is a member of Sigma Sigma Tau and sings in the Choir. Her interests are in the Arts, with music and dramatics her main loves. Anne, an English major, is undecided about her plans after graduation.

Sophomores Choose Cooney

The sophomore attendant, Anne Cooney, is an eighteen year-old math-education major from Rising Sun. Anne is presently on the Dorm Council and is a member of Phi Alpha Mu Sorority. She has also worked as a reporter for the Gold Bug. After graduation Anne is planning to teach. Len Carter is Anne's escort for the Homecoming Dance.

Higdon Is Freshman

Nancy Higdon is from Cantonville and is 18. In high school, Nancy worked on Student Council committees and she is now working on the Gold Bug. Her interests run from water-skiing and swimming to sewing. A sociology major, Nancy plans to go into social work after college. Mike Ward is escorting her on Saturday evening.

Squads Announce New Members

Carolyn Jennings and Joyce Magnotto, senior co-captains of the cheerleading squad, have announced three new members of the squad. These three freshmen women, Suzanne Cranston, Judith Elsebrode, and Elizabeth Wade made their cheering debut during last Friday's pep rally in Gill Gym. They will cheer in their second home football game tomorrow. Rejoining the cheering squad this year after a year away from the Hill is senior Patricia Thompson.

Pom Pom March

Following tryouts open to all young students, Elizabeth Murphy, captain of the pom pom squad, announced twelve new pom pom girls. The regular members of the squad are Susan Filbert, Diane Hare, Virginia Hess, Dorothy Holmes, Mary Massey, Margaret Naughton, and Ellen Von Dehsen. New alternates on the squad are Jacquelin Laughlin, Ellen Reinhart, Jacquelin Rush, Rebecca Wallace, and Barbara Zimmerman. The twenty-one member squad, accompanied by the ROTC band, will perform to "Hello Dolly" during tomorrow's half-time ceremonies.

Let's Keep Moving Up! Foreign Students Enjoy WMC Friendliness; Find Life on the Hill Fast and Furious

The beginning of another year—and with it comes a new generation of faces; new problems to tackle; and old chores to continue. Homecoming is the perfect time to welcome back the "ole" alumni and welcome the new freshmen on the "hill." We are expecting big things from the class of '69; they have been hailed as having more talent, brains, and brawn than ever before. (Doesn't that sound familiar?)

The GOLD BUG is starting out on a new year also. We have increased our advertising to enable us to publish a six-page issue every two weeks; we are planning to increase our space coverage in print and pictures; and we have added a permanent column for the fraternities and sororities.

But, we can't stop here. Western Maryland needs a controversial newspaper—one that acts as a sounding board for student and faculty opinions or complaints. If you have anything to say on any issue, publish your views. We will print any statement pertinent to the problems on this campus (and we do have quite a few).

Western Maryland also needs a weekly newspaper. This, however, is a problem that can only be solved by an increased budget, and today, there is no money to be had, or so we are told.

And so, we go steadily onward, plugging out our copy on two worn and weary typewriters, rushing to meet deadlines, and trying to make you realize you can use us. With the help of the freshmen, who have shown great interest in the paper, and those upperclassmen who are still with us—the GOLD BUG will survive another year. Whether it will grow and become a real newspaper is up to you. LMS—

by Chris Geis

When you meet someone from another country, you naturally expect some differences in language. But talking to Lin Chen and Adreshir Press causes no problem. The English that they speak is very similar to the speech of the majority of Western Maryland students. But Lin comes from Rangoon, Burma, and Poona, India, which is 120 miles from Bombay, Adl's home town.

Sciences Attract Both

Both of these foreign exchange students are "freshmen" on the Western Maryland campus. Lin is just starting her college education as a Math or Chemistry major. Adl, a Physics major, would have been graduated in six months in India. He has not been placed in a class yet, but he will find out before second semester whether he is a sophomore or a junior. Both plan to go as far into graduate study as they can. Adl's comment, "I don't know how far I'll go," sums it up for both of them. Neither one has a definite idea of what they will do with their education. Lin, though, has decided she has a great interest in the computer thing.

Students Are Freer Here

Adl and Lin are impressed with the freedom of life in the States. Both enjoy the friendly atmosphere at Western Maryland. Lin has noticed that people in the United States move faster than people in her tropical climate and that people here are more social-conscious. Adl finds that our time-saving devices are "like magic." But both Lin and Adl have found differences in life in America. In Burma the young that the school systems are very different from those in India. Most of the elementary and secondary schools are not co-educational in this country. The English-speaking schools are usually run by nuns or priests, however, there are schools in which speak Indian. While they earn the equivalents of a BA or BS degree, this does not necessarily guarantee the students a good-paying job.

Both Prepared for Changes

Both arriving in the United States with varying degrees of preparedness for life in this country. Lin has a brother attending Baldwin-Wallace College outside Cleveland, Ohio. He has told her much about differences here. Lin states, "The differences are not so marked that they would overwhelm me." She has been reading a great deal about this country. Adl also read about America, but "they glorified it a bit too much at home." Thus, she had seen New York City to be totally composed of skyscrapers. This disappointed him, because the city resembled a large city in India.

A minister from the United States living in Burma and a scholarship from a western Maryland student in India have fortunately brought Western Maryland in contact with Lin and Adl.

Rowse Creates Student Interest

When A. L. Rowse lectured in Alumni Hall last Monday, the Maryland student in England, Elizabethan England. However, Dr. Rowse, is also an expert on William Shakespeare. His lecture was a number of books in his field; the most recent is Shakespeare's Southampton, which will be published this month by MacMillan & Co., Ltd. of London.

In connection with Monday's lecture, an exhibit entitled Shakespeare Illustrated is in the Fine Arts Building. Included in the exhibit are materials from the British Embassy, the Pratt Library, Baltimore, the Baltimore Museum of Art and the private collections of Dr. Helen G. Hovary and Dr. Evelyn Wenner, whom the Feature Staff interviewed for this article. The bulk of the show is composed of a set of prints from the Boydell engravings, which are part of a massive project undertaken to honor Shakespeare in 1786.

Somebody Up There?

Where Are You Going?

by Dean Ira Zepp

How you answer these three questions will determine your future. Who are you? (the identity crisis) What do you stand for? (the moral crisis) Where are you going? (the meaning crisis)

The answers from Biblical faith are, respectively, image of God, commitment, and vocation. These questions are asked and answered by each of us daily, in some form or another. And there are never complete or final answers. We keep asking and answering them at the edge of life's journey. Answers may not be indissoluble, but each of us will decide whose image we will reflect, to what will we be committed, and whose call we will obey.

Computerized Character

You have noticed I did not ask, "Where are you from?" "Who were your ancestors?" "From what side of the tracks are you?" "Why did you go to high school?" "What were your college board scores?" Where you are from is fundamentally irrelevant. It is never the measure of a man. Events of our Lord was asked, "Where are you from?" his mission was aborted. Nazareth was a one-hour town in a nowhere called Galilee. "Nothing ever came out of Nazareth!" They had him pegged, categorized, and dismissed because they knew where he was from.

Guard Your Integrity

It is very much the same here, isn't it? You must be a certain kind of person if you are from the Eastern Shore or Brooklyn or south Baltimore or north Jersey or Carroll County. And we expect people to fit into these molds. "Where are you from?" has clinical overtones and does not evoke meaning, as Carl Michelson observes. It is data you can process—gist for the computer.

"Where are you from?" is irrelevant because one of the major axioms and mysteries of life is that a person's past need not completely determine his future. One need not always be what one was! If you have been a C student, you need not feel condemned to be a C the rest of your life. Any professor or counselor who types you as a "C" has dehumanized you in the deepest sense of the word. I see little benefit in placing a shroud of fear and anxiety over students by saying that you who have been excellent students in high school will be mediocre in college. The academic curve of college—so many A's, B's, C's, etc.

"I ain't what I wanna be . . ." People are not automatically to be cured. We do not insure our academic standing as an institution by making sure that there are a certain number of D's and F's. You were carefully screened by an Admissions Committee who feels you can make it.

In fact, most of us improve. Do not be paralyzed by your past—I might add, your dead past. What you have been does not directly determine what you will be. The human spirit has the remarkable facility to break through the predictions of high school and college counselors. College board scores, and any other form of human bondage. The following prayer sums it up this way: "O Lord, I ain't what I wanna be; I ain't what I oughta be; but thanks Lord, I ain't what I used to be."

The Feature staff of the Gold Bug invited Dean Zepp to write this article for his regular column after the enthusiastic reception of his sermon on this topic in a recent chapel service. We suggest that you clip this out and keep it!

Ron Boone Tells of SOS Experiences: Smiles, Regrets, Successes, Failures

This is the first of a series of three articles dealing with the impressions and experiences of the '65 SOS team which made a Puerto Rico trip last summer.

Communication—After six weeks in Castaner, Puerto Rico, you come to know what the Student Opportunity Service of Western Maryland College is really all about.

Suddenly, you're not basking in the cultural comfort of a college campus. Your life is not being run according to a schedule anymore, and you don't have those sanitation facilities you're used to. You're eating don't have those hamburgers and French fries you've been subsisting on for the best part of the last three years. What's more, you don't just eat, everybody else now. It really feels strange. You just walked into a big masquerade party and everybody else is wearing their culture. But it's not a masquerade—and you feel stark naked. You are the one who's different now. For a change, you are on the outside looking in.

Mind Soaks Up Words

The problem, then, is to get inside, to communicate, to don a little of that cultural wardrobe. The only way your mind becomes a tiny sponge dippled into a vast ocean of Spanish—you know you can't do it all and that's most of what you do retain will evaporate in time, but you keep soaking it in until finally it happens.

Communication Begins

A pair of irresistibly beautiful big brown eyes coaxes you into giving their owner, a little eight-year-old girl, a piggy-back ride to her home. She mounts the shoulders of her trusty steed with all manner of caution, and placing her tiny hands atop your head, accidentally squeezes that sponge. What little you have absorbed of that vast ocean begins to ooze out—by drops. You stop self-asking her questions about school—when she went, what grade she was in, how many and what classes she'd, did she like it? And when you give answers you could understand you knew you had begun . . . to communicate.

But you're only got six weeks and you're not a trained linguist by any means. It would be ridiculous to think you could achieve that mysteriously indescribable total communication you're seeking in Spanish—the task would be difficult enough in your native tongue.

The Universal Smile

So you try something else. You shake their hands, you drink their cafe, you eat their bananas—even when they're boiled—and you smile. You work with them. You play basketball and volley ball and dominoes and jacks with them—and you smile. You build a playground with them. You pick up a machete and you cut grass with them. You go to San Juan and talk to the Director of Recreation with them. You shovel gravel with them—and you smile.

SOS Gives Sales Pitch

You walk up and down the hillsides and you visit them and you talk to them:

"Nosotros somos estudiantes de un colegio en Maryland en Estados Unidos. Nosotros estamos trabajando aqui en Castaner ayudar a Ustedes construir un parque de recreo para sus ninios. Es posible para Ustedes nos dar un poquito dinero para su parque? . . . We are North American students from a college in Maryland in the United States. We are working here in Castaner to help you build a playground for your children. Can you give us a little money for your playground?"

Things SOS Accomplished

1. You reclaimed a capable man's dormant interest in community recreation.
2. You created and began construction on playground for your children.
3. You taught in the elementary school.
4. You rejuvenated the town Recreation Association.
5. You held two town meetings—a flop and a success in that order.
6. You made a small beginning in a Community Sanitation Program.
7. You went from home to home and visited the people and interested them in your project—

Things Not Accomplished

But just before you break your arm patting yourself on the back you think about all the things you didn't do, the things you didn't accomplish:

You think about how disorganized you were that first week.

You wonder why you didn't get more involved with the people.

You wonder why your first meeting was a flop.

You wonder why you didn't plan more carefully, think through more thoroughly, and execute more efficiently. . . . Then you stop yourself—you're only human. The only people who never made any mistakes are the people who never did anything. You were there to do something and the best way you knew how—you did it.

Trippy Gets Teaching Award; Aims For Critical Acumen

Mr. William L. Trippy is happiest when teaching. He loves his subject and he values his close relationships with his students here at WMC. He is well-liked and respected by these students. For these reasons Mr. Trippy was chosen to be the recipient of the 1965 Distinguished Teaching Award given by the Baltimore Alumni Chapter of Sigma Sigma Tau. This award consists of a plaque and fifty dollars.

Respect for one's own teaching practices, the critical approach to one's reading are two of Mr. Trippy's goals that he wishes to instill in his students. His tests are geared not to whether or not the material is read, but rather they are geared to test the students' reactions to this material. The main reason his students must do so much writing is because he feels that "educated people must be able to communicate."

After expounding on his teaching practices, Mr. Trippy sat back in his chair and looked happy. On his dividing screen he displays pictures drawn by his children, a boy aged 6 and a girl aged 4. He told of his courtship with his wife and how it lasted through four years at different colleges. He discussed his plans for his doctoral dissertation on dramatic criticism. He looked back over his years at WMC and recalls

Letters to the Editor: Controversy Rages Over Article Six Regulation

Are You Con -

To the Student Body -

On Monday, October 4, the Student Government Association voted on the new scheduling procedure for this organization. For the most part, the regulations proposed were rules designed to enable the more efficient scheduling of events. However, proposal number six was definitely out of context with the rest of those on the list. This article states: No fraternity or sorority open or closed function will be held one weekend prior to, or one weekend after any of the four major dances. This regulation neither increases scheduling efficiency nor does it achieve its designed purpose for which it was designed.

Proposal six is supposed to increase the attendance at the four major dances by decreasing the expenditures of the male members on campus the weeks before and after this major social phenomenon of the season. Although not so explicitly stated but all too implicit in intent, the SGA Executive Council hopes to increase dance attendance by so starving the campus of desired activities that even the tedium of a Western Maryland College prom will provide a hope of relief on the weekends. The most unfortunate outcome of the affair is that neither of these attempts at coercion is likely to be effective.

Most people who do not attend these dances are financially able to do so but do not wish to; they have the money to spend but feel that more satisfaction can be obtained by spending their money in other ways. Neither will the lack of organized social activity attract these people, who would rather pursue their unplanned but more enjoyable impromptu recreations.

Not only will the proposal not achieve its aim but it ranks in a person's gut when he realizes that the SGA Executive Council is trying to control the spending habits and social calendar of the individual members of WMC. This is an overstepping of power on the part of the Executive Council. Although the claim is that this supposed bolstering of the major dances increases the overall happiness and joy on campus (by providing a minority with organized boredom), this hardly justifies the blatant disregard of the rights of the vast majority. Even if the number of weekends infringed upon is small as maintained by the egalitarians of the SGA, the simple fact is that the SGA should not be possessed of the power which they now claim. The protest is not so much against this one act as it is against the signs of abusive power which it manifests. With no separate body of appeal present, the SGA sets itself up as a supreme, infallible body, which is certainly not the case.

The Executive Council has been referred to several times instead of the SGA. This body is responsible for antagonizing the student body with legislation that is contrary to its wishes and benefit. The vote on the amendment to abolish article six ended in a tie (11-11). Three of the eleven votes against the amendment were members of the Executive Council; when the president broke the tie, all four of the members of the Executive Council who voted were against the move to abolish the disputed article. This is ominous for two reasons. The first is that each of these Executive Council members were already represented twice in the Senate (once by their dorm representatives and once by their class representative); since they represent no unique group and the representatives of the groups of which they are a part voted for the amendment, their vote was not a representative but a personal one. The second is the fact that the Executive Council was unanimously opposed to what the majority of non-Executive Council members favored. If it had not been for the Executive Council's casting of four very biased votes, proposal six would now be campus history. This shows an Executive Council working at odds with the people that it is supposed to be benefiting and a SGA that is hampered by misrepresentation from showing true student opinion on matters of importance to the students.

The above leads to the formulation of certain reforms that are needed with regard to the SGA:

- (1) The SGA should act as more of a coordinator and liaison between faculty and students and leave the Administration of the campus to the so named body.
- (2) Even though it is almost a certainty that (1) above will not be heeded, the members of the Executive Council (excluding the President) should be deprived of their vote by constitutional amendment in order to achieve more accurate representation for students in SGA.
- (3) Hereafter, more students that are in tune with the student body should seek election into the power that is the SGA so that the interests of the student body will really be served.

Wayne Porter

- Or Pro?

Dear Editor:

This past Monday at the SGA meeting the newly proposed scheduling policies were discussed. After lengthy debate, the motion was passed to adopt these policies. However, it seems that this did not solve the problem. The issue at hand was one Article 6 which states that there can be no fraternity or sorority open or closed functions scheduled one weekend prior to or one weekend after any of the four major dances (i.e., Homecoming, Christmas Dance, Sweetheart Dance, and May Day). Considering that there has been talk of referendums, petitions, and all such whatnot, I feel that it is only fair to let the situation be explained for the benefit of the student body.

In the past the SGA has handled scheduling of events in a relatively haphazard and uncertain manner. This year the Executive Council and the IFC-ISC presidents drafted a new set of scheduling procedures. Included in these was the set-up of one official calendar, a uniform and consistent method of control of said calendar and definite written down rules to follow. Realizing full well that most of the social activities on this campus are now fraternity-oriented, and that in the past Fraternities had a difficult time looking for non-conflicting open dates, we felt it was necessary to insure that they be given preference on the new calendar. Therefore, before leaving campus last June, there were placed on this year's calendar, seven IFC-ISC social function weekends (weekends on which fraternities and sororities are guaranteed that they have priority) and may schedule functions) four open party dates (one per fraternity), four rush parties dates, the four major dances (one per fraternity), traditionally dated events, and other activities which had been turned in. This was done in co-ordination with the IFC president in order to facilitate scheduling matters for the fraternities. This is no attempt to limit the number of functions a fraternity puts on, it merely assures them of having their minimum number of activities. If they are desirous of having more functions, they have every right to petition for any of their open dates. As liberal as this system appeared, it was felt that there would be no indignation aroused if we went prior to and the weekend after the four major dances were kept free from fraternity or sorority activities.

First, this would protect the fraternity holding the dance--for fraternity men don't have the Midas touch and they would rather go to a closed party the week before or after than to the dance, if given the choice. This problem has occurred in the recent past and it has caused quite a bit of friction when one or more fraternities is noticeably absent from a major dance. A second, and more important aspect to consider is that, no matter how much preparation went into it, a poorly attended dance is not very enjoyable to those who come. In this sense it would have a definite effect on the freshmen (who have limited opportunities for social functions as it is), the independents, the alumni who return, faculty and administration who come, as well as the fraternity sponsoring the dance. The Student Government must consider the student body as a whole, not merely a few select groups. Third, these seven weekends surrounding the four major dances (weekend after the Christmas dance begins vacation) can be used to give other organizations an opportunity to sponsor events without encroaching on the fraternity functions.

Narrow-minded people have claimed this past weekend was one of these so-called "dead" weekends. Friday night there was a big shindig with local talent at the newly opened coffeehouse; for about forty boys who hit at least temporarily set aside petty fraternity squabbles, Saturday afternoon was anything but dead; Saturday night following the game, there was Rat Court and then the freshmen held a mixer. Although many overclassmen may have felt it was beneath their dignity to attend a frosh mixer--and they felt they owed their allegiance elsewhere--I believe the freshmen got something out of it. They were given a chance to express themselves--a chance to work together with their classmates. They haven't really met the rat race of Greek life where everyone splits into differing factions and moves off along his own merry way. These weekends would be an ideal time for them to sponsor events.

As it stands now, of these seven weekends, there are only three which are open and have not been scheduled. Why do these weekends need these three dates? It would appear to me that these scheduling policies are overly fair to the fraternities. Must this be a completely fraternity-dominated calendar? Many long hours and much careful consideration are behind these procedures. Will we allow a vociferous few, who are so involved in their respective organizations, that they fail to see the total campus situation, to dictate to the student body? Have the fraternities forgotten that there are freshmen and independents to consider on this campus? Do the fraternities wish to revert to past methods of scheduling events where everyone gets fair crack at the open dates? Or do they simply wish to have their cake and eat it too? I fail to see where anyone has been discriminated against in this issue. The SGA has acted with all fairness in this respect--acting in the best interests of the student body.

Service is the Key Word For Campus, Class Leaders

DANIEL MCCREADY

A natural leader, Dan McCready now guides our student body as SGA President. Dan is an effective, tactful, and efficient leader who has previous SGA experience. Dan served as SGA treasurer in his junior year and thus was the chairman of the finance committee. Dan also put his creative ideas in action when he served on the SCA publicity committee. An Alpha Gamma Tau brother, Dan was in charge of the 1965 SUEV Day Decorations which most students will remember as quite exceptional. Dan has also played on the Bachelors' intramural basketball team and was the discus thrower for the WMC track team for two years.

A Pre-med biology major is no easy task, and yet Dan has managed to excel in his studies also. This summer Dan worked at the National Institute of Health in biology. Such a dedicated and hard-working student commands our respect.

Three more pictures and the first engravings were included the next year. In January, 1791, appeared the first unbound part of the text, two pages with the following imprint: THE DRAMATIC WORKS OF SHAKESPEARE, REVISED BY GEORGE STEPHENS. This project was not completed until 1905, though the title pages to the nine bound volumes were dated 1823. The first edition published "A COLLECTION OF PRINTS AND PICTURES PAINTED FOR THE PUR- OF ILLUSTRATING THE DRAMATIC WORKS OF SHAKESPEARE BY THE ARTIST OF GREAT BRITAIN."

Lottery Saved Boydells The project was quite successful, however, shortly after the printings were begun, the French Revolution began. Trade was cut off with the Continent and with no market for the prints, the project went bankrupt. The Boydells gained permission from Parliament to hold a lottery in order to recoup some of their loss. Twenty-two thousand tickets were sold at approximately 15 dollars apiece. All of the prizes were won by a jeweler named Tassie. He immediately sold them to the British government.

In June, 1789, the Shakespeare Gallery was opened with thirty-four paintings; thirty-

New Faculty Adds Spark To Campus World

Info On Some New Faces

Anchor Hoes Physics Dept. Dr. William T. Anchor has been selected by the administration to be the new head of the physics department. Upon receiving his B.A. from Auburn University, he then went to Vanderbilt University, from which he received both his M.A. and his Ph.D. Dr. Anchor, who is married and has two preschool age children, comes to us from the department of physics at Earlham College in Indiana. He and his staff are working on several problems facing the physics department, a major one being the need for more equipment, and a possible revision or modification of the curriculum requirements in physics. Dr. Anchor hopes that this year the physics program will be supplemented by outside lecturers who will speak on fields related to physics.

Frijters Teaches Languages

Dr. Cees Frijters, new head of the Modern Language Department, is happily adjusting to a very friendly environment at WMC. After former years of teaching at Queensborough Community College and Wilkes College, Dr. Frijters is getting into his job with numerous projects in mind. He hopes to improve discipline of the language lab and correct the studies of classroom and lab for more valuable results. Of German origin, Dr. Frijters spent several years in France and Holland.

Zauche Instructs German

Another addition to the Modern Language Department is Donald R. Zauche, assistant professor of German. Dr. Zauche, a 1957 graduate of WMC, is a doctoral candidate at Northwestern University. While Dr. Zauche was a student here, there was no modern language department and he is adjusting to this change. His supreme ambition for the next few years is to create a major field of preparation must be made. Dr. Zauche has increased number of students plus qualified professors make the new major possible.

McDaniel Hall girls have a new Mother. Mrs. Frances R. Frey reads, knits, and is "disappointed" by bridge, but admits that "knitting is her favorite hobby." She has visited fourteen nations.

Palmer Instructs English

Mr. Melvin D. Palmer, another new addition to the English department, truly has an about face by transferring from 27,000 University of Maryland students to WMC's 900. Mr. Palmer received both his B.A. and M.A. from the University. Like Jerry Solomon, Mr. Palmer has finished his dissertation to his doctorate and is working on his dissertation. Mr. Palmer's doctorate will be in the field of comparative literatures, concentrating on English and French. He will be the first Ph.D. in comparative literatures ever awarded

Saturday, September 25, in Union Bridge. The fraternity has planned to hold a "coffee clatch" which will be open to the entire campus. They will invite a campus professor to speak on any topic that is of particular interest to him. The name of the professor will be announced later with the date of the coffee clatch.

Pledging activities will start Friday, October 1 and will last through October 31. A major project will be undertaken by the pledges.

Iota Gamma Chi

One of the Iota's projects for this fall concerns making Halloween favors for the Earlham County Hospital. Along the county line, the Iotas are planning a big social event, details of which will be revealed at a future date.

Also on October 1 the Iotas welcomed twenty-six pledges into their clubroom. They are: Cathy Arick, Kathy Bell, Ellen Brooks, Mary Dickson, Claire Gimbel, Kaye Grossnickle, Marjorie Happel, Kay Heley, Karen Holm, Lynn Howard, Lynn Jameson, and Kathy Johnson.

Others include Pat Kelly, Janet Martin, Janet McDougal, Margaret Nanton, Elaine Pisch, Carol Piezonki, Sandy Rineheimer, Julia Rogers, LaVerne Shanks, Sharon Sheffield, Linda Sofnowski, Pat Wahl, Claire Whittington, and Carol Wilkin-

CAMPUS COMEDY

Alpha Gamma Tau

Alpha Gamma Tau began this year's social season with a closed party held September 23 at the American Legion in Westminster. In addition to the Bachelors' pledging period which will begin soon, other outstanding events which they are planning include their annual fall banquet to be held Saturday evening, October 9 at the American Legion. For the afternoon of October 9, after the game, the Bachelors are holding an open house in their clubroom for members and their guests and alumni.

Delta Sigma Kappa

The Deltas are starting off the fall semester by working together on a float for the Homecoming Parade. Also on October 5 the Bachelors, who are the Deltas' brother fraternity, escorted their sisters to the movies in Westminster.

Delta Pi Alpha

Delta Pi Alpha will begin its 65-66 activities by the induction of 27 pledges, the pledge period beginning October 1 and continuing throughout the entire month. The pledges will be occupied with clean-up projects, two good deeds, and the usual fun and games. The Preachers are in charge of concessions at this year's football games. Heading this operation is Roger "Tahweh" Adler, who has assured us that the pledges will work the stands as part of their duties. Of course, the non-ball members will help out where they can.

An open party is tentatively scheduled for October 30. If the plans materialize, the Preachers plan to make this party "the best to have ever hit campus."

Gamma Beta Chi

The Gamma Betas began their social activities for the semester with a closed party held

Educational Testing Gives Exam Dates

College seniors who are prospective teachers will receive National Teacher Examinations on any of four different test dates scheduled by the Educational Testing Service. The 500 locations throughout the U. S. are sponsoring the tests on December 11, 1965, and on April 19, 1966, and October 8, 1966.

Many large school districts often consider the results of the National Teacher Examinations when selecting new teachers; the results are also employed by several states for certification or licensing of teachers.

Prospective teachers may take the Common Examinations, measuring the general preparation for teaching, and one of 13 Teaching Area Examinations, measuring mastery of the subject to be taught. Information concerning which examinations to take and on which dates they should be taken, the college should be contacted.

From the Senate -

By Dan McCready,
President SGA

The Student Government Association began the school year with its annual orientation for the freshmen. The SGA plans and co-ordinates this meeting at which the freshmen have the opportunity to hear from various campus leaders about the many extracurricular activities available on the "Hill."

This year the SGA will also provide, for the first time in several years, an effective Men's Council to act as a governing body for the men of Western Maryland. The council is composed of the officers of the SGA Executive Council and the Senate representatives from the eight sections of the men's dormitories. The Council will prepare rules of conduct and dress for the male population of WMC and will have the authority to issue administrative warnings to individuals who consistently show no regard for the feelings and liberties of others.

As another innovation, the Student Government has prepared and put into effect a new system for scheduling. In the past, there have been no written rules by which organizations could schedule activities.

Another area of Student Government concern is its capacity as voice for the student body and spearhead for student opinion. One of the most pressing and prevalent areas of consternation on our campus is the lack of adequate fire safety facilities in Albert Norman Ward Dorm. If, for some reason, a fire of any size broke in this dorm, it would not be long before all of the dormitory were ablaze. If a fire of this sort were to happen tomorrow, it is more than likely that many residents of ANW would be seriously injured—if not killed.

Last year, the Senate of the SGA passed a resolution firmly requesting the administration to improve conditions. As soon as school began this year, the President of the SGA met with the Director of the Physical Plant and expressed to him the student concern about the dangerous fire conditions that exist in the men's dorm. It was explained to Mr. Willis, that although strides were being made in the improvement of the Physical Plant, as far as the student body was concerned, nothing is more important than insuring the safety of the students. Mr. Willis agreed and said that plans are underway to remove portions of the walls between sections in ANW so that the occupants will, at least, have two means of escape. These improvements will begin in the near future. The Student Government will also request additional equipment; i.e., more fire extinguishers and the possibility of outside fire escapes.

Terrors Clash with Lycos in Hoffman Field

Gridmen Parker, Borgia Shine; Beware of the 'Lycos' Special

The Lycoming College Warriors, fresh from an impressive victory over Albright College, invade Hoffman Field tomorrow for the 1965 Homecoming contest. The Pennsylvania squad, better known as the "Lycos," will be attempting to extend their winning streak and become the third school in history to defeat Western Maryland on a Homecoming occasion. To accomplish such a feat, they must have to overcome what is known as the "Lycos Special" and a determined Green Terror squad.

The Lycos Special is the name for the defensive pattern which the gridmen have practiced all week. Keep your speeded eyes tuned in for it is made up of Passes to Spec. Hands and Outs. These four men are the most important and without them, all is lost.

Offense Flounders
Last weekend at Coach Ron Jones' home debut, the team was both sloppy and fortunate. The offense did not jell. The offensive unit dropped five fumbles—three of which were lost. Penalty flags were dropping like autumn leaves but somehow we pulled through a victory, 15-14. One of the reasons was Bryant Parker, a phantom to the playing field before Saturday's game. He did not play at Wagner. Another bright performer was freshman Jerry Borgia who was last year's Maryland State High School scoring champion.

Time to shine. Borgia scored on a 31-yard run in the first period and the Green and Gold led at the half by a measly 7-0. Before we scored again, P.M.C. tallied 14 points to lead 14-7. It was at this point that Coach Jones called on Parker. Bryant decided that it "was time to shine on offense" and streaked past and through the opponents for 54 yards in 9 carries.

Sybert Springs Play
It was Borgia, however who carried the fate of the Terrors when he crashed across the goal line for the two point conversion which pushed us ahead for keeps, 15-14. Game films have revealed that end Jay Sybert played a vital role in the conversion play when he knocked a punter out of the game. Borgia sprang the play. Jerry carried the ball 20 times for a terrific 137 yards.

White, Kulkic Tough
As against Wagner, the week before, J. J. White personified the team spirit. He roused his teammate to action by hustle and chatter. Gary Kulkic, our toughest end, was offensively active and played a tough ball game.

Coach Jones expects Lycoming to be "almost as good as Wagner and certainly better than the Lycos." This week's practice saw rigorous concentration on ball handling and pass rushing drills. Lycoming boasts a potent passing attack and the pass defense will have to tighten up on its reactions. The one big question mark is still the defense. Until this position is settled, the offensive leadership will be inconsistent.

The Big Gamble
Life is a game of inches. About eight years ago, Ronald Jones was faced with a decision which he knew would shape the future years of his life. He had to choose between continuing as an officer in the Army and becoming a teacher and football coach. Fortunately for Western Maryland, he made the right choice, "came out of the service and my wife and I lived on saved things."

Ron Jones is now the new Head Football Coach on the "Hill" and he and his wife Carolyn and their three children no longer live on saved things.

Coach Jones comes from the Eastern Shore of Maryland where he graduated from Williamsport High School in 1951. Like all members of his coaching staff, he is an alumnus of Western Maryland. During his college days he was a star half-back and still alludes to his coaches, Charley Havens and Dick Harlow. After graduating in 1955, he served overseas in the armed forces and returned to Westminster in 1958 to teach in the local high school and serve as an assistant coach on Bob Waldor's staff.

Since he assumed his position last spring, the enthusiastic and likeable Jones has displayed a confident, positive attitude. To watch him on the practice field and during a ball game is a fascinating experience. When giving pointers and encouragement ("that-a-boy defense") he is both decisive and dynamic. The coach always in a curious position of authority which determines a basic part of the attitude which the squad takes to a contest. If his coach lacks confidence in his players, or commitment to his job, the players will sense it in some way. Terror fans have no worry with Coach Jones. He thinks positively, acts positively and it is showing in his boys. The players hold him in high regard and as one veteran stated, "Coach has taken over in a natural manner, that you can just tell it's a real part of his life."

The face of Western Maryland football will probably not undergo any drastic changes but Coach Jones knows his strengths and plans to utilize them. "We have the best backs we've ever had," he explains and "we'll be moving to the outside a good deal." One question mark still in the picture is the quarterback position. The three possibilities are, Coach Jones takes special pride in the defensive unit. As Terror fans know from reading Scop, the defensive team patrolled Wagner's running game and kept the offense from meeting Jones said, "Follows, we lost the game . . . BUT we played a great ball game . . . I was a little nervous, and when I walked off the field, I felt a temptation to drop my head, but, here, Jones shook his head as if to say 'But I did not and continued, "and you too can resist that temptation."

Against Pennsylvania Military Academy, the Green Terrors faced a dilemma. Hampered by fumbles, penalties, and all around sloppiness, Jones took things into his hands with Western Maryland trailing 14-7. By sending in plays by substitutes, the coach showed the Green Terrors for a score. The big question arose as to whether the team would go for a win or a tie. The score was 14-13. Coach Jones called for the gamble and

by Larry Harenchorn

"Improved" is the word used by Coach Homer Earl to describe the 1965 Green Terrors Soccer Team. The improvement can be attributed to the ability of Coach Earl, a 1960 graduate of Western Maryland and a former All-American (1947); to the determination of the players; and to the size of the squad—twenty-three players, a record for this decade.

Joyner Leads Returnees
Deserving special recognition are: Scott Joyner, a senior, who will be playing in his center-forward position from which he scored nineteen goals last year. Setting up the shots will again be our priceless pin-loy, Bill Spangler, who led the team in scoring last year. Bill is a co-captain this year. Keeping the ball up, at end, and the opposition down, on their ends, will be our other co-captain, Mike Waghelein, in at halfback. With his toe as accurate as ever, Rowland Creitz, a senior, will be shooting from front line in his fourth year of soccer on the Hill.

John Daily, a graduate of the "Neal Hoffman school of defensive play" will be a standout at fullback. Rick Coburn, our star goalie who wants to shove on TV, will stop the opposition if everyone else fails. Other returning letters include Dave Millhouser and Ralph McCann.

both sophomores, and juniors Frank Winter, Barry Canaras. The veteran squad is rounded out by Alain Derasse, a very promising right-wing; Roger Adler, on the liberal side of the field; Bob Spith, a much improved player; and Larry Harenchorn.

Upperclassmen out for the first time are Clayton Leister, a junior, and Jim Resau, a sophomore.

Much of the hope for this year is dependent upon the performance of freshmen.

Freshmen Show Promise

At this writing the two most outstanding freshmen appear to be Al Kempske and Norm Sartorius. These two must plug the holes caused by the graduation of Neal Hoffman and Don Schmitt. Other promising freshmen are Russ Richardson, Mike Simcock, Fred Schroeder, Howard Bond, and Peter Kinross.

Managers for this year are Richard Borden and his sidekick Joseph Hymiller.

The soccer team for 1965 has the courage, the ability, and the confidence to go all the way this year. All the team needs now is support from the sidelines. They say that the crowd in Memorial Stadium is like giving the Colts an extra man. Our soccer team will average of half a man—even if he does fall down when he kicks the ball.

Middle Atlantic Conference Recognizes Scott Joyner

by Ralph E. Wilson

Scott Joyner, senior southpaw and sparkplug of the 1965 Green Terror Mason-Dixon Northern Division Championship baseball team was awarded a first-team outfield position on the Middle-Atlantic All-Star team and was presented with the Most Valuable Player title of this conference.

Versatile

A three year letterman, Joyner has held a regular outfield position during his entire college career and has been included in the pitching rotation over the past two seasons. As a sophomore Scott chipped out 13 base hits for a .261 average as well as hurling in 46 innings with an earned run average of 2.55 and a season record of 3-2.

Consistent

When the 1965 schedule rolled around Joyner, with added experience, hustle, and drive, led Coach Fern Hitcheck's diamondmen to a rewarding 12-5 record in 64 games. In the first of the plate he rapped 21 hits, 5 of these being round trippers and two doubles for a season average of .359. Finding mound duty more successful than previous seasons, Scott hurled 43 innings striking out 44 batters, attaining an earned run average of 2.90 and wound up with a 4-1 slate.

Dependable

On the field Joyner reflects the "never say die" spirit of all times and is always ready to offer his peak of performance in action. Coach Hitcheck has described Scott, who acted as one of the team's co-captains in 1965, as "a good guy to have around," and his presence will certainly be looked forward to in the 1966 Green Terror season.

Scott is also outstanding on the soccer field where he consistently scores goals for the booters.

Scop's Sheet carried the Wagner story where the game was played before a sell-out crowd of 3,200 spectators. Although Wagner triumphed 7-0, we must repeat that our players came through with a hard-hitting, heads-up performance.

Outstanding at Wagner were John Theoner, Gerry Winegrad, Rick White, Art Lang and Jerry Borgia.

It was disappointing to watch Western Maryland's sophisticated soccer team outplayed by a small group of military cadets. We had at least three times as many spectators and they were not making noise. There is more noise under the typical pledge stunt than there is at Hoffa field.

Spotlight on Winegrad

by Walt Michael

Defensive tackle Gerry Winegrad is a Green Terror who is obviously in love with hard-nosed and heads-up football. Gerry, a senior Economics major from St. Mary's High School in Annapolis, where he played both football and lacrosse. In his senior year, he was the captain of a winning football team, and was recruited to play for the Green and Gold.

Standing 5'11" and weighing in at 215 pounds, Gerry has been very disappointed during his first three football seasons.

Women Athletes Launch Program

by Kathy Moore

As the busy class schedule rolls into high gear, the Women's Athletic Association, under the leadership of Carol Morelock, is launching its program with Varsity and Intramural hockey.

Veterans Return

This year's varsity squad will have experience as a starting board. Returning varsity players include seniors: Carol Morelock, Kay Coleman, Sue Reckord and Ilia Hoffman; juniors Kathy Edwards, Mandy Kelm, Maggie Elgin, Elaine Brown; sophomores Lynn Howard, Mimi Yarrison, Becky Matthews and Mary Reeves.

The first game of the season is scheduled at Goucher College, October 14, at 3:15 pm. Early practices indicate that the team is being coached in several key positions with the necessary depth coming from enthusiastic freshmen.

Tag Wood Directs

Along with the new faces comes the new coach, Mrs. Tag Wood. Mrs. Wood comes from South Dakota where she coached three undefeated teams. We would all like to welcome her and are looking forward to an exciting and fine year under her instruction. Practices will be held at the W.M.C. on Tuesdays through Fridays at 4:15 pm.

All women students are invited to the first W.A. meeting on October 11, at 8:00 pm in Memorial Hall, room 307.

Activities planned for the year include recreation nights, horse back riding, and swimming.

Minor Sports Out

A note to all the students on the "Hill" that there are NO MINOR SPORTS at Western Maryland. This is a new policy which has appeared in the directions of the new Athletic Director, Richard Clower. Therefore, all teams deserve your support and participation.

Sgt. Wohl, Riker Directs Shooters Season Opens Against Loyola

by Bob Cartwright

Western Maryland's championship rifle team is currently making preparations to defend its title.

Last year the team posted a 15-8 record on the way to winning the 2nd Army Maryland ROTC Rifle Team Championship. The team received a silver cup representative of that title during an honors parade held at Morgan State College last Spring.

Sgt. Wohl, the coach, and team captain Pete Riker, commanded back returning shooters and greeted prospective members in an organizational meeting held September 30. Practice began on September 30. Officers returning to the squad include Captain Pete Riker, Jack Ballard, Gordon Shelton, Jim Morgan, Russ Richardson, Wayne Lassing, Brian Miller, and Bob Cartwright. The talents of two fine shooters not returning, Lee Bailey and Bill Feizer, will certainly be missed. Their absence from the squad may be one reason the "Hairy Birds" captain, Pete Riker, termed this a "year for rebuilding." Chris Mattison is returning for a second year as manager of the team.

The Birds' schedule for this year is not yet complete, but they will act as hosts for their own "2nd Army Maryland ROTC Rifle Team Championship" matches. The first shots to be "fired in anger" will be in a away match at Loyola of Baltimore on October 13.

Experimental Theatre Sparks New Era in Drama

William Patterson Speaks On Oliver Wendell Holmes

Friday evening, October 15, William Patterson presented his one-man show, "A Profile of Holmes." Mr. Patterson's appearance in Alumni Hall was part of a tour which will introduce "Holmes" to audiences from coast to coast.

Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr., who has been called "the most complete personality in the history of American thought," earned his reputation as one of the great jurists of the English speaking world when he served as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States from 1902 to 1932. Of William Patterson's portrayal of Holmes, "The Stage of London reports," (he) brings Holmes so completely to life as to make it difficult to remember that this is, in fact, an actor's

Campus Petition Arouses Debate; Article Six Out

The one piece of SGA legislation which has caused much recent campus controversy is Article 6 of the new scheduling procedures: "There shall be no open or closed fraternity or sorority functions one weekend prior to or one weekend after any of the four major dances." This article was once again a main topic of debate at the SGA Senate meeting October 11.

Debate Is Heated
Frank Rinehart moved that the Senate remove Article 6 from the scheduling procedure and presented a student petition containing over four hundred signatures. The validity of the petition was then questioned on several counts. Some members felt that many of the people who signed it did so blindly, not knowing both sides of the argument. Others were of the opinion that it was not circulated widely enough, or that it did not give a true picture of the students' opinions. There were, they contended, many students who would have signed a petition had they known there was one. It was also mentioned that off-campus housing was poorly contacted and represented on the issue.

Article 13 Tabled
SGA president Daniel McCready briefly summarized the reasoning behind the article: to give other groups, such as the Freshman Class, an opportunity to schedule activities on those dates without having to compete with sororities and fraternities for patronage. Following more discussion, a roll-call vote was taken; and the motion to repeal Article 6 was passed by a vote of 15-8, with one member abstaining and one absent.

It was then moved that Article 13 of the procedures be repealed. This article reads: "The SGA shall set aside no more than eight and no less than six IFC-ISC social function weekends per year. There shall be no more than four social function weekends at a side per semester of any school year."

A motion tabled discussion of Article 13 until a later meeting.

"Kid Blue," Eisenberg's One Act Play, Appears "In the Round" at Alumni Hall

"Kid Blue" will premiere the new Experimental Theater when it is presented in Alumni Hall October 22 and 23 at 8:15 pm. This expressionist play written by Larry Eisenberg '68, is the first of my projects to be presented by this group.

Larry, a sophomore, has been supervised in the writing of the play by Mr. William Tribby, assistant professor of dramatic art, who will also direct. Settings and lighting will be designed and supervised by Mr. Jerry Solomon, also assistant professor in the department. Associate professor Esther Smith is in charge of costuming and make-up.

Action Is Mind
The playwright describes the play as an expression of "the alienation of man from his own life. It witnesses the gradual forces that reject and drive him from his world and from himself. . . . The place of action is the mind of one man. Each scene is a separate thought in that mind, and each thought drives him closer to the point where he becomes completely divorced from his own existence." The play is being staged to represent the territory of the mind, with a free flow of movement between the finite and infinite divisions of the mind. The audience will be seated in a semicircle on the Alumni Hall stage. Four aisles will lead through the audience to four smaller stages at the back of and elevated above the seating area, similar to the "tent scaffolds" of the medieval rounds. In the center there will be an other acting area and, back of this, an elevated stage.

Eisenberg Plays Lead
The title role is being played by Mr. Eisenberg. Others in the cast: Christine Styer, Patricia McNally, William McClary, Richard McCall, John Balderson, Charles Hickey, Richard Barris, Pat Fleeharty, David Christhill, Howard Russock, and Harry Collins.

The casting is limited to one hundred each evening. Tickets are $5.00 and may be purchased in McDaniel Hall office beginning Friday, October 15. Mr. Tribby has announced that the audience is invited to remain after the performance to discuss the play with the playwright, cast, and production staff.

Use New Stages
Later this year, the Experimental Theater will produce productions that would not normally be thought of as plays. This will include "An Evening in Antanome" in February, a program demonstrating how the human mechanism communicates by the use of gestures. Plans are also being made for productions that cannot be done as well on the main stage, such as scenes from Greek or Restoration plays, re-enacted literary dialogues, and more student work.

The Theater is designed to be a learning experience for the student actor, and it will give more students a chance to perform. It will also give the audience a more intimate contact with the productions by the use of the arena and the theater in the round.

The main stage is being adopted for the presentation of "Kid Blue," but in the future the Band Room in Alumni Hall will be used, and possibly other places on campus. The Experimental Theater brings to Western Maryland a new and exciting look into the theater world.

Norman Braden Presents Series: "Basic Principles of Objectivism"

Ayn Rand, author of Atlas Shrugged and The Fountainhead, will answer questions about her philosophy at the opening of the Washington, D. C. series of "Basic Principles of Objectivism: The Philosophy of Ayn Rand." The lectures, offered by the Nathaniel Braden Institute, will be held Tuesday, October 26, at 7:30 pm, at the Shoreham Hotel, Empire Room, 400 New York Ave. and Calvert Street, N. W. in Washington. The price of admission for students is $2.75 and for others, $3.50.

Braden Lectures
Nathaniel Braden, founder and president of Nathaniel Braden Institute, an organization which offers a program of lectures on Ayn Rand's Objectivism, will present the lecture. Mr. Braden will deal with such issues as: What is philosophy? The Bankruptcy of Today's Culture, and The Nature of Objectivism. Then Miss Rand will join Mr. Braden during an extended question and answer period following the lecture.

Man Is An End
Objectivism, as a philosophy, maintains as one of its major points "that man is an end in himself, not a means to the ends of others; he must live for his own sake with the achievement of rational self-interest as the moral of his life, neither sacrificing himself to others, nor sacrificing others to himself."

... And Let Our Names Go Down In Preacher History"

Delta Pi Alpha Serenades 1965-66 Sweetheart

Tuesday, October 5, Delta Pi Alpha Fraternity selected Miss Elizabeth Murphy as its sweetheart for 1965-1966. Betsy's selection as sweetheart is part of a tradition in Preacher history that goes back almost a decade.

The sweetheart is a senior girl who is selected by a vote of all of the fraternity members. Betsy has demonstrated her willingness for selection by her availability to help in fraternity functions, by showing a true interest in Delta Pi Alpha, and by her close ties to the fraternity.

Falkner Gives Roses
Since Delta Pi Alpha has no sister sorority, Betsy is the only female associate of the fraternity. On Thursday, October 7, the members of Delta Pi Alpha serenaded Betsy at her dorm with renditions of "The Sweetheart of Delta Pi," "The Willenpuff Song," and "Goodnight Sweetheart." At the same William Falkner, president of Delta Pi Alpha, presented her with a bouquet of roses.

Some of the duties and privileges of the sweethearts are to appear at all functions of Delta Pi Alpha, such as the Parents' Day banquet, rush, and other public fraternity affairs. During the Homecoming parade, Betsy was featured in the purple and gold Preacher float. Attending her were Francis (Trumpet) Thompson and James Little. The float took second place in the competition.

Betsy Is Active
"Delta Pi Alpha is very proud to have Betsy as 1965-1966 sweetheart. The entire fraternity feels that Betsy is the ideal Preacher girl on campus," stated Bill Falkner in a recent interview. Bill went on to say, "Betsy has demonstrated her worth through her outstanding personality, her willingness to sacrifice for Delta Pi Alpha, and her pretty face which always bears a smile for a Preacher."

Betsy, who is engaged to Karl Schuele '65, a Delta Pi Alpha alumnaus, is an English education major from Towson. She is captain of the poem poem squad, PAC member, vice-president of Phi Alpha Mu society, and other public fraternity affairs. During the Homecoming parade, Betsy was featured in the purple and gold Preacher float. Attending her were Francis (Trumpet) Thompson and James Little. The float took second place in the competition.

Dr. Williams, World Traveler Lectures on "Disciplineship"

Dr. Colin W. Williams, a noted lecturer from the National Council of Churches of the U.S.A., will speak in chapel on Sunday, October 31. His topic for Sunday evening will be "Discipline and Disciplineship." Dr. Williams will also address the student body and faculty at 11:30 am in Alumni Hall on Monday, November 1. His topic will be "The World Came of Age."

Writes Booklets
A minister in the Methodist Church of Australia, Dr. Williams was born in 1921 in Victoria, Australia, the son of a Methodist Circuit Rider. He attended Wesley College and Melbourne University and, following his graduation, taught history for two years at Melbourne University.

From 1947 to 1950 Dr. Williams renewed his studies at the Drew Theological Seminary in the United States and received his Bachelor of Divinity degree.

Williams Is Professor
Returning to the United States in 1954 Dr. Williams continued his studies at Drew Theological Seminary and completed the thesis for his Ph.D. on "Methodism and the Ecumenical Movement." While he studied, he lectured at Drew and was a visiting Prof. at Garrett Theological Seminary. Upon his return to Australia in 1958, Dr. Williams became Professor of Theology at Queen College in Melbourne and occupied that position until he accepted the Directorship of Evangelism for the National Council of Churches in January, 1965.

Vigilance Begets Protection

The Student Government Association, long laboring under the stigma of contempt and rejection, has at last been recognized by the student body at large. Granted, the majority of campus concern with the SGA was negative; but, at least someone noticed that the organization exists.

I think the SGA deserves our thanks for their efforts to straighten out the confused maze that constituted our scheduling procedure last year. None of us want to repeat the mix-ups that resulted by two or more major events being listed on the same date and some organizations having to cancel or postpone their affairs.

The SGA Senate (composed of representatives We elect) is not trying to railroad through a set of regulations odious to the student body. They are trying to establish a guideline that will provide the least confusion and the most benefit for the campus at large. Being merely students, like the rest of us, they do make mistakes, as evidenced by the passage of Article Six. When this happens it is up to us, the governed, to protest and demand a change—this we did.

If we ignore and condemn the SGA for incompetence, who will be watching to prevent other regulations being passed that we do not support. By taking an interest in the affairs of the SGA, be it positive or negative interest, we can have an organization that stands for our interests and concerns on campus. Only then will it become an effective arm to protect the students.

Money May Be En Route; Check Social Security

Will social security help pay your college expense? Maybe yes—maybe no, but the question is not so ridiculous as you may think. Because of a very recent change in the social security law, the monthly benefits paid to sons and daughters of retired, deceased or disabled breadwinners may now continue until age 22 if the student continues in school on a full time basis. Otherwise the social security payments stop age 18.

Stay in School

Take the case of John X. His father was killed in an automobile accident three years ago. Since the late Mr. X had been covered by social security for a number of years, payments totalling $160.00 every month have been going to John and his widowed mother ever since. John, an only child, will become 18 next February. Under the old law that would be the end of the most valuable benefits except for what John's mother would receive as a widow at age 60. Under the new law the payment of about $80.00 per month may continue to John, but not to his mother, until he reaches 22 if he continues to attend some recognized school full time.

The situation of Mary K. illustrates another point to keep in mind. Mary received a social security benefit of about $48.00 every month because her father had retired. This stopped last January when she reached 18. Mary graduated last year and now has a full time job. Even though she is not going on in school she or her parents may still claim the amount of money under the new rule from February through June 1965 because she was attending school then.

Contact Social Security

If you know of anyone in the 18-22 age bracket who has attended school or is attending school, and who might qualify for social security because of a parent's death, disability or retirement, advise them to get in touch with the social security district office to make sure their rights have been protected.

The district office for this area is at 200 East Joppa Road, Towson, Maryland 21284, weekdays from 8:45 to 5:00 and Thursday evenings until 8:30 pm.

Orchids For the Living

Now that the GOLD BUG has received notification of its financial situation for the coming year, its staff finds that there is enough money left over to treat the deserving members of our campus community to cymbidium.

Our first orchid goes to MR. RICE for his consistent performance in the dining hall. With almost rigid fortitude he has managed to serve his clients the Same Old Pood without the a pain. We are behind you, Mr. Rice, and we hope you will look back in the year before that. His menu is a WMC tradition, in spite of the fact that those little steaks make fewer and fewer appearances, and that the baker quit because he found more pay elsewhere. We are behind you, Mr. BARNY, because there's no way of getting out of paying for board if we're resident students.

And, for the second and last orchid presentation—for we only have a surplus of $150—we would like to salute all the PEOPLE IN THE PUBLICITY DEPARTMENT of Elderidge who have managed to keep WMC's name out of the headlines and into obscurity, so that when WMC students tell a stranger "I'm from Western Maryland College," he is met by one of several reactions:

- 1. Listener looks amazed and asks, "Where is that? I've lived in Maryland for thirty years and I've never heard of it."
- 2. Listener asks, "Is that a division of the University of Maryland?"
- 3. Or listener asks, "Is that a teachers' college?"
- 4. And then there is the enthusiastic listener who says, "Oh yes, my father/mother/brother/uncle/cousin/sister and/or grandparents went there. A fine school!"

Yes, WMC can be called a fine school. To paraphrase Noah Webster, "It is a small school, but there are those who love it." (And then, of course, there are those who don't.) But when it comes to orchids recipients have much to do with our feelings toward WMC. We hope they will think on these things as they meditate and sniff at their flowers.

The GOLD BUG is sorry to report that the money situation is reversed; the GOLD BUG uses the Administration $150. But we thought you'd enjoy knowing how we would spend surplus money if we ever had any.

With the arrival of Deacon David Peck at 158 Pennsylvania Avenue some startling changes have taken place at the Canterbury House. As the new Episcopal chaplain to the Western Maryland College campus, David Peck has initiated and carried through plans for establishing a coffee house.

The coffee house (still lacking an official name) is now a dimly lighted, welcoming walk-in. On Friday nights from eight o'clock to midnight, students and faculty of the college, and various others gather for coffee, conversation, and entertainment.

The customers provide the entertainment. During the past four weeks since the coffee house has been open, entertainment has ranged from impromptu musical performances, to well-designed dramatic dialogue by two professors, to general free-for-all discussion.

The menu offers an increasingly more varied selection of different coffees and a few hors d'oeuvres. Its simple fare suggests that this coffee house is not merely a place for coffee. At first it offered a tiny people-packed room and a good deal of music. After two weeks some highly interested folk tore the wall down.

Now there is a little more breathing room . . . room to talk, room to think, above all . . . room to participate, to share in whatever little or big is (one or more) might have. People contribute art work for the sake of the bare walls. Although these walls are scarcely bare any more, there is still room for more original work. And no matter how crowded the coffee house becomes there always seems to be room for one more in the general clutter.

Among this clutter of people and of creative ideas, stands the actual Clutter. Not much . . . an accidental red brick chimney in

Somebody Up There?

Dancing to Our Doom?

by Dean Zepp

The governor of Iowa, Harold Hughes (a Methodist), has just come out against "half-cad and gyrating young women"—an obvious reference to the dancing that takes place on T.V.'s Hullabaloo and Shindig. The chief executive of that sovereign mid-western state speaks for a large segment of American society which is enamored with the superficial.

R. R. Marett has observed that the "meaning of life is danced out before it is thought out." We could also say that life's lack of meaning is danced out before it is consciously realized. What other kind of dancing would you expect in a Discotique in the latter half of the twentieth century? The Minuet? Hardly. The stately, dignified symmetry of that eighteenth century dance was appropriate for a time when things seemed to cohere. The Waltz? Not on your life. The airy gaiety of this nineteenth century dance reflected the optimism of the West before 1914.

Who Stole the Cookie . . .

The Minuet and the Waltz have as much place in the twentieth century as the sedan chair and the spinning wheel. A century which has produced Flinders, Auschwitz, Selma, "abstract drama," Thin Alice, and the anti-hetero-sexual, death over life themes of James Bond novels and films is not a century particularly amenable to the idealized life depicted in the Waltz, Minuet, or even the Virginia Reel.

From the Charleston in the Twenties to the Littering in the Forties, to Presley's pelvis jerks in the Fifties, to the Frug, Pony, and Watusi in the Sixties, twentieth century man has been dancing out his lack of meaning. The abrasiveness and brokenness of all forms of twisting (inherently alien to Western culture) pose the question, "Where has meaning gone?" or as a recent chapel speaker put it, "Who stole the cookie from the cookie jar?"

Involution Eights U
A professor element in the meaningless evidenced in modern dancing is exposed by William Stringfellow when he remarked, "popular dancing avoids involvement with others and becomes a solitary exercise with many characteristics of a fantasy experience in which you twist and contort and burlesque your own body but never touch or hold or embrace your partner, and, in fact, just dance alone, as if beguiled with the thought of involvement but still afraid to become involved."

The "gyrations" deplored by the governor will not go away simply by condemning them. They may disappear when the answer is found to the question they ask, "Where are healing, meaning, and the grace to be found?"

I suspect that one who dances the Frug may be more in a position to receive that healing and grace than one who waltzes through this century.

the middle of the room, part of a chicken coop that was mislaid happily, an odd assortment of tables and chairs, and of course the traditional red and red checked table-cloths, make up the background.

As of now, the coffee house opens only on Friday. However, a renewed interest is shown it will be open as long and as often as demand requires. Some talk goes on during a regular Sunday afternoon jam session. For the present it's a good place for relaxing with a cup of coffee after "Ride the Wild Surf" at the Carroll Theater.

Volunteer student waitresses do the necessary work in the kitchen and help with serving. The Canterbury House under the direction of president Kathy Lathrop, has helped in getting this project under way. However much the impediments and manpower has come from other factors, notably, a real cooperation between students, faculty, and administration.

The coffee house is now completely on its own, depending on student faculty support. This means anything anyone wishes to contribute is a little risky, a little soon, some hand-clapping, or just a yen for a hot cup of java.

Parking Plan Irks Student

In the last year students who have registered their cars on campus have become increasingly frustrated. The parking was non-existent until the creation of a new administration post: the Director of the Physical Plant. With the advent of this vague title arrived an even vaguer and more elusive holder of it. The problem of which I speak is that of parking. There are now so many restrictions and no parking areas that one has to carry a copy of the parking regulations (along with U. S. Army Transportation Logistics Manual TFM 30-69) with him to see where the residents of his dorm, on his floor, with his size tires are supposed to park on cloudy Thursdays. The regulations this year even consider bicycles eligible for tickets if parked in the wrong place.

What is so ridiculous that girls must park their cars behind MacLea dorm, while the inconvenienced faculty members have to park in the area between the girls' dorms. Residents of Albert Norman Ward must park their cars beside GYM when there is more than a 400 sq ft space behind that dorm. Not only students, but also the faculty is made to suffer, although they are more reluctantly so publicly criticize Mr. Willis' tin-soldier policies.

I ask that Mr. Willis rechannel his efforts into something useful, perhaps the numerous and extremely dangerous fire hazards on campus, rather than concern himself with petty and childish regulations. D.G.H.

Through Lieb's Lens

What's New, Pussycat?

by Ron Liebman

The person next to me rolled with laughter at Peter Sellers having an infantile temper tantrum, he rolled in the aisles at the mad chase scene, and he almost split with delight at Woody Allen's antics. The movie was "What's New, Pussycat" and the person next to me was a ten-year-old boy. I'm not saying that one has to be a ten-year-old boy to enjoy this movie, but it helps. Consequently, "Pussycat" gets a meager two out of a possible ten in the Lieb's Lens rating system.

From what I understand, the plot or lack of it) is from more like a slow crawl.

Woody Allen's original screen play. I'm afraid this doesn't say very much for the author's comic talents.

The story is that of a male fashion editor (Peter O'Toole) who goes to a psychiatrist (Peter Sellers) because he likes girls so much that he doesn't contribute to his family's honor (Romy Schneider). Peter O'Toole has affairs with a suicidal stripper (Paula Prentiss) and two nymphomaniacs (Cappuccino and Ursula Andress).

The whole picture is an attempt to create a zany chase through life by the use of several comic techniques. It was more like a slow crawl.

—Letter To The Editor—

To the Editor:

Fraternities and sororities have raised the ire of administration, faculty, and fellow students by their manner of pledging members into their organizations. These pledges have been subjected to humiliation, disorientation, and even physical punishment, all in the name of brotherhood and sisterhood.

PI Alpha Alpha cannot maintain that it has not been a part of this system and yet we feel the time has come for a more mature attitude. The bonds to the past are strong and old customs die slowly; therefore, we cautiously celebrate the uncertain birth of pledging systems of greater maturity among some fraternities and sororities. The first steps toward a new understanding are always the most insecure and faltering and ours are no exception.

Feeling that learning comes best through open discussion and honest criticism, we place before you what we believe to be a more mature pledging system. As a fraternity we have set up guidelines for pledging which we feel not only promote unity and understanding within our own group, but are also adapted to the academic atmosphere of the college. Pledging has now been defined as a period of learning and orientation rather than one devoted to persecution and hazing. Pledges, as future brothers, are to be treated as unenlightened equals rather than unworthy subordinates.

Since the fraternity realizes that it cannot be an entity existing solely for its own benefits, we have attempted to incorporate a community or school service project as part of the pledging program. We hope that this will be recognized as an outward sign of the fraternity's wish to promote better understanding between members, faculty, and local citizens. It is not just a nominal commitment, but an honest effort to better campus relations and develop mature members of our fraternity.

Each pledge is assigned a pledge father as an advisor and teacher, with final authority for all activities of the pledging period resting in the hands of the Pledge Master, the Vice-President of the Fraternity, and a committee of members.

To ensure compliance with the requirements of pledging which include learning the fraternity constitution and getting to know the members of the fraternity personally, the fraternity reserves final judgment on the acceptance of a pledge for initiation. If a pledge is not accepted for initiation this terminates his association with the fraternity and allows him to find a more suitable association for his needs as he sees fit.

While PI Alpha Alpha realizes that this pledging program does not conform with the beliefs held by all members of this academic community, we do consider it a step, for us, in the direction toward responsible self-government. This is our attempt to move toward a closer adherence to our fraternity motto "For true manhood."

Tri-Beta Sponsors Freshman Tutoring

Members of Tri-Beta, a national honorary biological society, have a busy schedule planned. Under the direction of Dr. Sturdivant, the national president, a tutoring service is offered to all freshman biology students. Every other Wednesday starting October 27, members will help students at 6:30 pm in Memorial 307.

October 20 marks the initiation of new members. Then, every two weeks the students and faculty advisors, including Dr. Kerschner, district director of BBB, will have speakers and special programs. Among some topics for lecture and discussion are "Hormone Research" and "Pace-Maker Activity on the Embryonic Heart."

Speakers Discuss U.S. Foreign Policy

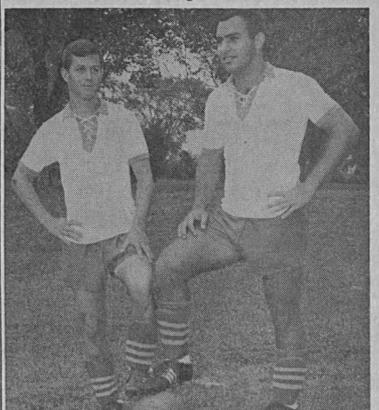

This year the International Relations Club's theme is "The Facts and Fallacy in the U.S. Foreign Policy." The club hopes that during the year many interesting guest speakers will visit the campus to give their views on foreign policy.

In conjunction with United Nations Week, the IRC will sponsor a trip to the Village of Cross Keys in Baltimore to an exhibition of Original Graphic Art from Around the World. Transportation will be provided for all interested students. For arrangements, see Miles Cole in MacLea Dorm or Janet Shedd in McDaniel Dorm.

SCA Studies Urban Missions

The Student Christian Association will offer a special retreat program at the Fellspoint Methodist Parish in East Baltimore, November 6 and 7. Reverend Robert Clark, minister of the parish, spoke on campus last year, informing interested listeners of his parish's intercity program, in which the parish members work with residents of the lower class areas of the city. Because of the interested reaction of the students, the SCA is planning to start an urban mission study. This would involve research and work such as that which the parish is doing within its own program.

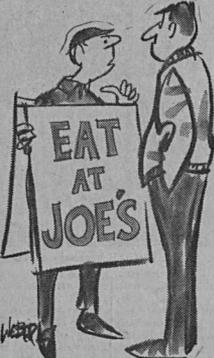

The retreat is an excellent opportunity for observation of and participation in the parish's work and will allow better preparation for the SCA's own endeavor.

Honor Court System Arises From Student Concern

The history of the Honor System is a brief one, but one with which few students are familiar. The heroes and heroines of our system's development are names that have either been forgotten or ones which have never really been known. Regardless of it finally monopolized the attention of both the SGA and the Judicial Board. Students Express Need At the onset of the 1959-60 school year, the second annual Leadership Conference committee presented and presented the follow-tion taken by the students. (Continued on page 10) Since the honor system's first introduction to our campus, several revisions have been made. Each year a committee chosen by the Court membership attempts to revise and improve upon the Student Handbook on the Honor System. As you know, this document is the student's initial and basic contact with our system, our court, and its method of operation. Therefore, it is very important that it be well-expressed, accurate, clear, and concise.

The selection of members to the Honor Court has also changed from a casual request for membership to a much more efficient method. Now, the applicant must first submit a written application to the Chairman of the Honor Court. He will then be given a designated time to appear for an informal interview with the Court. At these meetings questions and responses are exchanged with both parties usually benefiting ing recommendation: "We feel that an honor system is wanted and needed in all parts of this college. We recommend that the Judicial Board consolidate its efforts and set up such a system for the college which will be put into effect next September."

Acting immediately on this advice, the Judicial Board, with the assistance of Dean Howery and Dean David, Mr. Spangler and Dr. Summers, constructed the foundation for an honor system and made plans for its introduction to the student body. Finally, after an intensive ninety day period of meetings and discussions, a vote was taken on April 27, 1960, to determine the true opinion of the entire student body concerning an honor system. This strong student support was even more enthusiastically endorsed by the Faculty. Plans for the conference unanimously approved the ac-which of these two the case may be, the results of the patient and relentless efforts of these students is a source of continual pride to the Western Maryland College community. For almost ten years before its acceptance on our campus, the establishment of an Honor System was a popular subject of discussion and debate. Finally, in 1957, Samuel Reed, acting for the SGA, took the first definite step in making the campus prime topic of discussion become a reality when he compiled data from several other institutions regarding their honor systems. During the following year, a committee under the direction of Manfred Joeres (Class of 1959) and including Skip Hawkins, Nancy Willis, Kay Payne, and Jim Gibson investigated further into the subject. The question of our college's possibly having one maintaining a reputation gained greater momentum until

Navy Salutes Western Maryland

To the stirring sound of the Naval Academy's drum and bugle corps, 4,000 midshipmen pass in review Western Maryland delegates, as guests of midshipman first class Richard Borch, brigade commander of the U.S. Naval Academy, stood in a place of honor. The ceremonies climaxed an eventful and enlightening day at the Navy's State Leadership Planning Meeting held Sunday, October 10, at the U.S. Naval Academy. Dan McCreedy, Harry Durity and Bob Henry, representatives of the college, were one of five schools (Goucher, Salisbury State, U. of Md., Naval Academy and Western Md.) invited to discuss plans for a leadership breakfast in February to be given by Governor Tawes, and the leaders of other colleges could meet on a common ground to discuss mutual problems. This breakfast was held by the representatives of the schools present, but the underlying idea was concern for the growing need of a state association of student government on the college and university level, where the interchange of ideas and problems among colleges would occur. WMC will be the backing of other student colleges, plans to initiate such an association at a conference to be held here in the spring. With the sound of taps, and the mystic view of the sun setting across the Severn River, the challenge of leadership gained vital meaning. The conference, though small, carried with it great promise. It was the birth of new ideas that will play an ever growing role in student government relations throughout the state. Western Maryland must and will meet the challenge.

from the experience. The Court took notes on the basis of the applicant's answers and questions, as well as his knowledge of the system.

This year our most recent change was put into effect when the Honor Court investigated the widespread dissatisfaction of the students on the annual resigning of honor system pledges and came to agree with the student body that this was an unnecessary and somewhat annoying gesture. Western Maryland's Honor Court is presently an organization founded by, established for and improved by its students. While its technicalities may be in a continual process of change, its goal of providing a more honest and natural environment in which to have the student develop continues to be its steadfast objective.

Over eighty per cent of those students voting expressed their approval of the establishment of such a system.

Whetley Teaches Poli Sci Mr. Whetley, a member of the Maryland House of Delegates from Baltimore's sixth legislative district, will teach Political Science 103.

A 1954 graduate of Western Maryland, he served as president of his class, editor of THE GOLD BUG and a member of the Gamma Beta Chi fraternity. Mr. Whetley was also WMOC's first Political Science major.

Previously working on his Ph.D., Mr. Whetley is a member of the Baltimore law firm of Downes, Selland and Whetley with two other Western Maryland graduates.

Mr. Whetley's wife was a member of the class of 1956 at Western Maryland, and his niece, Carol Roemer, is presently enrolled as a senior here.

MacDonnell Stresses Math Mr. Perry MacDonnell is "interested in seeing that students have a well-rounded background in mathematics, including an awareness of the newest concepts in math."

A graduate of West Virginia University presently working on his Ph.D., he is now teaching classes in calculus, topology and analytic geometry. He finds Western Maryland students "very good with superior abilities."

Graduate Instructs Science

Mr. George Carr, a 1948 graduate of WMC and former Black and White, is a new addition to the Science and Education departments. A native of Baltimore County, Mr. Carr is working on his thesis for a Ph.D. from Cornell University. Mr. Carr thinks that "WMC students are today as quite different than they were in the past. He tentatively attributes this difference to better preparation in high school.

Jazz, Gym Interest Wood Progressive jazz and dance set to religious tunes are the enthusiastic hobbies of Mrs. Taze Wood, Western Maryland's new instructor in women's physical education. In future semesters these hobbies may influence many dancing coeds. Mrs. Wood, a petite, dark-haired teacher, is a former resident of the Philadelphia area. She has completed graduate work at the University of South Dakota and hopes to continue her studies at the University of Tennessee.

Man Behind the Machine

The room in Memorial which houses the college's data processing equipment has also recently become the office for one of the new members of our faculty. Mr. Raymond E. Albert, Jr. will serve our college in several capacities. A 1962 graduate of WMC, he went immediately to the Illinois Institute of Technology Research Institute at Annapolis. As an assistant mathematician he programmed digital computers, working with engineers studying the problem of radar interception. Mr. Albert, has during the last three years, in addition to his work at Annapolis, continued his studies at Johns Hopkins and hopes to receive his M.S. degree in management science in June.

In addition to the machines available to the college at this time, the school will obtain in the spring of 1966 an IBM computer which will provide the college with an extremely powerful computing and data processing capability. Calling the machines "sophisticated slide rules," Mr. Albert stressed that there is nothing mystical about them—that they can speedily handle large amounts of data. (Continued on page 5)

They will be doing just this as they proceed on their tour of Gettysburg.

Gamma Beta Chi A Halloween party is next on the Delt list of coming events. Business enacted at the last meeting included the election of Carolyn Koester as sorority co-business manager and the decision to buy new furniture for the club room.

Mr. Albert has material available on this field not readily accessible elsewhere and would like to talk to anyone of the general college community who is interested in computing and data processing—whether merely out of curiosity or to find out what is required of them to pursue a career in such an area. He hopes there will

Offense Looks For Precision McClintock, Sybert --- Tough!

The Terror football squad faces a significant challenge against Washington and Lee College in Lexington, Virginia tomorrow.

The WML Generals are not to be taken lightly, but the biggest obstacle may be the Terror's themselves. There will be no hullabaloo for this game and on the surface it is not an attractive one. It is a no-score away game. In fact, it will be in the same region where the gridmen were beaten last week. But when the football players are nose to nose and shoulder to shoulder tomorrow afternoon, these circumstances will mount 11 points in the air, all ball down to which team wants to win, just for the sake of winning. Coach Jones has said, "We are going down to win," and if the offensive attack comes alive in the opening minutes and manages to sustain itself, the trip home will not be a long one.

The Homecoming game saw the squad at its season best. We triumphed over a tough Lycium team 19-13, coming from behind in the last quarter. Jerry Borgia once again by scoring 2 touchdowns on 65 and 34 yard runs. With 5:05 left in the first quarter, Borgia took up the middle in a host of tacklers. He appeared to be stopped when Paul McClellan cut down the would-be tacklers to set Jay Sybert for several seconds later, and 15 yards downfield, a Warrior defender was zeroing in on the fullback when end Jay Sybert cleared the way with a crucial block. McClintock again proved valuable with a 38 yard field goal with 11 minutes remaining in the first half. Intermission saw the Terror's ahead 10-6. A safety early in the second half sent us ahead 12-6. With three minutes left in the third quarter, Lycium went ahead 13-12 on a 59 yard run by halfback Mike Cohen. With the pressure on Jerry Borgia once again broke loose to send the Terror's ahead to stay. Bryant Parker, Gary Kulick, Rick White and Al Ingalls played an outstanding game.

Against Hampden - Sydney College, the squad was again forced to stage a rally, only to fall short by a score of 15-13. The Terror's led everywhere but on the scoreboard. 21-14 in first downs, 187-163 yards rushing and 150-120 yards passing. We looked numb in the opening minutes as the hosts jumped ahead 10-0. It was 15-0 before we were able to get on the scoreboard. Barry Ellenberger tossed a 12 yard pass to Dana Huseman who went in for the score. The two point conversion attempt failed. Ellenberger also connected with Jay Sybert on a 21 yard pass play and McClintock's kick brought our team in range, 15-13.

One of the opposing players was overheard saying, "If the game had been 5 minutes longer we would have had the best week in Lexington, let's start kicking 5 minutes earlier than usual."

Success In Numbers

Every man has his own definition of success. In athletics, the word success is usually determined by the number of wins as compared to the number of losses. To Director of Athletics, Dick Clower, success is also related to numbers, but in a less factual sense.

Mr. Clower defines success (in regards to the school's athletic program) as the "involvement of as many people as we can in the total program." Talking with Mr. Clower last Monday was a refreshing experience. The soft spoken, congenial director was telling me about the department's recent policy change of dropping the "major sport and minor sport" nomenclature from the nine intercollegiate sports here on the "Hill." He went on to explain that the change is at least partially related to the awards system in athletics. "In the past we've had 3 sports which have been designated 'major.' It's my feeling that there is no sound reason for such distinction and that the awards for participation athletes should be the same all the way around. Soccer is just as important to the soccer player as football is to the football player. The educational value of these sports does not rest upon the type of sport."

Mr. Clower has made a wise judgment and the sports page wishes to go on record as endorsing it completely. The only thing "minor" about certain sports is in the people who consider them so. Soccer, for example, while traveling across Eastern Terror fans as "popular" or exciting. This is not so, however, in many parts of the world. While traveling across Ecuador this past summer with two Peace Corps Volunteers, we became aware of an underprivileged and starved people who loved sports—especially soccer. We traveled by bus from the coast into the Andes Mountains. We passed over fairly and dangerously rough through staked towns, where houses were made of leaves, bamboo and anything nature could provide. While traveling through this country was not the poverty, but the widespread neglect of soccer goals. We did not

Booters Strive to Jell Joyner Keeps Hopes Alive

The game was an even contest for three stadiums with Scott Joyner of WMC and Bill Nahri of Drexel each scoring one in the second quarter and no one scoring in the third. In the fourth quarter, the Green Terror's collapsed allowing Drexel to score five points and win the contest by a score of 6-1. Two outstanding performers were Rick Coburn, the Terror goalie, who had thirty-five saves, and Mike Wagelstein, who put in a strong performance at the halfback slot.

The other game Western Maryland never loses—the alumni game was played Saturday, October 9. While the present team could hardly help but lose in the feeble grasp of old-timers like Jack Baile, Dan Seibel, Neal Hoffman, and Don Schmidt, the final score was no laughing matter. The Alumni won 2-0 with Jackson and Wenderoth doing the damage. It has been suggested that in the future, instead of alumni, the team should play a complete alumni team of one specific year, say 1925.

The first home game took place on October 12 when American University came to the "Hill" to do battle with us. After a scoreless first half, American University scored two goals in the third quarter. Scott Joyner, with assists from Jim Resau and Dave Millhouse, returned the compliments with tallies in the third and fourth periods. After two five minute periods of scoreless overtime, the final score stood 2-2.

In the contest against Washington College in Chestertown, the Terror's put on their best performance of the year. This was the Homecoming game for this school which honored the soccer team with floats and a crowd of hundreds—Honest Western Maryland lost the game 3-1, but put up a tremendous effort that won the respect of friend and foe alike. The lone Terror point was scored by the phoenix, Rowland Creitz, on an assist from wiry Bill Spangler. The outstanding Terror in this tilt was fullback John Daily.

The soccer team's performance against the University of Delaware on the field, was almost the opposite of that turned in against Washington College. While the size of the crowd was commendable, the performance of the team was at best uninspired. The offense failed to score on the few shots available to it, and the defense put its worst overall performance of the year. Western Maryland lost by a score of 2-0.

The question now is: What is the problem? Well, the problem is that the team has not scored effectively. As one wise man once said, "You cannot win unless you score and in soccer you cannot score unless you get the ball—and keep it for a reason." In the future, instead of trying to achieve a victory in the world can make a player fight for the ball. The player must really want the victory within himself and must do everything possible to get it. There are some players who always give everything of themselves in any struggle to achieve it and there are some who do not.

In closing, we pass along two good announcements: First, since the last printing of the GOLD BUG, Ken Naboli, a very capable freshman halfback, has joined the team and has turned in excellent performance in every game. Second, WTRF AM-FM radio is now broadcasting soccer scores from both home and away games as called in immediately after the game by its reporter on the scene.

Highlights and Sidelights

The trusting citizens of Finckburg, a nearby town, found out what happens if you elect a veteran football referee to the post of police commissioner. The very day he assumed office, he arrested the community's outstanding strip-teaser. His charge, "her back was illegally in motion."

Coach Jones believes that the loss to Hampden-Sydney was partially due to inexperience and this is the price one often pays when the players get valuable game experience.

Oregon State's head football coach believes he has found the solution for the lack of football. One squad for defense, one squad for offense, and one squad to attend classes.

Now that the soccer team has begun to jell as a unit, we can look forward to some interesting

Shooters Zero In!

The Rifle Team, one of last year's two championship varsity (remember, there are no minor sports at WMC) teams on the "Hill" has started in where it left off last season by defeating Loyola of Baltimore—137 to 1330.

Qualifiers for Western Maryland included the team's new Captain, Pete Riker, Gray Shelton, Jim Morgan, and Irdy Klemons. Russ Richardson also qualified, shooting the highest score of his young career. Their scores were 281, 280, 275, 275, and 266 respectively. The match was not decided until the last order when Gordy Shelton and Russ Morgan pulled the win out of the fire for the "Hairy Birds."

Four sophomore shooters who are being counted on to lighten the burden of the Big Four are Russ Richardson, Eric Morgan, Wayne Laessig, and Bob Cartwright. These men are all struggling to obtain the coveted fifth position. Improvement is their goal.

On the sub ride home from Loyola several members expressed the hope that senior "pro" Mike Rosen will soon fulfill his potential and contribute to the team's success.

ing and exciting soccer in the remainder of the season. So let us support our soccer team with attendance at all home games.

By the way, the fourteen hundred girls at the Longwood College in Virginia, would like to extend to Western Maryland College's football team, their deepest appreciation for a very enlightening Friday evening.

Last week's game at Hampden-Sydney was one of the biggest offensive performances in a long time for the Terror gridmen. The squad moved for 216 yards, 330 yards rushing, and passing and 10 passes were completed in 21 attempts.

Sportlight on Cook

Defensive tackle Russ Cook is a product of determination and patience.

Every fall, Western Maryland's Varsity is studded with a few first year greats. In four years they never play a J.V. game, they never ride the bench for any appreciable amount of time, nor do they know how with difficulty it can be for someone to win a letter. The bulk of our squad isn't made up of these "first year wonders," rather, it is made up of boys who have a throbbing desire to play ball and to be given a chance. It's fun to watch a game from the stands, but it isn't so fun to watch it from the bench. Russ Cook isn't doing much watching this season. He's playing good, hard, ball.

Russ, a senior sociology major, came to Western Maryland from a variety of experience and a bucketful of desire. Russ comes from a rather middle Army home, but he did manage to stay in one place long enough to get into high school football. In his senior year he played tackle for the Poitiers American High School in Poitiers, France.

A lot of things can take someone and go to help mold a top flight ball player in three years. As a 5'11", 200 pound Green Terror, Russ didn't muddle through his senior year, but his senior year is a different story. Russ's confidence

Intramural Gridiron Blazes Bachelors, Nabs Lead League

ternity once again at the helm. With the first seven games of the schedule completed a 32 record gives the Bachelors top spot while the independent team in the league, commonly known as the Nabs, holds a nose second 2-0 slate. Delta Psi Alpha fraternity brings up third place as the Preachers stand even at 1-1. The blue and red Gamma Beta team is 1-2 while Psi Alpha Alpha's black and whites and the Freshmen team have yet to taste victory in two attempts.

Bachelor quarterback and captain Bob Hollywood led his team to three successive shutouts, 46-0 over the Black and Whites, 12-0 over Gamma Beta Chi, and 47-0 over the Freshmen 106 points. The boys think they can average 38.0 a game. Denny Wood led the rush while Mike Kroo and John Carey received.

For the Nabs, it has been Walter Michels and Larry Suter who have done the signaling while Psi Alpha's black and whites and Greg Getty worked to get clear with blocking by Bill Dudley and Jim Godour.

John Greenleaf throws for the Preachers, teaming up with Jack Bentham, Dan Jet, Don Heath, Jim Gibson, and Howard Goldberg. Rick Grey of the Gamma Beta's suffered a back injury and continues to pass to Jim Morrison, Rich McCanna or Gordon Diggray. The linemen are Dave Horten, Tim Hart, and Dave Frankforter. Len Williams calls signals for the Black and Whites as Howard Winblast, Bob Raffensburger, Peter Rikler, Bruce Conway, Jerry Hoffmann and Jim Hartscock back him up. The Freshmen, captained by Gary Shipiro, field Phil Riggins as quarterback, teaming with Rick Scherzberg, Bob Wesley, and Pat Flaherty.

Spirit of Homecoming

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following poem, The Spirit of Homecoming, was composed and submitted following our Homecoming victory over Lycium. Although it is coming out an issue late, I feel it deserves recognition by publication.

An eerie silence pervades the practice
That precedes this wondrous day . . .
Homecoming—the magic word
Seems to echo and die unheard . . .
As men prepare to do battle
Each in his own different way . . .
"Let it be victory without arrogance
Or defeat without disgrace . . ."
It's Homecoming—a time to return
The hearts so near of those so far away . . .
And men from God seek Wisdom
"Ere the battle will take place . . .
The whistle shrieks, and the contestants know
The battle has now begun . . .
It's Homecoming—the game of games
The time to remember forgotten names . . .
And men go forth to do battle
"Neath a chilly October sun . . .
Then suddenly the decider is broken
The crowd has come to its feet . . .
It's Homecoming—a time to return
A time to relive, a time to relive . . .
For those who came to do battle
The scene of victory is being relived . . .
Yet now, somehow, that eerie silence
Pervades the crisp autumn air . . .
It's Homecoming—a time to smile,
A time to linger—to laugh a while . . .
But those who came to do battle
Face their greatest foe—Despair . . .
Then suddenly the silence is broken
The crowd can't believe it's been done . . .
It's Homecoming—a time to rejoice—
To lift in song an aging voice . . .
Even they who came solely to see football
Knew a much greater victory had been won . . .
And each of the men in his heart knew well
Though even the films would never have revealed
Though the penalty flag was never furled
There had been a twelfth man on the field . . .
He was the Spirit of Homecoming—
Playing just outside our ends
The embodiment of the Alumni,
The fathers, and the friends . . .
It was to him . . . and yes, to father
That each of us was lifting face—
For it had been victory without arrogance . . .
And not defeat without disgrace. Anonymous

Suzanne Bloch Presents "Music of the Past"

College Players Present: Campus Men Have Renowned Lutenist Performs Tonight; Adapts Voice As Ensemble Instrument

For the first time in the history of most students at Western Maryland, there now exists a form of government specifically for the male students. The Men's Council has been reorganized for the specific purpose of drafting all rules of conduct for the male side of the campus and to take disciplinary action against violators of such rules. It also serves to improve and maintain the living standards within the dormitories. In the past, all incidences requiring disciplinary action have been handled by the Office of the Dean of Men. This is in no way "student government." Now all cases requiring disciplinary action are to be handled by the Men's Council which will have the authority to issue Administrative Warnings if necessary.

Recently the council passed a dress code for the men. Specifically the code states:

- (1) Men may wear Bermuda shorts in the dining hall if they are neat.
- (2) Bermudas are not to be worn to classes unless the instructor states otherwise.
- (3) Shirts in the dining hall and in public places shall be neat. Undershirts alone, will not be accepted as appropriate dress.
- (4) Footwear must be worn everywhere on campus except the dormitories.
- (5) Coats, ties and long trousers must be worn to Sunday dinner in the dining hall and at other appropriate times.
- (6) The Men's Council shall have the right to decide whether or not any clothing worn in public by men students is obscene or objectionable.

Suzanne Bloch, lutenist, singer to the lute, player of virginals and recorders, will present a concert in Alumni Hall tonight at 8:15 pm. This afternoon at 2 pm she gave a program entitled "Music of Shakespeare's Time" in McDaniel Lounge.

Has Trained Others
For many years Miss Bloch, who has trained lutenists, was the principal concert performer on this continent at the lute. She is also an expert player on the early keyboard instrument, the virginals, and is considered one of the outstanding recorder players today. Miss Bloch has adapted her voice as an ensemble instrument for her own lute accompaniment for performances of the lute song literature which once marked a high point in musical culture.

Daughter of the late composer, Ernest Bloch, the performer's first training was as a pianist, but she turned in her teens to various instruments of earlier days. As a composer

MISS BLOCH
Miss Bloch has won prizes and has had orchestral performances were C. Michael Preston. While studying composition abroad, the musician became interested in the great repertoire departments of centuries and turned to the study of lute tablature.

Critics Comment
Critics have commented that

Miss Bloch brings not only fascinating performances and repertoire, but a warm personality and delightful stage presence to her audiences. Her research in the field of early music is continuous. She is a specialist in the area of Shakespearean settings and music related to his plays.

The public is invited to both performances. Tickets for the evening concert may be obtained in McDaniel Hall office or at the Alumni Hall ticket office before the concert.

Two Faiths Present Double Viewpoints On Twin Religions

Douglas M. Lawson, Dean of Men and professor of history and speech at Randolph-Macon College, will speak during the Chapel service Sunday night. Dr. Lawson, who is a frequent speaker at colleges, universities, and assemblies, received his B.A. from Randolph-Macon in 1957 and returned to the college in 1962 to become its first full time Dean of the Chapel. He received his B.D., Magna Cum Laude from Drew Divinity School in 1960 and his Ph.D. from Duke University in 1963. Dr. Lawson was also minister at Bethany Methodist Church, Hampton, Virginia, from 1954 to 1957 and associate minister of the Madison Methodist Church, Madison, New Jersey, from 1958 to 1960. He is now an Ordained Elder in the Virginitia Conference of the Methodist Church.

DOUGLAS M. LAWSON

Lawson is Phi Beta Kappa. Dr. Lawson has distinguished himself physically and mentally by being co-captain of his high school football team and a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Gamma Mu, and Omicron Delta Kappa honorary fraternities. The topic of his chapel sermon will be "The Raft Around Which Swimmers Play."

Rabbi Green Speaker
The Chapel speaker November 14 will be the Rabbi Jacob S. Green of the Rogers Avenue Synagogue, Baltimore. Rabbi Green who is recognized as an outstanding guest lecturer throughout the eastern United States and Ontario, Canada, is a 1944 graduate of Yeshiva University and was ordained there in 1946. He is a member of the National Lecture Bureau and the Canadian Conference of Christians and Jews. Rabbi Green is the spiritual advisor to many youth groups, a member of the Executive Board of Yeshiva University, and at one time maintained a weekly radio program in Canada. His topic for the Chapel Service will be "One Step Ahead."

RICHARD BURRIS and CAROLYN PETERSON rehearse lines and act out scenes for their parts in the play.

The Dramatic Art Department of Western Maryland College announces Ugo Betti's The Queen and the Rebels as its annual fall production. There will be two performances of this year's Thanksgiving Play: November 19 and 20 at 8:15 pm in Alumni Hall.
Betti Is Master
Though not as well known in this country as his predecessor, Luigi Pirandello, Ugo Betti is rapidly assuming the stature of a modern master, a position he enjoyed in his native Italy well before his death in 1953. The Queen and the Rebels, one of his last plays, is set in revolution-torn middle Europe before the last World War.
The Queen, hunted by the revolutionaries, is trapped in a village in the mountains. To protect her, Argia, a peasant, assumes her identity and confronts the sardonic commissar. The dramatic possibilities of this situation enable Betti to build a play which explores the paradox of the loss of human dignity as the price of social progress. Taut and fast-moving, The Queen and the Rebels is a very contemporary and very human document of a twentieth-century dilemma.
Peterson Takes Lead
Members of the cast include:

Juniors Begin Parents' Day Plan For Annual Mom, Dad Orientation

Saturday, November 13, is Parents' Day. Each year the parents of Western Maryland students are invited to the campus to become better acquainted with the school, how it operates, and the activities in which their sons and daughters are involved. Many activities have been scheduled, and the parents are encouraged to spend the entire day on the "Hill."

The Junior Class in cooperation with the Freshman Advisory Council and the Office of the Dean of Men. Committee members were C. Michael Preston, President of the Junior Class; Constance VanderLoo, Vice-president; John Ballard, Chairman of the Freshman Advisory Council; and James E. Robinson, Dean of Men. The Publications and Public Relations Departments of the Administration were also involved in the planning.

Assembly Is For Parents
Activities begin with the registration of parents in McDaniel Lounge at 9:00 am. Faculty will be there to meet the parents. Coffee and doughnuts will be served. At 10:45 am, an assembly will be held in Alumni Hall for the parents of all freshmen. Dean Robinson and Dr. Miller of the Psychology Department will be the speakers.

Following the assembly, the parents of freshmen will have the opportunity to meet with the heads of the different departments to discuss the progress of their son or daughter. Meetings with the department heads will begin at 11:30 am. At that time of buffet luncheon will be served for the parents of upper classmen in the dining hall. The parents of freshmen will be served lunch from 12:15 to 1:00 pm.

Kickoff Is at 2
Everyone is invited to attend the Western Maryland-Drexel football game in the afternoon. Kickoff is at 2:00 pm and there is a charge of $1.00 for parking on the field.

At halftime, the band, cheerleaders, pom poms, and the majorettes will entertain with a "Name Band Salute." Later, the Lettermen's Club will collect for the Ernie Davis Leukemia Fund.

Open House Held at 12
There will be receptions and refreshments for the parents immediately after the game sponsored by the fraternities and the sororities. The fraternities will hold their receptions in their respective clubrooms and the sororities will hold their reception in McDaniel Lounge. The sororities and fraternities are especially interested.

Scholar Believes "Science Is Our Servant"

November 15 and 16, Mr. Richie Calder, C.B.E., Professor of International Relations at the University of Edinburgh will appear at WMC. At 11:30, November 15, Mr. Calder will speak at the assembly in Alumni Hall. His topic is "Science is the Servant of the People." At 7:30 pm he will give a public lecture in McDaniel Lounge on "The World of Opportunity." He will spend November 16 in meetings with various classes on campus.
Mr. Calder is sponsored by the Danforth Foundation and the Association of American Colleges. The purpose of their program is "to strengthen the intellectual, the religious and the cultural aspects of liberal education in the United States."

Born in Scotland
Born in Forfar, Scotland and educated at the Forfar Academy, Mr. Calder began his career in journalism at sixteen as a press club reporter on the Dundee Courier. Five years later, he joined successively the staffs of the Daily News, Daily Chronicle, and the Daily Herald, working with them from 1927 until 1941.
In the 1930's he pioneered in science reporting and became an original member of the British Association's "Division of Social and International Relations" in 1937. Mr. Calder served as Secretary of the Viscount's Committee on the New Declaration of Human Rights in 1941, later submitted in preparation for setting up its Advisory Commission on Research in the Arid Zones. UNESCO invited Mr. Calder to undertake a mission in 1949-50 to deserts of North Africa and the Middle East, involving a journey from the Western Sahara to the salt deserts of Persia.

At the invitation of the Canadian Government and with assignments from the United Nations and specialized agencies, Mr. Calder spent four and one-half months in 1955 in the Arctic, surveying possibilities of the developmental, social, and technical consequences of the "frozen North" as part of the habitable world. He also served on the United Nations Secretariat at the International Conference in 1955-56 on the Peaceful Uses of Atomic Energy, and as a member of the World Health Organization study group in 1958 on the Mental Aspects of Atomic Energy.

The Rising Tide . . .

As a protest against our socially-minded culture, there has arisen a minority segment in America which strives for individual freedom of the soul and nonconformity. They reject the family, color TV, keeping up with the Joneses, two cars in every garage, the Playboy Club, IBM, the bomb, and the war in Vietnam. They revel long hair (shoulder-length for boys, waist-length for girls), beards, dirty clothes, pot, demonstrations, and the ethnic culture.

Actively protesting against every debatable question, this group does bring to the public eye many sound and basic problems of our country—from desegregation to banning the bomb. At times they act as a probe to keep our more complacent citizens on their toes. But, as a matter of record, they contribute little constructive criticism for improving the society they deplore. Marches and placards display discontent, but do not provide a remedy for social evils.

The most persistent cry from this minority concerns society's disgusting habit of conforming or following the herd. Yet, in viewing a group of protesters, they blend together in looks, actions, and ideas—one seeming mass of uniformity. This may be effective in transmitting their views to society, but it is a contradiction to their claim of difference. They are a group of conformist non-conformers.

We may need these people to shake us out of our occasional stupor. But, we also need families, churches, politicians, businessmen, and all the other cultural groups that compose the American society. "The Rising Tide of Non-Conformity" is becoming a popular phrase. We need to be sure we are not rebelling against one rut only to land in a deeper one with even less significance—a rut that entails defiance, but excludes goals.

Weather in Vietnam "Drafty"; Check Now to See Your Forecast

The following article is a series of selections from a press release from the Cultural groups, Press Service by William Grant.

With the October and November draft calls the largest since the Korean War, the nation's draft boards are set to look at requests for student deferments with a more discerning eye. Under the lighter policy, draft boards will be picking up some deferred students who are not attending school full time or who are not making satisfactory progress in their classes.

In 1963, President Kennedy ordered that married men with no children were not to be drafted as long as single men were available. Some college students tracking on this conceding that it would be necessary to take married men "sometime in the fall." On August 26, President Johnson dropped his well-remembered bombshell and announced that from now on married men without children would be considered the same as single men as far as deferments are concerned. The highest draftable classification is reserved for those who the local board finds to be "delinquent" under the Selective Service Act. This may be a person who doesn't keep the board informed of his address or his status, or, under a new law signed by President Johnson, for burning his draft card.

GUEST EDITORIAL:

. . . Smells of Herring

A (thumb) minority of U. S. college students are protesting. They are the draft burners; the free speakers (P.S.—any policy, be it U.S., foreign, or home rule for Washington, D.C. Blacklisted in today's news media, these oddballs and wingers newsmakers are detrimental to our image as college students in general.

The Vietnam, as Time magazine has recently called the anti-Vietnam protesters, are prime examples of extreme zeal marching the wrong way on the far left side of the road. Surely not in the U. S. college majority, these arsonists against the selective service find the ideals and ideas of patriotism sacred and laughable. When 12,000 students march from the University of California's Berkeley Campus to the Army Terminal in Oakland, "there is something rotten" in the state of California. This short-range intellect is just a shining example of misguided youth. By ignoring obvious realities, these demonstrators are blindly falling right into the hands of Communist and extremist elements that have obviously taken the lead in the anti-U. S. pro-Viet Cong movement.

We do not deny these students' right to hold, speak, or demonstrate their opinions, beliefs, or whatever, but we do say that their various methods of proving their points are detrimental to the college students' image as a whole.

Don't burn your draft card.

Dr. Price Enjoys Summer in Exotic India; Observes Political, Social, Economic Life

by Dr. Price

India! What exotic music and dancing! A rich cultural heritage! What pitiful poverty! What contrasts! India is a land where the westerner can be almost daily reminded of the lack of elementary efficiency in the most common daily needs, by the lack of pure water and food, by the lack of concern of the western Indian for his fellow man. Yet for the person who goes to India to learn about the people and their problems, living and researching can be a truly rich experience. It is an ideal laboratory for a social scientist. This is the reason I have made two trips to India in the last four years, one as a Fulbright-Hayes professor in 1962 and last year as a research fellow of the American Institute of Indian Studies.

India Is Many-Splendored

The Indian sub-continent has some of the greatest contrasts of any area on earth—in geography, rainfall, peoples, languages, religion, and customs. It has a monsoonal climate of soil of uncertain fertility and with indifferent rainfall. A land of torrid heat for half of the year stretches from the Himalayas in the north to the Indian Ocean. Its peoples—490 million of them—in various shades of color and cultural differentiation speak 15 different languages with 800 dialects. Hindi and/or Hindustani are understood by no more than 40 per cent of the people. This explains the student riots in South India in favor of English last February, when northern politicians attempted to make Hindi the official language. English has to be the "link language" tying the linguistic groups together for the foreseeable future until common language and other unifying elements of nationhood are firmly established, for India is a land of many different people with cultural and linguistic roots stretching back over several thousand years.

Hindians Takes Lead

India is a contrast in religions also. The great majority of people are Hindus. Hinduism is a very ancient, earthy religion which exists in all the combinations, permutations, and mythological variations which one can imagine in a land with such varied peoples. It is one of man's oldest continuous religions and is truly a way of life. The Hindu is in general quite tolerant and gives his respect to the reverent man of any religion, so long as one does not try to interfere with his way of life. In addition to the Hindus there are the Sikhs, Jains, Muslims, Christians, Buddhists, and Parsees (Zoroastrians), and numerous other animistic religions.

Malthusian Theory Proved

For all of its spiritual wealth—and one cannot deny the fact that religion pervades all of life for the typical Hindu—India is a land in dire need. It is a land where Malthus is proved more correct every day—population has outgrown the food supply and India is heavily dependent upon U. S. aid for food grains. If stark famine is not to overtake millions of people in a few years, both birth control and increased food production must succeed.

India abounds with problems

Somebody Up There?

In Memoriam

by Dean Zopp

In these hard times, we have witnessed the deaths of three of the most creative and influential minds of the twentieth century. They are remembered to whom we as academic life pay tribute and for whom we express deep gratitude. I refer to the passing of Martin Buber (87), Albert Schweitzer (90), and last week of Paul Tillich (79). It is as if men like Hegel, Heidegger, and Kierkegaard have died in our time.

Buber's I-Thou Is Byword
Buber, the Jewish philosopher-theologian, wrote his epoch-making Ich und Du in 1923 and since that time "I-Thou" relationship has been a by-word in intellectual circles. In this little volume, exerting a power out of all proportion to its hundred pages, Buber delineates the two ways one can relate to a person or thing—the "reciprocity and involvement" represented by I-Thou or the "objectivity and detachment" depicted by I-It. From this Hasidic mystic we learned that the personal relationship can be a means of grace and that in every Thou we are aware of the breath of the eternal Thou, who "may properly only be addressed, not expressed."

"The Thou meets me through grace—it is not found by seeking. . . . The primary word of I-Thou is spoken on the whole being. Concentration and fusion into the whole being can never take place through any act without me. I become through my relation to the Thou: as I become I, I say Thou. And real living is meeting Thou."

Schweitzer Was Doing
Albert Schweitzer, an expression of the universal genius periodically produced by the German culture, had three gifts: a philosophy, theology, and music) by the age of thirty. Seemingly to count these as dung, he studied for his medical degree in order to care for the black man of Africa who was begging crumbs from the wealthy coffers of white Europe. Someone has called Schweitzer's philosophy "a modern man's quest for the Holy Grail." It is ironic that a man who was an astute critic of Kant was also a fervent Kantian theologian, and perhaps the greatest interpreter of Bach should be remembered as a healer, as a man of peace.

Whatever else may be said about this enigmatic, but genuinely human figure, one can say that while the rest of us were talking, planning, if not complaining, Schweitzer was doing.

He comes to us as one unknown without a name, as of old, by the lake side. He came to those men who knew Him not. He speaks to us the same "Follow thou me!" and set us to the tasks which we have to fulfill for our time. He commands. And to those who obey Him, He offers by His own example. And He reveals Himself in the toils, the conflicts, the sufferings which they shall pass through in His fellowship. They shall learn in their own experience. (Schweitzer)

Tillich Was Apostolical

Paul Tillich has become so well known that "As Tillich has been heard whenever religion, philosophy, psychology, and art are discussed. He was primarily an apologist, attempting to date faith and culture. This forced him to re-define traditional religious language—"Ground of Being" for God, "Separation" for sin, and "Election" for salvation. His concern was continuity ("The God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob is the God of the philosophers" was his reply to Pascal), for correlation and revelation, existence and Christ, question and answer), and the integration of academic disciplines. It was a high point of my student days to have had a year with Tillich while he was at Harvard—this man who has been called a twentieth century Aquinas.

"Depth is what the word God means. And if that word has not such meaning for you, translate it, and speak of the depths of your life, of the source of your being, of your own existence. . . . What you take seriously without any reservation. Perhaps, in order to do so, you must deny what you have learned about God, perhaps even that word itself. For if you know that God means depth, you know less about him. You cannot then call yourself an atheist or unbeliever." (Tillich)

Buber's concern for authentic personal relations, Tillich's effort to integrate the human experience, and Schweitzer's bearing of the inescapable advance of a man of action with reverence for life will help us retain our sanity as our technological and mass-oriented society approaches the twenty-first century.

A subversive element of the feminine population at WMC is forming quietly. Meetings are being held casually in Blanche Ward and McDaniel Dorms. The controversial topic: MORE LENIENT CURFEWS.

Now, WMC boys aren't hampered by a curfew, so they can't truly understand the girls' anxiety toward the constraints which are 10:15 pm weeknights, midnight Fridays and Saturdays, and 11:00 pm Sundays. Of course, the boys are not affected in that they are deprived of WMC girls after the curfew. Then they must seek feminine companionship elsewhere.

Why should high school girls have more freedom than girls at WMC? At home, many WMC girls have no doubt their parents consider them old enough to take care of themselves. And, indeed, at the age of 18 a girl is considered an adult, legally responsible for what she lets happen to her. It's a little too late for a curfew when the girls arrive at college.

Now, let's look at the boys on this campus. They don't have a curfew. Why not? Don't they have the same right as men in Baltimore or D. C.? Can the girls do it? Isn't it just as dangerous for them to be out driving late at night (perhaps even more so)?

SOS Makes Plans

by Linda Sullivan

First of all, let us introduce our selves—they're brand new and crammed with all kinds of books, and they can be found in the basement of Elderidge.

The library committee of SOS is now fully involved with the work of processing over five thousand books which will be sent throughout the world. This work will continue throughout the whole year. All the people on the committee will give at least one hour of their time each week to processing books for SOS. In this way, the work is consistent throughout rather than concentrated into one period of frenzied activity. Every afternoon from two to five, Monday through Saturday, there are SOS workers in Elderidge classifying, typing, pasting, and styling these books. We hope to establish a kind of standing library here at WMC which will make books available upon request to any organization desiring them.

Our plans for this year, as we foresee them now, include sending books to Western Maryland alumni in the Peace Corps, to the Brethren World College, to Appalachia, and to the Inter-American University in Puerto Rico. We also plan to establish two new libraries in Coo and Castaner, two Puerto Rican communities to which we will return next summer. There are many books to be processed and if anyone is interested in working with this committee, contact either Ron Boone or Linda Sullivan, co-chairmen.

Adler Extolls Virtues of "Tangerine Flake"

by Roger Bennett Adler
I don't want this to sound like I idolize the guy, but Tom Wolfe is definitely "what's happening." He's kind of hard to describe. He doesn't just talk—he says something. He's like the Rolling Stones—a way of life.

"Tom Wolfe, no relation to his famous namesake, grew up in Richmond, Virginia; graduated from Washington and Lee University; and took his Doctorate (in American Studies) at Yale. He was a reporter for the Washington Post for several years before joining the staff of the New York Herald Tribune in 1962, and was the winner of two Washington Newspaper Guild awards, one for humor and one for foreign news. He now writes regularly for the Herald Tribune's Sunday magazine, New York, as well as for Esquire and Harper's Bazaar."

Wolfe Is Objective
His first book, The Kandy Kolorad Tangerine Flake Sitrowine Baby, is a compilation of articles which have appeared in the afore-mentioned magazines. Wolfe provides observations of emerging customs, personalities, and art forms. These have nothing to do with the "Establishment," which treats them as vulgar and common, but rather expresses the ordinary American's sense of form and beauty.

The book is divided into six parts. The first part is about the new culture makers; which include the Las Vegas syndrome, the organizer of the demolition derbies, Murray K, the Peppermint Lounge, Phil Spector (developer of the Righteous Brothers), and the new breed of artists—the California Kar Customizers. Part two concerns heroes and celebrities: including Cassius Clay, Junior Johnson, and the guy who edited Confidential, just to name a few.

The last half of KKTFSB includes a Metropolitan Sketchbook, a discussion of Status Strife and High Life (why it's harder and harder to make ends meet as your salary rises), and finally Love and Hate, New York style. The latter section is a particularly definitive work which winds up with a chapter called The Big League Complex.

Says Society Worries
Tom Wolfe writes about a society which is suffering from a bad case of the worries. The big question is "am I cool?" "am I in?" The richest country in the world, and everybody wants to be a kid! A place where the battle of the bulge is fought constantly by little old ladies in torador pants and tennis shoes (black low-cuts). A place where Eves is banned and Henry Miller's Exus books are permitted and sell considerably better than contriverses at a nursery. It's a place of people looking the same, talking the same, and of course not saying anything to offend. "Nevuh, Nevuh offend." Everybody wants to be wearing "in" clothes, dance the "in" dance, date the "in" girls, and talk the "in" talk. "Evebody" afraid. They're not sure of what, but the bomb is a pretty good excuse.

What Is Wolfe?
So Tom Wolfe writes two articles cutting up William Shawn and the New Yorker and you'd think they'd just found out that the Jolly Green Giant is queer. Will! He comes out with this two years—teaching (education courses not required), working in community development, agriculture, etc. America has a special interest in India because of her commitment to democratic institutions, because of her strategic location in Asia, and because of her great need. To participate in this undertaking is a rare privilege.

take of showing us how we permit ourselves to be dominated by the trivial, and unimportant. You can't hide from Tom Wolfe. He'll expose your phyness, your gimmick, your cool, give him time.
Give Tom Wolfe a read—you may like him or you may hate him—he may even make you think.

Campus Hosts Bands At Game Saturday

Western Maryland College will host bands from the high schools of Carroll County this Saturday, November 6. The bands, majorettes, and other supporting groups will perform during half-time at the Dickinson football game. WMC majorettes will act as hostesses to the guest groups.

During the game, members of the pom pom and majorette squads will collect money for the Western Maryland Band Uniform Fund. Majorette captain Irene Megill requests support of this collection from all college students and spectators at the game.

Dr. David Reports on India: "Backwards" Are Advancing

by Dr. David
Indians, like Americans, have recognized that they have in their midst a number of disadvantaged people. Like us they have concluded that something should be done to remove the disadvantages.

In India there are three groups for whom the government and the leaders have shown particular concern. For the benefit of the former untouchables and the tribal peoples the government in New Delhi has passed legislation providing that a certain minimum of seats in each of the various legislatures are reserved for them. There are also other programs designed to be helpful to them. However, it is the third category which has created the most difficulties in practice. This is the group described in the Constitution of India as the "Other Backward Classes." While the Other Backward Classes are not granted special representation in the legislatures, they have been guaranteed at least a minimum number of spaces in institutions of higher education and a similar percentage of new employees in governmental posts. Thus there is real benefit to be obtained by having your caste or social economic group labelled "backward." At one time after a listing was published by the Government of Mysore State listing the backward classes for purposes of admission to the universities and the government services, groups of Catholics all over Bangalore met to protest that they had not been called "backward." Indeed, every group seeks to be identified in this way and gladly accepts the stigma of the term for the very real benefits which it carries. And once they have been enrolled as a bona fide backward class, they bend every effort to maintain themselves in their low status.

The High Court of Mysore and the Supreme Court of India repeatedly have had to decide cases regarding the inclusiveness of the term "Other Backward Classes." The courts have thrown out law after law on various grounds: that it is impossible for 85% of the population to be considered backward; that it is unfair to regular (Continued on page 6)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The following two letters are in front to certain comments made in the Guest Editorial, "Orchids to the Living," written by the Feature Editor, Alice Cherbonnier.

To the Editor:
In a recent unsigned guest editorial (Oh, yes, stand up for your opinions) several allegations were made against those who staff the publicity departments of the college. A blanket charge of "lazy and incompetent" was attached to all these people by implication.

The writer of the editorial has betrayed the fact that she (she is not a real newspaper reader, as are many people. Strange as it may seem, WMC just does not offer a great deal of front page banner headlines news. Yet, on October 14 of this year, for example, news stories pertaining to WMC and its students (including sports) appeared as fourteen articles in nine different papers ranging from a Carroll County weekly to a Salisbury daily to the Baltimore papers.

In the Publications office, there is a large scrapbook in which are mounted clippings resulting from the average of two news releases per week which are mailed to papers throughout the state. In addition, one can find articles written from news releases independently by the Physical Education department. Surprisingly, some reporters know the phone number of the school (even if, as the guest editor maintains, they forget the name), and call for facts without being solicited. Releases mentioning students are also sent to their hometown papers.

Twice so far, the football team has been given banner headlines in the Sunday Star Sports Section. At least one story on SOS this summer was four columns wide and four to five inches deep.

It seems to us the course is clear. Although chronic complaining and cutting criticism are fun, and often assuage one's personal wounds, they do not do much to publicize alma mater. If you're looking for publicity, do something worth writing about in the hometown newspapers of all the cast. As you are certainly front page thirty-two point bold headline reading: SENIOR GIRL WEEPS IN DAY-OLD COFFEE AS 'MOUNDS' ARE SERVED AT TWO STRAIGHT MEALS. Maybe we're wrong, Alice Cherbonnier.

George and Dot Klander

To the Editor:

I am suffering from what must certainly be diagnosed as "naive befuddlement," occasioned by your "Orchids to the Living" in the last issue. The section which most puzzles me is that regarding what the anonymous writer classified as a deliberately defunct Publicity department on this campus. My dealings with this office, over a period of several years, have been so completely to the reverse that I thought I could share at least some portion of them with your guest editor.

We use the Publicity department as our central dispenser of information regarding all productions of the College Players. To give you an idea of what has been our typical experience, let me review briefly the way in which our most recent production, Larry Eisenberg's Kid Blue, was handled by this office.

Three weeks before the production I submitted to the Publicity office copy regarding the play, its cast and production staff. From this point, all of the information was dispensed, in two separate releases, by that department. On the campus, it appeared in "Main Miscellany," the FOCUS brochure, as well as, earlier, in the listing of college programs for the year. To cite the newspapers to which the information was sent by the Publicity director and her secretary would be clutter up far too much space. But, I would like to mention that among the forty news agencies receiving these releases were the Associated Press in Baltimore, The Baltimore Sun, The Evening Sun, The News American, in Washington, The Evening Star, in Washington, Post, on radio, W.B.A.L., W.C.B.M., W.C.A.O., W.F.B.R.; locally, the three newspapers as well as W.B.R., and the hometown newspapers of all the cast. As you are certainly aware, the same information which we supplied that office was sent in a release to the GOLD BUG, by that office, and this was used, verbatim, for half of the first-page article on Kid Blue. As newspaper people, you must know that the supplier of news copy to your news agency has no control over whether or not the copy makes headlines, the inner pages, or any of the pages. That is something which the individual publication decides, just as you chose to give Kid Blue front-page headlines.

Certainly the newspaper on the campus could not be ignorant of the operations of that office which, in a way, is its professional counterpart. In addition, I note that the Director of Publicity happens to be the advisor TO THE GOLD BUG.

Please lead me from the quandary. In the meantime, perhaps you could do what a group of students did two years ago. They realized they were unaware of the workings of that department, and scheduled a lecture-demonstration by the Director of Publicity, who described processes, fielded questions, and enlightened those attending. On the basis of such an encounter as that, perhaps intelligent criticism could emerge.

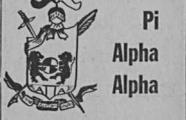

Sincerely,
William L. Tribby

Dear Sirs:

Recently the Gamma Beta Chi fraternity offered, as a service project, to supply free labor for the college for the purpose of erecting the much needed, and infamous railing to the grill. In reply to this offer, President Galt stated that such a railing would only prove useful on five or six occasions during the year, and considering this meager usefulness, it would "mar the beauty of the campus."

The fact of the matter is, that the walkway down the hill to the grill is slippery from the moment the first leaf drops in Autumn until after the last spring rain. What then is the real reason for this particular obstinance on this particular point?

Several years ago a female member of the SGA "demanded" such a railing. . . it was poor judgment on the part of that student, for I have believed, up until this resolution, that the administration of this school would lend a reasonable ear to any legitimate complaint.

Perhaps the beauty of the campus is the real issue, perhaps it is for the sake of beauty that we have no ugly fire escapes on our buildings, or unsightly red alarm boxes in them, as well as no railing, but we do have two lovely chapels, and a comfortable indoor patio for the presidential manse.

The truth is, that the administration of Western Maryland College is out of date, ignorant of the basic needs of an educational institution, and unable to realize that Victorian Christian discipline is dead. It is my opinion that unless this administration can prove to be more dynamic and responsible in the future, it should be reshaped. The quality of a finished product can be no better than the ingredients used, and the skill of the craftsman.

MSU Offers Studies In Foreign Countries

College students interested in study in Europe are invited to apply now for Michigan State University programs beginning in 1966. These informal and economical programs are scheduled for Paris, France; Lausanne and Neuchatel, Switzerland; Florence, Italy; Bologna, Germany; and Barcelona and Madrid, Spain. The programs will feature classes in conversation, composition, grammar and reading. Participants will also visit points of historic and geographic interest, which become the topics of lectures and seminar-type discussions covering cultural, political, social and economic institutions of the country in which they are residing. Also, to promote a knowledge of the foreign language and to provide students with opportunities to better understand their European contemporaries, American participants will attend classes and share living accommodations with students from many countries.

Winter programs start January 10, and the spring programs April 18, with the exception of the Madrid course which begins April 11. The deadline for winter term application is December 10, and for spring term, March 18.

Mark of A Leader

The sword, "the most romantic of weapons," is one of the oldest of all fighting implements. It has long been the symbol of war and the mark of courage and honor among fighting men. The sword's use as a sword dates back to the time when man first learned the art of working metal. It appears constantly in our country's history as the symbol of rank, the signal for battle, and the mark of unconditional surrender. The sword has been replaced in modern warfare by the bayonet affixed on the muzzle of a rifle. Nevertheless, the customs and pageantry associated with the sword still survive.

Because it is one of the oldest and most esteemed of weapons, the sword is now a part of the U. S. Army dress uniform. The modern soldier's loyalty for his country and esprit de corps for his unit are well symbolized by it. Consequently, this year, selected members of the Advanced Reserve Officers Training Corps will be equipped on the drill field with the Army sword. The sword: the mark of a gentleman, a soldier, and a leader.

Not only does Joyce portray the exceptional in our ideal of the college woman, but she also illustrates this admiration by running a home (and a husband) down in the Vetteville clan. Joyce truly deserves the Trumpeter honor and recognition as a senior "High on the Hill."

Joyce's academic record exceeds even her activities. An English-Library Science-Education major, Joyce is currently teaching this semester. Her Argonaut standing is an asset to the children she helps in the Tutoring Service. Joyce's major also involves her in SNEA and the English Club.

 serve more than half of the places in educational institutions for backward classes, and so forth. In 1964 the Supreme Court decided that backwardness should be decided solely on the basis of occupation and income, leaving considerations of caste entirely aside. And now the most backward castes are complaining that all the benefits will go to poor members of the already advantaged communities, such as the brahmins.

A question which has been faced but fully answered is how to provide professional and occupational opportunity for victims of prejudice without impairing the quality of the professions and the efficiency of the civil service. Whether those who have been discriminated against should be given special treatment, or as some of us might phrase it, whether there should be an official policy of discrimination in reverse, India has answered with a clear affirmative. The leaders recognize the danger that efforts will be made to perpetuate the special privileges that go with inferior status. Nevertheless, they are satisfied that their policy is right for them.

Indians with whom I spoke were aware that the United States and India share a common problem in that both of us are trying to deal with a situation involving the existence in our midst of disadvantaged people. They are watching us to learn whether we are discovering ways of approaching the problem which will be useful to them. I believe that we in turn can learn from them as they strive to resolve the same difficulty.

Green Terrors lost the season's Band Day

Gridders Face Strong Opponent; McTeer Proves Agile, Mobile

Band Day 1965 will see the Red Devils of Dickinson College coming to Hoffa Field at 2:00 pm.

At the Crossroads From the land of the Carlisle Indians, Dickinson brings a very impressive 5-1 record, their only defeat coming at the hands of Swarthmore College. Coach Jones told the squad on Monday, "Fellows, we are now at the crossroads, our play-calling and quarterbacking have improved but we still have to get to the outside." The coach went on to point out that although the Green Terrors are an even 3-3 overall, they are 2-1 in the Middle Atlantic Conference and a victory over Dickinson will put occasion and showed what determination and perseverance could mean.

Yellow Jackets Sting Last Saturday, the Randolph-Macon Yellow Jackets outplayed the Green Terrors at Hoffa Field, 13-8. Again, the first half was no Terror offense to speak of. In the first half the team ran a measly 19 plays for 40 yards and 8 of those plays came in the last two minutes. Meanwhile, Randolph-Macon tallied 13 points. With 7:15 left in the first quarter, the opponents ran into the end zone and won 3-0. Five minutes left in the half, they passed for a score to make it 13-0. Interestingly enough, this was the total of their scor-

The Truth of the Junior Varsity

Last week, in Sportlight, Walt Michael wrote, "Every fall Western Maryland's Varsity is studded with a few first year greats. They never play a J.V. game . . ." This year is no exception. But not every freshman is a first year wonder and those who can't step right in "with the big boys" move on to that proving ground for would be "products of patience and determination"—the Junior Varsity.

Some will fall by the academic wayside. For many, it will be a stepping-stone to the varsity—the means to an end. For a few, it will be an end in itself. For all, it will be a chance to play football, a chance to prove what they are, a chance to know what it feels like to be a Green Terror.

A team like this doesn't lose because they are well coached. Sam Case, Fern Hitchcock, and Ira Zepp fill that bill pretty well. Nor does it lose because its boys aren't ready and willing to play ball—guys like Herb Shrieves and Billy Cohen are keen competitors. It loses because it doesn't have any first year greats, because it spends all its time getting the Varsity ready for Saturday, because it simply can't identify itself.

But what many people fail to realize is—though they may have lost at Dickinson (13-12 in a downpour), though they lost at Gettysburg (61-0) they won at Washington and Lee (9-7) and they won at Wagner (0-7). Hurrah! Hurrah for the "green-hats"

Soccer Squad Fails to Score Films Show Poor Ball Control

by Lenny Harchenorn

On Tuesday, October 19, the Soccer team lost yet another days game. For the first time in the school's history, films were made of a soccer game.

As you may recall, this was the game which the Terrors dropped to Delaware 2-0. The films pointed out two specific failings of the team. First, the Terrors were not controlling the ball and getting it into scoring position. Secondly, the team was not scoring when the opportunity to do so presented itself.

On Tuesday, October 26, Western Maryland's boosters attempted to rectify these situations in actual competition against Mount St. Mary's College. Although the Mount won the game 4-1, the Terrors did solve the ball control problem. Indeed, Western Maryland spent the better part of the game on the Mount St. Mary's end of the playing field. Of twenty-six shots, the Mount scored six, while Western Maryland registered only one out of twenty-four attempts. The lone Terror goal was scored by Scott Joyner on a beautiful assist from Alain Derasse. Alain played a splendid game, as has been his habit this year, and continued to boost team morale with his never ceasing words of inspiration. Another outstanding Terror performance belonged to Ken Nihali who did such a competent job of checking the power of the Mount's All American, Ken Swomley, that the dreaded Mountaineer failed to score.

With the rising expectations and high hopes of solving the scoring problem, the Terrors hosted Catholic University on Tuesday, November 2. Western Maryland played the entire with all of the basic skill and enthusiasm that has made this year's team so exciting to watch. The Terrors took over thirty shots while Catholic University took only twenty-four. However, two of Catholic U's shots went in; none of WMC's did, and Catholic won by a score of 2-0. Rick Coburn again aided the green-clad cause by making twelve saves in the goal position.

To end on a bright note, it should be reported that the crowds at soccer games have been relatively larger and quite enthusiastic.

Key Coleman Stars

by Kathy Moore

A traveler passing by the woman's slope of the "Hill" will undoubtedly witness vigorous and spirited activity on the part of women athletes. Upon closer view the traveler would recognize that one of the most vigorous and most spirited participants was Kay Coleman.

Playing varsity hockey for her fourth year, Kay Coleman, co-manager and co-captain, has continued to contribute her skills and enthusiasm necessary for victory. As center forward, she has scored four of this year's five goals.

With the changing of sport seasons, she has maintained her varsity position in both basketball and volleyball. She has made contributions not only on the playing field but has served as vice-president of the Women's Athletic Association. Last year, she was involved with the revising of this organization's constitution.

It is no wonder that Kay with her abilities has chosen physical education as her major. Perhaps this interest can be partly attributed to the influence of her mother who was a graduate of Western Maryland College and also became a physical education teacher.

Terrorettes Split Opening Contests

The women's varsity hockey team played their first game on Monday, October 25 at Hood College, and they came away with a score of 2-1. The score was due to a goal by team captain Kay Coleman scored three of the goals, assisted by some beautiful passing on the part of freshman Carol Casakos. There were some outstanding defensive plays on the part of WMC's halfbacks and fullbacks and the entire game was quite a team effort.

The second varsity game, however, was a different story. The score was 2-1 and this time the victory went to Towson State.

Highlights & Sidelights

Have you ever noticed those little green squares on the front of the varsity's white helmets? Most people don't realize that these are awards for outstanding game efforts. They are given to those who score points, intercept punts, recover fumbles, and block punts. They go to the lineman who is outstanding defensively and the lineman who is outstanding offensively. Last week, however, no category was established, when John Trainor, following his recent marriage, was awarded one of the coveted insignias for "the outstanding play of the week."

On the statistical side with three conference games under its belt, Western Maryland leads the Mid-Atlantic (Southern Division) Conference in team punting with a 38.8 yard average, while freshman standout Jerry Borge has the conference individual honors with 602 yards in fifteen attempts for a mighty respectable 40.1 yard average. Jerry is also third in individual rushing with 281 yards for a 6.2 yard per carry average, ninth in total individual offense with 287 yards, and fifth in individual scoring with 20 points. The Green Terrors as a team, rank fourth in rushing offense with an average of 178.8 yards per game.

Coach Jones is welcoming suggestions about how to improve the first half performance of the squad. It's quite a mystery just how many are the two or two-people who know the answer.

The football team would like to acknowledge publicly the tremendous reception they received after their exciting 9-7 win over W & L. They thought all three of you should be given a big hand.

Remember, every sport is a major sport this year. The Wrestling team, under the able direction of Sam Case, promises to provide some exciting sport to see this winter. Make it a point to see a wrestling match.

The Terror football team can compare to the first of the famous race horse—Silky Sullivan. When Silky Sullivan was in competition, he would invariably lag behind the pack until the pressure was on and the others seemed out of reach. Then with a burst of speed, he would carry past all opponents to win the race. We don't want to carry this analogy too far, but there is a resemblance in styles of performance.

At Washington and Lee, the gridders won their third contest and it was the third time they had come from behind to do so. Even at Hampden-Sydney, they rolled back for 13 points only in the short 15-13. All 13 points were scored in the last quarter. By the way, Silky didn't win them all either.

Sportlight on McClintock

by Walt Michael

Offensive center and place-kicking specialist Paul McClintock has developed a scoring punch that has helped to make a winning team out of a potential loser.

A team without a good kicker is a wheel with an insufficient number of spokes. The touch-down is the only offensive weapon it holds. Its opponents have just one worry—to keep the team from crossing the goal line. He and a Paul McClintock to the team and the opponents have a helmetful of worry.

Remember, every sport is a major sport this year. The Wrestling team, under the able direction of Sam Case, promises to provide some exciting sport to see this winter. Make it a point to see a wrestling match.

Paul McClintock (56) has the kickoffs — and the field goals to boot!

As we defeated Lycoming 19-13 on Homecoming Day, Paul threw the initial block that cleared the way for Borge's first career touchdown, and seconds later, kicked the one-point conversion. Later in the game he made another one-point and went on to split the uprights with a 28-yard field goal in Green Terror football squad.

McClintock's toe is responsible for ten Green Terror points (he has yet to miss) and his blocking has been superb. In our 16-14 victory over PMC, he booted the extra point which was every bit as decisive as Jerry Borge's two-point run.

Paul, a senior economics-mathematics major, has overcome a rash of injuries to assume his present position on our squad. It has been said that the Pennsylvania ball players can "take it." McClintock, standing 5-11 and weighing in at 200 pounds, is no exception. He comes from Conellsville, where he played fullback for the Dunbar team in a ship High School. Even though he sustained both a serious elbow injury and a brain concussion, Paul lettered two years in a row and captain his squad to a winning season in his senior year. As a Green Terror he ran at the full-back slot until, during his sophomore year, his knee was injured and he returned to the extra point job. Paul but this is his senior year.

It would be difficult to over-emphasize the versatility of a good place kicker. Coach Jones is fortunate in having Terror Paul McClintock on the squad. Paul has added spark to the squad and excitement to our

Speed Will Overcome Dickinson, like most opponents this year, will be bigger than our squad, but not nearly as fast. If Jerry Borge's legs get into shape and Dana Huseman, John Markovich and Bryant Parker continue to improve their respective running games, the Terrors can put up upset.

Two weeks ago, the Generals of Washington and Lee discovered that high rank doesn't count on the scoreboard. After traveling 5 hours into the heart of Virginia, the gridders turned apparent defeat into victory against an enthusiastic opponent 9-7.

McTeer Swats The squad displayed its usual first quarter form by failing to launch an offensive drive. In the first quarter, we tallied 7 points to jump ahead. It was not until linebacker Victor McTeer boomed through the W&L offensive line to swat down a punt, that we moved past the 50 yard line. Vic's strong, steady defensive play proved inspirational to his teammates and was a vital factor in the victory. Two Terror drives were stopped dead within the 5 yard line before the half ended with the score still 7-0.

Wintering Directs In the second half, skies darkened, but not for WMC Senior quarterback, Grayson Winterling, who took over and "brought in the goods." On the first play of the 4th quarter, Grayson connected with halfback John Markovich on a 12 yard touchdown pass play. The two point conversion attempt failed, making the score 7-0 W & L.

Holtzhaus Seizes Pass The teams exchanged the pigskin several times before the Terrors and Winterling took the ball on the WMC 40 yard line with 5:05 minutes left. Displaying imagination and coolness, Grayson moved the Terror eleven down to the 15 yard line. (The key play was a 12 yard pass to end Jon Holtzhaus who had faked clear of his defensive man.) With 1:46 left on the clock, big reliable Paul McClintock split the W & L uprights with the game winning field goal. It was a jubilant ing for the day.

Bayse Scores The second half saw an improved Terror squad. Ed Kasemeyer took over the quarterback position and effectively moved the squad with a 23 yard pass to end Jay Sbert, followed by a 20 yard pass interference play in favor of WMC—again to Jay. A fumble looked disastrous but once again, Vic "the King of Swat" McTeer, crashed through blockers to swat down a Yellow Jacket punt. Alert end, Bob Bayse chased the ball into the end zone where he fell on it for the score. A two point conversion pass (87 dump pass) from Kasemeyer to Jon Holtzhaus brought hope and a 13-8 score. One touchdown would win it, but all scoring drives were halted and the game ended 13-8, Randolph-Macon.

Time to Shine It was learned after the game that starting quarterback Grayson Winterling injured his knee during the second quarter. Jerry Borge, the team's greatest scoring threat saw only limited action because of injuries to both knees. He will be back at full speed tomorrow. If ever there is a "time to shine," tomorrow is the day.

Wohl's Raiders Charge Gettysburg; Captain Pete Riker Leads Way!

by Bob Cartwright

Pete Riker, distinguished captain of Wohl's Raiders, has proven to be a valuable asset to the Rifle Team as well as to Western Maryland's ROTC Battalion, in which he serves as a platoon first sergeant.

Majors in Eon If he finds that these two activities leave him enough spare time, Pete gets around to studying a little Economics which just happens to be his major. Pete is also an accomplished drummer and is a stalwart on the Pi Alpha Alpha intramural football team. He is nineteen years old and hails from Oradell, New Jersey.

Member of "285" Pete claims that his biggest thrill heretofore has been breaking into the exclusive "285 Club" which he accomplished at Navy last year by shooting that score. This feat came as no surprise to his coach or to his teammates because Pete has been a real consistent shooter since he joined the team the second semester of his freshman year. Pete averaged 267 as a rookie and last year averaged a very solid 278. In one match this year he shot 281. Not only does Pete contribute to the Raiders with his shooting but he also serves as a kind of assistant coach, drawing from his own talent and experience to help the boys just beginning.

Go North! The Raiders' next match is on November 19 at Gettysburg.

ODK Circle Recognizes Campus Leaders; Ensor, Tribby, Ballard, Carrasco Join

MR. WILLIAM TRIBBY
Omicron Delta Kappa has announced the pending induction of three new members. The three are assistant professor William L. Tribby of the dramatic arts department, John C. Ballard of the class of 1966, and David Lee Carrasco of the class of 1967. In addition, President Lovell S. Ensor will be inducted as a member honoris causa. The induction, to which the entire campus is invited, will take place Sunday, December 5, at 4:00 pm in Baker Chapel. President Ensor will deliver a short address.

Began in 1914
Omicron Delta Kappa was founded in 1914 at Washington and Lee University for the purpose of recognizing and encouraging campus leadership. It now consists of 113 circles around the country. The Western Maryland circle is one of the more recent circles, having received its charter in 1963. Omicron Delta Kappa recognizes men who have made significant contributions to their professions by awarding them honorary memberships. President Ensor is to be inducted as a member honoris causa in recognition of his outstanding leadership in the Western Maryland College community. Under his administration, the college has not only flourished academically, but also physically.

Sets Goal
One of the primary goals of ODK is to create an atmosphere in which student and faculty members can work together. To further this end, Mr. Tribby will be inducted as one of the four faculty members of the group. During the relatively short time he has taught on the Hill, he has contributed a great deal to the intellectual atmosphere on campus. He is one of the most creative faculty members, as can be evidenced by his Experimental Theater. Mr. Tribby serves as advisor to Gamma Beta Chi Fraternity.

Is High Honor
Admission to Omicron Delta Kappa is one of the highest honors a man can achieve in his college career. It is based on five main areas of achievement. To be elected to membership a man must have attained and performed well in major leadership positions such

Jack Ballard is one of the most versatile student leaders he has been active in fraternity life, religious life, band, drama, and Student Government. He has served as both vice president and treasurer in two organizations, Pi Alpha Alpha and the Methodist Student Movement. William Dudley, from Vineland, New Jersey, was chosen by his classmates as their president. Bill, a pre-med major plans to hold an organizational meeting with his other officers before making any decisions concerning the future activities of the class. He would like for the class to have some parties of their own, due to the limited social life of the class, especially the boys, who are not yet members of fraternities. In high school Bill was active in Student Government and served as president of his senior class.

Repertory Group Offers Students Discount Rates

Baltimore's Center Stage Repertory Theater has invited college students to attend its 1965-66 dramatic season at the special rate of $1.50 per performance.

Begins Fourth Season
The repertory theater began its fourth season October 8 with George Bernard Shaw's Caesar and Cleopatra. Future productions of the theater are The Tavern by George M. Cohen; Arcade by John Anouilh; The Birthday Party by Harold Pinter; The Chinese Wall by Max Frisch; and As You Like It by William Shakespeare.

Center Stage moved into a modern theater this year. Located at 11 East North Avenue, the new theater boasts a unique "three quarters" thrust stage instead of the former theater-in-the-round arrangement.

Institutes New Program
Also, this year, Center Stage is instituting a new program for school journalists. Entitled "school press night", the program will allow student critics to attend and review the productions for their school papers.

The student press representative will have the opportunity to interview members of the repertory company directly after the performance.

Betti's Contemporary Play Explores Modern Paradox

Richard McCall, Thomas Stanton, Carolyn Peterson, and Gary Crowell rehearse their lines.

Search for Queen
In their search for the Queen, whom they think has escaped execution, the revolutionaries stop a group of travelers in a mountain village to question them. Among the travelers is the Queen, disguised as a peasant woman who knows Raim, the interpreter for the revolutionaries. The two of them make plans to kill the Queen.

After questioning the travelers, the rebels decide that Argia must be the Queen, and the Interpreter lets them believe so. When the revolutionaries finally bring Argia to trial, Raim, her only witness, runs away and denies that he knows her. The real Queen, captured in her attempted escape, takes poison and dies. Left alone, Argia finally assumes the identity of the Queen, and is ready to face whatever consequences fall to her.

Written in 1949, The Queen and the Rebels explores Betti's concept of tragedy as a "facilitating mistake." The play presents his thought on the necessity of essential humanity in the face of an irrational universe, a theme not unlike the central concern of his French contemporary, Albert Camus. The play is a dramatic and moving document of that most crucial of modern paradoxes, the "existential" dilemma.

Tickets Are $1.00
There will be two presentations of the play, Friday, November 19, and Saturday, November 20. The time both nights will be 8:15 pm. Tickets for the play are $1.00 and may be purchased in McDaniel Office or at the door.

Bookstore Displays Indian Handiwork

A collection of native Indian crafts is currently on display in the college bookstore. The collection has been "especially purchased for us by Mrs. Ralph Price," announces Mrs. Grace Z. Leroy, manager of the bookstore.

The display features jade, brass, copper, ivory, silks, and linen crafts. "The really different gifts are marvelously priced for Christmas giving," says Mrs. Leroy.

Reverend Shaheen Speaks Sunday

Reverend Raymond Shaheen, A.B., will speak during Chapel on November 21. He is presently the pastor at St. Luke Lutheran Church in Silver Spring, Maryland. After receiving his A.B. degree at Susquehanna University, Pastor Shaheen attended the Gettysburg Lutheran Theological Seminary. In 1962 he received an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree from Gettysburg College.

Travel and Preaches
Reverend Shaheen has traveled and preached on American college campuses, in Europe, and in the Near East. In 1964 Pastor Shaheen went on a special preaching to India as part of a world-wide church mission. During that year he conducted study tours to Europe and the Near East. In Memoriam:

DEAN HELEN G. HOWERY

The GOLD BUG Staff wishes to express its deep regret at the untimely death of Miss Helen G. Howery on November 18, 1965. For eighteen years Helen Howery served our campus as Dean of Women and Professor of English. We will miss her: her bubbling enthusiasm over England and the Shakespearean legacy; her sincere interest and understanding in the women of WMC, past, present, and future; her love of life. And we will remember her jokes, her wit, and her gentle prodding.

When the GOLD BUG went to press, no details were yet available concerning funeral arrangements.

Is JV Obsolete or Overlooked?

Many of the people who are close to sports at Western Maryland feel that the Athletic program on the "Hill" has a certain uniqueness which the students fail to recognize. The charge "the students here are too sophisticated" is being echoed more and more. One indication of this may be in the lack of response to opportunities of participating in intercollegiate athletics on the Junior Varsity level.

The purposes of the Junior Varsity program are twofold: 1) to provide an opportunity for individuals, who might eventually be Varsity performers, to gain experience, fundamentals, and skills of the particular sport; 2) to provide competitive experience in the particular sport for those individuals who love the game, who do not have the ability to move up to a varsity position—but who desire to participate.

The college is apparently willing to provide financial support for the Department of Athletics in order to make available such a program. There are a number of men on the football squad who never had any previous experience on the gridiron but who are finding the opportunity to play in college.

The college is apparently willing to provide financial support for the Department of Athletics in order to make available such a program. There are a number of men on the football squad who never had any previous experience on the gridiron but who are finding the opportunity to play in college.

The question might be asked—Is part of our failure to rise up the opportunity of JV athletics due to the fact that a large percentage of men are filled with a greater love for particular organizations than for Western Maryland, if so, what kind of a perspective do we have of life on the Hill?

Somebody Up There?

Love, Man, Love

By Dean Ira G. Zepp Question: You see, Lord, there is this thing—called life. I didn't ask for it, but I certainly am saddled with it. This thing—life—can be a people, done at times. There are so few swinging people in it, so few with smarts, so many finks, so many who blow their cool. I'm sorry, Lord, but I really ticks me off. What can I say?

See Dad Scene for Society I see sex, which was meant by you to unite people, doing just the opposite—separating men and women. I see people of different colors, intended by you to live together as brothers, murdering one another with shotguns and with such obscenities as "nigger" and the pornography of police dogs. And I know the hooded looks floating around are something else again—really bad news for our society. I see people getting bombed out of their cotton-pickin' minds in order to play like being alive. I see roommates venting hostility on one another. Evidently is a three dollar bill—a phony. And the people who try to be good and real really fracture me. The whole situation is a bad scene.

I want you to know, Lord, that this really bugs me. There are times, as far as I am concerned, when you could bag the whole business. It is so hard to stay up tight. Do you read me?

Love Is Answer

Answer: You see, man, there is this thing—called Love. It is nothing to do with making anything or anyone. It has to do with creating something out of nothing, with healing what is broken, with life when the stench of death is overwhelming, with worth when you feel like

Professors Show Rampant Dissatisfaction; Students Hunger For Better Nourishment

On Wednesday, November 10, WMC students were given questionnaires pertaining to their eating habits here at WMC. The response was wholly enthusiastic on the part of the student body. Although it was impossible to process all of the surveys, and there was a foul-up in their collection in certain housing sections, the feature staff feels that the more than 400 surveys they processed might be considered representative of the campus as a whole.

Money Spent

Significantly, there were just as many persons who stated that they spent more than five dollars on food weekly as there were students who estimated that they spent less than one dollar during the same given time. Most of the latter were girls. Two to four dollars weekly seems to be what the majority of WMC students spend on food. Many added that their food supplies were supplemented by food from home.

The Meals Not Eaten

The average student missed seven meals weekly. This result seemed to be slightly weighted down to a number of waters who served all breakfasts as well as other meals. The largest one response was ten meals not eaten (out of a total of 21 served in a week).

Go to Breakfast?

About 40% of respondents stated that they NEVER go to breakfast. A majority of 58% said they went to breakfast at least "3 or 4 times" during the week. The remaining 2% said they always attended. Quite a few of those who "never" go "per week" also added that they were student teaching.

Likes and Dislikes

As might be expected, just about every entrée which would not get enough unless they supplemented intake with their own money and food in dorms.

Gain or Lose Weight?

Five pounds one way or the other, mostly lost, was reported by about half the students.

greasy for good clothes!" cried many, "hot dogs and beans (served separately), pork chops, ham, and shrimp steak. Least-liked foods were, in this order: chicken croquettes, shrimp creole, mounds of joy, liver, ham hash, "all lunches", "all meals", spaghetti, "everything on toast", and cold cuts. A few other en-

About half the number who reported gaining stated that they had lost previously. Reasons for this will be discussed at end of article.

Average Much Meat?

Average response (about 90% are "average" in this instance) reported one portion of meat consumed daily. Very few reported more than this; some used fractions in their estimates, i.e. 1/2, 1/4, etc.

How About Greens and Milk?

"NOT ENOUGH" said the students. Averages: 1 glass milk daily; 1/2 serving of fruit; 1 serving of vegetables; and 1/2 a portion of salad.

Go Elsewhere?

About half of the students pulled stated that they would rather have their board money and eat where they please.

Are You Nourished?

This question also met with a resounding 90% NO. DISCUSSION:

The overwhelming complaint voiced by the students is that the food is much too starchy.

Wilson Reminisces, Relives Ensenada

By Ralph Wilson

Saturday, July 31, 1965—the beginning of an idea, a dream, an adventure... up at 6:15 am for the long trip to Friendship Airport, three hours later, taxi and HFDG, seven hours later you find yourself in a different country, a different way of life, strange people, strange language, and you are there to imagine yourself. You have come to serve, to do a job, to work, to help people, to experience, to learn, and to do your best.

Town Is Ensenada

You are a member of a team with three other Americans who, like yourself, have come to work on a project for an organization called the Student Opportunities Service. The town where you will be staying is Ensenada, Puerto Rico, about which you know very little, but you want to learn; it will be great, won't it? You eat your meals in the small white house of the Perez family who, as adults, three children, a dog called Whitey, and plenty of mosquitoes. You've never eaten that kind of food before, but you must try it, you can't offend them, and besides, there is nothing else to eat... Smile, it tastes great! The "her Mama" is a great woman and a good mother and she wants to talk with you about yourself and your family, you she talks with funny sounds and you can't understand her.

Why?... didn't you learn her language?

Shares Unique Experiences

You sleep in a small room under a mosquito net with another team member, the only boy you know in town, one with whom you will share many experiences and come to admire very much. The first night... things odd of realization—a unique experience... and one of determination—must learn, must work hard and do your best... your best.

Up at 7:00 am for you have a job to do... the people you meet are great! You see need to be around you... things odd to be done... they must be done! The team picks up speed, projects are started, the people are your friends, really your friends. Basketball classes, swimming classes, English classes, a softball league, a trash project, and a construction of a basketball court all make up the regular day schedule.

Who Are Good Guys?

A group of "good guys" would like to go twenty miles to see a basketball court. Sure, I take them in the YMCA truck... Higinio, the boy who didn't even know his last name really likes the basketball class and is having better... Let's go for an UVA with the gang! Lico, one of the "good guys," broke up with his girl... You find yourself being able to chat with the boys using their funny sounds which now have meaning. Raul, that's the boy you like best, is having better with Plana. Geometry... help him!! Then there's Will, the only young guy in town you know who has a job... but Andro, your "brother" from the Perez family asks if you are from the Peace Corps... why doesn't he know?... Time to go to a break at the Bespectado dance hall with the team and Zulma and Brunie, play "Merengue Bari No. 2." Tomorrow more barrels to paint and deliver.

the food tastes great!... and you've just got to get Mama and Papa an anniversary present. Be at the field by two o'clock to umpire the softball game.

And Before You Know It

Wait! This Friday is when you are supposed to go home. The six weeks or forty-one days are up, the plane reservation is made and you must say goodbye to Ensenada. It seems as though just a few steps back you find you set your eyes on the (Continued on page 3)

Through Lieb's Lens

The Knack

by Ron Liebman

This week the lens is once again focused on comedy. The British-made film, The Knack, or How to Get It, is a combination of surface humor and deeper meaning. This may come as a shock to you, dear fans, but this film has achieved a nine-out-of-a-possible-ten in the Lieb's lens rating system. This high rating is due in a large measure to director Richard Lester ("A Hard Day's Night") who did an excellent job in making the film funny, but retaining meaning.

The story is about a young provincial girl's arrival in London and her adventures with three young men who live in a Bohemian-type setting. Ray Brooks plays Tolen, who has the knack for seducing a multitude of beautiful girls. Michael Crawford is Coleen, a young math professor and land-lord who hasn't got the knack, but who is willing, ready, and

To this can be added the opinion that there is "never enough green vegetables." Lunches especially are criticized for being unappetizing as well as being much too starchy. Many said in addition that "there is never enough food." One student bemoaned the fact that "when there's something you like, you're lucky if you can get one serving; but there are always refills if the meal is unappetizing." The quantity of meat offered is almost universally felt to be insufficient, but many added that they felt the quality of the meat served at dinners is "usually good." The salads are felt to be "too witty" and "leftover." Many said with nostalgia that they "miss last year's salad."

Food preparation is given an E for Effort. But it is "too cold, poorly seasoned, and sometimes unsanitary." said one disgruntled student. Well, maybe not all the time...

CONSTRUCTIVE SUGGESTIONS:

Many students who stated that they would rather have money and eat elsewhere, said they would rather have a dining hall if conditions would improve. "It would be very inconvenient to eat elsewhere at mealtimes."

About twenty students suggested that meal tickets for breakfast and lunch be sold at the beginning of the semester "as they do at Swarthmore," and the unused tickets could be redeemed at the end of the semester.

Another suggestion was to have breakfast on a double shift in order that late-sleepers could get the breakfasts they paid for. We have double shift for other meals; why not breakfast too? "It's really the most important meal of the day, but who wants to get up at seven am to eat it when he's got an eight o'clock class?" asked one respondent.

About half the replies stated somewhere in their questionnaires that they would like to have milk served at dinner as well as at other meals, because many do not go to breakfast. Also not everyone likes coffee or hot tea.

One student suggested that a big improvement to start with would be to eliminate the most obnoxious meats, such as mounds of croquettes, creole, and SOG... In all, there is rampant dissatisfaction with the dining hall and the food. This is a common occurrence at every institution. But this is a small college, and we eat "family style." Is it not possible that students might be more picky at a little more than they are now?

THE GOLDEN AGE: Life, Death, New Jesus Image

by Cary Wolfson

A funny thing happened on the way to oblivion. Just when it was starting to get dull around here (Viet Nam fighting was becoming accepted as a normal thing; nobody important had died for a while; Little Orphan Annie was still plunking along), all of a sudden things began popping.

People stopped burning their draft cards and started burning themselves. Somebody plugged the airconditioning into the electric toothbrush socket and the entire Northeastern U. S. was blacked out. A famous newspaperwoman was found peacefully dead in bed while another one had to be scraped off the Asian earth with an emory board. But the show must go on—and on and on and on it went. Excitement. Action. A golden age.

Have you noticed that you're drinking more now but enjoying it less? Well, don't get bugged—so is everyone else.

Five years ago you'd have seen in Time Magazine an essay "On Death As A Constant Companion" ("There can only be gratitude for the elimination of suffering—but 'management of death' causes difficult problems.")? Five years ago who'd have put up with "Eve of Destruction," "Good News Week," Bob Dylan, "The Loved One"? Never happen. Back then we had Fall/Safe and 1964 (good horror stories—mainly because you knew they could never happen) and Soupy Sales, and Buster Brown and Froggy (hiva, hiva kids), and Superman, and Captain Marvel, and then there was Brave New World, winning the comeback of the year award after 30 years of relative obscurity. (But can it happen here?)

When Mommy and Daddy told you that the 80-foot Martian with the ray-gun could never happen, you believed them. "It can't happen here!" You believed them when they said that Mr. Applegate didn't really devour Cleveland. "It can't happen here!" You believed them when they said that the Damned Yankee loses the pennant. Nobody could do that. "It can't happen here!" You did believe them, didn't you? Didn't you!!

You Are Home

You wake up and find yourself on your own bed at home and wonder how time comes and goes so quickly. You tell people what you have done . . . clap, clap, clap . . . they say, "Good job, buddy" . . . you tell them, "We had a trash program" or "We put up a basketball court" . . . they answer, "That's great" . . . but they don't really know. How can you tell them what it felt like to see sights, people, and sweat drift out of sight as in a dream, perhaps never to be seen again? It's impossible.

Wasn't it worth it? Yes!!! Good was done because an effort was made. Forty-one days out a lifetime . . . a short time, but packed full of meaning . . . not a time of watching and talking, but one of doing . . . a period of service and learning, one never to be forgotten . . . SOS . . .

Highlights and Sidelights

by Ed Lowery
Football is a game of second efforts and this was typical of the Drexel game. This was seen most vividly in Steve Blum's tremendous effort in pursuit of the Drexel end on the 70 yard pass play.

Jim King earned the defensive lineman of the week award while Gary Kulick and John Heritage were named offensive linemen of the week. Coach Jones stated that this was one of Gary's finest performances at offensive tackle.

The two long field goal attempts by Paul McClintock (one was a 58 yard attempt) shows that the team has not been moving into good field position which would make the field goal a more effective weapon.

The wrestling team has 25 men fighting for positions. The first match will be at Towson on Dec. 4. Also competing will be Old Dominion, West Chester State Teachers, and Towson.

Tickets for the two basketball games at the civic center can be obtained from the athletic department. The tickets for the Towson game on December 16 will be on sale after Thanksgiving vacation and until December 10. Tickets for the Washington College game on January 6 have to be purchased before Christmas vacation. Let's make an effort to support our team by being at the Civic center on those two nights.

This sports writer would like to congratulate Coach Jones and his staff for a job well done. Also I would like to congratulate the team for an exciting and well played season.

Social, Athletic Activities

Fill Life of Senior Leader

Kathryn Coleman

From lab to field, from the Eastern Shore to Puerto Rico, the activities of Kay Coleman keep her fit. Her love for sports, her go-go power, and as class representative to the Student Government Association in her junior year.

During the past summer, Kay was a member of the SOS team to Puerto Rico. This excursion culminated three years of hard work for this organization. Very meaningful to Kay in her years on the 'Hill' has been her membership in Sigma Sigma Tau Sorority, which she serves this year as vice-president. Last May at the tapping ceremony, Kay was selected to be one of this year's six trumpeters. Without a doubt, she deserves this recognition for services rendered to so many facets of campus life.

Engaged to Ralph Smith ('65), Kay plans to be married this summer. The very best to Kay in the future—Kay Coleman—High on the Hill.

her physical education major make Kay a skilled player on the basketball court, on the hockey field, and beside a volleyball net.

How many people do you know who have four meetings at the same time? Well, Kay has! In four years, she has worked and served almost every major organization on campus. A member of Dorm Council, Women's Council, ISC and FAC co-chairman, Kay is well aware of the trials and tribulations of our women students.

Kay has served the entire student body by serving in the Honor Court for two years, and

The Bachelors plan to close out a successful fall season Saturday night, November 9, with their annual closed Hopkins Party, featuring Norman's Norts. Alpha Gamma Tau will celebrate the winning of the intramural football crown (an 8-0 record, scoring 223 pts., allowing 6); a profitable sale of programs at home games; the re-establishment of an academic contest between fraternity section floors; and their new pledge class. Many Bachelor alumni will be present. The Bachelors salute WMC's fine team and wish them the very best tomorrow afternoon.

Initiation of Delta Pi Alpha's pledges took place Tuesday night, November 9. On Saturday, November 13, the Preachers held a banquet in conjunction with Family Day for the members and their families. Dean Zapp was the guest speaker. Mr. Sam Case has become the new Preacher sponsor. Sam is a former Preacher, class of '64. He is WMC's assistant football coach and head wrestling coach. The Entertainment and Gamma Betes are planning a combined closed "Hopkins Party" for Saturday night, November 20. It will be held at the Westminster Armory and will feature the Vikings.

The Deltas revised their sorority constitution at the November 9 meeting. Other business conducted was discussion of Christmas plans and election of Carol Roemer as chairman of the Christmas party committee. The sorority donated ten dollars to the Christian Children's General Fund for the support of an orphan for their Thanksgiving project.

Iota Gamma Chi is preparing for the coming holiday season. The sorority news letter to Alumni, edited by Jo Bunting, included an invitation to an informal sorority-Alumni tea to be held December 7 in McDaniel Lounge. Alumni will attend a brief business meeting and then old and new members will enjoy Christmas refreshments as they get to know each other.

The Iota pledge class nominated committee chairman for the sorority Christmas party. Sharon Sheffield heads the decorating committee; Mary Dickson, refreshment; and Kathy Arick, entertainment. The charity committee is investigating possibilities for an Iota charity project. Chief prospects include: a Vietnamese village, Rosewood State Hospital, and UNICEF.

Avon sale continues and students are reminded that this week before Thanksgiving will be the last opportunity to order gifts before Christmas. Sorority members will be canvassing the dorm this week and next.

Have you noticed? The Sigma Sigma Tau have a new look this fall. Wool winter parkas with the sorority crest.

At the last meeting plans were discussed for an informal Thanksgiving with Phi Alpha Alpha some time in the future.

The sorority will again be giving a Thanksgiving basket to a needy Westminster family this year.

The third Annual Phi Alpha Formal was a tremendous success. Everyone enjoyed dancing to the music of the Dellonaires, and the presentation of the pledges at the highlight of the evening. Chaperoning the evening were Dr. and Mrs. Witherston and Mr. and Mrs. Tribby. A Thanksgiving basket will be given to a needy family in the community.

This article about the GBX Fraternity was printed in a recent issue of the Carroll County Times.

tive community service Saturday afternoon when 272 city parking meter posts were repainted in the business areas.

The project had been arranged by Mayor Joseph H. Hahn, Jr., City of Baltimore. Fraternity officers pursuant to Gamma Beta Chi's policy on pledging procedure which stresses community service instead of public initiation hading.

Instructed by Howard F. Slorp, street commissioner, and directed by Rob Hendrickson, secretary, and Tom Stanton, pledge-master, with the assistance of the other officers of the fraternity, Tim Hart, Ed Fein-class, Vic Pusey, Robert Creighton, Dave Horton, Michael 'Paris' and William Deick, armed with red paint, brushes, sandpaper and sipping clothes, painted the meter posts.

The stargazers predict that a tuition credit measure may pass in the current session of the 89th Congress. The bulletin received by the Gold Bug stated that there was much need for the assistance because tuition has been rising at an increasing rate . . .

Each dollar of credit would reduce a person's tax by one dollar. Amount of credit would vary according to tax first $200 spent, 25 per cent of the next $300, and 10 per cent of the next $1,000. The maximum allowable credit is $25.

So, who would oppose this bill? Some feel that the measure would not help those with incomes too low to necessitate payment of Federal income tax.

The name of this bill is the Ribicoff-Dominick measure and one might obtain further information about it by writing to the Citizens National Committee for Higher Education, Inc., P. O. Box 2122, South Bend, Indiana 46615.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:
This campus suffers from a very understandable disease—"commotion-then-quietness." In the past weeks there have been many student protests, the President's railing, Mr. Uhrig's reporting, and the Dining Hall's Rice. We all love to "beat the drum" for some controversy without looking into the matter—without asking the people involved, the people who know. This ill prevails even within the social framework of the Campus, a framework structured of students. The topic under discussion is the IFC-ISC Weekend. People have cursed and complained. They don't like the poll; they don't like the talent show. Does anyone want to know the whole story?

Although the concert for the big weekend is not until April, talent must be located and signed for in advance. This is the way you get good talent at a reduced price. As chairman of this event, I contacted ten agencies, requesting their recommendations for the concert. In suggesting acts, the agents kept in mind our budget ($2000), our seating capacity (900), and our student body (?). The names appearing on the poll were those sent by the agents—people who know what is going on in show business. People who know which acts will attract. Once this list was compiled, a copy was given to a member of the Men's and Women's Councils. These people received 325 replies through personal contacts. The poll lasted for two days in order that contact negotiations, which can take from a week to three weeks, could begin, allowing time to get to know what is wanted. Eight hundred people's opinions didn't appear because eight hundred people could not be contacted in order to get in the dormitories when the representative came around. But the group sampled was a good cross-section of men, women, freshmen, upperclassmen, members of social organizations, and independents.

A second poll was considered, but the IFC-ISC agreed that, in addition to delaying negotiations, approximately the same people would be contacted, giving the same results. The fraternities and sororities accept the financial responsibilities for this venture. Therefore, going on the results of the poll, a group was contacted.

More information on the weekend will follow in the Spring. The important thing now is that you understand the rationale used in the polling and contracting. Idle talk and rumors can often destroy an event like this before it gets started. The purpose of the IFC-ISC Weekend is to bring big name entertainment to WMC. An undertaking like this cannot afford to be ruined by the talk of a few who were ill-informed. All questions are welcomed, but ask them of the proper people—the people who know!

Sincerely,
Richard P. Cline
Vice-President, IFC
Chairman, IFC-ISC Weekend

This letter was sent to the GOLD BUG with a request that it be reprinted for the benefit of WMC students.

Attorney General Katzenbach: The Associated Press on October 18, 1965, stated, concerning the demonstrations, speeches and teach-ins against our war in Vietnam, that you had said: "Whenever you have a situation in which people are saying things similar to what is being said by Peking, you are likely to find some Communists involved in it."

If so, they appear in good company. Many American citizens abhor our part in the war in Vietnam and participated in the recent demonstrations sponsored by the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS). Some Mr. Katzenbach, there may have been some Communists among them and even some Democrats, some Republicans in Vietnam, some Catholics, some Jews, and some Protestants, and some ministers, some priests and some rabbis may have been involved.

Also besides students and professors, you may be very likely to find that some pastry cooks and some chefs, some alcoholics and some teetotalers, and some sinners and some immaculates, some Negroes and some Whites, some social and some organized workers, some politicians and some without fear and others have been involved with the SDS in demanding the end of the war in Vietnam.

Happily, Mr. Katzenbach, citizens of the United States still dared to demonstrate and to speak out against their government in October, 1965; but investigations by the department of Justice or other agency of government accompanied with threats, will suppress such civil liberties will surely hasten the coming of Orwell's 1984.

To the Editor

The college-aged students of the United States have been badly criticized in recent months for their attitude toward the Vietnam issue. This criticism has resulted in an unfortunate widespread publicity given to the small, noisy minority of students who have opposed the American defense of Vietnam.

Consequently, Young Republicans, Young Democrats, and Independents have come together to form the new bi-partisan National Student Committee for the Defense of Vietnam. This new student committee has no association with any extraparty political organization of either the right or the left. Our sole purpose is to mobilize college students in a concerted program of responsible action in support of American resistance to Communist aggression in Southeast Asia.

Specially, we will engage in a number of activities on the campus level. First, our committee intends to distribute and collect petitions supporting the United States defense of Vietnam. The enclosed petition can serve as a guide line to those campuses on which no petitions are presently being circulated.

Secondly, we are urging college campuses, especially during the period from November 22 to December 10, to engage in a series of rallies supporting policy in Vietnam.

Thirdly, we plan to distribute educational materials to college campuses including this country's position in Vietnam.

Finally, we urge students on your campuses to send Christmas cards to our soldiers in Vietnam. You can address these cards in care of the World

News of the Week

Affairs Forum, Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah. The cards must reach Brigham Young by December 1, if our soldiers are to receive them Christmas day.

American Students Attend Hawaiian U.

The East-West Center in Hawaii is a national institution established by Congress to promote educational and cultural interchange among the peoples of Asia, the Pacific Basin, and the United States. Each year, American students and others from 24 Asian-Pacific countries are brought to the Center to live in an international atmosphere and to graduate studies at the University of Hawaii.

Around 100 American students each year for tuition, books, room and board, personal allowance, and round-trip travel to Hawaii. Applicants should submit applications and credentials no later than December 15, 1965, to Director of Student Selection, East-West Center of Honolulu, Hawaii 96822.

IRC Plans Activities

The International Relations Club has initiated this year with new intentions. Its goal is to offer a broader outlook of the contemporary world than that presented by textbooks which, although new, can be outdated by the influx of international relations.

Due to its unique position as a club, the SGA has granted the IRC $60 for an operating budget. In addition to its annual banquet, the IRC has plans for a trip to Washington in the spring for its members.

The next date on the agenda is December 2, when the IRC will sponsor a yet unnamed representative of the American Friends of Vietnam.

Secretarial School Offers Scholarships

The Katherine Gibbs School has two national scholarships for 1966-1967 available for college senior girls. Each scholarship covers full tuition ($200) for the secretarial training course and an additional cash award of $500. College academic record, personal and character qualifications, financial needs, and potentialities for success in business are criteria for the awarding of the scholarship.

Each college may recommend two candidates who must have the official endorsement of the Scholarship Committee. The college placement bureau has full information concerning these Katherine Gibbs awards.

Corporations Offer Personal Challenge

The following article is reprinted from a news release from Lawrence A. Kimpton of the Standard Oil Company. "The time seems to be ahead on the campuses that personal challenge and the opportunity to make a meaningful contribution to society are nowhere to be found within a corporation. However spooky some of the manifestations of the present campus unrest may look, they are at least higher than devouring uncooked garbage, and they bespeak a more thoughtful generation. To take the beatnik as truly representative may be to overstate a few saplings for the forest.

There is evidence that many, if not most, of today's undergraduates look upon the prospect of business careers with very little enthusiasm. Somehow they seem to equate corporate activity with sterility.

The prospect of our most promising youth hastening into teaching, teaching, government, and solving the problems of peace, poverty, and race relations, leaving behind the pedestrian and second-rate management of the economic engine on whose product all these other activities depend for their ultimate support is a sobering one.

Guiding contemporary corporate affairs happens to be among the most challenging and exciting activities to be found anywhere in our society. The forces of rapid change are loose . . . and the corporation is the instrument by which scientific discoveries are converted into something of social value and utility and made available to all the people.

For those of our young people who have the necessary intellectual capacity, the determination, and the vision that is necessary to bring their careers in life which can challenge the opportunity and the challenges to be found within today's corporation—nor are there many which involve as great a contribution to society.

What's this? Another large university protests against itself? Yes. Now it is the University of Colorado at Boulder that is calling attention to its festering sores. At about this date a vocal referendum is being held there. Its name: "Bitch-In on the Mutiversity." The aim of the action is to find out what students think is wrong with the university, why, and what can be done about it. Each student will be given a numbered IBM card as he enters the auditorium. He will be encouraged to bend it, fold it, mutilate, do all manner of evil against it maliciously. The num-

Terrors Charge in Classic Rivalry

Jones to End First Season; Victory at Hopkins - A Must!

Tomorrow afternoon, the Terrors travel to Johns Hopkins University for the last football game of Ron Jones' first season as Head Coach.

Historical Classics
The Western Maryland-Johns Hopkins game has become a small college classic dating back to 1894. Since that year Johns Hopkins has won 20 games while Western Maryland has won 17. Four games have ended in ties. The Terrors have been victors of the last four contests and last year won by the score of 35-12.

The gridmen should win by at least that much tomorrow. We don't make this prediction because Hopkins is a push-over, but because the squad is hungry for victory—both for themselves and for their coach.

Case Respects Foo
Line coach, Sam Case, who was on the Johns Hopkins staff last year has a high regard for the Blue Jays and says, "Hopkins is tougher than most people realize—they've got some plays and won the game 12-7.

Huseman Improves
Men who played outstanding games were Paul McClintock, Gerry Winegrad, Dana Huseman and Al Ingalls. Huseman ran at his season's best.

The Game of Life
Tomorrow afternoon, a significant part of life will end for members of the 1965 football squad and its coaches. Seven seniors will close out their college careers. What football has meant to them cannot possibly be written on this sports page. It will only be manifested by the manner in which they live out their lives—relating the lessons and experiences of the playing field to life itself. They are tri-captains, Alan Ingalls, Gary Kulick, and Rick White; ends Bob Basye, Jon Holthaus, Art Falk; tackles, Russ Cook, Bill Panger, Charlie

Sideline Courage Wore Blue

Western Maryland's greatest football coach, Richard C. Harlow, died in 1961. He had received every award that a football coach can receive in the United States. One of the main reasons for his success as a football coach and as a human being is his wife, Nainette, who lives today on Main Street, just a stone's throw from the "Hill."

Those who knew Dick Harlow and respected him for his dedication to football and what it did for men are also aware of the graciousness of his wife. To spend an hour with Mrs. Harlow is to receive grace from another human being. She is a tall, stately woman who moves with strength and certainty. The soft colors which Mrs. Harlow prefers (her favorite color is blue) complement her white hair cleanly dressed on top of her head. When this lady enters a room people become silently aware that a warm and gracious person has come into their midst. The simplicity and wholesomeness of her mind reveals itself in her conversations.

As a coach's wife, she was a loyal assistant and always displayed a wise, motherly concern for Mr. Harlow's boys. Students who visited the Harlow home often found delicious and filling meals she had prepared for them. Mrs. Harlow knows, as well as any woman, the appetites of youth. The house on Main Street is beautifully decorated with pictures of many types, pottery, and antique furniture which she and Mr. Harlow collected. Every item has a particular meaning for her. Her delights in sharing with others. Once, when she was showing some of the priceless pottery, she explained, "I was just a two dollar buyer, but Dick went all out, as he did in everything, to gather a beautiful collection."

Her favorite room on the first floor is the den. It was here where Coach Harlow spent many of his hours planning strategy and writing. The room is full of the awards, plaques and pictures that the coach received. During my last visit, this stately woman confessed that she dened tidying up and that she was going to do the job herself, as always, the first chance she had. Her knowledge and familiarity with each item is humbling to observe. Few people are so freely familiar with the greatness of life.

The summer cottage in the Poconos which she and Mr. Harlow visited every summer is Mrs. Harlow's favorite. Her appreciation for flowers and plants is revealed when she talks about the garden. Her most recent visit was during the past summer. "Oh, I'm never really alone for I know that Dick is ever with me and I manage just fine."

Mrs. Harlow still has a faithful interest in today's boys and coaches. She visits the games on every free occasion. Once she referred to the pressure that coaches and their families must bear. "Yes it is a grind, but it's worth living through and I wouldn't change any of it for the world."
During the last several years of his life, Mrs. Harlow tended and cared for her husband. She took meticulous effort to prepare his special diet and with austere courage and grace comforted the man in his most difficult days.

Upon entering the house on Main Street, a visitor may see a picture (artist unknown) of lone figure walking through the snow toward a warmly lighted home. Upon leaving, that visitor may realize the picture is symbolic of Mrs. Harlow, beauty and peace.

Sportlight on Trainer

by Walt Michael

John Trainor is Western Maryland's most important defensive player. Football is as much a game of the mind as it is of the body. A football player can never depend entirely upon his natural ability to pull himself through. He must know all the time. He must know his assignment and he must know how to react if he fails to meet it. There is little doubt that the quarterback is the number one thinking man on the squad. But there is even less doubt that the man who plays the defensive line has a mighty close second. This man is engaged in a constant guessing game of what comes next, and where? An intelligent guess on his part can make or break a game, which is why it is so very important to have an alert and diligent man at the helm. John Trainor is that man.

John "Pirate" Trainor comes to us from Washington, D. C., where he played ball in one of the toughest leagues anywhere. He played four years for St. John's Catholic High School, a school that always has been and always will be a powerhouse on the gridiron. John, a letterman, played both center and guard on offense and called signal from the linebacker spot on defense. In Trainor's senior year, St. John's amassed a 7-3 record as Pirate was selected, at an extremely high 165 pounds, to the All Catholic squad.

John's career at WMC has been just as long and colorful. He is respected as one of the smartest yet quietest center-linebackers in the league, as evidenced by his selection to the All Maryland and Mason-Dixon Teams in both 1963 and 1964. Calling the defensive signals, Trainor was Western Maryland's Defensive Lineman of the year last Fall. This season finds "Pirate" the helm again. The Marines don't want

On Saturday, November 6th, the Green Terrors played their seventh league game at Lycoming College.

Little David Assists
After a scoreless first quarter, Scott Joyner put Western Maryland on the board by scoring a goal on an assist from Bill "little David" Spangler. With a solid defense and an aggressive offense, the Terrors held Lycoming scoreless until well into the fourth period. At this point Lycoming scored its first goal of the day by tallying a penalty kick awarded on a judgment call. About one minute later, Lycoming scored a second goal to take the game 2-1.

Injured Goal Post
This game was one of the Lycoming game when play was stopped for about ten minutes to repair the opposing goal which was pulled down by Lycoming's goalie in an attempt to stop a Terror shot. It appeared that the goal—already weakened when struck by a ball kicked by Irowland Greitz—should have been hospitalized, as it was repaired not with nails, but with adhesive tape.

Derasse Scores
Loyola of Baltimore was the object of our rejection when it came to Westminster to convert a few shots into goals.

This game was one of the kind that makes a sport a western and sportsman, sportsman. Western Maryland truly played an inspired game, as it has done at Loyola but lost by the same score 2-1. Ironically, this was again a penalty shot which made the difference between a tie with overtime play and defeat with no recourse at all. The single Terror tally was scored by the tricky Frenchman, Alan Derasse.

Sweet Victory

Last Saturday, the boosters returned to Pennsylvania to propel the spheroid toward the goal of Franklin and Marshall. This was one of those days when everything worked as it should have worked several times before. Our team looked as good on the field as it has looked on paper. While Helen Curley Brown recently stated that it had taken her forty years to get moving, it took Scott Joyner only fifteen minutes and fifty-seven seconds. That much time had passed when Scott scored his first goal. Again in the third and fourth quarters, our fine young colleague, Mr. Joyner, hit his mark, bringing his game total to three. Bill Spangler lead the game in assists with two. As Rick Coburn and John Daily combined with seventeen saves and one save respectively, Franklin and Marshall was held to one goal. WMC won their first game by a score of 5-1.

Coburn Alert

This past Tuesday, on a rain-soaked patch of earth in Baltimore, the Terrors played Johns Hopkins University. This was the last league game of the season and also the last outing for the Terrors players, Roger Adler, Rowland Greitz, Scott Joyner, Bill Spangler, and Lanny Harchenhorn. Hopkins, suffering from defeat at the hands of Drexel and evidently well versed on the traditional rivalry between our two colleges, was really "up" for this one. Though Western Maryland put up a noble battle, the Blue Jays appeared to be just a bit more equal and won 3-0. Rick Coburn made several fantastic saves in Drexel's end and may start endorsing products any day now. Just think, Rick Coburn selling Mary Sue Easter Eggs during his Tastybreak. In all seriousness Johns Hopkins was the faster ball club.

With the season over the team would like to express appreciation to the student body for its increasing attendance at games and its interest in the national sport of over one hundred nations.

Two football managers, Bob and Scott should be commended for the real hustle they displayed during the football season. One of our coaches once said that a good manager is as valuable to a team as an assistant coach—only that the manager is on the scene working with the players.

Red Devils Triumph

Two Saturdays ago, the Dickinson Red Devils handed WMC its worst defeat in five weeks 41-0. Performing with one of the most effective passing attacks ever seen at Hoffa Field Dickinson scored three touchdowns in the first half. The Green Terrors moved inside of the twenty yard line on three occasions but failed to hit pay dirt. Dickinson ends the Middle Atlantic Conference in passing and total team defense. It was during this game that Jerry Borgs playing out of the quarterback slot, was injured. Jerry will not see action again until 1966. Borga may one day prove to be a Western Maryland great—an easy or a typical achievement.

The Drexel Heartbreak

The Drexel story is difficult to tell. The events of the last four minutes stunned the coaches, the players and the spectators. Coach Jones' boys played their best game since the opener against Wagner and led 7-0 with four minutes remaining. The Terrors had scored in the first quarter on a one yard scamper by fullback J. J. (Skipper) White. Paul McClintock faithfully kicked the extra point. The defensive unit played out Drexel backs again and again while the press box crew was awed by the perseverance and timely punts of John Trainor's boys. For the first time this season, a quarterback, Barry Ellenberger, was handling the offensive unit with authority.

The crucial mistakes turned the tide!

A penalty, a fumble and a crazy pass-play washed away what appeared to be certain victory. From their own 30 yard line, trailing 7-6, the Drexel backfield executed a double reverse pass to an open man who raced off toward the beckoning goal posts. In one of the most spectacular individual-stunt-out efforts of the year, Steve Blum chased and caught Drexel Dragon with a desperate shoe string tackle on the 4 yard line. Drexel, however scored on the next series by back Bruce Knowles and quarterback Grayson Winterling.

When the whistle blows at Johns Hopkins to open the 42nd classic between the two schools, Bill Kohan will play with the familiarity of "Gooe-GET-UM!" and the Terrors will do just that!

Sound of the Roundball Frosh Challenge Veterans

by Mike Herr
As the cool breezes become the cold winds and the smell of autumn is replaced by the chill of winter, the average bleacher-sitter thinks of the indoors and basketball. They have a lot to look forward to this year.

Freshmen Show Promise

A fine group of freshmen have joined last year's JV and varsity squads to form a fast, exciting team. Graduation has claimed five of last year's leaders. Gone from the squad that compiled a 14-8 record last season are Tony Magnozzi, Ron Shirey, Stan Akover, Jim Shaw, and Sam Leishure. Sam, who was the Terror playmaker last season, is fine assuming the lead coach Dick Clower. Jim Shaw filled the other guard position.

Strong Nucleus

Three of last year's starters, Skip Shear, Rich Eigen and Ralph Wilson, will form the nucleus of a team that hopes to improve upon its fine showing of the 1964-1965 season. Skip, the leading scorer a year ago, is also a fine rebounder and playmaker. He will be a vital cog in this year's attack. Rich, the lone senior on the squad, missed several games last year because of a chronic illness. But when he was playing his presence was felt by way of his soft and accurate touch. Big Ralph Wilson broke into the starting lineup as a freshman and promptly led the team in rebounding and free throw percentage. Ralph has grown and will be tougher than last year. The Roundballers clash with the alumni tonight in Gill Gymnasium. The old timers are still agile enough to burn the nose so get to the game and make some sounds. Also, don't be afraid to do the cheers at the Hopkins game. The alumni and cheerleaders are willing to get out front and hustle, the least we can do is make some noise.

Hockey Season Ends

by Linda Sullivan

On Thursday, November 4th, WMC's hockey team took on Goucher College for its final game of the season. Playing on Goucher's huge home field, WMC found it difficult to get started. From the opening bell, Goucher was constantly on the offensive, and applying constant pressure on WMC's halfbacks and fullbacks. WMC's good hustling led Goucher to one point during the first half. The size of the field and the strength of Goucher's center forward in particular, took their toll, and the game's final score was 4-0. Thus ended the 1965 hockey season for WMC and now attention focuses on basketball.

At the 6 pm meal, entertainment will be provided by the waiters, waitresses, and the Trumpeters. There will be selected Christmas readings and music, and carols for everyone's participation.

Sunday Dress Required

The Trumpeters are Louise Nelson, Diane Bennenkaemper, Linda Spear, Joyce Magnotto, Kay Coleman, and Sue Jacobs.

Following the banquet, a Christmas Communion will be held in Baker Memorial Chapel. Sunday dress is required.

Dorm Party Entertains Girls

The annual McDaniel-Blanche Ward Dorm party will be held on Thursday, December 16 at 11 pm in McDaniel Lounge. The freshman girls of both dorms will provide entertainment with original skits and songs, and Santa Claus will appear to give out gifts. Refreshments will be provided by the sophomore girls.

On Sunday, December 12, the McDaniel girls will decorate their tree with original Christmas balls and will sing carols. The Blanche Ward freshman girls will be responsible for decorating their tree.

Juniors Elect Hearn, Psaris; Aloha Plans Centennial Format

Robert Hearn was elected Editor-in-Chief of the Aloha for 1966-67. He plans to initiate a new idea in Aloha editing next year. Starting early in 1966 Bob will work closely with the year's staff to learn the problems of editing a yearbook and hopes to gain experience from this.

By working with this year's editor, Sandra Callander, Bob plans to study the business of planning a format, meeting deadlines, and of organizing the many committees under him.

Theme Is Centennial

1966-67 will be the centennial year for Western Maryland and Bob hopes to work like format of the Aloha around this theme.

He has expressed hope of enthusiastic support from WMC's graduating class.

Bob, a political science-education major from Willards, Maryland, is presently serving as the SGA parliamentary and served as manager for the football team.

Psaris Serves as Manager

The junior class elected Mike Psaris, a political science major from Baltimore, as Business Manager. He also plans to work closely with this year's Aloha staff.

The new editors plan to choose their staff during the coming summer.

The Class of '69 plans to decorate the Grille in a Yule-tide fashion this Christmas. William Dunlevy, president, expressed hopes that the class may do some Christmas caroling and hold a Snow Carnival this season.

A fund raising idea proposed by the freshman boys is that the girls should clean up the boys' rooms for a modest fee.

Magazine Editor "Digs" Dissent

Carey McWilliams, editor of The Nation, magazine of dissent, will speak at 11:30 am Monday, December 13. His topic will be "The Need for Dissent in American Society."

The country's oldest journal of opinion, The Nation, celebrated its centennial in July. The New York Times called the magazine contentious and iconoclastic and Mr. McWilliams referred to it as "unique, unpretentious and preposterous" when discussing the 100th anniversary.

The speaker was born in Colorado and graduated from the University of Southern California with a law degree in 1927. Mr. McWilliams practices law until 1938 when he became commissioner of Immigration and housing in California. Twice awarded Guggenheim Fellowships, he has been on the staff of The Nation since 1945, becoming associate editor in 1951, editorial assistant a year later, and assuming his present post as editor in 1955.

Writes Controversially
Mr. McWilliams has devoted many years to the study of controversial issues. He is the author of a dozen books, half of them on critically important social questions. Brothers Under the Skin, devoted to this country's racial and ethnic minorities, has been translated into several languages. A Mask for Privilege deals with anti-Semitism in the United States. Other books include Prejudices, Forces in the Field, and Part of the Land, the latter two dealing with migratory farm labor and mechanized agriculture.

PLAYBOY College Bureau Initiates Survey

Playboy College Bureau has instituted a series of monthly campus opinion surveys. Through a network of student representatives, the bureau intends to provide a sounding board of campus opinion on all issues of vital importance and interest today. The surveys reflect the attitudes of both students and faculty members.

This first survey covers 225 campuses, both large and small. The results have been drawn from the responses of approximately 1,100 students from all classes, ages, and backgrounds.

160 faculty members, representing a wide variety of educational fields, have participated. The results of the first Playboy survey area follows:

A majority of U. S. college students believe that if there is no negotiated settlement in Vietnam before the end of this year, the United States should push the war into North Vietnam.

An even larger percentage of students believe we should extend bombing raids to vital installations in Hanoi and other Vietnamese cities. The survey, which measures opinions of both students and faculty members, finds that the majority of faculty members polled do not take this "aggressive" attitude and believe that the military actions should be confined to South Vietnam only.

Believe in Obligation
While many officials have stated that the recent public demonstration against this nation's involvement in Vietnam are representative of an "infinitesimal" number of college students, the college students and faculty members polled estimated that they reflect the attitude of approximately 5 percent of the students on their campuses. The students and faculty, however, make it clear that they overwhelmingly believe that Americans are obligated to serve in the nation's armed forces, even if they are in disagreement with their government's policies.

90 percent of students—82 percent of faculty—felt that use of non-toxic tear gas is justifiable as a means of disabling the Viet Cong without endangering the lives of civilians.

Students, Faculty Respond
The Playboy College Opinion Survey is based on responses from a representative sample of approximately 1000 students from all classes, ages, and backgrounds, who serve as a permanent "focus" for the survey on questions of current interest. Another permanent panel of 200 faculty members—one representative of each campus—comprising a wide variety of educational fields have been polled. The survey also reflects opinions from campuses on a national basis—in the East, Midwest, South, Southwest, and West.

Analysis of returns on a regional basis indicates a high degree of uniformity of opinion. Noticeable exceptions occur on the question of "Should we avoid bombing military installations in populous areas of North Vietnam, such as Hanoi?" While 67 percent of all student respondents favor bombing these areas, 82 percent of students on southwestern campuses advocate bombing but only 49 percent of students on southern campuses concur.

The next issue of the GOLD BUG will feature the selection of seniors to be listed in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." Don't miss it!

Santa Claus Hosts Annual Xmas Dance

"Blue Christmas," the 1965 Christmas Dance, is being presented by Alpha Gamma Tau on December 11, 1965, from 8:00 pm to 12:00 pm. The Froctorey, a ten-piece band which has had engagements for Baltimore high school and college dances, will offer the "finest in the modern rhythm and blues style."

Tickets Are $2.50
Tickets are on sale for $2.50 per couple and party dress will be worn. The Bachelors will decorate Blanche Ward Gym with outdoor snow scenes.

James Hook heads the general dance committee and the sub-committees are under the direction of Paul Benke, ticket sales; Earl Miller, decoration; Steven Blum, refreshments; John Emens, publicity; Michael Ward, tables; Carroll Yingling, clean-up; and Michael Schlee, band. Patricia Anderson is assisting the decoration committee. Faculty sponsors for the affair are Mr. James Lightner, Dr. Wanner, and Dr. and Mrs. Witherspoon.

During the evening Santa Claus is scheduled to arrive in time to lead the "hitch-hike" line. He will bring candy, cookies, potato chips, pretzels, and cider for the guests.

"We are breaking with the Western Maryland tradition of a formal Christmas dance," Jim Hook explains, "by having a rock and roll band, and by adding a rather informal party atmosphere. We hope that by doing this, and by keeping the price to a minimum, more people will be able to attend."

Col. Anderson Earns Vietnamese Cross

Cited for Gallantry

During a colorful military ceremony at the Vietnamese II Corps Tactical Zone Headquarters located in the central highlands city of Pleiku, the Corps commanding general, Brigadier General Vinh Loc, presented Col. Anderson with the Vietnamese Gallantry Cross with Gold Star. The Government of the Republic of Vietnam gave the award to the American military advisor who had participated in the critical monsoon season military operations. The combined GVN/US operations have resulted in numerous victories for the Vietnamese government and have decreased the land areas dominated by Viet Cong influence.

Serves as Advisor

Col. Anderson, who was professor of military science at Western Maryland from 1960-1964, is senior intelligence advisor to the Vietnamese II Corps. His wife Shirley and three children are now living in El Paso, Texas.

Pressure Makes Progress

Western Maryland College—in ten years we will look back at our four-year interim here as a period of idyllic, untroubled bliss. But what is our motto at present? BLAH!!!

We have rallied against the lack of a railing from the chapel to the grille. We have burned Mr. Rice in effigy for neglecting to serve us steak and crepe suzettes. Fraternity has banded together against fraternity in each one's fight for supremacy. We have ridiculed the SGA as a playpen for would-be bureaucrats. We have labeled our administration as backward and our faculty as oppressive.

Now, have we ever said anything complimentary? We are attending a small, liberal arts college—one in which we are more than just a number in a large lecture room. For the most part, our faculty consists of well-informed, active individuals. On how many other campuses would you find professors working out in the gym with the boys, doing the frug at a fraternity party, or working on the art staff of a student magazine? These people really care, about the campus and the students. They are really alive, to the issues and the pleasures of the day. We also have faculty members who are published authors and scholars in their field. These people are exciting thinkers and individualists.

But a good faculty alone does not make a good college. There are innumerable opportunities for cultural advancement offered by independent groups. The IRC introduces speakers well known in the political field, the Art Department brings us exhibits from well-known sculptors and artists, and so on.

In other words, this campus is not the cemetery we like to call it. It can have an enlightening and stimulating atmosphere, if we let it. There are many problem areas—from construction to instruction. Through constant pressure from us, as students, and the administration, these will be solved in time. It is partly up to us to see that the time is not a long one. But, there are also many opportunities to be thankful for. In all our protests and criticisms, let us not forget to appreciate our advantages. We have the chance to enjoy them. LMS

David Laments Passing of Dean Howers: "We Will Not See Her Likes Again"

by William M. David, Jr.

Dean Howers's death came to me, as to everyone else who has known her, as an unbelievable shock. I considered her as the dominant part of Western Maryland and an indelible part of that. It is impossible for me to think of the College without her.

I had the privilege of working with her for many years of complete harmony during which we weathered many a crisis together. Our most serious disagreements, if I recall correctly, were over the number of hours during which women could visit in the men's dormitories. It was weekends and the relative number of men and women who "ought to be" nominated to "Who's Who" in certain years. Perhaps only one who has had to work as closely with someone for as long a time as I did with Helen Howers can fully appreciate the friendship, the humor, and the firm support which she gave me as I performed my administrative and editorial duties. I have reason to be grateful in particular for her material help to me in the completion of my dissertation.

Dean Howers was not noted, I believe, for the complete efficiency with which she conducted her deans activities. Her weakness in organization, her articles, grew out of the same personality as all the generous human qualities she expressed. She was patient beyond normal human endurance. Her work was characterized by an unerring and uncompromising sense of honor and integrity. When things were difficult, as when the "phantom" roamed the campus, she did not panic. She took no delight in penalizing students. While she was dean many punitive procedures were changed. For example, she looked upon excessive absence from class not as a punishable offense but as an indication of possible need for counseling. She approached emotional problems with understanding, a desire to see constructive steps taken to deal with the underlying difficulties.

A sensitive person, she was not hastily hurt in some ways to enjoy the greatest piece of mind in a position where sometimes a thick skin is beneficial. However, her very sensitivity made

Dean Howers Leaves A Full, Rich Legacy; Spent Lifetime Advising, Helping Others

In Memoriam: Dean Helen Gray Howers, 1914-1965. Just 51 years. But in those 51 years she did more living than most people could do in twice that time. It takes a person with a rare and genuine love of life to be able to live as fully as she did. And it takes a person of even more rare genius to instill into others her love and fervor for life and for everything that makes it worthwhile, including, of course, her beloved English literature.

Born in Riner, Virginia, Dean Howers grew up in a family atmosphere of service to others. Her father was a doctor and literally gave his life to helping people, even to the point of taking girls into his home and caring for them along with his own daughters. Such an influence undoubtedly did much toward establishing her own dedication to those same ideals. Her undergraduate work at Radford College and in graduate study at Columbia University, Helen Howers distinguished herself as a student.

She made consistently high grades and also found the time to take many courses which were not required, including a great deal of personal counseling courses.

Came to WMC in 1947. After completing college she taught briefly in high schools in Virginia and from 1945-1947 at Western Michigan University. In 1947 she came to Western Maryland College and in the following year, became Dean of Women. She was rather hesitant in accepting the latter position, and Dr. Haskell

Somebody Up There?

Society and the Homosexual: Who Offends Whom?

Our legal and religious attitudes toward homosexuality are antiquated and unreasonable, not to add, untherapeutic. The reaction to a homosexual is often one of savage ridicule and cruel emotion. He is often treated as a social outcast, his employment is in jeopardy, and he can create a first-class scandal when exposed. (Do you remember the accusations made by Senator Joseph McCarthy in the early fifties and the more recent scandal of the Johnson administration?)

Is It Really Criminal? Both the Christian west and the Anglo-Saxon law helped foster and are heirs of the idea expressed in the time of Henry VIII that this type of sexual activity is "the abominable and detestable crime against nature." It is worthy of note that murder, rape, and marital prostitution do not rate such a loaded charge.

It is also instructive that one may die insane from a guilty deed of murder and receive, understandably, a modified sentence. On the other hand, one may be sentenced to prison almost automatically for committing a homosexual act — without the corollary realizing the basic psychological disturbance underlying homosexuality.

Is Far-Reaching Problem Homosexuality has been with us from the beginning of man's existence. From Sodom (the Biblical precedent for Christian abhorrence of it) to Socrates and Michelangelo (both acknowledged homosexuals) it is appreciably more widespread in our society than is generally believed. Dr. Kinsey, America's sexual authority on things sexual, concluded that about four per cent of the male population was irrevocably homosexual and that thirty-seven per cent had some form of homosexual experience during their lifetime. How many of us better understand this deviation? First of all, the world cannot be divided up into two mutually exclusive camps—the heterosexual and the homosexual. There is latent homosexuality in most predominantly heterosexual people and most homosexuals share certain elements of heterosexuality. It is hardly ever an either-or phenomenon. It exists in degrees and the latent tendency may never become overt. However, whenever one sex is grouped together, i.e., prisons, armies, and dormitories, this latency may become manifest.

Are We Afraid of Solvers? Dr. Winfred Overholser, emeritus professor of psychology at George Washington University, makes the penetrating observation that the extreme fear about the possibility of homosexuality in our laws and mores may stem from the homosexual tendency in most of us, though it is rigidly repressed. Fearing these repressed impulses, we castigate the offender.

Secondly, most psychiatrists agree that a person can be no more than the color of his eyes. Physically, it may be the result of an imbalance of the ductless glands, so that one has a higher output of the estrogens of the opposite sex than is normal. Psychologically, compulsive homosexuality "is a symptom of a severe personality disorder, involving arrested psychosexual development in infancy." (Dr. Walter Stokes).

We Should Alter Old Laws A person can be told, therefore, that an isolated homosexual act and pre-marital marriage do not, in fact, make him "queer" and that, on a deeper level, his practicing homosexuality is not sinful and criminal.

It is for these reasons that our laws should be altered along the lines suggested by the Wolfenden committee in England. The homosexual should be given a chance for therapy at the hands of doctors, not incarceration at the hands of judges. Sound by medical laws.

Dr. Whipples: "We are agreed about one thing—nobody likes the Viet Cong, nobody likes the Red Chinese, nobody likes the Communists." "We are not involved in an ideological war." "We are involved with mass murder." "Where do we get the oranges to go in their country and say 'We will run your country for you?'"

Dr. Pric: "If Viet Nam should fall, the first shot would be fired." "We all know that war is hell."

On December 4, 1965, the Student Opportunities Service will be represented at the Winter Forum on Appalachia to be held at Berea College, Berea, Kentucky. The program is being conducted by the Youth Commission of the Council of Southern Mountains, Inc. Those people planning to attend are Joan Dowell and Daniel Boht who are also serving as co-chairmen of the SOS Project Appalachia.

The one-day forum will feature "name" and "unknown" workers and speakers from Appalachian region. A three-lege as individuals. She was called upon for guidance in almost every situation imaginable, and she was always ready to lend a helping hand. Frequent was the invitation to her home for tea or waffles just because she enjoyed their company. As Dr. Deid observed,

"She was always happy when she was doing something for others. There was never any overwork to her where people were concerned."

She was Shakespeare Fan Second only to her dedication to people was Dean Howers's dedication to learning, which was evidenced in many ways. She was keenly interested in the interpretation of the characters of Shakespeare from a psychological and philosophical viewpoint. This interest in Shakespeare led her to England for several summers and an entire summer in year of study at the Shakespeare Institute in Stratford.

She loved to travel and it was an ambition some day to go to the Middle East to study the ancient culture, literature, and philosophy there. Philosophy, after literature, always held tremendous interest for Dean Howers.

A Time to Live—Hectically In addition to her duties as Associate Professor of English and Dean of Women, Dean Howers also found time to serve as advisor to the Women's Society, the Phi Kappa Psi and Freshman Advisory Council, and to deliver her annual "speech" to the freshman girls. She had been president of the Regional Association of Women Deans and Counselors; advisory member of the Phi Kappa Psi guidance service for high school students; a member of the American Association of University Women; Delta Kappa Gamma teaching sorority, and the National Council of Teachers of English.

OSU Alters Speaker Ban After months of protests and debate, the Board of Trustees of Ohio State University have altered their controversial speakers ban rule. A member of the ruling, all recognized OSU organizations will be able to invite the speakers they want to campus as long as their faculty advisor approves. Administrative approval of controversial speakers will no longer be necessary. Before revision, faculty speakers needed final authority on any invitation to speak on the campus with the university's president and foremost, faculty speakers unless they spoke in "the best and overall interest of the university."

The most vocal trustee who had long opposed any change on the ruling again voted against change. Former U. S. Sen. John Bricker charged that "Communists, Nazis and Fascists and members of other subversive organizations" do not have a right to express their views in the campus of a tax-supported university.

SOS Attends Conference; Appalachia Is Future Focus fold-objective is envisioned: (1) to provide an open area to foster a sharing of efforts in working in the region, (2) to stimulate participation through the exchange of actual experiences, and (3) to make available information on people, community structures, and specific local and government aids through the assistance of resource people.

It is the first time that SOS has planned a project for the Appalachian region. It is realized that there is a need for assistance on people, community structures, and specific local and government aids through the assistance of resource people.

Vietnam Is Topic of Fiery Debate: Teach-In Assails, Lauds US Policy

A "teach-in" on the war in Vietnam was held on Monday, November 29 at Western Maryland College. A large number of public were invited to attend. The "teach-in" was scheduled one day before a scheduled visit of Senator Joseph D. Tydings who discussed his recent visit to Vietnam at a student assembly the following morning.

Members of the College Faculty formed the panel with additional comment coming from the audience, which consisted of about 60 students and faculty members. Taking what has been labeled the "pro" side of the argument were Dr. William M. David, associate professor of political science; Dr. B. Pries, professor of economics; and Dean James E. Robinson, Jr., dean of men and assistant professor of psychology. The "con" arguments were presented by Dr. Miriam C. Whipples, assistant professor of music; Mr. Raymond C. Phillips, assistant professor of English; and Mr. Bella Gallo, assistant librarian. Dean David: "They deserve sympathy. They were born in a wrong place at the wrong time."

Mr. Phillips: "We are there to defend democracy. What democracy, ask in Viet Nam. There is no democracy right now." "Who is the paper tiger? Are we, or are they?"

Dean Robinson: "We are not in a stalemate." "We have to live with the situation of crisis after crisis."

Princeton Boys Omit WMC Women: Why Can't We Be Where The Action Is?

Those students who are avid Time and Newsweek readers probably are aware of Princeton undergraduates' "girl guide" which has stormed the East Coast and mocked Ivy League women. Goucher College was highly offended by the lampoon they got from these self-styled experts. Those who missed reading about this particular affront can consult one of the back issues of the Evening Star. We will not quote the "Guide" here because this article was not intended to review the literary merit (?) of this publication. After all, the Gold Bug has its pride; if the Dial Press (which sent us a circular which we are using as a basis for this article) wants advertisement in this paper it will have to pay for it.

Our Dial Press circular tells us that this harangue from the offices of the "Daily Princetonian" is selling wildly and widely. Hence Dial Press, being wise in the ways of publishing, has agreed to publish this monstrous work (remember, it omits WMC women) in hard-back form in time for the fall of 1966. Meantime Where the Girls Are: A Social Guide to Women's Colleges in the East. Baving it will perpetrate the myth that Ivy League Girls are worth more attention than those not of that status. Actually, 25 girls' schools are discussed, so in all fairness we can say they aren't ALL Ivy League, just most of them. The circular says "even central telephone numbers and campus maps are included to aid the questing college men." Oh, Brother. And we are further told that a revised edition due out soon will include "all major women's and co-educational universities in the country." Still no chance for WMC. Perhaps if WMC women petition the "Daily Princetonian" (a paper which is first next to ours in quantity of Audacity), we can get the attention we need and deserve.

Christmas Traditions Differ From Santa To Befana

Sliding down a mountain with a lighted torch in your hand . . . strewing hay on the floor of your home . . . knocking on a neighbor's door in a symbolic pilgrimage—these are some of the ways you might find yourself celebrating Christmas in other parts of the world.

Just about every country which celebrates Christmas has its unique bit of seasonal folklore or ritual. In Sweden, it's the feast of St. Lucia on December 13, ushering in the Christmas season. Each community chooses a lovely Lucia (Queen to represent) for her religion centuries before in ancient Rome. In families with daughters, the prettiest plays the role of Lucia. Her "privileges": to wait on everyone else for the day!

But even the standard holiday features—Christmas dinner, Christmas presents and Yuletide decorations—have picturesque local variations. Not only does Santa have numerous aliases (the "Julenissen" in Denmark, Pere Noel in France, the Abbot of Unreason in Scotland), but in Italy he is a she. Italian kids place their trust in Befana, an old woman on a broomstick who brings gifts to good children and ashes to the bad ones. (In older versions of the legend, she ate the juvenile delinquents.)

"Deck the halls with boughs of holly" is a traditional refrain in English and American homes, but in Spain and Italy, householders decorate with flowers instead of evergreens at Christmas time. The Christmas tree, popular throughout the United States and Northern Europe, is relatively rare in Southern Europe; the creche, or manger scene, usually replaces it. In Sicily, many families use Christmas trees, but they decorate them with apples and oranges instead of tinsel! This carries out an old tradition that all the trees bore fruit when Christ was born.

Perhaps the most unusual Christmas tradition of all is the one still adhered to by some Swiss romantics. These folk advise a boy or girl to visit nine different fountains and take three sips from each at the time the balls are ringing for midnight services on Christmas Eve.

Us, we'll take mistletoe.

Green Terror Cagers Run Against Nads

Clover Depends on Depth, Rebounds, Points and Hustle!

by Mike Herr
Tomorrow night in Gill gymnasium, the Green Terror cagers host rival Towson college in the first home basketball game of the 1965-66 season. It may prove to be the first of a long string of victories.

In recent weeks an excited feeling has spread among the basketball players. It is a feeling of extreme assurance. Confidence shines in every face; each player has confidence in himself and what is more important, in his teammates. Everybody believes that this is going to be a great season.

Head Coach Dick Clover supplied the reason for confidence. When asked about our prospects he said, "we have a great deal of potential. I think we're probably a little deeper than we've been for a great many years."

This is our greatest asset, depth. In his ninth year as head basketball coach, Dick Clover has plenty of talent to work with. It must be pointed out, however, that this talent is somewhat raw. There are only two seniors on the varsity squad, Richie Eigen and Jim Reck. There will probably not be an actual first string team this year. The five men who begin each game will be determined by the opponent, the style of game the basketballers decide to play and the overall hustle of each ball player.

The Green Terrorists will have more size than they've been accustomed to, with four men, Joe Smothers, Rick Coburn, Ralph Wilson, and Mike Krow standing 6'4" or taller. The rebounds should come in torrents.

Back from last year's varsity squad to help with the coaching is Sam Leishure. Sam has taken over the reigns of the J.V. team while studying for his Master's Degree in physical education. As an undergraduate Sam played four years of varsity basketball. In his senior year he co-captained the team. He was the playmaker and team leader; the Terrorists had no one more dependable than Sam. Now his abilities have been put to use as a coach and the JV's have attained improved under his patient guidance. They are awaiting the opening buzzer as eagerly as the varsity boys.

Skip Shear has dropped out of school and will not see action this year. Co-captains for the squad are senior Rich Eigen and sophomore Ralph Wilson.

When most nonathletic students think of WMC's coaching department, Coach Jones and a vague image of his staff comes to mind. One of the least known members of this staff is Sam Case, and Baltimore University.

While this year's team has more quantity than quality, there is a good nucleus of returning lettermen to build from. Three of the none varsity matmen back from last year's squad include: Gary Kunkel, who has been 3rd in the conference in his weight class for the last two years; King Hill, who was 4th in the conference in '64; and Bob Bayse, who was second in the conference in '64 but was out last year because of injuries.

Some freshmen prospects with good wrestling backgrounds in high school are Mike Simcock, King Hill, Rick Schmetzler, and Al Kempke.

The spirit is up among the combatants and they are training hard. Captain King Hill, who has no predictions as being made this year, after last year's 0-10 record, Sam has promised a team that's in shape and ready to hustle. Working with almost totally different personnel for the past three years has given him the experience and perspective to put together another winning season for the Green Terror grapplers.

An interesting highlight of this year for Sam was an early season encounter with the archrival Bluejays of Johns Hopkins who he coached so well last year. They were under the leadership of Dave Blizard, a former protege of Sam's here on the "Hill".

Harchenhorn Sums up Season: Reminds us of Professor Hurt

by Lanny Harchenhorn

With a final record of 1-8-1, the 1965 soccer season at Western Maryland cannot be called a success, at least in the normal sense of the term as it is applied to records of sports.

Pappy Said

However, when we look at the past season in relation to the place of sports in a liberal arts college—that the purpose of sports is to develop the body and to instill a proper mental attitude—then, this was indeed a very good year. Win or lose, Western Maryland was always out there giving it a good go, "playing the game." As Professor Frank Hurt would remind us, it is the spirit with which the game is played that remains—long after the final score is forgotten and even after the elements have taken over their share of the victory paper on which that score is written.

Big Three Finish

Some have raised a question as to an effect upon the 1966 Soccer Team of the graduation of linemen Scott Joyce, Bill Spangler, and Rowland Creitz, the threesome which has scored all but one of the total goals scored in 1965. However, since a soccer team is "an artificial being, existing only in contemplation of the league," the team will not dissolve and, as in the past, new members of our team will face new members of the opposition.

Bright Future

Indeed, the nucleus of the 1966 team already exists. With only five seniors on the 1965 squad of twenty-four men and assuming that all others will return in the fall, we can look forward to at least nineteen upperclassmen for next year. Add a few freshmen and things are looking up already—particularly if the freshmen are of the caliber of those who showed up in 1965.

Dailey Is Competent

When mentioning players who showed a marked increase in ability and depth this year, John Dailey must be included. John has been particularly competent in setting up the defense in response to signals from the goalie, Rick Coburn, and has shown a marked knack for inventing methods of stopping opposing shots and shooters. In soccer it is hard to shoot from the prone position.

Helping Dailey in the full-back division has been a freshman, Steve Sartorius, who has made tremendous strides this year and will no doubt be even better next year. Nibali on Defense

Ken Nibali, in his first year on the varsity and with previous experience to good use. Always a top defensive halfback, Ken has shown an increasing awareness of where the opposition's goal is located and more than likely will move in that direction in the coming seasons.

Particularly impressive in his last time out, Al Kempke is well on his way to becoming a full-time member of the starting team.

Other freshmen include Fred Schroeder, a substitute wing; Peter Kinner, an improving halfback; Mike Simcock, a guy with points and collaboration; and Howard Bond, who is a player of much interest.

A sophomore making great strides this year is Ed Speth. Entirely by his own determination and never ceasing effort, Bob has developed from an obsolete freshman to a starting lineman in one year, and has not reached his potential.

Derasse Delivered

Alain Derasse, our continental kit, proves to be anything but a spare tire this season; in fact, he single-footedly scored one tenth of the total Terror points and collaborated in eight goals. He has done his job well.

Perhaps the entire soccer team has done its job well when it comes to goals scored. It is considered. If played at major colleges where soccer is the fall sport, and it has played much longer colleges that have the manpower to supply a higher skilled players to many fall sports. The Terrorists have "played the game." Above all, let us remember that this is the year when the first interscholastic activity took place between Western Maryland College and Morgan State University. The date was October 2, 1965 when the Soccer Terrorists played a pre-season scrimmage with Morgan State in Baltimore.

John Trainor Selected Little All-American

by Dave Carrasco

Defensive linebacker, John "Pirate" Trainor (last week's Sportlight special) has been selected to the 1965 Little All-American football team.

The 170 pound leatherneck was selected to the Honorable Mention squad and is the sole Western Maryland gridman chosen on a national team. The last issue of the Gold Bug described Trainor as "respected as one of the meanest and smartest center-linebackers in the league as evidenced by his selection to the All-Maryland and Mason-Dixon teams in both 1963 and 1964. While calling the defensive signals, John was Western Maryland's Defensive Lineman of the year in '64."

John was quick, hardnosed and aggressive. His finest trait, however, was the quality of his defensive thinking. He possessed an uncanny and alert manner of diagnosing the opposition's plays and this season was chosen as defensive lineman of the week. During the football trips, he was constantly studying the play book to maintain his sharp and accurate reaction traits. He always had respect for his opponents but he never displayed fear of them. We congratulate John Trainor, a tough, good, intelligent football player for his Little All-American selection.

Technicality Trips Raiders Wohl Zeros in on Lehigh

by Bob Cartwright

The college rifle team, after getting off to a fine start by defeating Loyola of Baltimore, has fallen on hard times. On November 19th, Wohl's Raiders took 1-0 on the chin at Gettysburg 1221 to 1207.

More recently, the Raiders shot a tie match at George Washington 1327 up. However, through a technicality in the National Rifle Association rule book concerning tie matches, the Raiders were given the loss. The technicality calls for a comparison of the scores of the last two shooters and Coach Wohl's boys lost by two points.

The Raiders might have given a better account of themselves had they fired the customary three or four orders instead of only two. By the time the third order had finished it was evident that more than a few members of the team were unhappy about the manner in which the match was being run. Besides conducting a very noisy range, the G.W. coach found it necessary to call for innumerable cease-fires during the match in order to correct "unfavorable conditions." Since riflery is a sport which requires intense concentration it is not surprising that these actions proved to be somewhat disconcerting.

Wohl's Raiders will try to untrack the slump this Saturday here on the "Hill" against Lehigh.

Rick "J.J." White, the football team's defensive container, has been chosen to the All-Middle Atlantic Conference football team.

J.J., who has been one of WMC's offensive threats for the last three years, was switched to defense this past season where he tackled and stunted his way to all-star status.

WAA Acts

The Women's Athletic Association held a Sports Day in Blanche Ward gym on November 10. Twenty girls attended and participated in such activities as table tennis, trampolining and assorted gymnastics exercises. Another such event is scheduled for January.

On December 11th, W.A.A. is sponsoring a horseback riding event. The cost will be $1.50 per person and all enthusiasts are welcome to attend.

On November 30th, Badminton intramural starts and basketball practice will begin shortly. On January 10th, a ski film will be shown in library at 8 pm.

Highlights and Sidelights

by Ed Lovery

Congratulations to Paul McClintock, Rick White and John Trainor on being selected by the All-State team.

On Wednesday night, December 8, will be the annual football banquet. At this time the players will vote on the most valuable player and next year's team captains. Also the best defensive player and best blocking lineman will be announced. All letters, numerals, and special awards will not be presented until the Spring Sports banquet although they will be announced.

An interesting fact is that we will have more seniors graduating from the football team than there are freshmen on the football team.

The Middle Atlantic Conference held their meeting at Towson two weeks ago. At the meeting, Rider College was put on the University division and Delaware Valley was put in the Northern College division.

Looking ahead to next year's football season, we see that they will play the same teams except that Bridgewater will be substituted for Dickinson. Looking ahead to 1968 and 1969 we see that WMC will be playing such colleges as Juniata and Susquehanna.

Now that the winter sports are beginning to go into full swing, let us get out and support the wrestling and basketball teams.

A final reminder that all tickets for the basketball games at the Civic Center are now on sale at the gym for $1.00. Buy your tickets now because they have already returned to the Civic Center a week before the game.

Was the night before Towson

And up on the Hill Not a sportsfan was stirring The whole place was still.

The burden was hung—was the Princes and Cleopatra's In hopes that a victory Soon would be ours.

Then out of nowhere A sportswriter came A white bearded fat man of unknown name.

But that night 'er he vanished He remembered our game And having pondered a while Would ponder to exclaim,

"The team is ready And the time is right There'll be excitement for all And for all a good night!"

Bachelors Cop Crown

by Ralph Wilson

Intramural football, Western Maryland College style, has rounded out its 1965 twenty-two game schedule finding Alpha Gamma Tau's Bachelors and Gamma Chi one, defeated in eight games.

The AGT touch gridlers have captured the intramural crown during the past three years and during that stretch they have only been beaten once.

The Nads, the independent team in the league composed mostly of freshmen finished second place with a 5-1 record. Delta Pi Alpha and Gamma Beta Chi stood frozen in third place with identical 4-4 slates; the Black and Whites of Pi Alpha Alpha fraternity were 1-7 in fourth position and the Frosh eleven failed to break into the win column in six attempts.

The coveted inter-fraternity cup was also won by the Bachelors who undefeated in eight attempts. Delta Chi one and Gamma Beta Chi one again held equal records in tie 3-3, and Pi Alpha Alpha closed out at 0-6.

This year's intramural turf action saw a surprisingly great number of shutout games (15 out of 22). The biggest scoring effort of the year was turned in by the Preachers of Delta Pi Alpha when they routed the Frosh 58-0 on October 22. A Nading offensive attack topped Pi Alpha Alpha on October 29, 45-0.

In eight games, Alpha Gamma Tau won six shutouts including 46-0 and 45-0 romps over the Bays and Whites, 47-0 topping the Frosh, and 35-0 over Gamma Beta Chi. These efforts allowed only twelve points to be scored by the opposition in eight games while the Bachelors tallied 29 digits for an average of 29 points per game. Second place Nads allowed only 18 points and scored 178.

The same are now preparing for the basketball intramural action.

Apply For Summer Jobs Now! Positions Are Open In Europe

Summer job opportunities in Germany, Austria, Sweden, Denmark, Norway, Ireland, Switzerland, England, France, Italy, and Holland are open by the consent of the governments of these countries to American university students coming to Europe the next summer.

For some years students made their way across the Atlantic to take part in the actual life of the people of these countries. The success of this project has caused a great deal of enthusiastic interest and support both in America and Europe.

More Jobs Are Available
Every year, the program has been expanded to include many more students and jobs. Already, many students have made application for next summer jobs. American-European Student Service, (on a non-profitable basis) is offering these jobs to students for Germany, Scandinavia, England, Austria, Switzerland, France, Italy, and Spain. The jobs consist of forestry work, child care work (females only), farm work, hotel work (limited number available), construction work, and some other more qualified jobs requiring more specialized training.

The purpose of this program is to afford the student an opportunity to get into real living contact with the people and customs of Europe. In return for his work, the student will receive his room and board, plus a wage. However, students should keep in mind that they will be working on the European economy and wages will naturally be scaled accordingly. The working conditions (hours, safety, regulations, legal protection, work permits) will be strictly controlled by the labor ministries of the countries involved.

At the January meeting of the IRC, a graduate student at the Johns Hopkins School of Foreign Relations will speak on his summer's experience in Viet Nam. He will supplement his speech by showing slides. The president of the IRC, Miles Cole, urges all interested students to attend. Exact time and place where the meeting will be held will be announced later.

Dr. Joseph Hendren will present "Ballads and Ballad Men" on Thursday evening, January 6, at 8 pm in McDaniel Lounge. An authority on this art form, Dr. Hendren will be joined by a group of students in discussion and performance.

Dissent Has Its Place

Carey MacWilliams, editor of The Nation magazine spoke to approximately two hundred members of this campus last Monday on the place of dissent in American society. What better time for dissent than during the current Christmas season?

Every year we are deluged with more fat Santas on every street corner, more Christmas "sales," earlier decorations by civic groups to promote bulging pocketbooks for businessmen. Just think for a minute—how long has it been since you gave something to a friend—a friend—material or spiritual—rather than an expensive trinket during the current Christmas season?

Laurence Ferlinghetti expressed this rebellion against the growing spread of commercialism in his poem, Christ Climbed Down most eloquently:

*Christ climbed down
From his bare tree
This year
And ran away to where
There were no gilded Christmas trees
And no tinsel Christmas trees
And no tinofol Christmas trees
And no pink Christmas trees
And no gold Christmas trees
And no powderblue Christmas trees
With hanging electric candles
And even in an electric train
And clever relatives.*

Excerpt

Think on this small excerpt over the holidays. It's time to dissent against the tradesmen and businessmen who are taking over one of our most meaningful holidays. We need to put the sacred back into Christmas and take the X away.

By the Rivers of Babylon We Sat Down: Wolfson Protests Society's Decadence

After a year's solemn meditation the boy idealist left his mountain retreat. No longer so young or so idealistic he had aged several years in this one he emerged with truth on his lips, a task of sternness in his eyes and a holy light in his eyes. He returned along the road to the land of his fathers, the place of his birth, to celebrate the Day of Thanks.

He entered his homeland early on the Eve of the Feast of Thanks, only to find his people paying homage to the pagan in the Temple of the Almighty Dollar. He was grabbed on all sides by hands that were only palms. He was beaten and buffeted by the neon prophets and by the evangelists of the animated "transition" box. He found his beloved city occupied by the pop-up, in-out, upside-down crowd. The painted woman replaced by painted children ("It's not such a big deal all the kids in her class wear getting. But she's definitely not getting a "training bra" until her eleventh birthday"). The belated duties (The Cool Stools) riling the pathways in their two-wheeled chariots (a bicycle that burps—next year's model has optional training wheels). The pre-packaged youth speaking in tongueish sentences (mile-long mantras signifying nothing). He

No counsel could he find. Returning to his friends of old he found them still entrenched within that Howdy Doody world he had managed to escape. By the Rivers of . . . No sanctuary. He turned and was met by the Belch of the Pepsi Generating Tumbler which had concentrated stomach acid thrown in his face. Sat down and was made to Stand Up And Be Counted. Stood up and had to be put in the driver's seat. By the Rivers of Babylon we . . . A question "Why?", and no reply. No answer to a senseless war without a victor that could likely cost his life. No answer to a flaming body on the Pentagon steps. No answer to a masked coward in white sheets. No answer to a paraplegic place that gave up the use of his legs twenty-some years ago—And for what? So that it would happen again . . . and again . . . Was he a hero? Are you "Brave Boys" in Saigon heroes? The forty-eight villagers who died when American planes hit the wrong target (so sorry) . . . we sat . . .

Jingle Bell Crock

by Attili Clarbon

*(No tune of "Jingle Bells")
Dashing through the halls
Of Ward, MacLae, and Blanche
Santa and his sleigh
And all his reindeer prance.*

And oh! what a big surprise
Awaited him that day
The ladies took his deer
And the gentlemen took his sleigh!

Santa stood alone
And cried and cried and cried
He did not have a time to phone
For a low-down taxi ride.

Ohhh, Don't cry Santa, don't cry
Santa,
Easter's on its way
Hefner's coming with his bunnies
In his private sleigh!

Ohhh, This is cooler, this is cooler
Then dirty old reindeer
Santa's having lots of fun
Chugging Christmas cheer!

Floating off into the night
Santa gave a wave
"Have a merry Christmas (hic)
And remember to be suave!"

Ever Wonder About Christmas Traditions? Herein Are Answers to Holiday Questions

You decorate your home with holly and mistletoe . . . toast your friends with a Christmas martini . . . take for granted that Christmas was always celebrated on December 25 . . . and even if you're past believing in Santa Claus, expect to see him drawn walk about as jolly, bearded elf. But did you ever stop to think of why you do these things!

McKesson & Robbins, importers of Liguore Galliano, a popular and novel Christmas gift, has raised some fascinating questions about the holiday—and provided answers that should tell you a lot about Yuletide customs and traditions.

Kisses Me, You Fool!
1. How about your Christmas decorations: Know why we kiss under the mistletoe . . . who was first to use holly in December . . . what holly symbolizes to Christians . . . From which country the poinsettia came . . .

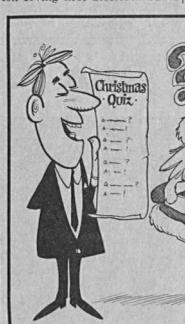

how the cherry tree figures in Yule lore?

Kissing under the mistletoe is said to have begun with the ancient Romans, who viewed the plant as a symbol of peace. Enemies, meeting under the mistletoe, were supposed to embrace and declare a truce. The Romans were also first to use holly—at their December Saturnalia festival. But Christians also find holly appropriate because they see in it the symbolism of Christ's blood (the red berries) and His crown of thorns. The poinsettia, another holiday bloom, came from Mexico. Joel Poinsett, first American Minister to Mexico, brought it here in 1826. The cherry tree according to the well-known "Cherry Tree Carol," bent its boughs so that the Virgin Mary could pluck its fruit.

Santa Has Long History
2. Which settlers brought Santa Claus to the New World, and which three men created today's popular image of Santa Claus (can you name his real-life prototype)?

The Dutch brought San Nicolaas (Sinter Klaas for short) to the New World; later his name became Americanized to that way. Santa's prototype, the real St. Nicholas, was a 4th century Turkish bishop who became a legend in his own lifetime for his generosity and his love of children.

Santa Claus. Author Washington Irving first described Santa

Here's to You!

3. How did the Christmas toast and wassail bowl begin? Both were started in the same gesture by the daughter of an early Germanic chieftain on a campaign in Britain. Offering toast and wassail bowl to her father's princely host, she said "Wass-hell," or "Here's to you!" The prince responded gallantly and they were soon married.

But the toast was first in the 17th century that people called a toast a toast. The term derived from a quaint English custom of floating a piece of toast in the drink to improve its flavor. A few years later they were soon married.

Somebody Up There?

"Religion": Real or Just Jargon?

by Dean Ira G. Zepp

Whatever meaning the word "religion" had gone. It is now a powerless and odious bit of jargon.

Bonhoeffer spoke of the need of a religionless Christianity. Tillich said that Jesus came to talk from us the burden of religion. Barth says that Christianity is not a religion and Malcolm Boyd prays, "Let me quit playing this blasphemous game of religion." All these have a precedent in St. Paul who once said to the Greeks in the presence of Athens: "I am implying that I be religious. Whatever morality, benevolence, churchmanship, and concern for people I now possess is an attempt to express my gratitude to God and responsibility for the world, not an attempt to bribe him for favors or to insure for me a place in heaven."

Let us resist the temptation to make Christianity into a religion. Christianity, said Tillich, "is not a new demand, a new doctrine, or a new set of morals, but rather a new reality, a new being, and a new power of transforming life."

What is "Religion?" By religion, I mean man's search for God, his yearning for a congenial necessity to placate the deity, his desire to order his life with God by laws and rules, and his tendency to divide up the world into sacred and secular.

The Christian is free from bondage to all of these basically religious motifs. Christmas has to do with Incarnation (a theological, not religious concept, mind you) i.e., God coming to man.

And Christmas stand forever as a judgment upon our normal and natural religious activity. For they point quite radically to the man and continues to do so. The center of gravity in the New Testament is a message about One "who came" or "was sent" by our struggling and seeking for God are reflections of God's prior and persistent search for us.

Is There Need to Sacrifice? Secondly, there is no more need for man to sacrifice to God in order to get right with him. This is probably the most primitive religious activity in which twentieth century man participates. How many "religious" people do you know who offer to God a moral life, church attendance, daily devo-tionary Turkish bishop who became a legend in his own lifetime for his generosity and his love of children.

High on the Hill

Bubbles, Bounces, Babble Make Bowden Campus Leader

Who do you know who speaks at 78 and drives at 33 1/3? Who do you know who teaches students older than she is? Who do you know who got two B's at Hopkins this summer? Who do you know that is on the front page of the GOLD BUG? It's last year's winner of the SCA unsung hero award—Ruthie Bowden.

Unsung is quite the appropriate word for Ruthie. Long known for her enthusiasm and highly regarded for her outgoing personality, Ruthie is quiet involved in the life of our campus. The fact that she is a Political Science-English-Education major illustrates her versatility and her ability to handle anything to which she puts her mind.

With "fortitude," spirit, and a definite attitude, Ruthie fills her positions in many campus organizations. Long an active member of Sigma Sigma Tau, Ruthie is now their social chairman. During her junior year, Ruthie served as secretary of the Student Government Association. This year she is chairman of that organization's Action Committee. A member of the Student Christian Association, Ruthie is editor of the SCA Newsletter.

Her interests are numerous and varied, and perhaps her most sincere interest is people. A member of the SOS team—Venture Puerto Rico—Ruthie went to the city of Castene last summer. Having been accepted for Peace Corps training, she hopes to incorporate this into her future.

It will be hard to imagine the WMC campus when it is Ruthless. For her understanding and spirit, for all her valuable assets, this is dedicated to Ruthie Bowden—high on the hill.

At the annual football banquet, the co-captains for the 1966 Green Terrors were chosen. They are Jay Sybert and Mike Beach.

Paul McClintock was elected as the best blocking lineman and Rick J. J. White was voted the most valuable player. John Trainor, WMC's little All-American, who had accumulated 238 points for his defensive play received the defensive lineman of the year award. This is the first time in the history of the school that any player has ever received this award twice. All awards will be presented at the Spring All-Sports Banquet.

Cagers Strive to Retaliate Defense Must Stop Teachers

by Dave Carrasco

Tonight, at Baltimore's spacious Civic Center, the Green Terror roundballers challenge rival Towson College in the first game of a double-header basketball night. The Clowermen play at 7:30 before Mount St. Mary's hosts national college division champion Evansville College. This is Western Maryland in the BIG TIME.

The cagemen travel to the 12,000 seat stadium with a 2-2 record having defeated Washington College and Baltimore University while losing to Franklin and Marshall as well as tonight's opponent, Towson.

Triumph in Opener

In Chestertown, Coach Clower's boys played what he says is "always a tough ball game" and won in overtime 113-96. Senior co-captain Ritchie Eigen, "doing the thing he does best" scored 27 points, 10 of which came in the overtime period. Sophomore guard Gary Fass scored 23 points to prove his own capability at the backcourt position.

Towson on Fire

The Towson Teachers invaded Gill gymnasium to burn the nets right off the structures and defeat our squad 103-95. From the beginning it was the "sound of swish" and it continued right on to the very end. The Towson boys shot a frightening 52% from the floor. Dave Possinger, Maceo Dailey and Tim Casey scored 33, 31, 22 points respectively and will be the big threats tonight.

One bright spot for the Terrors was Ralph Wilson whose 25 points and constant hustle and aggressiveness pressed the Towson big men. Shooter Eigen again connected for 23 points. Western Maryland played a fine offensive game but Towson played way over its head.

First half blues tripped up the cagers at Franklin & Marshall where they lost 82-77. After trailing by as much as 18 points, the squad led by freshman guard Larry Suder rallied back only to lose by 5 in the closing minutes. It was at P&M that the Terror defense hit its lowest point and it proved to be costly.

Last Friday night against Baltimore University's Bees, the roundballers displayed moments of precision and fine basketball. Outshooting the visitors at the foul line 39-17, we won 93-79. It seemed as though the squad could have completely broken away from BU but lost balls and lags in defensive play hindered a rout. The two Cumberland boys, Suder and Wilson led their teammates to its second victory. Larry fired in 24 points while scoring on a variety of skillful maneuvers and Wilson's aggressiveness in and around the key made the evening a big one for WMC fans. Mike Kroe's rugged board work and Joe Smothers' timely "leaps" kept the Terrors in possession of the ball.

Clower Respects Towson

In looking toward tonight's contest Coach Clower expressed respect for the Teachers' shooting ability.

Unique Rank at WMC

A new member of the ROTC staff, Sergeant Major G. K. Lancaster, holds a rank which is limited to a select few. The duties of the Sergeant Major are long standing, but the great responsibility was recognized only recently by the formation of the new rank classification. In 1958, Congress established this rank and limited it to only 3,500 men. The Sergeant Major is the senior enlisted man of the Battalion. He has the duties of advisor to the Commanding Officer on matters which concern enlisted personnel and also acts as a direct channel for suggestions from the enlisted men. Sgt. Major Lancaster served overseas duty in Korea, Japan, and Germany before being rotated to his ROTC assignment at Western Maryland. He was awarded his present rank in 1961 and as such has served as the Chief Operations Sergeant. Western Maryland is fortunate to have such an outstanding man to further strengthen the ROTC Department.

Van Dykes Provide Sound Murphy Reigns at Cupidity

Delta Pi Alpha fraternity will continue its "tradition of uniqueness" by presenting "Cupidity" free of charge to all students at Western Maryland. The annual Sweetheart Dance will feature the renowned Van Dykes, an eight piece band famous throughout the state of Maryland. "Cupidity" will be held in Gill Gymnasium from 8 to 12 p.m. Dress will be semi-formal; there will be a $2 charge for couples outside of the college community.

Dykes Are Nationally Known
The Van Dykes have had a long history of success. Many will remember their recordings of "Stupidity" and "King of Fools" on the Atlantic label, the label of the Drifters and Ray Charles. The group has recently recorded "No Man Is An Island," a best seller throughout the nation, on the same label. The Van Dykes have played at colleges and universities throughout the eastern United States, but this will be their first visit to WMC.

Court of "Sweethearts"
A highlight of the evening will be the coronation of Preacher Sweetheart Elizabeth Murphy as queen of the dances. Betsy, who is engaged to Karl Schuele '65, a Delta Pi Alpha alumnus, is an English major from Towson. She is captain of the pom-pom squad, a FAC member, first semester vice-president of Phi Alpha Mu sorority, co-editor of the Phi Alpha Mu Torch, and past co-news editor of the GOLD BUG. Betsy will be attended by a College Players Act "In Pantomime"

February 5, 6, 7, and 8, The College Players will present Quiet Carnival: An Evening in Pantomime. Under the direction of Mr. Jerry Solomon, the Players will perform a series of sketches based upon the use of pantomime as theatrical communication. Mr. Solomon stated that "pantomime is a valid, worthwhile form of entertainment that has been largely neglected in the United States." He plans to illustrate how pantomime communicates the importance of gesture and movement in creating imaginary visual effects.

Samuel Beckett's Act Without Words II is one of the more serious sketches included in the program. The cast for these performances includes Caroline Koeber, Linda Sullivan, Suzanne Pratt, Caroline Seaman, Karen Criss, Martha DeHaven, Patricia McNally, Ann Schwartzman, and Timothy Hart. Also appearing in the production are William Bond, Robert Julia, Richard Burris, Lawrence Dorsey, Thomas Stanton, Larry Eisenberg, and William Thompson.

The program will be presented in the rehearsal room of Alumni Hall. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. Tickets are $7.50 and may be purchased at the door and seating is limited to 75 people per performance.

Student Government Associations Hold Maryland Conference at WMC

Western Maryland's SGA representatives will be attending a convention scheduled for March 11 and 12, here on the Hill. The purpose of the convention is to organize a state student government association, to ratify a constitution, and to elect officers.

The plans of the state association would be to develop closer relations among the member colleges to the principle of equal rights and student responsibilities. It would also bring about intrastate cooperation to solve problems of academic, social, cultural, and humanitarian character, regardless of sex, race, or religion.

Definite plans for the development of the association came from a dual conference at Frostburg, between Western Maryland College and Frostburg College. Representatives from Frostburg, Salisbury, and WMC drafted a tentative constitution over Christmas vacation at Daniel McCree's, president of the SGA's student government home in Wheaton. The student government will send copies of the new constitution to all the colleges for suggestions prior to the March convention.

Representatives from all four-year Maryland colleges and universities will attend the convention which begins Friday night, March 11, and ends Saturday, March 12. Friday's agenda includes registration, dinner, a key-note speaker, and entertainment. The activities for Saturday include a general assembly, committee meetings, lunch, and finally, ratification of the constitution and election of officers.

Western Maryland's representatives are Harry Durity, Robert Hearn, and Daniel McCree.

Dr. Henry Bugbee Lectures at Alumni

Dr. Henry G. Bugbee, Jr., philosopher, will be in McDaniel lounge 715 G February 14, and in Alumni Hall on February 15. He will give a public lecture on "Themes of Oriental Thought" and other topics in classes or informal meetings.

He attended Princeton University and was graduated with a major in philosophy in 1934. He did graduate study in philosophy at the University of California in Berkeley where he received a Ph.D. in 1937. He has a teaching career of three years and James Suttro Fellow for one year; he received his M.A. degree in 1940 and Ph.D. in 1947.

Gold Bug Soars in '66

Amid the turmoil of preparing for the usual end-of-semester brainwashing, the 1965 staff of the GOLD BUG would like to pause for a moment and look back on this year.

For the first time in many years, the GOLD BUG has employed the "short effect" to capture the attention of faculty, students, and administration. The process worked to the extent that more "Letters to the Editor" were received than usual. We would like to make one point clear. We feel that the aim of a campus newspaper is not so much to report the news, but cover various issues. The GOLD BUG has taken a strong stand on certain issues to prod our leaders into action. A negative response is perhaps even more valuable than a positive response to our views—so don't be afraid to send us your comments.

Looking ahead in 1966, we would like to extend a welcome to our new staff, headed by David Carrasco. At last, a male editor-in-chief!!!

Dave and his new staff are in the process of formulating new plans, new ideas, unique and startling facts for the GOLD BUG. With a man at the helm, you can look forward to a greater emphasis on sports and a view of campus problems from a masculine standpoint. It will be a "man's world" once again. Look forward also to the possibility of a weekly publication in 1966-67. The present staff would like to extend our good wishes to the new staff. Many of these people we have worked with in the past and know that they are creative and competent. Nineteen sixty-six looks like a good year for the GOLD BUG.

Eminent Psychiatrists Convene, Agree: Sex Should Be Private Student Affair

By Erick Page
New York Times

A group of 260 psychiatrists declared that the private heterosexual and homosexual behavior of students need not become the direct concern of college administrators.

This opinion was made in a 129-page study entitled "Sex and the College Student" by a committee of members of the Group for the Advancement of Psychiatry. The study also recommended that colleges draft explicit rules governing some areas of sexual behavior, provide information about birth control and venereal disease, and give counsel on aspects of abortion to girl students who are considering termination of pregnancy.

Respect Privacy
"The student's privacy requires respect," the report says. "Sexual activity privately practiced with appropriate attention to the consent of all parties and within the limits of personal integrity and public decency."

As to heterosexual behavior, the study concludes, "to a certain amount of freedom in the area of student social and sexual interaction with the opposite sex is now taken for granted within limits of personal integrity and public decency."

Schools Must Be Explicit
"At the same time," it says, "we believe changing sexual mores and new social realities require the college to be explicit about its view toward sexual conduct on the campus."

"Private homosexual, like heterosexual behavior need not become the direct concern of the administration," the report goes on. "Indiscretion, however, in places beyond the domain of individual privacy."

This Too Shall Pass
The authors took the view that homosexuality among students may be only a passing phase. "Manifestations of homosexual feelings during the period of young adulthood were widely reported," they said, "the ultimately successful heterosexual adaptation."

of many students who reveal overt homosexual manifestations at some point in their adolescence or early adulthood makes it difficult to define the boundary between serious psychopathology, transient aberrations and normal adolescent development.

Women, Too!!
The report also says that "instances of homosexuality occur frequently as they do among men, particularly in residential colleges."

As to contraception, the study favors providing students with information, but not medical materials. Information about the public health aspects of venereal disease" is suggested on the same basis.

The report said a college conscience should also be ready to help the unmarried girl student "in making the diagnosis of pregnancy as early as possible in order to give (her) and her partner as much time as possible to consider alternative plans.

If she is considering abortion, counselors should have the view toward a more satisfactory resolution," the study said.

In preparing the study, committee members interviewed various college deans and counselors, studied the rules of 37 schools, and drew on their own professional experience.

ally trained, but burnt-out espionage man is probably a photograph of some of our men in East Berlin today. We can't always be too sure that James Bond works for the Free World. There are plenty of good spies for Burton to sink his teeth into. In fact, there is a very strong possibility that he will receive an Academy Award for best actor of the year before Oscar Werner also gives a good performance as the Jewish Communist, German intelligence chief, who is second in command to an ex-Nazi.

The movie is very British and it make take a few minutes to accustom oneself to the accent, but I can easily call this movie shocking. It's one you shouldn't miss.

Freedom Becoming The Holy Tool Of War: But What Price Are We Ready To Pay For It?

by Cary Wolfson

Man of the Year is an honor that is not to be bestowed lightly, and I'm sure that Time Magazine chose General William Westmoreland in all sincerity and seriousness. It's just that I'm kind of surprised that none of these magazines or newspapers or whoever makes this type of selection has picked the man who made it all possible—Ho Chi Minh. After all, where would Westmoreland be without the Red Army? The same places as MacArthur without the Japanese Army. Eisenhower without the Nazis.

Isn't it strange that a country whose avowed aim is, in general, peace throughout the world (specifically, "Peace in our time," "To make the world safe for democracy," "The war to end all wars") must base so much of itself on war. When is our employment rate the highest? When 95% of American industry is tuned to the war effort? When do we get our biggest government contracts? Missile plants, munitions works, and the like. Have our best policy decisions in the last year been made by Lyndon B. Johnson, President, or Lyndon B. Johnson, Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces?

Americans in Conflict
There is certainly a basic conflict between the types of freedom-loving people in America. One says, "Freedom at any cost." If we must fight, plot, steal, kill, rape, pillage, and

When we're right, we're right, it's in the name of freedom. Another faction says, "We will fight for freedom, but only if we feel it in our pockets and in our hearts." They agree that much of war is senseless butchery, but also point out that we would never have gained our independence without fighting and dying for it. A third group, the pacifists (the true ones, that is), says, "We want our freedom and are willing to die for it, but not to fight physically for it."

Most of us have been brought up and believe for all intents and purposes, in the tenet that freedom is the one thing we place above all others. It is number one on the all-time hit parade. It is the one that is never out. This "freedom at any price" is in our literature, in our poetry, in our blood.

We Shall Not Sleep
John McCrae's In Flanders Fields, one of the most moving pieces of poetry on war ever written, is universally taken as a sad reminder of the death sown by war. ("In Flanders fields the poppies blow Between the crosses, no one could mark our place") Thousands of living men reduced to endless waves of white wood, and the Dead. Short days ago! We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow! Loved and were loved, and now we lie

In Flanders fields.") Yet McCrae was not crying out, "Stop all this senseless killing!" In fact, he said was quite the opposite: an exhortation to avenge these deaths.

"Take up your quarrel with the foe! To you from falling hands we throw! The torch; be yours to hold it high! If ye break faith with us who die/ We'll break with you though we live/ We'll grieve you! In Flanders fields."

Westmoreland Deified
The near deification of General Westmoreland is great testament to the belief of the romantics who claim that there is such a thing as a "glorious crusade"—that there is a romantic charm about war. I don't naively think that our soldiers enjoy fighting for their lives thousands of miles from home. Nor do I doubt that General Westmoreland has done a hell of a job in maintaining these men's morale.

It all boils down to which we value more: our right to make war, or our freedom. Until now the thunder and the angel have gone hand-in-hand. But Mars is turning on the place in an age where our forcing a showdown. People deny the coming of a welfare state, but it is a welfare state that seem more likely and much more frightening. Freedom fighting has its limits and when these are reached we must find something to keep the war machine busy. If the cause isn't there, we just have to make one.

Who Are Your Heroes Now?

But romantic warfare has no place in an age where an open declaration of war would send us all scurrying to our subterranean, shotgun-reinforced, death-trap, quieter-than-a-Rolls Royce, Camp fallout shelters. Certainly it may be said (by whom I know not) that the man who pushes that button to release the first bomb of World War III had valor, or courage, or patriotism, or guts, but not the valor of a hero. It is those who magnify and sanctify and glorify the holy name of War that are surely most responsible for it.

Somebody Up There?

And About the Death of God . . .

We have tended to confuse language about God with the reality of God, neglecting to realize that there is no divine language in the first place and no human language that is relevant for all time and for all people. Since we are no longer able to speak of God mythologically or metaphysically, we try to speak of him in an honestly secular way.

God Is Down to Earth
This desire on the part of the death-of-God theologians to reformulate our language about God is certainly an exciting part of the intellectual ferment of our time. It has reached daring, and for some people, repulsive proportions in liturgical experiments. A litany containing the following lines has been produced by the Urban Training Center for Christian Mission in Chicago—which is by the way, no mean attempt to be creative in the secular city.

Leader: "O God, who hangs on street corners, who tastes the grace of cheap wine and the sting of the needles."
Response: "Help us to touch you."
Leader: "O God, whose name is Spick, black nigger, bastard, guinea and kike."
Response: "Help us to know you."

At least this brings God down to earth. Could this also be what Incarnation is about?

Is God Dead?
This is what Bishop Robinson's Jesus to Go is about and what a triumvirate of American theologians (Hamilton, Altizer, and Burtyn) collectively called "death-of-God" theologians and Christian atheists, to a more radical degree—are about. It is not altogether clear what this assertion means by the death of God. Whatever else they mean, they mean the following:

1. Our childhood image of God is dead—from First Cause to anthropomorphic and benevolent grandfather. At best, this was God simply the goodness and wisdom of man rendered as entity. At worst, he was the hostility and prejudice of man projected on an illimitable scale.

Does God Constrict?
2. Modern technological man no longer needs God to answer his unanswerable questions. Man is doing very well on his own, thank you. Remember LaPlante's response to Napoleon, "I have no need of that hypothesis!" Deus ex machina is a cheap and inadequate concept of God because of man's knowledge of the world expands, God constricts and soon is eliminated from the picture altogether.

For three hundred years the prevailing rationalistic ethos has so flattened out our world of experience that man has been rendered incapable of experiencing the Holy. There remains for only a few a sense of the mysterium tremendum.

Hilton says, "The Holy is not only an absence of the experience of God, but an experience of the absence of God."

No Divine Language
3. The word GOD of itself, seems to have lost its meaning.

Through Lieb's Lens

The Spy Who Came In From the Cold

This week the lens is focused on the ever popular spy movie. But the Spy Who Came In From the Cold is more than a run of the mill Hollywood package, and it consequently makes an 8 out of 10 in the Lieb's lens rating system.

I'm not going to summarize the plot because the strength of the movie comes from the viewer's unraveling of what happens as it happens, and I wouldn't want to ruin it for all of you. The actions that unwind as the movie rolls on comment on the age old theme that war is hell. In this case his war is not just wars, but just the same there are no good guys. The West is just as treacherous and just as merciless as the East. Their ends seem always to justify their means.

Richard Burton plays Lemmas, the Western spy. Mr. Burton usually seems to do very well when he doesn't play opposite Eddie Fisher's ex-spouse. His portrayal of the professionally trained, but burnt-out espionage man is probably a photograph of some of our men in East Berlin today. We can't always be too sure that James Bond works for the Free World. There are plenty of good spies for Burton to sink his teeth into. In fact, there is a very strong possibility that he will receive an Academy Award for best actor of the year before Oscar Werner also gives a good performance as the Jewish Communist, German intelligence chief, who is second in command to an ex-Nazi.

The movie is very British and it make take a few minutes to accustom oneself to the accent, but I can easily call this movie shocking. It's one you shouldn't miss.

High on the Hill

Jennings, Hart Lead Campus Life In Greeks, Dramatics, Enthusiasm

Carolyn Jennings

There is "No Vacancy" in Carolyn Jennings' life on the Hill. From waiting "occasional" dining hall breakfasts to organizing McDaniel fire drills after curfew, Carol's days are filled with hectic activity. An English major from Fairfax, Virginia, Carol spends much of her leisure time in English-oriented pursuits. Last year, she was the co-author of the Junior Folies where one of her rehearsals were no strange occurrence. This year, deadline is an important word for Carol, then you are to-day what yesterday were—to-morrow you shall not be less."

Tim Hart

Scene is often heard... the man behind the tower mask... exuberant member of the dining hall crew... Tim, Tom, and Debby-May Day '65... illustrious bartender in the Junior Folies... these are feature samples of the varied personality of the spirited '66er—Tim Hart.

Since beginning an abundant collegiate experience as a freshman resident of that noble for she is the literary editor of the Albion. Since September she has served as secretary of Phi Alpha Mu (and her minutes were always the highlight of the meetings). Next semester Carol will lead the Phi Alphas in the office of president.

In addition to these organized extra-curricular activities, Carol finds time to collect and read books. Poetry is a favorite of Carol's and her bookshelves are filled with the poems of Emily Dickinson, Omar Khayyam, and Elizabeth Barrett Browning. One of her recent interests is the opinions and ideals of Malcolm Boyd, an Episcopal minister who is scheduled to speak at WMC in the near future. Carol also writes poetry, most of which satirizes the situations and inhabitants of the "Swinging Wing" of McDaniel Dorm.

For the past three and a half years Carol has led WMC sport spectators in cheers. This year she is co-captain of the cheer leading squad, and she is also working on the Band Uniform Fund Drive. Horseback riding, skiing, sewing and modern art are several of Carol's other leisure interests. The Phillips Art Museum in Washington, D. C., is a favorite haunt for her during vacations.

Past summers have found Carol working for the government in Washington. Her post graduation plans are not definite, but she desires to live and work in the Baltimore-Washington area. Whatever lies in the future for Carol, success is imminent. As Omar Khayyam says in the Rubaiyat: "Think abode, 199 Pennsylvania Avenue, Tim has extended himself into many phases of our campus life. Dominated by the talent of mixing well with others, he consistently serves his fraternity and school with uncommon enthusiasm.

Always a supporter of our party system, Tim complements his socially active outlook with genuine effort when responsible positions call, whether it be a class committee, an interfraternity meeting, or a drama production. Since becoming a brother in Gamma Beta Chi, Tim has been one of the most industrious members. Serving as president this past semester, Tim has been re-elected for the coming semester. Previously he helped as assistant social chairman and also represented the fraternity at National Leadership Conference in Toronto and performed Fund Drive as the band secretary-treasurer. In the up-and-coming pantomimes, he will exercise his theatrical talents.

For the past three years, Tim has been a major math. Tim is looking forward to the National Officer's Candidate's School. Then after held as assistant social chairman, he plans for a career in business management. No doubt, sincere earnestness and dedicated effort will characterize such endeavors. For these same reasons we will often recall his sparkling contributions and impressions on campus, and thus warmly recognize Tim Hart—high on the hill.

News Of The Week In Brief

Experimental College Operates in Denmark

The New Experimental College in Copenhagen is beginning its fourth year as an independent, self-supporting, educational community governed by students and teachers. The College is embarking upon the development of two new centers, also in Denmark, which will facilitate the attempt at bringing students and teachers together from the international academic community to confront and aid each other in their mutual explorations and discoveries. It is their belief that both the drop-out and the working scholar would benefit in facing the most personal and, at the same time, universal questions of our age.

All New Experimental College programs are of a supplementary and complementary nature. They are best considered as an important addition to any professional or academic training. Some students may need this learning before deciding on a life-time career, others may find it a valuable breather in the midst of years of training, and again others will benefit from NEC after they have completed an academic study. In any case, the opportunity and living at NEC are aimed at basic and common human problems and ambitions. A student who is capable of independent study can spend between a third and a half of his time in this pursuit. He will have the opportunity to present his work and research to other students and teachers.

PLAYBOY Surveys College Students; Finds Rampant Anti-Johnson Sentiment

(Copyright 1965 by Playboy Magazine)

While the large majority of U. S. college students and their faculty agree that President Lyndon B. Johnson should be re-elected to a second term, the students favor a Republican candidate. This is the finding of the Playboy College Opinion Survey—covering 200 campuses—conducted one week after the election of John V. Lindsay as Mayor of New York City.

The survey shows that as of today a majority of the students—55 per cent—would vote for a Republican candidate in 1968. On the other hand, 66 per cent of the faculty would prefer a Democratic candidate.

Despite their preference, however, 91 per cent of the students agree that a Democratic candidate would win the election. Eighty-six per cent concur with the action of the American people in electing Mr. Johnson while 5 per cent think Sen. Robert Kennedy of New York might win.

Among the faculty sample polled, 95 per cent believe that the Democratic party will again be victorious, and only 1 per cent of these believe will someone other than Mr. Johnson.

The Playboy College Opinion Survey also asked, "Since American males are eligible for the draft at the age of 18 and are serving their country, should the legal voting age be lowered to 18 years in all states?" Only 55 per cent of both the students and faculty agreed that this should become law. The principal reason offered by the survey's respondents against the lowering of the voting age was that intellectual maturity is more important than physical maturity.

Of those students who chose Republican candidates, 11 per cent cast their ballots for Barry Goldwater, 10 per cent for New York Mayor-elect Lindsay, 9

Dr. Hildebran Serves As Federation Prexy

Dr. Kathryn B. Hildebran, professor of modern languages at Western Maryland College, has been elected president of the National Federation of Modern Language Teachers Association.

The National Federation, which met recently at the Palmer House in Chicago, includes delegates from all the different language associations as well as delegates from regional associations. The organization is celebrating its fifteenth anniversary.

Dr. Hildebran has said that she feels it a particular honor for a woman to be elected president of the Federation. The professor had been serving as vice president. Dr. Hildebran has been an active participant in language associations as an officer or delegate. This fall she reported on the Northeast Conference on the Teaching of Foreign Languages at the annual meeting of the Maryland Association of Modern Language Teachers in Atlantic City, New Jersey.

Dr. Hildebran is a graduate of Oberlin College and received the A.M. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Chicago. She has also done further work at Western Reserve University and Middlebury College. She joined the Western Maryland faculty in 1940.

per cent for Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania, 8 per cent for Michigan Governor George Romney, 8 per cent for former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, 4 per cent for Gov. Mark Hatfield, of Oregon, and 4 per cent for Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York.

Among the students who prefer the Democratic party in 1968, 29 per cent chose Mr. Johnson as their favorite candidate; 12 per cent, Sen. Kennedy; 2 per cent, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey; and 1 per cent, Gov. George Wallace of Alabama.

Among faculty members who prefer a Democratic candidate, 48 per cent selected Mr. Johnson as their favorite; 9 per cent, Mr. Humphrey; and 6 per cent, Sen. Kennedy.

Out of the 9 per cent of students who believe a Republican candidate might emerge victorious, Governors Romney and Scranton, Goldwater and Lindsay—each are conceded a 2 per cent chance. Two per cent of the faculty thought Nixon might be a winning candidate, while 1 per cent said Gov. Romney had a chance.

The Survey determined that 76 per cent of the student respondents will be eligible to vote for the first time in the next Presidential election. It is significant to note that 98 per cent of all those eligible students say that they will vote in 1968.

The Playboy College Opinion Survey is based on responses from a representative sample of approximately 1000 students from all classes, ages and backgrounds who serve as a permanent "sounding board" on questions of current interest. Another permanent panel of 200 faculty members—one representative of each campus, comprising a wide variety of educational fields—have been polled. The survey also reflects opinions from campuses on a regional basis—in the East, Midwest, South, Southwest and West.

Gertrude Advises "Rush" Men: Cool It! Girls Must Protect Interests At Home

Dear Gertrude,

I am a freshman girl who is getting a fantastic "Rush" from a certain group of men on campus. Unfortunately, I am not interested in any of them. I feel so guilty about letting them lavish money and attention of me since I don't feel romantically toward any of them. How do I get these guys to cool off and just be my friends? I don't want to have anybody. I have a steady boyfriend back home, too. What can I do?

Befuddled

Dear Befuddled,

You have a unique problem. You have a steady boyfriend at home whom you probably like very much, and you have a "group" of men rushing you here on campus. You must be awfully pretty or an awfully good date, because there are so few girls on campus who rate even a second look from any one guy.

Actually, there are several ways you can solve your problem. Perhaps the easiest way to do it would be to be seen all ways with just one or two girls. Go everywhere and do everything with these girls, and give the guys the impression that you would rather go out with the girls. Believe me, they will understand!

But perhaps you would like to continue dating, but only on a friendly basis. In this case, you really have to be coy. You can do it in two ways. First, assuming you get the date offers, you can do what most girls on campus do. You greet your date merrily and immediately start talking about some non-essential Bullshy that will keep his mind occupied. Then you smartly accompany him to his favorite dating place, the movie, the Homestead, the clubroom. But wherever you go, make sure you're never alone. When there are other people around, you can make excuses for having to talk to someone and perhaps not see your original date again until he must take you back to the dorm. Here the school shows its devotion to sweet young ladies like yourself by seeing to it that you are back in the dorm at a very safe hour. You probably dread the return to the dorm because it generally brings all the he-man sensuous desires of the young man to a peak where you know he will try the greatest act of bisexual stimulation—the goodnight kiss. If you come to this part of the night unprepared, you're sunk. However, a little forethought can protect your innocence. Somewhere during the night demand someone to sweet young ladies like yourself, a little forethought can protect your innocence. Somewhere during the night demand someone to sweet young ladies like yourself, a little forethought can protect your innocence. Somewhere during the night demand someone to sweet young ladies like yourself, a little forethought can protect your innocence.

A second approach to the whole thing is quite the reverse. Catch this guy off guard. You attack him. From the beginning of the night till the end, crawl all over him, kiss him, hug him, tell him good stuff. If you do this right, he will be so upset that he will not have a clear enough mind to carry on his own thoughts. However, in this method, you must never accept a second date with the same fella.

Good luck, and let me know what happens. All you readers with similar problems can put them on a piece of paper and put them in the editor's box next to the bookstore in the Grill. Remember that Gertrude will help you!

SOS Expands Program With Assistance of Bayona

by Maggie Elgin

On August 2, while working in Aguero, Puerto Rico, as an SOS field team member, I met Maru Bayona. We spent a lot of time together. I learned much from her. How the rich and poor live side by side; how Puerto Ricans feel about Continental; what one does in a small sugar cane town to achieve status; and what a group of bored teenagers do on a hot Saturday night.

At the end of six weeks I had to return to the United States and so I said to Maru, "You should come to my home at full time together, from the Eastern Shore to New York and finally to WMC. During one of our early conversations Maru said to me, "I've really thought it over in my mind and I want to work with SOS this summer." It became apparent that real communication had transpired between us. Several nights later we sat down with Dr. Griswold, Dean Zepp and several SOS team members. Through the help of Maru, a field project to be conducted in the slums of Ponce, P. R., took shape form and substance.

WAA Opens Gymnasi For Recreation Night

As a "pre-exam tension reliever" the WAA held a recreation night in Blanche Ward Gymnasium on Thursday, January 13. Activities included shuffleboard, trampoline, parallel bars, vaulting horse, vaulting box, ping-pong and tumbling. Another recreation night is planned to provide an evening of supervised recreation and exercise for all interested students. The evenings are organized so that anyone attending may stay for as long or as short a time as he wishes.

To Editor:

The Editor: We would like to thank Mr. Willis for the fine improvements that have been made in Albert Norman Ward Dormitory to make it less of a fire hazard. Specifically the fire doors that connect the fourth floors and the doors to the section that now open outward have done much to improve fire safety conditions. This is just another example of Mr. Willis' conscientious efforts to improve conditions on the Hill. Thank you Mr. Willis. Sincerely, Daniel E. McCready Pres., SGA

Omicron Eta Chapter Gives to Foundation

On December 13 the Omicron Eta Chapter, Western Maryland College, and eighty-two other chapters of Delta Omicron will be celebrating Founder's Day. Delta Omicron is a professional music fraternity for women. It was founded on September 6, 1909, at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, Cincinnati, Ohio, by three young students enrolled there. However, Founder's Day is celebrated on December 13 because this was the date of the incorporation of Delta Omicron under the laws of the state of Ohio.

On Founder's Day each member will donate a penny for each year since the origin of Delta Omicron. These pennies will go to the Delta Omicron Foundation, a non-profit corporation, which provides student loans, scholarships, grants-in-aid, and promotes extensive philanthropic program of the fraternity. The Western Maryland Chapter will be celebrating the day at a dinner given by Mrs. Gerald Cole.

On the local campus Delta Omicron members are presented in recital twice a year. Each month the chapter has a music meeting which may range from a discussion of French composers to Christmas caroling. The group is under the leadership of Dr. Arleen Hergemier and Mrs. Gerald Cole.

Ace Attacks Certain Awefull Aspects of Final Exams

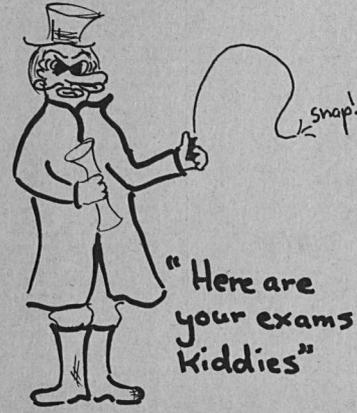

by Ace

The semester is almost over. We have been to all our classes; the race is almost run. But we still have yet just one more painful hurdle, the accursed final examinations which will begin on Monday. In the face of this grave situation many tell about what we have learned? Does it really show whether we have read the material? And most importantly, does the professor actually read what we write? Sometimes students will write whole blue books of information and have it returned to them with a grade on the cover and not one word perchance? Are we the victims of preconceived notions? Show us a student who tries hard and still gets a C or D while he sees his friends get higher grades for far less effort, and we will see a student who is disillusioned with college, a student who cuts his class whenever he can, and a student who in the end—by the time the final rolls around—really doesn't give a royal damn about his grade or his course or his professor.

It is unfortunate that such scepticism prevails on this campus. A final exam could really be an adventure in creativity—but it seems to be a drudge, a scapegoat, and a device for lazy professors to kill all his birds with one curve ball. We need finals, but we don't need this cloud of gloom and secrecy and suspicion. Professors should students are already (on this glorious Friday night, even) intending to begin studying three days early. What a pain! What a colossal bore! To think some people take these exams so seriously they would risk mono or their mental health to win a grade. Let's face it; we've had our classes since late September; if we've kept up with our work as we've gone along, the exams shouldn't be any Big Thing.

or mark to indicate why the grade was given. Could some of these grades be arbitrary,

Unfortunately, we also wait, these exams are TOO a Big Thing. Sometimes a professor lets his final count a half or even two-thirds of a student's grade—and in a few remote cases the exam counts 100% of the final grade. Now, this is all out of proportion and shows a slack teacher is at work. If the final counts so much, then the professor really needs only to carefully read through one exam per student per semester. Sigh! Would that we could get our three hours' credit by reading an eight-page bluebook! Would that we could get our money back from some of these courses that make us feel misunderstood and unappreciated and (especially!) unchallenged! How much does an essay exam

Green Grapplers Display Talent

by Lanny Harchenkov,
 "Optimistic" is the word that Wrestling Coach Sam Case uses to describe his feelings about the coming campaign of the Western Maryland Green Grapplers. Mr. Case stated that the commendable performance turned by the Terrors in the Tyson Tournament of December 3 and 4, 1965, has shown him that this team can do the job.

The order of finish and respective point scores in that tournament are as follows:
 West Chester 91
 University of Delaware 84
 Old Dominion 58
 University of Baltimore 34
 Western Maryland College 32
 Towson State 24
 Washington and Lee 24
 Loyola 6.

In the preliminary matches of December 3, Terror Rick Schmetzler triumphed over his opponent from the University of Baltimore in the 133 pound class while Bob Basye did the same for his Towson State rival in the 160 pound class. In the unlimited class, Freshman King did them one better by pinning his University of Baltimore counterpart in the second period of his go-round.

Later that day King and Schmetzler tallied two more Green Terror victories by beating McLean of Baltimore and Nim of Towson respectively in the semi-finals.

The semi-final consolation saw three more Western Maryland victories. In the 125 pound class, King Hill became king of the hill in his match by defeating Hennagan of Loyola. Mike Simcock, a determined freshman, beat the opponent from Drexel in the 130 pound division. Wrapping up the semi-final consolation, Gary Kulick put another match in the green column by defeating Ogden of Towson.

Kulick then continued his winning ways by outgrappling Clark of Washington and first in his 191 pound class of the tournament finals on the evening of Saturday, December 4, 1965.

The overall finish included the following Green Terrors:
 King—second, Unlimited
 Rick Schmetzler—second, 152 pounds
 Gary Kulick—third, 191 pounds

Highlights and Sidelines

On the basketball scene it looks like Dick Egen has gotten his act together. He really been doing fine job in the early part of the season.

Joe Smothers' defensive play has really improved. In fact, he has had the opportunity to guard the top player of the opposing team in the last two games.

Gary Fass has been playing with a bad ankle sprain. He missed the injury in the Tyson game at the Civic Center where he did an excellent job guarding standout Maceo Dailley.

Let's all try to make it a point to get over to the gym and see our team play even if it is only for a payed. At the Lebanon Valley there was only a small and apathetic crowd. The teams play their best when there is enthusiastic crowd in the stands.

Tonight, in taking on the magnificent Mount in the Terrors are putting their number one rating in the Mason-Dixon log on the line. The Clovernets are currently 4-1 in conferences while the Mount is 5-2. This is one you don't want to miss. Game time is 8:00.

As former Sports Editor Dave Carrasco has moved up to accept the post of Editor-in-Chief, he is being replaced by former assistant Senior Ron Boone. Ron has selected Walt Michael to be his right hand

by Walt Michael

Senior hooper Rich Egen has been a stalwart in the Western Maryland offense for the last four years.

Rich's formative basketball years were spent at Tilden High School in Brooklyn, New York, where he learned the moves at the forward spot. In his senior year at Tilden he was chosen to the All-Conference squad. The following Fall found Rich starting at forward for the green and gold of Western Maryland.

Injury and illness have been the only real challenges for Egen's position during his stay at Western Maryland. Toward the end of his freshman season he suffered a back injury which has yet to stop bothering him. Last year's arch-rival was a chronic virus. But nothing could stand in the way of Rich as the deadliest jump shot on the team, and shows an amazing bit of ability (at 6' 2" and 135 pounds) both in the air and on fast breaks. He drives to the left just as easily as to the right and is a master at the three point play.

"Rocket" (number-20) by his young but growing fan club) has not been so consistent a defensive player as would be expected from his position in the scoring column has always proved to be an ample equalizer.

He is among the ranks of all-time leading Terror scorers with a lifetime average of 14.4 points per game. This year he looks equally as strong on the statistic sheet as he does on the floor.

In nine games Rich has made 131 of 217 field goals attempts for a percentage of 427. He has hit on 24 of 28 foul shot attempts for an outstanding 857 percentage, and all in all, has totalled 199 points. This gives him an impressive average of 15.1 points per game. In coming up with 55 rebounds, Rich has shown that he can play excellent clutch defense when he wants to.

Rich, co-captain of this year's squad, is a sociology major whose plans at the time are twofold. After graduating from Western Maryland he hopes to attend graduate school and eventually go into community planning. If graduate school doesn't materialize, "Rocket" will go "right" into the life of the community planner.

Tonight's game with Mt. St. Mary's is an important one, as are number one in the Mason-Dixon Conference at this point. There is no doubt that it will be a tough game, but neither is there any doubt that a packed Gill Gymnasium and a hot night for Egen can do the trick.

Raiders Mount Counter-Attack

by Bob Cartwright

It was reported in a previous GOLD BUG that the college's Raiders team had not been performing quite up to snuff. This reporter is now happy to announce that Wohl's Raiders seem to be broken out of the slump that plagued them for two matches.

Against a practically invincible Lehigh team (team score 141-10), Wohl's Raiders put up a game fight only to come out on the short end with a very fine score of 23-1. Qualifiers for Western Maryland were Captain Peter Riker—284, Ira Klemons—280, Gordy Shelton—277, Jim Morgan—276, and Jack Ballard—264.

Just before Christmas, Western Maryland fired a postal match against West Virginia State College. For those readers who are not up on such things, a postal match is one in which the "visiting" team actually fires the match at its own range. The top five scores are chosen and these targets are mailed to the host team where the scores are compared.

Wohl's Raiders, in the postal, continued to fire with accuracy seldom found this far west of Vt. Nam. The team fired a 2-10. Qualifiers were Gordon Shelton, shooting an amazing 289, Jim Morgan, over his average of 282, Pete Riker—280, Ira Klemons—269 and Mike Roney, his first qualification at 258.

The word from West Virginia is that 1378 was more than enough to provide the margin of victory.

Lightning Must Contain Fresh Standout Forward Fred Carter

by Ron Boone & Dave Sarvasco

Lightning may strike Gill Gymnasium tonight at 8:00. If it comes, it will be dressed in blue and white and will wear the name of Mt. St. Mary's.

Coach Dick Clower's eager five will face its toughest opponent with a 5-6 record as compared to the Mounts 11-2 tally. Leading the Mount attack is one of the greatest freshman basketball players in the history of the Mason-Dixon Conference, Fred Carter. The 6-3, 190-pound Negro who moves like black lightning, outjumped, outran and outshot the All-Americans from Evansville College players at the Civic Center last month and is leading Maryland state scorers with a 27.0 average.

Anybody that wants to see a future All-American basketball player in action, should tear themselves away from the books and slip into Gill Gym—early! The Terrors were there when the bomb went off under Evansville, but the Clovernets just smiled and added a few fireworks of their own. They topped the Mounts' amazing rebath as the Terrors hung up back to back losses at Mt. St. Mary's and Emory and Henry.

It looked pretty dismal for the Green and Gold as 1966 opened up but Ritchie Egen and the rest of the boys must have made some mighty good resolutions because no fewer than five hit double figures (Egen and Suler with 19 each) enroute to an overwhelming 89-68 drubbing of Lebanon Valley at Gill Gym in the first contest of the New Year.

Egen picked up the pace again the next night in the Civic Center netting 18 points in the first half and adding six in the second before being retired. The Civic Center was alive with the sound of swish as Coach Clower's fivesome hit a fantastic fifty-four per cent from the floor. Adding a respectable 13 points to the final tally, Ralph Wilson also brought down 17 from the boards to round out another stellar performance. Joe Smothers, present several "fabulous freshmen" drove for another 19 as the Terrors stopped Washington College 88-67.

Ralph Wilson makes good another free throw in Terror victory over Baltimore University.

83-81 triumph over top-ranked Evansville with one slightly less than astounding 95-71 victory over the unsuspecting Teachers of Towson State. It was sweet revenge for the Terrors who had lost to Towson twelve days earlier despite a twenty-five point effort from Ralph Wilson. All in all, it was as sweet as the Teachers paced by Possinger's 33, hit an amazing 52%. The final in that one was 103-95.

The vacation saw the Terrors traveling to Bridgewater, Virginia, for the Christmas Holiday Tournament. The weather must have been better than the basketball as the Terrors hung up back to back losses at Mt. St. Mary's and Emory and Henry.

Lettermen Aid Fund For Leukemia Drive

by Bruce Knowles

Western Maryland College Letterman's Club is a small elite group on our campus.

Membership is awarded solely to male letter winners, without regard to sport. The "G" average has been maintained the semester previous to prospective membership; and, the eligible has signed on a favorable vote of the present members. Wednesday, December 8, "bidding" was held and those accepting were formally initiated the evening of December 15. No coercion or harassment of any kind accompanied this ceremony.

In accordance with the constitutionally stated purpose: "To promote sportsmanship, cooperation, and service to the school and to achieve a closer unity and understanding among the athletes, administration, faculty and students of Western Maryland College," we have attempted many projects. But, successful ventures include: has hindered several. Our attempts to sponsor award assemblies, show a sports film of last year's NFL Championship Game, and raise money for the Ernie Davis Leukemia Fund at a football game have met with the sound of silence. Our most successful ventures include trips to see the Bullets and Orioles in action, a bus to the Civic Center to see our own team at the Tyson State College, (tonight) a long awaited schedule-board for the grille (which will soon appear), and sponsorship of a freshmen Jim Godown and Pete Kinner. Jim has displayed a soft shooting touch from outside, while Pete has shown his muscle on the boards.

Miss Weyers Sets Example For Women Athletes

by Nancy Harris

Versatility is the word to describe Miss Joan Weyers. Miss Weyers is in her third year of teaching physical education on the "Hill." She also coaches the Western Maryland girls' basketball and tennis teams and serves as advisor of the Women's Athletic Association.

The young teacher-coach was born and raised in what she calls "the heart of the north woods," Phillips, Wisconsin, where she became interested in physical education as a child. "I knew there was such a thing."

She combined enthusiastic participation in sports with her time-consuming studies at La Crosse State College in Wisconsin. While earning her Bachelor of Science degree, Miss Weyers was an active member of the college basketball, tennis and golf teams. This versatile athlete received her Masters in Education at the University of North Carolina. Following three years preparation, her teaching career was launched at Washington High School in Germantown, Wisconsin.

Physical education has been the prime interest in Miss Weyers' life. While teaching, she has continued her active participation in sports and is a member of the American Athletic Union basketball team, the Milwaukee and Baltimore field hockey teams and a Towson basketball player.

Her interests however, are not confined to the basketball court and hockey field.

Jr. Cagers Down Dickinson

by Mike Herr

The JV B-Ballers snapped a six game losing skid by downing Dickinson College Monday night at Carlisle 79-72.

Down 38-37 at the half, the young Terrors exploded for 41 points in the second half, paced by Bill "Deadly" Dudley with 16 and Jerry Wolf with 10. Bill had 13 in the first two frames for an outstanding game total of 29. There were also two other Terrors hitting double digits—Gary Shapiro with four field goals and five free throws for 19 and Dan Rogers, Denny Gable with seven baskets for 14. Dickinson's top point man was Etter with 19.

As it is with all Junior Varsity teams, Coach Leishure's fighting fivesome lacks depth but does have some good personnel. Jerry Wolf, one of those sophomores on the squad, is the team captain. He has good moves under the basket and a good air-banded jump shot. Bill "Deadly" Dudley, a freshman, starred on his Vineland (N.J.) High School team. Bill is an excellent ball handler and a scrapper, both defensively and offensively.

He never puts out less than 100 per cent and has a 24 points per game average to prove it. Bill's backcourt mate is another freshman, Dennis Gable. Denny has an incredibly quick shot. Give him a fraction of a second and he will pop that one-handed set shot. He is also a real ball-hawk. Last year Gary Shapiro led Thurmont High School in scoring. This year he has been switched to the backcourt. He is just beginning to show the form he possessed in high school. Will Davis, at 6'3" is the tallest man on the squad. He is a steady rebounder, and his action either underneath or from the corner.

Walt Michael isn't in the starting lineup, but he has put in as many minutes as anybody on the team. Walt is a dedicated student of the game. He supplies leadership when he is on the court. Also seeing plenty of action are freshmen Jim Godown and Pete Kinner. Jim has displayed a soft shooting touch from outside, while Pete has shown his muscle on the boards.

Van Dykes Serenade Queen Betsy At Cupidity

Professors Laud Talents, Wit, Genius of Dr. Hendren

After eighteen years on the Western Maryland faculty, Dr. Joseph W. Hendren has retired from his position as professor of English. Dr. Hendren received his B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees from Princeton University and taught at Rice University before coming to Western Maryland in 1947.

Stress in English Verse," with special reference to Lanier's theory of rhythm was printed in 1950 by Rice Institute.

Dr. Hendren has written several articles for the college magazine, one of them on his hobbies, and a monetary gift with which to buy painting supplies.

In his teaching career at WMC, Dr. Hendren has served on the Admissions and Student Affairs Commission and the Focus Faculty Commission. Dr. Hendren was honored at a recent meeting of the Western Maryland College Chapter of the American Association of University Professors, in an address presented by Dr. W. Hendrickson, professor emeritus. The Chapter also presented Dr. Hendren with two books on water color painting, on his hobbies, and a monetary gift with which to buy painting supplies.

In his address, Dr. Hendrickson gave several instances of the professor's "quiet, gentle humor"—in answer to an inquiry about an old college mimeograph machine. Hendren quipped, "the mimeograph machine is still in the closet of the English office. (The Smithsonian offer of $7,500 was turned down for sentimental reasons)," and in a post card from the Everglades he wrote, "Rogon abounds in canned mullets, hams, and Swedes from Wisconsin. Have eaten first two; skipped third." Dr. Hendrickson also spoke of Dr. Hendren's ability to choose the right word at the right time, his wit, his talents and genius, and his scholarship."

Ballader
This scholarship has been largely in the area of English balladry and prosody, one of his major studies. While working for his Ph.D., Dr. Hendren presented the dissertation, Study of Ballad Rhythm with Special Reference to Ballad Music. It was published in 1939 by Princeton University and also appeared in London. Dr. Hendrickson cited a letter in Harper's Magazine which referred to the paper as a classic. Dr. Hendren has also written articles for ballad journals. "The Scholar and the Ballad Singer" appeared first in the College English Associations Critic, then in the Southern Folklore Journal, and again in a book by Leach and Coffin, The Critics and the Ballad. His monograph "Study of Bonnie Barbara Allen" appeared in Folk Travelers in 1963 and his "To Whom God Will Give—A Tale of Old Mexico in English Ballad Stanzas" appeared in the Texas Folklore Society's Messenger. The monograph "Time and

Lord Picks Zepp As Delegate to Area Conference

Dean Ira Zepp is attending an ecumenical conference every month for a year as a result of Vatican II. Thirty representatives of Methodist and Roman Catholic churches are attending open dialogue discussions, organized by Bishop John Wesley Lord, in Washington, D. C.

In the opinion of Dean Ira Zepp, "Vatican II is one of the most significant and memorable religious events of the century. He believes that the four sessions of the last Ecumenical Council did much to emphasize the common ground of belief and understanding of all Christians. He said that Pope John XXIII is the man who accomplished the beginning of reform in the Catholic Church.

From Dean Zepp's point of view, there were three major beneficial changes made. The first was at the parish level. Here the laity received a better opportunity for involvement and participation through the use of more hymn singing and of more English in the Mass. "Risks of Freedom"

The second major change was that the Bible and the spirit of Christ have been accepted as important norms of the Church. Formerly, Catholics did not accept the authority of the Bible as much as Protestants did, but now the Bible and Christ are norms as opposed to Triumphalism.

Dean Zepp feels that too little was said about the questions of birth control, inter-faith marriages, and the exemption of the Jewish people from Deicide. "The New Church becomes, the more conflict and demonstrations it will have to face. But this is good. These are the risks of freedom."

THE VAN DYKES will appear at Delta Pi Alpha's Sweetheart Dance, performing their new hit record "No Man Is An Island." They are famous for their smash recording of "Stupidity."

Eight Grads Frolic Until Spring; Return In June For Commencement

Western Maryland College has announced eight February graduations. The following students were the ones who completed work at the end of the first semester.

Tom Bageant is the son of Dr. and Mrs. William E. Bageant. A pre-medical student, he is a member of Alpha Gamma Tau fraternity.

The other Washington graduate is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Kenneth Trainor. John, who will report for Marine pilot training, has been a member of the varsity football team. He was named to the Little All-American and the All-State teams. Mr. Trainor is a member of Delta Pi Alpha fraternity.

Bibi is the daughter of Sergeant and Mrs. John Generali. A member of Iota Gamma Chi sorority, she was also a member of the Student Government Association.

Jon is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Reuben S. Holthaus. A member of the varsity football team, he is a member of Alpha Gamma Tau fraternity, and the Student Christian Association.

Art is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James G. Hook. A former member of the soccer team, he also belongs to Alpha Gamma Tau fraternity.

A transfer from the University of Nevada and Maryland, Charles is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Kable. He is a member of Delta Pi Alpha fraternity.

Elaine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Mignisky. She was a member of Beta Beta Beta, national honorary biology fraternity, and was President of Delta Sigma Kappa sorority.

Roger is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willy Adler. He was President of the Jewish Students Association, and a member of Delta Pi Alpha fraternity.

The College does not hold a graduation ceremony in February. These students will return to the college in June to receive their diplomas.

Full Spectrum Of Educators Appear On This Month

A philosopher and a Danforth Visiting Lecturer, Dr. Henry G. Bugbee, will speak on "The New Moralities" at 11:30 am in Alumni Hall. Dr. Bugbee will also speak in McDaniel Lounge at 7:15 on the evening of the fourteenth. The topics of Dr. Bugbee's two lectures are "Some Meanings of Faith" and "Poetic Existence and Philosophic Thought."

Graduating from Princeton University in 1936, a philosophy major, Dr. Bugbee did graduate study at the University of California in Berkeley. He received his M.A. degree in 1940 and Ph.D. in 1947. He taught at the University of Nevada, Stanford University and Harvard. At Harvard he was a George Santayana Fellow in philosophy and an associate professor.

After returning to the United States, Dr. Bugbee became professor of philosophy at Pennsylvania State University and later a research fellow at Harvard.

Music Recital
Dr. Miriam Whaples, playing the piano and hargisford, and Dr. Mildred Johnson, playing the violin, will present a faculty recital, Friday, Feb. 18, at 8:15 pm in Levine Hall. The recital will feature contemporary and 18th century Baroque music.

Dr. Whaples is assistant professor of music at Western Maryland, and Dr. Johnson is a member of the faculty of Bennett Junior College in Millbrook, New York.

The program will include: Sonata in C major by Handel; Suite in G major by Martin Marais; Sonata in C minor by Graun; Locus Variations by Krol; and Sonata in G major by Bach.

Chaplain Malcolm Boyd will be the speaker at chapel on February 20. He will speak on "The Hunger, The Thirst" and "Love and Freedom: The New Morality."

Chaplain Boyd is very active in striving to better racial relations. In 1961 he joined with others in a Prayer Pilgrimage, beginning at New Orleans, moving through Mississippi to Tennessee up Michigan. He has written a prize winning trilogy of plays "Study in Color." Variety says of another play, Boy: An Experience in the Search for Identity, that "It brings the whole race issue down to person-to-person relations."

Peanuts Verses Gospel
Robert Short is the author of the unique best-seller, The Gospel According To Peanuts which was published in 1965. This popular paperback is now in its tenth printing and has been translated into seven foreign languages. Mr. Short is currently working toward his Ph.D. in theology at the University of Chicago.

A native Texan, he spent one year as a professional actor with the Margo Jones Repertory Theater in Dallas. He was the staff announcer at KOSA-TV in Dallas, and assistant director of production for WFAA-TV. When his primary interest turned to theology he became the Director of the Department of Radio and Television for the Greater Dallas Council of Churches.

Experiences in these media brought Mr. Short to an increasing awareness of the possibilities of drama as a means of communicating religious truths, and when he became responsible for a morning devotional series, he began to use the Peanuts cartoons as a type of modern-day parable.

"The Gospel According To Peanuts" on February 23, and "Ecclesiastes and the Family of Men" on February 24, will be his topics while he visits WMC as a guest of the Student Christian Association.

Public is under the direction of Ed Kasemeyer and Vic Gavin. Francis Thompson and Don Heath are heading the recital committee and Robert Piezoni, Linda Berry, Martha Hoppel, Catherine Arick, Virginia Hess, Joyce Jones, Margie Jones, Joanne Liebtag, Pamela Feaman, Ellen Reinhart, Katherine Watson, and Kathryn Alexander. The dance will be highlighted by Queen Betsy's coronation by President Bill Falkler.

"Cupidity" is under the general direction of Social Chairman Gerald Winegrad and Grayson Winterling. Heading the decoration committee are John Van Hart and Joel Kleger.

Public is under the direction of Ed Kasemeyer and Vic Gavin. Francis Thompson and Don Heath are heading the recital committee and Robert Piezoni, Linda Berry, Martha Hoppel, Catherine Arick, Virginia Hess, Joyce Jones, Margie Jones, Joanne Liebtag, Pamela Feaman, Ellen Reinhart, Katherine Watson, and Kathryn Alexander. The dance will be highlighted by Queen Betsy's coronation by President Bill Falkler.

The Preachers, by offering "Cupidity" free of charge, have taken the financial burden upon themselves in hope of setting a precedent that will allow all members of the Campus community to enjoy on-campus dances.

Recitalists Perform In Senior Concerts

During the months of February and March, senior music majors will present concerts in their major field of study. Joan MacDonald presented a senior recital in organ on February 4 at 8 pm in Baker Memorial Chapel. Included in the hour program was music from the Baroque period by Bach, Pachelbel, Krihman, and Sweelinck and twentieth century music by Franck, Langlais and Sowerby.
Friday, February 11 at 8 pm in Levine Hall, Louise Nelson will present her senior recital in voice. The program will include Mozart arias, Brahms lieder, French and English songs.
JoAnna Hambleton will present her senior recital in voice on Tuesday, March 8 at 8 pm in Levine Hall. Included in her program will be music from Debussy, Gounod, Bernstein, and several old French songs.

Cupid Hosts Sweethearts Free of Cost

Delta Pi Alpha fraternity will present the annual Sweetheart Ball in Gill Gymnasium tomorrow night. The dance from 8 to 12 pm will feature the Van Dykes. Dress is semi-formal.

The Preachers have decided to break with tradition and offer the dance free to the college community. There will be a $2.00 charge for couples not attending Western Maryland. Refreshments will also be provided for the guests at the dance. "The Music of Cupidity" will be by the Van Dykes, who are noted for their fine rock and roll performances and who enjoy popularity not only throughout the state of Maryland, but throughout the Eastern Seaboard.

The Van Dykes have played at many colleges and universities and have had one large-selling record, "Stupidity." Their latest release, "No Man Is An Island," is currently in the best seller lists throughout the United States. The eight-man combo features Roland Brown on the drums, and Delbert Puscher on the saxophone, formerly of the Elvis Presley group.

Delta Pi Alpha has selected Betsy Murphy, their Sweetheart, as queen of the ball. She will be crowned "Stupidity." The attendants and her court will be composed of coeds pinned, engaged, or married to members of the fraternity.

The dance will be held at the Elvira Piezoni, Linda Berry, Martha Hoppel, Catherine Arick, Virginia Hess, Joyce Jones, Margie Jones, Joanne Liebtag, Pamela Feaman, Ellen Reinhart, Katherine Watson, and Kathryn Alexander. The dance will be highlighted by Queen Betsy's coronation by President Bill Falkler.

The Ring of Responsibility

A newspaper is like the life of a man in that it is based on facts. Neither a newspaper nor a man is alive, however, if the facts are merely listed in a cold, orderly manner. That is what appears on the obituary page.

When facts are adorned with character, issues, controversy, color, and opinion there is life. It is only through an honest collection and intense study and evaluation of them, that issues are born. This type of creative effort, which the new GOLD BUG staff is searching for, rings of responsibility and integrity.

When a paper is printed, it is a clear judgment on the work of its staff and the actions of the students. If the staffers are content with crammed effort, hurried editing and half-done features, the results will stare them in the face every two weeks. Likewise, the nature and strength of the student interests and concerns will take shape on the printed page.

The staffers have already taken up the task with determination and growing talent. It promises to be a concerned, alert and creative group. We plan to investigate and report on various aspects of the academic community from the mighty fraternity system to the WAA to the little heard of music department which deserves more recognition. Student interests will be our interests and we don't believe there to be confined to the mythical rail to the grille (it will never cast a shadow) or the food in the dining hall.

A number of new, interesting and controversial happenings and events are being reported. In our search for responsibility, we hope to encounter these happenings and these people.

We don't ask so much for your support as for your involvement.

Somebody Up There?

Boyd Writes "Gut-Level" Prayer

by Dean Ira Zepp
ARE YOU RUNNING WITH ME, JESUS? a book of prayers by Malcolm Boyd will be highly criticized, deeply hated, and frequently quoted. The book might be sub-titled "gut-level" prayers. I know that because of prayers, with the slight exception of Soren Kierkegaard's, that is so existentially real and around which air is so clean to breathe.

"He's A Black Boy, Jesus" There are prayers of all kinds—prayers for the free self and no one. Lord, and I couldn't care less."; prayers for the free society ("What was Hiroshima like, Jesus, when the bomb fell?"); prayers for racial freedom ("He's a black boy, Jesus. Will he learn to be a man?"); prayers for the city ("In this ugly, red building, old people are waiting for death."); prayers for sexual freedom ("This man and woman are afraid of sex and each other and living."); prayers for the campus ("She's a popular co-ed, but she doesn't know who she is"); "He has his own steam, Jesus, and the students know it.")

Unmasks Hypocrisy
Chaplain Boyd has his finger on the pulse of lived life. His prayers for the free self evidence a radical honesty and freshness. His reflections on the racial crisis reveal a sensitivity. All the prayers unmask our hypocrisy and pretension in matters of urban living, sex, peace, and self-hiding. It is for this reason that religious people will bitterly contest and strongly resent these prayers. Most of us will say that we dislike the prayers because of their flip (or hip) and irreverent language. But the real reason will be that these prayers, rather than hiding and concealing the truth about us (as most prayers do), will serve to puncture, threaten, and expose us.

"Let Her Know She Is Loved" Boyd's prayers do raise, however, the whole question of religious language and what it means to talk to God. Are we to use the polysyllabic "holy" words (Almighty, Everlasting, Infinite, Eternal God, etc.) with which the traditional collects begin? Is that authentic "God-talk"? Or is not the following prayer more properly "God-talk" precisely because it is genuinely "human-talk"? "Be good to her, please, Lord. She is so insecure and lost and needs your love badly. Of all our mixed-up loved ones, she is one of the saddest, even though she always wears this beautiful smile. Jesus, underneath her tired, worn-out mask, let her know she is loved."

Words Will Wane
Boyd's greatest attributes, honesty and realism, often are his own worst enemies. Some of the prayers seem unduly pessimistic, with a sense of resignation and fatalism. And as one reviewer put it, "Their earnest inelegance debases any lasting religious grace; since one steam, Jesus, and the students know it.")

Read them and weep.

Can We Be Good Honest For You? Take A Long, Long Look At Malcolm Boyd!

by Cary Wolfson

What with this guy? I mean, what kind of guy works hard to become a successful TV producer, holds positions with three major movie studios, and is elected first president of the Television Producers Association of Hollywood and then, at the age of 32, gives it all up to become an Episcopal priest? This man, this Malcolm Boyd, is saying something. He is real!

"Church vs. Christianity?" He's a priest, but he's not the high-riding, fire-breathing, edict-giving stereotype. His ministry is not the self-contained world of the Church, but the world where people live—the world out here. He knows he can get his message across better in a dirty beer joint than in the stately interior of a chapel. He is anti-Church but pro-Christ ("... Church sponsorship defeats Christian mission and evangelism.")

Once-A-Week God
Unfortunately, most self-styled religious people figure that they only have to mess with God once a week on a basis. They find God in a confession booth or a Middle Ages "thee-thou" prayerbook; in other words, they only want God on their own or on institutional terms. You may find God in the men's room at the Home-Steid, but they don't want to hear it. But this Church God isn't Malcolm Boyd's God. His Jesus is in the here and now. His book, Are You Running With Me, Jesus? Prayers By Malcolm Boyd, has created a furor everywhere it's been read. He

All the roots I thought I had are gone. Everything in my life is in upheaval. I am amazed that I can maintain any composure when I'm feeling like this. The moment is all that matters; the present moment is of supreme importance. I know this. Yet in the present I feel dead. I want to anchor myself in the past and shed tears of self-pity. When I look ahead I can see only futility, pain, and death. I am only a rotting body, a vessel of disease, potentially a handful of ashes after I am burned.

But you call me tonight and you have a job for me to do. You make me look at other persons whose needs make my self-pity a mockery and a disgrace.

Lord, I hear you. I know you. I feel your presence strongly in this awful moment, and I thank you. Help me to get up."

"She's a popular co-ed, but she doesn't know who she is. She's probably the most popular girl on the campus. She's certainly one of the best-looking, and she has a very real smile and seems completely secure, Jesus. You could hardly find anybody who dislikes her."

But she dislikes herself, or, at least, the self she feels she was handed but can't figure out. She thinks she must be two different selves, the operating one and another which is hidden under layers of complexity she can't get to. She wants her self but who that other self is because she believes she would like to be. She simply doesn't know the self everybody seems to be relating to.

Everybody responds to her smile. She is tired of it and has some kind of a lie of some kind. She wants friends who would like that other self instead of this one which is a stranger—enemy—to her...

Here she comes now, Lord, smiling her way across the campus. Help me to smile back—at her other self.

classifies his prayers into such broad topics as "Prayers for Sexual Freedom," "Prayers for a Free Society," "Meditations on Films," and "Prayers for Racial Freedom." I believe a few of these prayers bear re-peating in toto. To wit:

What's He Doing Here? But the question I posed at the start of this article should be amended: not only "What's with this guy?" but "What's he doing here?" I believe that to call it a not, Malcolm Boyd is here to wake you up and make you look God in the face. He will certainly not be received here by a priest because he had at Colorado State and Wayne State Universities before they couldn't handle him any longer. You will be shocked and confused when he stands at the pulpit or podium and shouts words that you've never heard from a priest before. He may not make you happy, but he ought to damn-sight make you think. If you can't face this man, you don't deserve to call yourself a Christian or a Jew or a student. But if you do, you can't afford to miss this man Sunday night and Monday morning, even if you haven't been to Chapel or Assembly all year and never intend to go again. This man is talking to you, babycares! Are you listening?

Bothersome Boyd Lauded by Poist

"A socio-religious gadfly" is the way that Rev. David Poist describes Malcolm Boyd. Rev. Poist is Chaplain of Canterbury House, the Episcopal group on campus; and as a minister of the same denomination, his views on Boyd are most interesting.

Rev. Poist, Boyd acts in the same manner as a gadfly, in that he visits a college briefly and "bothers" the campus in much the same manner that a gadfly both irritates and compels a horse. By using what Rev. Poist terms a "hit or miss" technique, Boyd, offends—many, many stimulates others. His of fensiveness is usually an outcome of his delight in jargon, which some interpret as vulgarity.

Under Boyd's harsh impression, however, Rev. Poist sees a man very sensitive to humanity prior to the conditions of the times. He "echos the prophetic voice of socio-economic religious reformers." In consideration of this, Rev. Poist declares himself "amazed that you had flamed out or else you had become pregnant. And how could you do without seeing your name regularly inserted in the Cole Column of your monthly church newsletter? No, it is too much of a price to pay for the 'Truly, the unloving faced with an approach-avoidance conflict which can only be resolved by Sticking It Out."

And girls, once you have that BA in your hands you'd better go ahead and prepare for your life's vocation. "Not finished, just beginning."

BATMAN IS COMING!

"Ipress File" Is Spy Thriller; Baruch Views Caine's Scrutiny

by Beth Baruch

Are you sick and tired of those Bond brand spy spoofs? Are you looking for something a little more tantalizing to read? I just might have the answer to your problem. The Ipress File, an English production, is in league with The Spy Who Came In From the Cold as far as suspense and the intricacy of the plot go. But Michael Caine plays a new kind of spy. He is not at all sophisticated that Sean Connery is. Nor has he the virility of Richard Burton. In fact, he is a real intelligence agent by choice and he considers his job a trial rather than a challenge. Throughout most of the movie, he considers if he could do without things up any more than he does. Just when it seems that he has finally redeemed himself by eliminating one of his "buds," the dead man turns out to be one of "ours." Such incidents, however, are not overdone and they are highlighted by the typically British humor that fills the script. The Ipress File had me a little confused at first. It seemed incredible that any guy doing the British Intelligence gene could be quite so klutzy. At the start, Caine has been assigned to a new department. His main assignment centers around the word Ipress, writing on a mysterious recording tape found in the abandoned headquarters of the bad guys. One of the inevitable errors continually anger his superior until the plot suddenly reaches a very dramatic climax. From then on the film becomes a suspense thriller worthy of Alfred Hitchcock.

The merit of this movie is that there is no hint what the outcome will be (at least not to this female-minded fan) until the last ten minutes or so. At last, things begin to make sense and the viewer can stop biting his fingernails. The Ipress File is a must to all spy fans.

Can I Be Ready For The College Girl? Or Are Co-eds Just Here To Kill Time?

by Ace & Chaf

A short while back, in Look Magazine, there appeared an article entitled "Who's Kidding the College Girl?" (How many of you read it?) Anyway, in it we find that a girl who holds a BA degree from a liberal arts college and who once upon a time took shorthand, will have a rough job finding a position that will pay her enough to make the cost of her education worthwhile from a purely economic viewpoint.

Why Study Four Years?

Why should a girl go to WMC? Wouldn't she have been able to make the cost of her education followed up by a secretarial course at Katherine Gibbs? Do girls really need a four-year degree in liberal arts to do a meaningful job? No wonder so many young women in this school are discontent. They feel as if the world and its opportunities are passing them by. They see their friends married and perhaps with children, and they feel alone and lost. They envy other friends who have jobs and are self-sufficient, friends who can go where they want, friends who want, friends who don't feel guilty about reading unassigned books, friends who don't have their minds awash with petty and insignificant details. Indeed, life at WMC seems dull by any comparison. After a while there seem to be no new things to do, you're everywhere here, you've been to all the feeding places, you've been bowling and to the movies and to the Homecom. Meanwhile your girl friends are airline stewardesses, salesgirls with discounts, and secretaries with paid vacations. Life anywhere else but here looks great. Even the plight of the lovely housewife looks glamorous. At your age, life has some things of your own—a husband, a home to decorate, no restrictions, a private bathroom, and a healthy sex life. But no Tommy and Diddy say, "STAY MARRIED! TERR! It's always something you can fall back on in later years." (If your husband should die or divorce you, or if

Open Letter Decries Negligent Scheduling

Open Letter—To Whom It May Concern

Each year every fraternity is responsible for one of the four major on-campus dances. In the past these dances have been met with increasing student apathy due to the high cost of admission and second-rate entertainment.

In an effort to overcome this apathy Delta Pi Alpha has eliminated all financial barriers by offering free admission to the dance as well as by bringing in recognized first-rate entertainment in the form of the Varsity Dancers. Our efforts have been met with a total lack of cooperation on the part of the ruling bodies on campus.

It is a well-known fact that before a major dance, a declaration is required. The Saturday afternoon of the dance a wrestling match will be in progress. But a never before has an event been set to Alpha Gamma Tau's scheduling a basketball game in Gill Gym the Friday night before the dance. On the scheduling of this game was approved by the IFC and the SGA. This scheduling showed complete lack of respect for the school before an event ever to the school been presented before any of the four major dances. Although the IFC's written rule concerning this, a gentleman's agreement has always existed.

The SGA showed its concern over the dismal attendance at these dances by attempting to enact a rule which would have closed weekends before and after these four major dances.

any activity. In allowing the scheduling of this game the IFC and SGA have indicated their inconsistency and incompetence, and perhaps furthered the mounting lethargy surrounding these dances.

We the brothers of Delta Pi Alpha are willing to assume the financial burden incurred by this dance, but now must contend with the problems caused by this lack of common sense in scheduling.

It is not for us to judge whether the scheduling of this game was an oversight on the part of our brother fraternity or a deliberate attempt to subvert our efforts to present a successful Sweetheart Ball. But the impractical scheduling on the part of the IFC and SGA is not an excuse for error. Delta Pi Alpha hopes to overcome this problem and earnestly suggests that corrective action be taken so that no other fraternity will be confronted with this problem.

Sincerely,
Delta Pi Alpha Fraternity

The Open Letter is in print due to its pertinent, timely nature. It presents one side of at least a two sided story. The next issue will be open to other versions. Deadline, Feb. 17, D.L.C.

Deserving Seniors, Baker, Spear Win Honor By Unselfish Service

Linda M. Spear and Alva S. Baker (Buzz), ex-editor and ex-business manager of the GOLD BUG, pose in their natural habitat (the GOLD BUG office).

Blond Begins Career

A girl with ambition and spirit is Linda Mahaffey Spear. She started her career as an unassuming blond from Pocomoke City, but her efficiency in academics and organizations led her to leave her mark on the "Hill".

Linda spent her "Bachelor" days in the GOLD BUG office working her way from snooping reporter to front page editor, and finally to editor-in-chief.

In her junior year, Linda became a playwright and co-director of "No Vacancy," the Junior Follies.

Linda's classmates showed their appreciation for her by electing her to Homecoming, May Day, and Military Ball Courts. She served Phi Alpha Mu as sergeant-at-arms for the fall semester of this year.

She has received formal honors as a Trumpeter and as a representative of WMC in Who's Who.

Congratulations to Linda—a worthy recipient of the honor of High on the Hill.

Buzz Serves Campus
Alva S. (he prefers Buzz) Baker has achieved a reputation on the "Hill" for getting more value out of fewer words than anyone else.

Without fanfare, he has exerted a heavy influence in many major campus organizations. He operates, not as a flag carrier; rather as a leader who sits and quietly listens to all the various points of view before focusing them, with uncanny ability, into a workable course of action. This ability to find and summarize the essence of any situation has made him an extremely valuable member of the Student Life Council and the Freshman Advisory Council.

Buzz has proved useful to other campus organizations by his plain, old-fashioned hard work. He has served efficiently and effectively as President of Pi Alpha Alpha, Tri Beta, and the Choir. He has also served as Business Manager of the GOLD BUG. In recognition of his service and leadership, he has been inducted into Omicron Delta Kappa.

More important than the influence he wields, or the many jobs he so diligently carries out, are those personal qualities which mark him as a man unique on this campus, qualities that no laudatory prose can do justice. Those qualities include his capacity for loyal friendship, his unimpeachable integrity, his intellectual interest, his efficiency, and his serious academic endeavor. "The Pride of Marriettesville, Md." has been a successful pre-med major, successful in that he has been accepted for Medical School at the University of Maryland. For his unceasing hard work, and all-around leadership, we salute Buzz Baker—High on the Hill.

Marine Corps Officer Interviews Students

The Marine Corps Officer Selection Officer, Captain Bernard H. Thomas, will be on campus February 24, 25, and 29, 1966, to interview men and women students for Marine Officer Training Programs. The Officer Selection Team will be in the College Grill to provide information and interview applicants. Freshman and sophomore men attend two six-week increments of platoon leaders class training. Junior men attend a 12-week training session while junior women attend a 10-week training session the summer prior to graduation. All Marine Officer Training is held at Quantico, Virginia. Applicants are commissioned Second Lieutenants immediately upon graduation. Seniors and graduates attend a 10-week training course after graduation and are then commissioned.

WMC Co-Eds Compete For Glamour Contest

Western Maryland's Women's Council has selected the following girls to compete for the Best-Dressed College Woman: Carolyn Akagi, Jacque Bland, Martha Happel, Diane Hare, Jeanne Hutchinson, Roberta Silver, Cornelia Sloan, and Cindy Treharne. Elections will be held in the Grill Tuesday, February 15, 10 am to 2:30 pm.

Intramural Season Climax Undefeated Quints Clash

by Mike Ward
With the month of February already on us, we find the Western Maryland College intramural basketball season drawing to an exciting finish.

Race Close
Two teams, the Mighty Mites, a predominantly freshman team, and the Bachelors of Alpha Gamma Tau are deadlocked for the lead with identical unblemished records of 7-0. With just a few games remaining for both teams, it is a certainty that one of these two teams will finish in the top spot. Tied for second place are the Preachers of Delta Pi Alpha and the 69'ers, another frosh quint, who with similar 4-2 records provide the league with another interesting struggle for ranking.

Not to be discounted, however, are the Rejets, who at 4-3, could slip into second if the 69'ers and Preachers should happen to falter. The Gamma Betes sport a 2-2 record good enough for fourth place, but are keeping an eye on the faculty squad which is threatening their position. Pi Alpha Alpha and the Boonock Bombers are far down the line with 1-5 records but have provided some good play, making the other teams work for their victories. The Animals and Carroll County All Stars have failed to win in five games, but are determined to reach that goal before the season ends.

Scores Are High

This year's hoop action has seen more than the average amount of scoring with the Mighty Mites' dynamic duo of Jerry Borga and Earl Dietrich setting the pace with averages of close to thirty points a game. Lenny Owens of the Black and Whites and Bob Hollywood of AGT both have averages of better than twenty points a game. This year's high for a single game was turned in by little Billy Spangler who pumped in 42 points against the Animals. Hollywood and Borga have both netted 39 points in a single game and Dietrich has totaled 38 points in the same forty minute span. This season's biggest scoring effort was notched by the Bachelors in their 142-18 rout of the Animals.

Clash Stated

The final top four slots will probably be decided in next week's action. On Tuesday night, the 69'ers and Preachers will meet to decide third place and on the following afternoon in what promises to be the best game of the season, the Bachelors will put their intramural title at stake in a struggle with the Mighty Mites to decide who will be number one. It should prove to be an interesting fight between the two undefeated teams, so why not come out and take in an exciting game next Wednesday afternoon?

Sportlight On Reck

Senior basketballer Jim Reck is a team man.

Many things go toward the making of a good basketball player. He must have the physical potential, including a reasonable amount of strength and quick reflexes. But, as in most sports, good basketball depends upon the player's attitude. He must have a desire to play, and moreover, a desire to win. His attitude must be bolstered by a confidence that says to him, "I am better than the man I am guarding. I can beat him, and if I keep my head, I will." This is Jim Reck.

Jim came to Western Maryland four years ago from nearby Westminster High School where he played four years of basketball, mostly at the forward position. During his first year on the Hill, Jim made the Varsity as a guard, but saw most of his action on the Junior Varsity. It was here that Jim demonstrated his defensive skills, and his sophomore year found him in the Varsity's starting lineup whenever there was a big gun to guard.

Not every team is lucky enough to have a Jim Reck. His talents do not rest solely on his defensive ability. Jim has an attitude toward ball that allows him to show his great understanding of the game with all who care to learn. There is nothing selfish about Jim. New in answering a question about future plans at Western Maryland, Mrs. Wood said, "I hope to expose the women and men of Western Maryland to dance in its many forms, and perhaps if there is enough interest, to organize a dance group composed of students who are interested in, and motivated purely by their own enjoyment. Also I hope we can continue the gymnastic seminar and gain the interest of more men. And who knows—we may even be able to form a group for exhibition purposes."

are about to make a mistake. Jim is always eager to share what he knows with the player who has a question. He has an eye for basketball and knows the game well.

Physical Reck — 5'10", 170 lbs., senior Jim Reck is an all around hustler and team man.

Reck is a ball hawk and a team man all the way. He has the ability to add spark to the club when needed while also having the cool head that can slow a team down to a methodical, hard hitting, scoring machine. Jim knows the offenses well and has a keen sense that tells him just which play will be best. His playmaking abilities come naturally as evidenced by his skill at the fast break.

Even though Jim's home is the wood craft, he is no stranger to other sports. He has always been a standout on the intramural football scene at the safety spot. Jim is also recognized as a good golfer. This spring he will co-captain the Western Maryland golf team. Jim spends his summers life-guarding at a nearby swim club.

The future looks bright for our senior hooper. After getting married in June to Jane Myers of Shepherd College, he plans to put his mathematics major to good use and teach in Carroll County. Somewhere along the line Jim hopes to coach a basketball team. A better man could not be found. We, as Western Marylanders, are proud to have Jim representing us on the court.

Frosh Bolster Team Strength; Suder, Baker Combine For 34

by Ron Boone
High on the list of Coach Clower's pressing problems this week was an impressive trio of Greyhounds, whose backcourt blanket smothered the Terror offense as the Clowermen bowed 76-69.

Using the press and a slow methodical offense, Loyola leaped to an early lead, but the Terrorers bounced back to tie it up 17-17 with 9:14 left. Then in a rare offensive spurge, the Clowermen hit three in a row from the floor enroute to a six point advantage. All was for naught, however, as inept ball handling and failure to find the basket diminished the lead, and the first session ended with Loyola on top 29-27.

Again in the second half, the press told the story as the ball hawking Greyhounds dropped twelve straight, surged into a 41-27 lead, and were never seriously challenged after that.

Ominous Cloud

The cloud over WMC basketball, heavy laden with five straight losses, is growing increasingly dark, but there is a silver lining. Even the Greyhounds had to be amazed at the fact that freshmen, paced by Suder (21) and Baker (13), accounted for 51 of the Terror's 69 points. Of course, it didn't match the Greyhound aggregate of 76, as four Loyola hoopers hit double figures, including playmaker O'Hara who had 21.

Mighty Mount Mishap

Due to inclement weather cancellations, the post-semester break contests with Shepherd and Delaware did not materialize. Thus, Loyola was the first game for the Terrorers since the January fourteenth encounter with the Mount in which a packed Gill Gym saw the Clowermen, unable to swallow Carter's little 26 point pill, bow to the Mountaineer juggernaut 107-84.

This was despite a trio of 18 point efforts from Wilson, Suder, and Eigen and fifteen additional tallies from Fass. After spotting them to an eight point advantage, the Mighty Green, making a game effort, pulled ahead 27-24 with 8:39 remaining in the first half. It was a moment of glory short-lived, however, as the Mount stretched an 11 point half time lead to a twenty-three point margin (107-84) at the final buzzer.

Lycos Loss

The only other link in the fateful five game chain not covered in the previous GOLD BUG was a 97-85 loss to Lycoming. Even a balanced offensive attack was not enough as the Lycos matched our four men in double figures with four of their own. Ralph Wilson with 26 points had to share top billing in the scoring column with O'Donnell.

For the Terror cagers, time is running out. Only four games remain and only one of these will be at home. On the fourteenth Gill Gym will witness the renewal of the classic Hopkins rivalry, and on the sixteenth Emmitsburg will host the Terror's second tussle with Fred Carter and the Magnificent Mountaineers—impressive, but not unbeatable.

IFC Meets Colts

Tonight at eight o'clock in Gill Gym, the Baltimore Colts return to the Western Maryland Campus to meet the all-stars of the intramural basketball loop.

The Colts will meet such talented ball-players as Lenny Owens, of Pi Alpha Alpha, Scott Joyner, of GBX, and Rick Matheny, also from the Gamma Betes. From league-leading Alpha Gamma Tau there are four representatives, Bob Hutchinson, Joe Anthony, Bob Hollywood, and Bill Spangler.

The Colts have a little talent on their side too. Leading the Steeds are three All-Pro selections Bob Boyd, John Mackey, and Bob Vogel. Rounding out the Colt squad are Willie Richardson, Don Schimick, Jackie Brusset, Alex Sandusky, Ordell Burke, Fred Shuback, and the Colts' selection for Cinderella player of the year, Tom Matte.

For an evening of fine basketball and good entertainment it's the Baltimore Colts versus the intramural all-stars tonight at 8 pm in Gill Gym. Donations are only one dollar and proceeds go towards the Alpha Gamma Tau scholarship fund.

Mrs. Tage Wood Carves Name For Herself

by Mary Reeves

How many of you have been stunned by the vibrant blue leotards some of the girls have been wearing? This is one sign of the presence of Mrs. Tage Wood, a new faculty member in the Physical Education Department.

Mrs. Wood's specialties are gymnastics and dance and her enthusiasm for them has been contagious. Her regular gymnastic class here was expanded to include a seminar on Wednesday evenings in which several of the men also participated.

Although coming to Western Maryland from Dakota Wesleyan University, Mrs. Wood is a native Easterner. She was brought up in suburban Philadelphia. At the age of seven she received her first dance training, starting with ballet and also tap which she was taught by sound rather than by a step pattern. Mrs. Wood attended the Pennsylvania State College at East Stroudsburg where she majored in physical education. Here she was a member of a dance group. After graduating from East Stroudsburg, Mrs. Wood married and today has a son, Paul, who is studying engineering at the South Dakota School of Mines and Technology, and a teenage daughter, Debby.

During World War II, the need for physical education teachers was so great, that Mrs. Wood taught boys' classes. Then she went west, to the University of South Dakota, as an instructor of physical education. She started the first dance program, emphasizing modern dance, progressive jazz, and sacred dance. After receiving her master's degree here, Mrs. Wood joined the faculty of Dakota Wesleyan University as the director of physical education for women.

Mrs. Wood Scans Lessons
When asked how she likes Western Maryland, she replied, "It's just lovely. I find the faculty and staff very stimulating and friendly. I realize that students have difficulty adjusting to any new person coming to a school, but having a teenage daughter helps me in understanding their problems." In answering a question about future plans at Western Maryland, Mrs. Wood said, "I hope to expose the women and men of Western Maryland to dance in its many forms, and perhaps if there is enough interest, to organize a dance group composed of students who are interested in, and motivated purely by their own enjoyment. Also I hope we can continue the gymnastic seminar and gain the interest of more men. And who knows—we may even be able to form a group for exhibition purposes."

Delegates To Debate State-Wide SGA At

National Symphony Returns WMC to Honor Dr. Mitchell

This year as in previous years, WMC will proudly host the National Symphony Orchestra of Washington, D. C., under the direction of Howard Mitchell.

Howard Mitchell, Music Director of the National Symphony Orchestra, will receive an honorary Doctor of Fine Arts

4. The presentation will be held at the inauguration of the Capitol.

The March 4 Concert, which is open to the public, will be held at Alumni Hall beginning at 8:30.

The National Symphony has often been called the "orchestra of presidents." Based in Washington, it has often been invited to perform at the White House, and it has been the official orchestra for the inauguration concerts since President Roosevelt entered office.

Among its laurels are performances before royalty as well as U. S. heads of state. The National Symphony performed the background music for Margaret Truman's ill-fated operatic debut. President Eisenhower went to so many performances as he could and had the concerts he missed tape recorded so he could hear them later. The Kennedys had the degree from Western Maryland College during the orchestra's concert here on Friday, March 4. The presentation will be made just before the intermission of the concert.

Now serving in his sixteenth season as music director of the National Symphony Orchestra, Dr. Mitchell joined the symphony 1941 and succeeded Hans Kindler as permanent conductor in 1949. Under his guidance the orchestra has been enlarged and has become a spirited American musical organization. Its reputation is still growing in the United States, Central America, and South America.

Called a dedicated musician who keeps faith "with the past by encouraging the living creature of the present," Dr. Mitchell has been the recipient of numerous honors and awards. Washington newspapers have said that his direction has made the National Symphony "one of the brilliant ornaments of the Capitol."

Triad Dance Co. Translates "Man Into Movement"

For those who are bored with the humdrum round from classes to the grill, to the Homestead—for the student who wants a little more from your college career, be at Alumni Hall this Friday night at 8:15 pm for a completely unique experience.

Triad is new modern dance company made up of former students of Martha Graham, considered the mother of modern dance.

Martha Graham has said that dance is an absolute. The understanding of modern dance comes not through the mind but through the senses. Words are equated into motion. The body is used to tell a story. Because a dancer's instrument of communication is bounded by birth and death, a key word in understanding dance is passion. Years of training and physical discipline go to make an instant of perfection. Modern dance is an expression of the inner man.

The Triad sees itself as translator of the problems of the fast paced modern world into objects of beauty through movement. Triad also feels that the present generation looks for enlightenment into the past cultures and believes that the most highly developed, refined and aesthetically advanced of these is the Oriental culture.

Miss Huahayshi, who is a native Japanese, has choreographed several of Japan's folk-tales using contemporary music to her operas. For this concert to be presented will end with the famous Rashoman Tale as seen through the eyes of a woman.

Vincenzo Bellini was a nineteenth century opera composer from Sicily. His operatic repertoire includes such voices as "Norma," and he has composed at least four Masses in addition to his operas. For this Mass, Bellini chose only to omit the Lyric and Gloria—handling the Credo, Sanctus, and Agnus Dei. His style here is based heavily on his operatic background.

Commenting on this background and its popularity with the modern listener Mr. deLong said: "The Bellini Mass is a very melodious and tuneful work and it is written more in concert style than in the usual style of sacred music. This makes it more appealing to the contemporary listener."

The presentation will be unique in that "this is the first time that the work has been performed in this general area."

Tydings Stresses Goals of Conference; Elections, Ratification Climax Agenda

Speaker. At the conference Western Maryland was looked upon as one of the central figures in this event.

In preparation for the Convention at WMC, the constitution draft and formal invitations have been sent to each of the delegates.

The main purpose of the convention will be the ratification of the constitution and the election of the association's officers.

On the afternoon of March 11, the delegates will arrive at the WMC campus where they will first register and then receive their portfolios on the convention. Jacqueline Rayner is in charge of the registration and Frank Elnehart will arrange housing accommodations for each of the representatives on campus with a WMC student as host.

That evening, a banquet will be served in Memorial Hall which will be arranged by Carol Wilkie and Alva Baker. The evening will be highlighted by the keynote speaker for the convention weekend, Senator Joseph Tydings. Senator Tydings will set the theme for the convention and concentrate his address on the aims and goals of the association. In addition to Senator Tydings, other state leaders will attend this convention.

Christine Connelly, heading the entertainment committee, will plan a formal reception in McDaniel Lounge following the banquet. Other committee chairmen are correspondence, Suzanne Jacobs; publicity, Patricia Peregriny; and building and grounds, Ronald Kobernick.

In the morning following breakfast, there will be a general assembly, featuring Robert Hearn, the Chairman of the Convention. During the Assembly, the purpose of the association such things as the strengthening of intrastate college cooperation in solving college problems and the unifying of the actions of the colleges for attending common ends.

After lunch the assembly will meet again for the ratification of the constitution and the election of the association's officers.

The Admirals pride themselves on their excellent range of music from James Brown to the Beatles, Wilson Pickett to the Rolling Stones, and from Otis Redding to the Motown Sound.

In keeping with the discotheque theme, go-go girls will provide visual entertainment "working out" while the band plays. Tickets, available from any Black and White or at the door, will be $3 per couple. Refreshments and transportation will be provided with a bus leaving Baker Chapel at 7:15. Late leaves have been extended until 12:30.

Kroe Flies High as Conrad Birdie; Juniors Break Follies Tradition

Bye Bye Birdie, a successful Broadway musical comedy, will be presented this year by the Junior Class as the Junior Follies. The class has set up committees and selected actors. Joyce Ferguson and John Balderston will direct the production which will be held May 5-6.

The plot centers upon a teenage idol named Conrad Birdie, who has just been drafted into the Army. In order to perform one last big publicity stunt, his manager, Albert Peterson sets up a guest appearance on the Ed Sullivan Show, where Birdie will bestow a good-bye kiss on a resident of one of his fan clubs.

Birdie Tastes Sour Apple
Kim MacAfee, a girl from a town called Sweet Apple, was selected to receive the award of honor. Meanwhile, to complicate matters, Kim has just been named by a home town boy named Hugo Peabody.

When Conrad goes to Sweet Apple, he causes a minor disturbance because the teenagers of the town are crazy about him. Finally, on the Ed Sullivan show, Hugo slugs Birdie in a fit of jealousy. Birdie is staying at the MacAfee home in Sweet Apple, and after the show, he goes to the Se House, the local seventh grade with Kim.

After an incident arising from the Ice house scene Birdie's manager ships him off to the Army. Birdie is gone. Bye Bye!

Principal characters in the musical are Michael Waghelestein as Albert Peterson, Deborah Sturdivant as Rose Alvarez, Ann Spencer as Kim MacAfee, Vincent Diaz as Mr. MacAfee, Dorothy Mundy as Mae Peterson, Michael Kroe as Conrad Birdie, David Christif as Hugo Peabody, and David Fisher as Randolph MacAfee.

In charge of costumes for the performance are Diane Koehler and Beth Clark. Jacque Bland and Carolyn Seaman are co-chairmen of the makeup committee and Dorothy Mundy is the choreographer. The Assistant Director is Richard Burris and the Musical Director is Nancy Pugh.

Ferguson Is Optimistic
The first reading was held on Monday, February 21 and will continue to be held three nights a week for approximately a month.

"The idea of producing a musical comedy is an original one with the Junior Class. Although we are breaking tradition by not writing our own Junior Follies, we feel that having recognized good material to start with, we can give a performance superior to any previous Follies," says co-director Joyce Ferguson. "We have a good cast and good writers and we are very optimistic about the whole thing."

ROBERT HEARN, Governor Tawes, Daniel McCready, and Harry Durty converse at the Governor's Prayer Breakfast at College Park.

An idea is born—The Maryland Association of College Student Governments. From its formative stages in Annapolis to its final debut at Western Maryland College on March 11 and 12, it shows promise to be one of the most significant events for college student government in Maryland.

The student governments recognized an urgency for a more effective mode of communication, and a need for solving their own inter-campus problems. It was decided that one of the best methods that could be used is free discussion with other student body representatives in order to share ideas and thoughts.

As a result, on October 9, 1965, at the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis, the first stage in planning for the association was set into action. This meeting was attended by three WMC delegates, Daniel McCready, Robert Hearn, and Harry Durty.

A second convention was held on December 3 and 4, 1965, at Frostburg State Teachers College for more specific discussion on the previous ideas of the state association. Of particular note at this meeting, were the discussion of a much needed constitution and of a convention at which all of the schools could be represented for more definite planning of the Association. At this meeting Bob Hearn was elected as chairman.

Still another meeting was held in December at Wheaton, Maryland, which was arranged for the purpose of drawing up a proposed draft of a constitution for this organization. This constitutional committee was composed of representatives from Frostburg, Salisbury State College, and Western Maryland.

The Western Maryland College Student Government decided to take the responsibility for arranging the final convention to be held at WMC on March 11 and 12. At the Governor's Prayer Breakfast held Feb. 12, 1966, at College Park, Maryland, our representatives were able to speak directly to the other school leaders as well as to the governmental leaders of the State of Maryland including Governor J. Millard Tawes and Judge Boyd Leedom of the National Labor Relations Board, who was the keynote

The Free System

Don't let it get you till you define for yourself what this weak meant. Growth must come from within. If there is no growth in our inner lives, then there will be no movement from within the system that we are part of. When the system doesn't move, it is dead.

We need not concern ourselves, however, so much with what as what has a chance to be born.

The Communicator distinctly mentioned the overwhelming presence of middle class values and ideas at Western Maryland. He read us well. The middle class values and ideas are not in themselves a problem, but when that is all that exists or when they dominate the college community as they do here, there is little change or growth to be expected from within. The community includes the fraternities, sororities, religious organizations, S.O.S., athletic teams, GOLD BUG, etc.

Those men who participated in the Dean's Workshop openly discussed the present Fraternity system. Proposals are being made to the I.F.C. The dialogue which took place was the newest idea to come along fraternity run in years. It was the Dean's, but we are the ones who must give the proposals dimension by living out what we so fluently verbalize, Brotherhood. The proposals are not going to confront the fraternity men with the crucial question of identity and anything significant toward ending what the Dean alluded to at the opening of the workshop, "I do not see how we can survive any longer what we have endured the past 2 or 3 weeks and that hasn't been much different from the past 3 years." (See the end of the editorial for more.)

The Dean is certainly to be praised for his initiative in calling the workshop. The proposals are promising and they will undoubtedly maintain and probably "improve" the status quo. But we can't grow out from other people to make us grow as individuals and as a Fraternity men. It must come from within. Growth must come from within and doesn't mean always doing the same things and meeting people "just like us."

In the Spanish language, the verb crecer means to grow out of, to develop from within and not to be responsible for the person or thing in question to establish and strengthen itself. Crecimiento is active, inner directed growth.

Students here, are not free to grow out of themselves. We bring to the campus this experience of our childhood and adolescence and meet, live and study with people from similar backgrounds and who have had similar experiences. Nothing new comes from this type of community.

If we can't grow out of what we bring here, then we ought to stay in our existing situation. Big Brother U.S.A. I don't mean escape from or cast off ties with the family and hometown, but a person is not alive if he doesn't extend his own inner life beyond the confines of his background. Crecimiento. The clusters of fraternity men are one glaring indication of the stagnation within our own lives. I do not mean to say that fraternities are detrimental to a man's life and growth. Nor am I saying that a man who does not hold a fraternity membership is free to grow because he holds no membership. But the present system hinders freedom in thought and action within the lives of those of us in fraternities and those outside of fraternities.

Even in my summer experiences with the S.O.S. it was evident that our service team was not flexible in terms of adaptability to the immediate needs and wishes of the community. Our own team members' needs and health of the power structure. Creative ideas were sometimes discarded because of our need to maintain our rigid structure.

Boyd came from out there and his us hard. One student said, "it's pathetic that we have to be made for him." The Dean took the initiative to call the workshop and get us together. We undoubtedly learned some new ideas. But the movement, growth, crecimiento, must come from within and manifest itself by active involvement in the Agape Movement, the system, the system will die, but we can concern ourselves less with death and more with what has a chance to be born.

Biff! Pow!! Zoom!!! Will He Make It? Holy Ashtroys, Yes! Don't He Always?

By J. E. LaFerg

In this era of Communism and espionage, crime and juvenile delinquency, is there no one to turn the youth of America to turn for guidance? Is there no one who remains true to his beliefs in justice, equity, and the basic value of man as a human being? Things do seem to be dead, but don't give up yet. In the face of this crisis there is one man shining like a light-house through the gloom, a beacon of truth, justice and integrity. We need him, and we need him now!

Who is this Man? Just ask any one of his millions of followers from coast to coast. Just ask any one of the more than fifty students who gather in front of the television set with the student lounge on Wednesday and Thursday nights, and you will invariably receive the same answer: "Agape Movement, the system, the system will die, but we can concern ourselves less with death and more with what has a chance to be born."

Always with him is Robin, the Boy Wonder, the personification of noble youth—loyal and active. Often, however, his intentions are better than his actions, and he frequently gets himself and Batman into very difficult spots. But he is still young and has a lot to learn, and under the strong guiding hand of Batman, his development is noticeable.

Social criticism is a strange animal. We are constantly knocking either in print or verbally, conformity, non-conformity, college students, high school dropouts, modern artists, etc. TV, the movies, PLAYBOY, Ladies Home Journal, Communists, Republicans, and even social criticism itself. Every important thing society turns out quickly finds itself a slew of knowing detractors. Certainly this is all well and good, but perhaps we are overlooking a group of people who are closer to the pulse of the nation than all of us realize.

'Put Down That Junk!
I can remember settling down to a relaxing issue of Superman, only to hear mother's booming, "Put down that junk and come to dinner!" I recall

The following is the continuation of the (one-handed) two part series of articles concerning "The Death of God."

D. C.
You have got to admit that theology is dead. It is dead because the death of God controversy has engendered more discussion about God in the past six months than any other time in the past six years. The whole debate has been a kind of witness to the life, vitality, and presence of God among us.

Ronald Gregor Smith has said that "any assertion of the absence of God and even further, of his non-existence among the phenomena of the world is dialectically confronted by his equal assertion of his presence."

This controversy affords us the opportunity to point to the reality of God.

1. A healthy antidote to the death of God theology is a re-being told that comic books would rot my mind, rob me of my money, and turn me into a stupid, ignorant, and ignorant wonder, then, that I feel kind of guilty now when I sneak down to Myers' grocery store and pick up twelve shelves on the counter for the latest issue of Spiderman or The Fantastic Four? Yet, incredulous as it may seem, college students at throughout the country are engaging this same scene every month.

Hip cartoonist Jules Feiffer, in the New York Herald Tribune Sunday magazine, New York, says, "To know the temper of a nation's people, turn not to its sociologists; turn to its junk!" The comic book, the seagull of every American parent at one time or another, has suddenly hurtled into prominence as a vehicle of social comment! The fulcrum of these changes is a young man named Stan Lee and his work for the Marvel Comics Group. But let's backtrack a moment: just how has all this idiosyncrasy come about? As you well know, these cats at Marvel get it!

All-American Superman! About thirty-some years ago a guy named Jerry Spiegel created an American hero—the invulnerable Man of Steel himself, Superman. As anyone reading of Israel's prophets. The prophets were intercepted by a Reality whose Word they felt constrained to declare. There was no speculation as to his death, but simply the response, "The Lord has spoken; I now must speak." The word they spoke revealed that God's life was discernible from the inquisitive Lois Lane (and usually you wondered why he even bothered). But somehow Superman's popularity never quite made it above the junior high school level (until the advent of Camp, of course, which has suddenly made an ancient comic the rage—but strictly for laughs). The reason is that Superman is too good. He is the good-looking All-American kid with muscles that really are rock hard, but with an I.Q. of about 85. You'd certainly never catch this guy visiting an analyst.

Let's Get Sophisticated
This is where Stan Lee's shick comes in—he's got a gimmick. Rather than exclaiming, "destroying it! I've got foul feed!", Marvel heroes will often spout off on contemporary problems or complain about the bad things being perpetrated by super-heroes. As Stan explained to The National Observer, "... after twenty-five years of writing for comics I was getting just a little bored. I thought, with communications what they are today, the public is more hip than ever before. Why don't our comics get a little beat and more sophisticated?"

The Marvel Comics Group runs the gamut from the super-heroes to pablum-like Millicent the Model and Kid Colt (with which new writers are teething) to Star Line and the "big-league". Although the super-group contains such old-timers as Captain America and Iron Man, the new breed's smash hits are the members of the "new breed"; and paramount among these are the Thing and Spiderman.

Thing, a member of the Fantastic Four, is a singularly horrible looking, but lovable creature, whose clarion cry, "It's Cloberber! Time!" evokes the heart of a Marvel reader. To his friends he is still "bashful, blue-eyed Ben Grimm," even though the cosmic rays which gave him the other members of the F. F. their amazing powers have turned him into something resembling a walking brick wall who talks like Rocky Graziano. Thing's appeal comes from the fact that he is a human monster; his temper often gets the best of him, but it usually takes the combined powers of his friends to calm him down.

Spiderman is (at present) a college freshman named Peter Parker who was once bitten by a radioactive spider, giving him powers corresponding to that insect, as far as possible—but, in the end, it always turned out to be part of some Rube Goldberg-like masterplan. His dialogue was rarely more literate than that you hear on the Batman TV show, and it seemed that his only real problem was in keeping secret his secret identity from the inquisitive Lois Lane (and usually you wondered why he even bothered). But somehow Superman's popularity never quite made it above the junior high school level (until the advent of Camp, of course, which has suddenly made an ancient comic the rage—but strictly for laughs). The reason is that Superman is too good. He is the good-looking All-American kid with muscles that really are rock hard, but with an I.Q. of about 85. The Marvel Comics Group runs the gamut from the super-heroes to pablum-like Millicent the Model and Kid Colt (with which new writers are teething) to Star Line and the "big-league". Although the super-group contains such old-timers as Captain America and Iron Man, the new breed's smash hits are the members of the "new breed"; and paramount among these are the Thing and Spiderman.

Thing, a member of the Fantastic Four, is a singularly horrible looking, but lovable creature, whose clarion cry, "It's Cloberber! Time!" evokes the heart of a Marvel reader. To his friends he is still "bashful, blue-eyed Ben Grimm," even though the cosmic rays which gave him the other members of the F. F. their amazing powers have turned him into something resembling a walking brick wall who talks like Rocky Graziano. Thing's appeal comes from the fact that he is a human monster; his temper often gets the best of him, but it usually takes the combined powers of his friends to calm him down.

Spiderman is (at present) a college freshman named Peter Parker who was once bitten by a radioactive spider, giving him powers corresponding to that insect, as far as possible—but, in the end, it always turned out to be part of some Rube Goldberg-like masterplan. His dialogue was rarely more literate than that you hear on the Batman TV show, and it seemed that his only real problem was in keeping secret his secret identity from the inquisitive Lois Lane (and usually you wondered why he even bothered). But somehow Superman's popularity never quite made it above the junior high school level (until the advent of Camp, of course, which has suddenly made an ancient comic the rage—but strictly for laughs). The reason is that Superman is too good. He is the good-looking All-American kid with muscles that really are rock hard, but with an I.Q. of about 85. You'd certainly never catch this guy visiting an analyst.

Let's Get Sophisticated
This is where Stan Lee's shick comes in—he's got a gimmick. Rather than exclaiming, "destroying it! I've got foul feed!", Marvel heroes will often spout off on contemporary problems or complain about the bad things being perpetrated by super-heroes. As Stan explained to The National Observer, "... after twenty-five years of writing for comics I was getting just a little bored. I thought, with communications what they are today, the public is more hip than ever before. Why don't our comics get a little beat and more sophisticated?"

Poor Batman!
In fact, that is precisely what happens every Wednesday night at 8:00. Valiant Batman and Boy Wonder always find themselves in an impossible fix, and millions of anxious fans must wait another 23 1/2 hours to find out what fate will come to the heroes. Are Batman and Robin defeated at last? Can they possibly escape from the clutches of the foul fiend? These are the questions that prey upon the minds of every Batman viewer, which can only be resolved by the next night's tension-filled drama.

Man can never guess how the Dynamic Duo will meet the challenge. Perhaps Batman will pull something from his utility belt which will rescue them. Or maybe he will use psychology on the villain to make him relax his guard. Or perchance he had

by Larry Eisenberg
"The Birthday Party" by Harold Pinter is an odd brand of the most eloquent and poignant of the comic hum-drum antics of ridiculous bantering mannequin people and the stiff terror of an irrevocable fate.

The hum-drum nonsense carries through to the end with little more than a slight pause to look coiled at the pathos and then carry on with the "Party."

The first scene between Meg and Petey was probably the most delightful of the entire play. There was a rapid-fire chatter back and forth, a loss of all semblance of human conversation. It became more like two brass instruments droning off about the "corn flakes and fried bread." As a matter of fact, when the other characters got into the act (each with a distinctly different vocal quality) the result was not unlike a brass band. It was quite an experience to imagine oneself in a concert hall rather than a theater. The melodious effect by no means detracted from the play, however. On the contrary, the eloquent and poignant mother-gone-toe tone that greatly contrasted and magnified the tragic undertones that kept appearing.

"Yes, It's Very Nice"
The acting job, I can safely say, was one of the best I had ever seen. The control each character had over his own voice and the blending of all the voices would have made the trip to Center Stage worthwhile, even if there had been no script to speak of.

Special credit must be given to Kate Wilkinson, who played the beautiful doll, Meg, who twittered about the stage like a parakeet on the loose, unconcerned to anything but her own wings. As far as the acting goes, it was the stage that bugged me were the voices of Goldberg and McCann. Gold-berg either looked too Jewish or else his accent was too Bela Lugosi-like for his Jewish looks.

News From the Parthenon

Sigma Sigma Tau

At formal initiation last week, the Sigmas welcomed Fay Bixler, Peggy Howser, Barbara Linton, Mary Massey, and Jan Schmitz.

Today, the Sigmas are holding their "Sigma Room Service," serving a delightful dinner in the rooms and clubrooms on campus.

Iota Gamma Chi

The Iotes are currently busy with plans for their formal dinner-dance to be held on March 5 at the Tail of the Fox in Timonium, Maryland. Plans are proceeding smoothly under the direction of Jeanne Hutchinson.

Eight new pledges have joined Iota Gamma Chi. They are Mary Blevins, Ann Carson, Sue Faulkner, Donna Sweeney, Linda Whitehead, Elinor Hitchner, Margaret Eveland, and Mary Reeves.

Gamma Beta Chi

Gamma Beta Chi will end its winter pledge period with Hell Missions to be held on the weekend of Feb. 26 and 27. Upon completing their missions pledges Bill Gibson, Bob Kendrick, John Cor dyack, and Wayne Laessig will be formally initiated into the fraternity.

On March 14, in the Gamma Beta clubroom FMC Lt. Colonel Winget will describe his experiences in Vietnam. As at our earlier Coffee Clatches, coffee and donuts will be served. Gamma Beta Chi also announces its Open Party to be held at Frock's Farm on March 12. On contract are the sounds of both Bobby and the Vikings from Annapolis and The Chimes, featuring three vocalists and hailing from Hanover. Other attractions should help to make this an evening not soon to be forgotten.

Phi Alpha Mu

Phi Alpha Mu welcomes four new pledges this semester. They are: Ann Bailor, Donna Downs, Susan Mason, and Rebecca Wallace.

Under the direction of Pat Andrews, the Phi Alphas made favors to decorate the trays of patients at Carroll County General Hospital on Washington's Birthday, Feb. 22.

Plans are under way for the theme and decorations of the ISC tea to be held in March. Also being planned is the annual Phi Alpha Auction, tentatively scheduled for April 13. The impromptu sale of slightly used, but extremely useful items, promises to be bigger and better than ever.

Alpha Gamma Tau

Hell missions were successfully completed by six pledges. Locations for assignments included the Washington Zoo, a Baltimore slaughterhouse, and Gettysburg College. Formal initiation for pledges took place Tuesday night, February 22.

Alpha Gamma Tau wishes to thank Dean Robinson for initiating the Fraternity Workshop held on Saturday, February 19.

Delta Pi Alpha

The Preachers held a most successful Sweetheart Ball on February 12 which drew over 600 people. Moving on in the social season, Delta Pi Alpha has scheduled a tour of local industry at the National Plant on March 1. Also in the offing is a closed party on March 5 at the Rod & Gun Club, featuring the new Vikings. Besides handling the concessions at all home basketball games, the Preachers have participated in the basketball intramurals, in which they placed third.

High on the Hill

Personable Bennekamper, McClary Enliven, Riot In Campus Service

by Linda Sullivan

It's difficult to thank one of your peers for all that she's done through the four years of college.

It's hard to say thanks in flowery tributes. For her spirit, her humor and warm attributes. And knowledge.

For committing herself without reservation to almost every campus organization (if not more.) For being a leader with organized zeal. For being a friend with tremendous appeal. And rapport.

For "cosa" and "squalor" and all of the rest. Of the qualities which make her one of the best. For her inspiration. For her humility and honest spiritual belief. For all she does well—and last, but not least Her deep appreciation.

A pun-loving person who's always heard. A listener, too; well, a pun my word! For her determination—

For her enthusiasm, integrity and thoughts. For all of her good features and all of her faults. If any.

For all the things that she does fulfill. For someone who's truly High on the Hill. For Benny.

McClary Takes Spotlight

William Eliason McClary, Jr. has been named "High on the Hill" because he has been called everything else. Luckily Bill has a good sense of humor which has allowed him to proceed with his career on campus without being stuffy about it. In fact, many of the feature page headlines are the products of his wit (see Batman article, page 2), and show that he has overcome the stigma of being an English-Education major. Other stereotypes Bill has surmounted include: the Actor, the Who's Whoer, the SOS Field Serviceman, the GOLD BUG feature editor, and the Gamma Beta Chi fraternity member.

Since he is from the Eastern Shore, Bill is naturally concerned about integration, and has shown his interest by taking part in one of Miss Lillian Smith's monologues, which was produced on "the Shore." Bill's other dramatic credits rival his credits in his major.

Bill is going to teach English in a junior high school in Maryland and hopes to carry on his many outside activities with the same zeal he has demonstrated here at WMC. Mainly, though, Bill McClary will just "carry on." And that's the way he's liked best.

Fraternities Hold Workshop To Encourage Co-operation

The first workshop held for Western Maryland's four local fraternities took place on Saturday, February 19, on campus. Fifteen members of each fraternity and their advisors attended the General Assembly which was called to order by Dean Robinson. He emphasized that the purpose of the Workshop was "not to usurp the responsibility of the IFC, since it is the only organization that enacts legislation on fraternities." It was rather to encourage an "objective, unemotional dialogue between fraternities." In order for any fraternity system to work, the Dean maintained that a "spirit of integrity and co-operation" was needed.

According to Dean Robinson, the present fraternity system is often "superficial, dishonest, and laden with deceit. . . . The problem lies within the fraternities themselves." He told the group that "simply putting a national label on your fraternities will not make you different from what you are now."

He added that in spite of these problems "fraternities are beneficial enough to remain on campus. . . . The fraternities have made a definite, significant contribution to the social education of Western Maryland students." Since the climate on campus regarding fraternities is one of "hopeful criticism," he viewed the future fraternity situation optimistically.

Following the General Assembly, the fraternity representatives divided into several committees to discuss areas of fraternity which have posed problems: rushing, bidding, smokers and rush parties, scheduling on fraternities, and membership. Each committee included members of every fraternity. The committee's consensus of opinion and any strong minority opinions were recorded and submitted to the IFC as suggestions for future legislation.

The committee on rushing suggested that the rush period be moved from April to February and conclude prior to spring vacation. Informal fraternity open houses for eligible students could also be held. A re-examination of the bidding systems brought the suggestion that a positive percentage vote be used rather than the present system of allowing a few negative votes to reject a prospective pledge.

The scheduling committee suggested that two fraternities instead of one share the responsibilities of the Homecoming and May Day dances and that the IFC allow other organizations the opportunity to sponsor the Christmas and Valentine dances. In order to avoid conflict, the social committees of all fraternities could meet once a month to iron out conflicts. The committee also suggested that on the weekend of a major dance or open party that no closed fraternity party be held with the exception of a closed banquet, without permission of the IFC.

The committee on membership suggested that each fraternity use its own discretion in limiting membership and that fraternity sections be continued. Several committees suggested that more consideration be given to the non-fraternity man and more facilities be made available to him.

Idol of Millions
Even during his life-and-death struggles against evil, Batman never loses sight of the fact that he is the "idol of millions of impressionable young people." From his lips never escapes an uncouth word or phrase; never will he indulge in alcoholic beverages, and he always has a feeling of sympathy for the unfortunate one leading a life of crime, for the mind warped by conditions over which he had little or no control. But nonetheless, the Masked Miracle has a job to do, and casting aside personal feelings, he does it. So all you crusty criminals: Beware — never yet has he failed.

Ask any viewer. Batman is not just a television program—it is a way of life, a cleansing fountain where troubled souls can take refuge from the harsh world surrounding them. It is basically a serious, moral show, although it does have its punny moments. In consideration of its many qualities, one prominent campus leader says simply, but with heartfelt emotion, "I like Batman."

And as for McCann, I still haven't gotten used to the Irishman's Spanish accent, and I don't really believe that I ever will.

Pathos Is Subtle
Pinter's greatest achievement in "The Birthday Party" was his subtle drifts from comic to tragic to comic again. As a member of the audience you find yourself caught up in the hysterical humor, only to be gripped suddenly by the throat with a realization of the diabolical futility that the author presents. I say the transitions were subtle; it made the pathos all the more sublime.

Chatter On
"The Birthday Party" ended with Petey and Meg sitting in the dining room carrying on their still hum-drum musical bantering. I stopped laughing when the thought hit me that the "van" was on its way with a "wheelbarrow" in it to carry all of us away; and all the Petseys and Megs would keep on chattering until it came.

The headline and articles on page 3 concerning the fraternities do not necessarily reflect the attitude of GOLD BUG staff. Bitterness is not meant to be implied. D.C.

Hustle and Teamwork Beat Bees Clowermen Eye M-D Tournament

by Walt Michael

The Western Maryland basketball team ended its season of regular league play on Monday night with a stinging 87-72 victory over the Bees of Baltimore University.

Monday's game was perhaps the most important one of the season. Not only did it result in our roundabout, but winning spirit, but it also put us in the Annual Mason-Dixon Tournament. As it stands now, the Green and Gold of WMC are still very much in the race for the championship. The BU game is clear proof of this fact.

Backcourt ace, Larry Suder, scored his last bucket of the season Monday night as he suffered a severe ankle sprain in the opening minutes of play. His future looks bright, but the Terrers realigned their ranks and made room for an amazing little sparkplug from New York.

Baker took charge, and soon the Terrers were rolling along to a sweet victory.

Four Terrers checked out in double figures. Senior Rich Elgen led both teams with 31 big points, and had his best night of the year on the boards.

Not only did the Green and Gold look even better on the floor they looked even better on the statistic sheet. The hoopsters took all the good outside shots, and wound up with an amazing 52% from the floor. If the Terrers had lost this game, it surely wouldn't have been for the foul line, as they pooled an impressive 80% from the line.

The win over Baltimore gives the Western Maryland basketball team an overall record of 7-12 and a Mason-Dixon record of 6-6, putting us 4th in the Northern Division of the Mason-Dixon Conference. St. Mary's, Loyola, and Catholic U. occupy the first, second, and third places of our division.

The Southern Division is extremely strong this year with Randolph-Macon (12-1), last year's champion, taking the top prize.

Raiders Rap Red Devils Klemons Named NRA Expert

by Bob Cartwright

On February 24, the Western Maryland Rifle Team beat the shooters from Dickinson College by a score of 1347-1301 at WVC range.

Qualifiers for the Raiders were Gordon Shelton—281, Ira Klemons—278, Jim Morgan—272, Don Stout—260, and Russ Richardson—259. The one who will remember the 4th was the day of Western Maryland's answer to the infamous East Coast blackout—259. To qualify for the date, when the lights went out the match was still in progress. The Raiders' Captain, Pete Riker, was shooting and because of the length of the duration of the power failure, was never able to complete his string. Thus, had it not been for the blackout, WMC's score would have been a great deal higher.

Freshman Ira Klemons, a stout shooter who in his first match with the Raiders, was recently named a Distinguished Expert by the National Rifle Association. To qualify for this honor Ira had to shoot for at least 3500 out of a possible 4000 points.

Is there any doubt that our first opponent (Randolph-Macon, the host in this Ashland, Va. town) is probably the strongest in the country? But as Coach O'Casey Clower has said, "This tournament is anyone's who wants it badly enough." Every team involved has been beaten at least once.

No matter what the outcome of this tournament may be, there is one thing that must be pointed out. This basketball season has been an exciting one. It has been exciting because it has been characterized by a desire to win in an extremely young team. What the Terrers lacked in experience they made up for in hustle.

Spring Football Needs Leftovers

For all WMC men not involved in other spring sports, the Sports Staff would like to recommend a Spring Football. The organizational meeting will be Friday night March 4, and practices will begin March 7 and be culminated on April 6 in the traditional post-practice Toilet Bowl game (not nationally televised).

Spring Ball serves a dual function. It helps Coach Jones and his staff prepare for the next season (and has proved invaluable in that respect). In addition, it gives students an opportunity to expose themselves to organized football which they would not otherwise have. No experience is necessary and the primary emphasis is on fundamentals. The coaches, Ira Zepp, Rex Walker, Roger Shipley, and Ronnie Jones promise an enjoyable and rewarding experience for all participants.

From The Editor

In a time when members of faculties and administrations all across the nation (WMC is no exception) are questioning the value of intercollegiate athletics, it behooves us who participate to answer to the claims that they are extra-curricular.

The fact is that if curriculum, properly defined, is the total learning experience, then athletics cannot be denied admittance. They are in no sense extra but rather very much an integral part of the college curriculum. I doubt that they present a much better learning situation than most classrooms, because, unlike the student-teacher relationship, the player-coach relationship necessarily involves an active and personal commitment. The coach, unlike the teacher, cannot afford to forget that he is dealing with real, responsive human beings—not simply note-taking robots. Knowing this he cannot afford not to commit himself to them, nor can he afford not to involve himself with them.

On the other hand, the student comes to the playing field willingly, which is not always true of the classroom, and because he actively and personally participates in the creation of the learning situation he cannot allow himself to become a note-taking robot that boisterously complains about the lack of opportunity for critical thinking and reasoning, when the truth is—no one is holding him back.

The point is, when you participate in intercollegiate athletics—whether you're a player or a coach, you've got to be on the playing field—you can't be in the grandstand. When you're in the classroom, it's so easy to buy a general admission ticket, sit back in the bleachers, and talk about how dull, uninteresting, and uninformative your lecture spewing robot of a teacher is, when the truth of the matter is—you've become a little mechanical yourself. Then, too, in the classroom, it's awfully easy to say you have a Master's or a Doctorate to buy a box seat which is so close to the game that you think that you're actually in it. After a while you find yourself taking your mind off of the game and starting to wonder what your unproductive, uncreative, silent, note taking robots are doing out there in the grandstand, when the truth of the matter is—you aren't exactly on the playing field yourself.

Thus, intercollegiate athletics, since they involve a playing field instead of a grandstand and an active, willing, and personal commitment, do offer a better learning situation than most classrooms. Moreover, the subject matter is frequently more relevant than that of the classroom.

What you learn, if you get on the field and play it, is "the game" the competition, the responsibility, the pain, the aggressiveness, the sweat, the sweat, the courage—and hopefully, the victory. You learn to confront, retreat, and communicate. You learn a sense of loyalty that goes a little deeper than a hollow allegiance to a two-toned jacket.

When the sixteen year regimen is finally over, the post-season contest is going to be life itself, life away from the sheltered confines of the college campus, life in a very harshly real world. If we students and our teachers are content to let the programs remain a grandstand, then we better find some playing fields somewhere—the Normans, the SGA, Union Street, the SOS, or better still—intercollegiate athletics.

If we've never played the game during the regular season, we're going to be hard-pressed to produce in the big "Bowl" Game.

The cloud of anxiety surrounding the Terretettes' use of Gill Gym lifted abruptly as Miss Weyer's crew took command and taught the Towson Teachers an impressive 30-26 lesson.

Although this was the Terretettes' best team effort to date, the victory came largely on a tremendous personal effort from freshman Ginny Brace who hit seven from the floor and added three free tosses for 17 big points. The rest of the scoring came from a meager, but well-balanced attack.

A tenacious WMC defense led by Maggie Elgin and Lynn Howard was the hallmark of a rather sluggish but exciting contest. The see-saw first half ended with WMC on top 18-15. Ginny Brace sparked the only offensive spurge of the game in the third quarter and the Terretettes assumed a nine point lead 30-21. A cautious, sticky, ball hawking defense held the

31. Ginny Brace and Capt. Kay Coleman combined for 18 points to spearhead the offense, but the effort fell short as the close confines of Blanche Ward gym resulted in 31 fouls and forced the dismissal of 4 key players, including Connie "secret-supper" Vander Loo, one of the team's most consistent performers, who figured prominently in the Towson victory. The foul line told the story, as the Goucher girls hit 17 of 35 bonus tosses and the Terretettes netted only a skimpy 3 for 14.

The Terretettes' only other contest was a tough one-point decision to Mount St. Agnes 44-43. In a tremendously balanced effort, 3 team members got on the scoreboard, sparked by Connie Vander Loo and Betsy Horton, who both hit double figures and combined for 20 points. Again, however, the free throw line proved the margin of victory as the Weyer's secret could manage only 9 for 29 while Mount St. Agnes hit an impressive 16 for 28.

After a slow start the Terretettes as a team are showing a steady improvement. The freshmen who occupy key positions (girls like LaRue Arnold, Ginny Brace, and Lynn Howard) are getting accustomed to the habits and moves of the older, more experienced players and the team is beginning to play both offensively and defensively.

There are five games remaining, and the key contest, the "see-saw" fight, will be the March 1 encounter with Notre Dame who compare favorably with the Magnificent Mountaineers.

Following that, the final three games will be here at home. March 5 WMC will host Frostburg at 2 pm in Blanche Ward. Then it will be back—with no fear whatever—to Gill Gym, March 10, at 8 pm for MOR-GAN STATE, and March 16, at 7:30 pm for ST. JOSEPH'S College.

If you are among the uninitiated, take time out to take in intercollegiate basketball at the Terretettes. First, it's interesting, exciting and enjoyable to watch. Secondly, people who demonstrate the kind of loyalty that a commitment to varsity athletics involves don't deserve to go unnoticed.

Cindermen Organize: New Blood Sought Jones, Case Stress Need For Numbers

Co-coaches Ronnie Jones and Sam Case laid heavy stress on "the need for numbers" as they opened the 1966 track season in an organizational meeting last night.

The 1966 version of the Green Terrier Cindermen, trying to open the year's 4-3 log, are going to have a tough row to hoe. The biggest problem is going to be Sam Case's open field event graduation has claimed the number one shotputter, Art Renkwitz, and number two shot putter and number one discus hurler, Karl Schuele, a two- some that will be sorely missed. June also created a big void in the javelin department with the departure of Frank Kidd.

The additional loss of Skip Shear and Bob Raffensberger make the high jump an extremely open field event. The wide open berth will stimulate some point producing performances.

Another wide open berth, and long time storm in the side of WVC track, is the pole vault. Of last year's stickmen, only Jay Sybert remains.

Able anchoring the remaining two field events, the broad jump and the triple jump, is captain Piet de Witt. Although Piet is a consistent point producer, his long record (100 years), as in all the field events we lack depth in the jumps and the need for good backup men is apparent.

The sprints, dashes, and distances will be anchored by a strong four man contingent of returning lettermen led by senior occupant Piet de Witt, 100 and 220, and Charles Wheatley, who will be taking aim at the record in the grueling mile and long events. Assisting them will be sophomore Dana "The Flash" Huseman, last year's second leading 100 and 220 and who last year anchored the 440 relay quartet, of which de Witt and John Olsch were also members. That quartet, with an able replacement for the graduated Ben Lawrence, should provide some much-needed scoring punch. Junior Jim "The Hammer" Clower, 110 of the foursome, handles the half mile and is a hallmark of consistency.

The real question marks in Coach Jones' running department will be the mile, with Dave Jacobs the only returning sub-five minute man, and the 440, which the graduated Laurence, Kidd, and Wagner have left up for grabs.

Coach Jones and Case are looking to the season with anxious anticipation. The schedule is going to be one of the toughest in recent years and both are aware that WMC has never been a magnet for track talent. But they also know that a lot of energy, drive, and guts, if all they've got, have turned in a lot of above average performances. WMC doesn't have any superstars, but does have a consistent performance of a lot (and the emphasis is on lot) of average guys with the kind of guts that last year won three meets, decided in the final event by five points or less.

If you're an average guy with a lotta guts, see Coach Jones or Sam Case about going into the track team—they'll take it from there.

Next weekend, March 4 and 5, the Western Terrier Grapplers will meet the Towson State opponents in the Mason-Dixon Wrestling Championship. Participating in the Gill Gym will be contingent from American U., Catholic U., Baltimore U., Galludet, Hampden-Sydney, Johns Hopkins, Loyola, Old Dominion, and Towson State. This will be regional, small college, NCAA wrestling at its finest—make it a point to be there!

Seen in the locker room of a small, church related, liberal arts college:

Remember men, it's not whether you will lose that counts, it's how you play the game—and that's what bothers me—the stupid way you guys have been playin' the game!!!

Despite a rather dismal regular season, some individual prospects for the Casemen in the Mason-Dixon Tourney are bright. Based on this season's performance and previous tournament experience, Seniors Bob Basow and Gary Kulick will be the Big Green's best bets. Possible dark horses from the Freshman ranks will be Ray Schmetzler and Jim King.

Freshman b-haller Larry Suder suffered a severe ankle sprain in Monday night's clash with Baltimore University. Wishes were donated by Bill Dudley.

The JV basketball team wishes to thank Sam Leishure for guiding them through a meaningful and fun-filled season. Sam's boys showed hustle and spirit from the word go, a direct reflection on their much admired coach.

The girls' basketball team beat Hood College Wednesday night by a score of 38-27. Ginny Brace, coaching an 11 point average, scored 13.

The Word has it that Coach Robinson is thoroughly unimpressed with Old Man Winter's recent snow job. Undaunted, the spunky young coach will have his fabled Little Houston linksman working out in the warm confines of Gill Gym.

IFC-ISC Caters To Survey; Campus Swings To Big Names

THE ADMIRALS command the sea of melodies they will present for IFC-ISC weekend.

This year, in answer to an extensive survey done by the ISC-IFC, a new and different type of entertainment will be presented for the annual ISC-IFC weekend. On April 1, Little Anthony and the Imperials will appear in concert on the stage of Alumni Hall.

Anthony Gowdine, Sam Strain, Ernie Wright, and Clarence Collins grew up together in Brooklyn. By the time they had entered high school, all were singing professionally—and separately. Anthony was a member of the Du Ponts, Ernie and Clarence were with Chesters, and Sam sang with the Chips.

After high school, Anthony joined the Chesters and Sam joined the group a short time later. In 1968, advertisements and relations manager Richard Barrett discovered them and changed the name of the group to Little Anthony and the Imperials.

Although Little Anthony and the Imperials are known primarily as a rock and roll group, they will perform ballads and other types of music along with such familiar favorites as "Tears on My Pillow," "Take Me Back," "I'm on the Outside Looking In," and "I'm Hurt." Besides recording for the D.C.P. label, Little Anthony has made numerous television appearances, including a spot on Ed Sullivan's coast-to-coast broadcast and a recent hour-long T. V. special from New York.

The group is a veteran of many hotel engagements and night club tours at such places as the grand ballroom of the Fountainhead in Miami. Still finishing a successful stint at Lafayette College in Pennsylvania, Little Anthony is looking forward to his upcoming en-

Lowry Receives SGA Delegates Seek Ratification Of Maryland Student Government

This Friday and Saturday, March 11 and 12, Western Maryland will be the host of student government leaders from colleges in the state.

Seventeen out of twenty-one colleges will attend the first Spring Convention of the Maryland Association of College Student Governments. The purpose of this convention will be to ratify a constitution and elect officers as well as formulate plans for the Association's areas of concern.

The idea for a statewide association of college student governments was born at the United States Naval Academy in October. At a conference at Frostburg in December, plans were made to hold a spring convention of all Maryland college student government leaders at Western Maryland College in March.

Bob Hearn and Dan McCready Salisbury State, Frostburg State and Western Maryland.

On February 12, the delegates from Western Maryland, Robert Hearn, Daniel McCready, Harry Durity, Christine Connelly, Carolyn Seaman, Allan Ingalls, Ronald Kobenick, Alva Baker, Louise Nelson, Diane Bennekamp, Ruth Bowden and Jack Ballard, of Western Maryland College, met at breakfast at the University of Maryland where they had the opportunity to discuss the state association with Governor Tawes and college student government leaders from all over the state.

The convention will begin with a banquet in Memorial Hall with Senator Joseph Tydings giving the keynote address.

On Saturday, March 12 there will be a general assembly held in Room 102 of Baker Memorial Chapel beginning at 8:30 am and continuing until luncheon. At this morning session the constitution will be presented and discussed and amendments will be prepared.

Following lunch the general assembly will reconvene for ratification of the constitution and election of officers.

A great deal of work has gone into the planning and hosting of this convention from Dr. Ensor, Dean Robinson and Mr. Willis down to the many students who will never be given credit for their time and effort.

While Mr. Hall was a Harvard undergraduate, he was the editor of the Harvard Advocate Anthology. After earning his B.A. at Harvard in 1961, he continued his studies at Oxford. Mr. Hall was a Henry Fellow at Oxford, a Creative Writing Fellow at Stanford, and a Junior Fellow in the Society of Fellows at Harvard.

At Oxford he received the Newdigate Prize for Poetry in 1962, and at Harvard he was awarded the Lloyd McKim Garrison Prize for Poetry and the John Osborne Sergeant Prize. Currently Mr. Hall is an Associate Professor of English at the University of Michigan.

Woodrow Wilson Graduate Award

The Woodrow Wilson Foundation has announced the awarding of a Fellowship to Edward E. Lowry, Ed is a senior at WMC, a member of Gamma Beta Chi, and a GOLD BUG reporter. One of 1,408 winners of the Fellowship, he is an economics major and plans graduate work in that field. He is the only member of the Class of '66 to receive the coveted fellowship.

Woodrow Wilson Fellows receive one academic year of graduate education with tuition and fees paid by the Foundation and a living stipend of $2,000 and allowances for dependent children. The graduate school they attend receives an additional grant from the Foundation. Using funds provided by the Ford Foundation, the fellowship foundation will spend $5.7 million in 1966-67 to encourage and support potential college teachers.

Since 1964 the Foundation has elected 12,998 Fellows. Harvard's president, Dr. Nathaniel Pusey, underlined the nation's need for college teachers recently. "College enrollments are expected to grow about 1.5 million in each five-year period," he said.

"Of all those identified through the Woodrow Wilson and other private and federal programs continue through graduate school to the Ph.D. and then enter teaching, we can meet the nation's estimated need for 30,000 new college teachers a year," said Dr. Pusey, who is also vice-chancellor of the board of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation.

Other professors nominated the students for the Fellowships last fall. Panels of college teachers and administrators screened the applicants. One-third were called for interviews and one-half of these won the Fellowships.

Congratulations Ed!

WMC Choir Presents Bellini Mass Concert

Vincenzo Bellini's Mass will be presented by the Western Maryland College Choir under the direction of Professor Alfred DeLong. There will be two performances of this well known Mass, the first on Sunday, March 13, at 7:15 pm in Baker Memorial Chapel, and the second program will be given on June 5 at 3:30 pm.

The Mass will feature soloists Louise Nelson, soprano; Harry Loats, tenor; Ann Faulkner, alto; and James Lightner, baritone. Organist Joan Humphreys MacDonald will accompany the Choir.

Commenting on this background and its popularity with the modern listener, Professor DeLong said: "The Bellini Mass is a very melodious and tuneful work and it is written more in concert style than in the usual style of sacred music. This makes it more appealing to the contemporary listener."

Donald Hall, the internationally known poet and author will speak in Alumni Hall on March 28. His topic will be "Beginning from Nowhere (Despair and Hope in Modern Literature)."

Other than publishing three books of poetry, Evilus and Marriages, The Dark House, and A Pool of Tiger Lilies, Mr. Hall has had poems published in The Atlantic Monthly, The New Yorker, Encounter, Harper's, The Nation, and the Parisian.

These qualifications are: (1) a clear understanding of her field; (2) a well-planned wardrobe plan, (3) a suitable campus look, (4) an appropriate off-campus look, (5) individuality of color and accessories, (6) imagination in managing a clothes budget, (7) good grooming, (8) clean, shining, well-kept hair, (9) a deft use of make-up, and (10) a good figure and beautiful posture. Then the students vote for their candidate they want as their entry in the nationwide contest.

Judges Choose Finalists
A panel of judges from Glamour will choose the semifinalists, and then the ten finalists from questionnaires and photographs.

Blake's Grant Inaugurates Lectureships

On March 14 and 15, Dr. William Sloane Coffin, Jr., Chaplain of Yale University, will be on campus to inaugurate the Virginia Jarden Blake Lectureship, a program dealing with religion and higher education. The lectureship endowment was created by Mr. and Mrs. John V. Blake of Adoms, Pennsylvania in memory of their daughter, Virginia, who graduated from Western Maryland in 1950 and died in 1954.

Administered by Dean R. G. Zepp, Jr., the lectureship will bring to the campus nationally known speakers who can relate their particular discipline to religion. Although the first speaker is a member of the clergy, the following lecturers will be laymen who are experts in areas such as psychology, sociology, and physics, for example.

Promotes Racial Programs
Dr. Coffin, a graduate of Yale University's Divinity School, is active in the promotion of interfaith and interracial programs. His belief is that church leaders should take an active stand on social and political issues. Dr. Coffin has made extensive tours of the Far East, lecturing to universities in northern and central India. Besides these accomplishments and other memberships, he is a member of the boards of the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund, "Crossroads Africa," and the Freedom of Residence Fund. He is also a member of the President's Advisory Committee on Civil Rights for the State of Connecticut. Dr. Coffin was the first director of the Peace Center and Training Center in Puerto Rico during 1961.

Coffin Gives Thoughts
On Monday, March 14 at 11:30 am Dr. Coffin will lecture at Alumni Hall on "Some Thoughts on War and Peace." A discussion with students will be held in the afternoon at 2 pm in McDaniel Lounge. "Some Thoughts on Sex from a Christian Perspective" is the subject of the second lecture to be held Monday night at 7 pm in Alumni Hall. On Tuesday, March 15, the third lecture, "The Church-related College and Society: A Lover's Quarrel" will also be held in Alumni Hall and will begin at 11:30 am.

"Understage" Features Two Forms In Dramatization Of French Farce

"Understage," the Experimental Theatre of the Dramatic Art department at Western Maryland College, will present "A Study in Style" on March 11, 12, 17, and 18 at 8:15 pm. Each evening performance will consist of two productions of the medieval French farce, The Worthy Master Pierre Patelin. Two different casts and directing styles will be used to demonstrate the possibility of divergent, yet valid interpretations of a single script.

Pierre Patelin has been one of the most enduring one-act farces in the history of the theatre. Written about 1450 by an anonymous playwright, it depends on the basic comic idea of the "trickster tricked," celebrating both the inherent cleverness and the stupidity of man as he creates and moves from one ludicrous situation to another.

The initial production will utilize the standard comic notion of ridiculing man by exaggerating his foibles. The second version will emphasize comic man as an inflexible man possessing a body of geometric forms. His costumes, speech, and movement will be translated into the varieties of the mechanical and the masks of the stereotypes.

The first version, directed by Mr. Jerry L. Solomon, Assistant Professor in the drama department, was the following cast: Larry Eisenberg, Pierre; Katherine Richards, Guillemette; Thomas Stanton, The Draper; William McClary, The Judge; and Charles Hickey, The Shepherd.

Flesh Willing, Pen Weak

"Knowledge is the foundation and source of good writing," said Horace in his De Arte Poetica. The wisdom of his statement is demonstrated every time we pick up a newspaper or read a textbook or study the words of a poet. What can be more of an art than being able to write well? And what art can be more liberal? And yet WMC offers only a maximum of three hours in creative writing to its "liberal arts" students—and a student can only take this course with special permission from the instructor. A student here can major in applied art but no one can take more than three hours' credit in creative writing. If a student can just write blunt, factual, grammatically acceptable sentences on his exams he is applauded by his professors and receives good grades. This is the same as the same students being given enough opportunity to develop his personal writing style under guidance. After all, long after facts are forgotten, one's writing habits often remain the same.

Now for the delicate question: How does WMC compare with other small, liberal arts, church-related colleges throughout the nation in its course offerings involving forms of English composition? This editor pulled the catalogues of the following colleges from shelves at the Pratt Library—at random. We found these results:

#1—Whittier College, Whittier, California. 1,000 students, co-ed. Affiliated with the "Friends." Offers same freshman English courses as WMC—plus four hours journalism credit (involving class participation on the staff of the weekly paper), plus three hours of advanced composition and page editors, plus two hours of advanced composition, three hours of expository composition, and four hours of creative writing.

#2—Yankton College, Yankton, S. D. 606 students, co-ed. Related to the Church of Christ. Besides the six hours of freshman comp. & lit., Yankton offers its students four hours of advanced composition, three hours of introductory journalism (again, class participation on the weekly newspaper is required), three hours of feature story writing (regular contributions required), and six more hours in creative writing.

#3—St. Ambrose College, Davenport, Iowa. Catholic, men only. 1,000 students. Six hours of regular freshman composition. Also offers three hours of newswriting, and three hours of "direct writing for publication." Again, all students in the journalism courses are required to actively participate on the weekly newspaper's staff.

#4—Westminster College, Fulton, Missouri. 650 men, Presbyterian-related. Besides the freshman courses, this school also offers three hours of advanced composition and three hours of creative writing. (Noteworthy is the fact that the school's newspaper is bi-weekly, as is the Gold Bug. Could this have something to do with absence of journalism courses?)

#5—in contrast to the aforementioned private schools, we add state-supported Rider College of Trenton, New Jersey, to show that a school may offer three times as large as WMC (2900 students) can offer a MAJOR in creative and journalistic writing. In fact, Rider offers a total of 42 hours' credit in writing of all genres. Now divide this by three—and we find that WMC's fair share in comparison would be fourteen hours of composition (excluding the freshman courses).

But wait! WMC offers only three hours' credit in this area. Look at the content of the aforementioned "liberal arts" schools in the midwest—these courses are not restricted, either—and look at ours. Why the discrepancy? Why is it that a student in the "liberal arts" at WMC must take at least six hours of laboratory science, but cannot possibly take more than three hours' credit in English composition? Imagine how much bigger, better, and more frequent the campus publications would be if more students were offered a chance to develop their writing skills! While most WMC courses are for self-centered goal-direction, written compositions possibly those related to a campus publication could lead to the enrichment of everyone's educational experience at WMC.

Who knows? Maybe WMC could nurture some potential literary giants. At any rate, old Chinese proverb say, "It better to nurture than let go to seed."

Cadet Head, Soldiers Give New View on the War: "Job Too, and, God Wiling, We Win It!"

By Allan Ingalls
"Student or teacher, layman or professional, come down from your ivory tower . . ."

"It is indeed unfortunate that there is armed combat in this world. No reasonable man could want it or like it. It is not in the nature of democracy to want to destroy that nation's freedom? There is no doubt that if we were not pledging our support at this point, Red China would have overrun Southeast Asia. The U. S. stands for the safety of all free nations in Southeast Asia, and throughout the world in its defense of South Vietnam."

Why are we in Vietnam? We did not get out? Why don't we negotiate? These are questions we each must know and answer, but how many don't know and don't care? For all intents and purposes we're involved in a war, but what does it mean? We back home are not directly involved. Our homes and families are not threatened—yet. So we question, we march, we demonstrate. What are you doing?

For us back here in comfortable, secure, untouched America, the question is one of simple morality and ethics. Have we got the right—after pleading that there is armed combat in this world—back out on our own commitment, or to negotiate a settlement which would destroy that nation's freedom? There is no doubt that if we were not pledging our support at this point, Red China would have overrun Southeast Asia. The U. S. stands for the safety of all free nations in Southeast Asia, and throughout the world in its defense of South Vietnam."

Pacific At Stake
But this is not just a concern of South Vietnam or Southeast Asia; this concerns the future of the entire Pacific and the security of the western hemisphere. South Vietnam is just another link in the Communist conquest of Southeast Asia. This would put them within striking range of Australia, Indonesia, and Japan, giving them untold natural resources, while making the Pacific a Communist Lake.

These countries are part of defense treaties with the U. S. We are in honor bound to aid them in time of aggression. We are not bargaining in; we were asked for aid, and we are bound to our agreements. This fighting is for high stakes—the future of Asia and the U. S. position in the Western Pacific area in question. The more time wasted, the greater the price of freedom in the end. We cannot allow the Communists to gain a foothold in the Free world. The time to put a halt to Communist aggression is now.

The time for half-way measures is over; we must accept the fact—the name of the game is war. We cannot afford another Korea. We are in war and we must take risks. There is no other acceptable solution than victory, a free, independent South Vietnam cleared of the Viet Cong. So far we've done too little too late. We can make a stand now, and we must do it before they can grow stronger and built up their defenses.

We must take the initiative and eliminate the Viet Cong and their strongholds as much as possible from South Vietnam.

The Communist idea of world domination is based on subversive activities; they have too much to lose in open warfare. The great concern at present is not of a military defeat on the field, but of a diplomatic one at the conference table. There is a great deal of pressure for negotiations from the American public who don't really understand the situation and from politicians who look mainly towards re-election and appeasing the public. Former Vice-President Richard Nixon has said: "The lesson of all history warns us that we should negotiate only when our military superiority is so convincing that we can achieve our objectives at the conference table—and deny the aggressors the fruits of their aggression. I have demonstrated how not to negotiate in dealing with Laos in 1962; we left Laos—the Communists were left. We were greatly criticized for our actions there and it resulted in other nations losing trust and confidence in us. Now everyone is watching us to see how we keep our word in Vietnam. Therefore, we cannot compromise in South Vietnam."

Vietnam. We must secure the independence of that nation.

Victory Is Essential

Our objective is a free and independent South Vietnam and we can settle for nothing less. Talk of each side making major concessions to end the war is typical of men who consider righteously middle class morality—looking for security at any cost. We must realize that we are not dealing with Americans here, we are dealing with foreign people with completely different backgrounds and ideologies. They are hard-core, single-purpose men who consider it a weakness to negotiate. Do we pay murderers to stop murdering? Can we make concessions to stop aggression? As Chamberlain learned at Munich, this is only an incentive to further aggression. We must realize that if we do not give there must be no reward for aggressions. There is no substitute for victory when dealing with Communists.

We're winning now through air strikes and committed troops, but victory will be a long time coming. We must take more than just many unknown American soldiers fighting in Vietnam; it will require patience, sacrifice, and determination by the American people.

Voice of Viet Nam

The following is a direct review of a book by P. Flanner, comptroller of the Agency for International Development, who spent a week and a half in Viet Nam in 1965. He writes the US is succeeding in Vietnam. "I was out in the four provinces and saw some hand building where there were no existing refugees, giving them building materials for houses and schools, and helping them with their agricultural program. We have set up several agricultural credit banks through which a farmer is given a bred sow on the condition that he gives back two pigs from the litter which propagates the bank. Most of the people that I talked to—both South Vietnamese and Americans, are now very optimistic about the success of our aid, and have been since October. They are very grateful for some of our actions there which go into the captured villages and teach the people self-government. They elect their own village chiefs and their own village committees. An independent village so that they can become an independent country."

Somebody Up There? "Aquinas of the Atomic Era"

by Dean Ira G. Zepp
Pierre Teilhard de Chardin is not exactly a household name. This French Jesuit paleontologist who died in 1955 is gaining an increasing amount of posthumous notoriety. He is an "it" topic among intellectual circles, has been called the "Aquinas of the atomic era" and a "new Galileo," and has created a storm of controversy in the Catholic Church.

Even the theologically-venturesome Jesuits did not allow him to publish his novel and "heretical" writings in his lifetime. The Holy Office in Rome has issued a monitum, a warning against "grave errors" in his books. His two most representative books, Phenomenon of Man (written in 1940) and The Divine Milieu (written in 1927), were published after his death and without the imprimatur of his church.

Teilhard Is Unique

The uniqueness of Teilhard as a thinker is found in the remarkable synthesis he has created between the "evangelical" biologist and scientist, his approach to evolution and Christianity. Teilhard sensed an inevitable "drift" of matter toward spirit. For him, biological evolution, which took place in the biosphere, developed through many stages and finally produced the human brain. Now, evolutionary development has ceased in the biosphere and begun in the noosphere—the world of thought, the sphere of the mind.

God Is Oneness

The supreme goal of evolution is reached in the third stage, which Teilhard has called The Omega Point, a consummation of organic super-consciousness. The latter (God and Eternal Life in more traditional terms) would transcend the material world. In this man is indivisible and corporately united in a final perfect union with God.

This evolutionary process is divinely conceived and irresistible. God (the "withing" of things) is creatively bringing all reality into a final oneness with himself.

In other words, this supernatural process at work in creation is called the "Christian phenomenon." Teilhard saw in evolution the unmistakable presence of Christ through whom all things were being fashioned. Love for him was a primordial substance or energy and was always there, wholehearted in the universe.

Do You Believe in Hell?

His evolutionary thesis produced in him a worldview of incurable optimism. Teilhard's grand vision was nothing less than the transubstantiation of hell brought about by the presence of Christ in it.

A response to the Church's teaching on hell is typical of Teilhard: "You have told me, O God, to believe in hell. But you have forbidden me to hold with absolute certainty that single man has been damned." This is why our reviewer has said that this Frenchman's thought bespeaks an "exciting existentialism" rather than a "hopeless existentialism."

At Goucher College a few years ago, the late Gustav Weigel, S.J., was asked if he knew of a belief in hell. But you have forbidden me to hold with absolute certainty that single man has been damned." This is why our reviewer has said that this Frenchman's thought bespeaks an "exciting existentialism" rather than a "hopeless existentialism."

Pratt Reports Upon Broadway Journey: Lauds Weird Marat / Sade Phantasmagoria

by Suzanne Pratt
The title is The Persecution and Assassination of Marat as Performed by the Actors of the Asylum of Charenton Under the Direction of the Marquis de Sade, and that is too much subject for any verb to cope with.

Moreover, the play that it represents is as astounding and unique as its title. German-born director Peter Weir has drawn his subject matter from actual history. After the French Revolution, during the reign of Napoleon, the Director of the Charenton Asylum needed in a crude form of the theatrical psychotherapy. The Marquis de Sade, as an inmate of the asylum, was allowed to stage many of the plays. This particular one concerned Jean-Paul Marat, a revolutionary leader and a passionately strove for the cause of the peasants. Finally after becoming chronically ill, Marat was forced to retire from political life and was finally treacherously murdered by Charlotte Corday, a sympathizer with his Girondin enemies. This play within a play, narrated and directed by the asylum director, is a constant battle between the black pessimism of de Sade's commentary on the worthlessness of man and Marat's idealism and nobility.

Presented by the Royal Shakespeare Company, this British import is technically impressive and emotionally powerful. Regarding the technique, Marat/Sade is obviously good "theater." The actors are uniformly excellent and have obviously had the incomparable training only a British can give.

Yet paradoxically, as the play progresses, one feels more and more detached from the atrocities presented by both Marat and de Sade as if the audience itself were comprised of base aristocrats. This last idea is closely linked to the emotional impact of Marat/Sade. At the end of his play and in interviews, he himself cannot decide whether to advocate the view of de Sade or Marat. On one hand Weir adheres to the more naive attitude of Marat who is ready to give up his life and mind and to improve men's while he is drawn to Sade's cynical approach because of his own experience. Therefore, the audience has a choice to definite view but rather a vague sense of disgust with modern society. Certainly through his cinematic work and show technique, Weir has made an impressive display with his first presentation. Marat/Sade is one of the few good reasons left for going to see a Broadway play.

Journalists War Of The Free Thinker

by Cary Wolfson

Malcolm Boyd, in retrospect, achieved about exactly the effect I thought he would. For a couple of days he excited a goodly majority of the students (who then promptly forgot all about him). He stimulated a handful of us, so much so that we are still discussing and defending and finding new things in what he said. He also produced a predictable effect on the more conservative campus roundheads who heard only one thing in Boyd's two days of speaking here: the word shit.

It would indeed give me gratification if this were the first exposure Mr. Harchenhorh (whose letter appears on page four and college hierarchy had to be the common term for excrement. In fact, he must surely know that the slovenly term enjoys quite a few admirers who hang their heads outside of, perhaps the dormitories which are supported by these pillars of conservative Free thought.

I truly feel sorry for people like this who feel that because a man is entertaining he is nothing more than an entertainer. In one fell swoop, Boyd has brought to us that "provenance" of our campus' are condemned for the "sacrilege in Baker Chapel." Tell me, Lanny . . . Dr. Whitfield, do you really think it is sacrilege to pray realistically for mutilated children of Hiroshima? Is it sacrilege to pray realistically that God be running with you? Is it sacrilege to pray realistically for someone who is so damn lost that he's ready to chuck it all and give up on the human race? IS IT SACRILEGE to love God more than all your contrived holy semantics and to try to give young people some meaning for life? Is Ira Zepp, for example, a Free Thinker? Is he sacrilegious for this college being in the miasma of submediocery?

Then I say it is you who are to blame. You, Dr. Whitfield, who say that "youth comes asking loudly for meaning and we give him a stone." Yet when a black boy comes begging to share the air you breathe, do you give him more than a stone? Do you give him a stone? You, the faculty, who find life so serene and secure at this hotbed of stagnation, can you give off your families long enough to see if your students are learning anything besides how to vegetate? And you, Lanny, and all those who feel the way you do—do you truly believe that the proverbial stone? While We Were Sleeping... The Message Came

Robinson Thumps Greeks; Fraternities Could Serve

I do not believe I have the reputation of being the defender of fraternities—here at Western Maryland College or anywhere else. I believe that in most instances fraternities (and sororities) serve to defeat the purposes of higher education.

Yet, under present circumstances, I find it impossible to single out our fraternity system as the cause of all our ills. For all their many acknowledged and well-publicized faults, they have for some time been seeking ways to improve their service to their student body, the college, and the community.

There are other aspects of the so-called "extra" curriculum that are not profoundly creative or constructive. To blame fraternities for these failures is a charge that cannot be substantiated. Perhaps an evaluation of student life in its entirety would be more appropriate than selecting fraternities for special scrutiny. I applaud ODK for its efforts in this direction.

Any criticism of our fraternities must be tempered by the consideration that they have not had the facilities commonly available and necessary for an effective program.

Very few successful systems develop without separate housing and dining units. It is difficult to locate a thriving fraternity that does not have ample space for social activities within the fraternity house. Anybody with the slightest knowledge of fraternity life will tell you these are essential. We don't have them.

Furthermore, the local system can improve only to a certain level without these facilities. If you grant these positions, you might conclude that our fraternities have done remarkably well. Although I rarely praise them for fear of inhibiting greater improvement, I admit that I feel they have done well under existing conditions.

Should the fraternities not correct these conditions in the very near future, we may well not have a problem—no fraternities.

It is no secret that the new dormitories will not provide additional fraternity or sorority clubrooms. This is by design. Freshmen and other non-aligned students will have, for the first time, lounge and recreational facilities sufficient to develop their own cultural, educational, and social programs.

Precedent at other institutions has demonstrated that adequate facilities and professional leadership produce residence hall programs more attractive than those sponsored by fraternities.

If the fraternities are to meet this competition, and there is no evidence that they yet view it as such, they must promptly

"Macbeth" Tryouts

The Department of Dramatic Art will present Shakespeare's Macbeth on June 2 and 3, 1966.

OPEN TRYOUTS will be held on March 13, 14, and 16. Although you are not required to prepare anything in advance of the tryout, you may present a short reading from the play.

The sign-up chart for tryouts is located on the call board in Alumni Hall.

If you have any questions, please contact Mr. Tribby, Ext. 64, in Alumni Hall.

clean house. Specifically, I would urge them to: 1) Limit rushing and pledging to February and March; 2) Further reduce the "Mickey Mouse" of pledging; 3) Restrict membership to maximum of 50 per fraternity; 4) Spend more time and money on cultural and educational programs; 5) Put aside specified amount of money for future expansion of housing/dining facilities; 6) Invest elected leaders with authority to act on behalf of fraternity; 7) Delegate to IFC powers necessary to strengthen system; 8) Become integrated members of the college community; 9) Make greater use of faculty advisors—as advisors, not as chaperones.

The irony is that, with maximum effort, the fraternities could now become essential to the interests of the college and the student body. I do not believe this opportunity will remain forever. Dean Robinson

Once upon a time, long years ago, there lived a lowly farmer who tilled the soil of his small dirt farm with singular diligence. He arose early each morning to study the thoughts of other farmers and especially those of the Master Farmer, concerning the best methods of producing strong, healthy crops. He toiled long hours in the poor, rock-strewn, indifferent soil assigned to him, trying to nourish it with as much goodness as his means could provide. Although his seed supply was limited, it was of the highest quality, the result of his own careful and considered gathering. Each seed was thoughtfully placed by his hand in the patch of earth he sowed most ready to receive it and make use of it. Some seeds were of barley, some of oats, some of rye, and some of timothy. As the seed developed and grew into planthood, each patch of earth became intricately enmeshed in the root system of the developing shoot whose existence in the light above-ground gave evidence of the change that had been wrought below.

It was a strange method he had of planting and imperfect. Some plants were thickened and twisted at the stalk base where he had overestimated the quality of the soil and its ability to receive that seed. Other plants waxed strong in the morning only to wither in the scorching rays of the late morning sun. A few attained a modest height with sturdy, well-proportioned stems and leaves supported by a strong, vigorous system. None were rooted out; all were attended each day with attention to their unspoken needs. The sturdy, established plants, tied with soft strips of rags to sturdy sticks deeply sunk into the soil; the parched, he watered; the undernourished, he gave additional food. He watched over his pitiful garden with patience and loving care.

One day, a twisted little man from a town tottered up to the farmer and squawed out his opinion of his garden. "Lookee here, sonny, you ain't gonna prosper and this here patch ain't gonna grow 'less you wed it, get rid of all them different grains and plant one hearty, cash-paying crop. No body's buying rye this year, it's such a dark foul-tasting grain. Besides, you know what them wicked city dwellers press it into—Vice and Corruption! Whatever gotta do is patch your field off into quarters, each with the 'xact same grain in it and then you'll be a success!"

The farmer looked into the craggy face of the old veteran and in an effort to break through his crochety barrier, directed these words toward his son. "But all you ever do is direct in this world; each has its place to serve. By placing each grain where it can best develop, you not only make a hearty grain but give the soil satisfaction. And if I plant them together, they may eventually be able to develop side in side in reciprocal harmony. The crop is small, I know, but . . .

sun which was behind the head of the little young man but watched his field where the grain was falling. He looked and saw that there were many tares among the good grain. He looked and he were eye.

Now the people who had checked out their friends reaction and then collected themselves into two groups on the way out from the meeting looked with their sun-dazzled eyes to the field on which the little young man's grain had fallen. The group on the right screamed, "Look at all them weed seeds!" And the group on the left said, "Man, do you see the quality of that pure, unimpure grain!" And three men, who were standing on the fringes of the groups noticed that many of the weeds were rye.

And the people went away, babbling loudly.

That evening, as dusk was falling, the overseer of the farm came to visit the farmer with one of his neighbors. The overseer was sorely vexed at the quality of that pure, unimpure grain. "What do you mean by sowing all them—ds among the grain? I went out on that other field to see the overseer of yours. But this is too much! You either get it under and plow that whole mess under before the loss get worse of this and puts us all in the porchouse, or find yourself another farm!"

And the farmer wept within. He had never dreamed of error; never claimed to be infallible. But he could not, after much inner searching, condemn the earnest effort of the little young man.

He stood quietly in the early faint moonlight surveying his little field. He prayed a long, painful prayer that the love he had experienced many years ago would be supplemented by the Eternal Source, enabling him to also identify calculated hostility of his fellow men and then extend that love toward them that he had first received at a time when he, too, had hated.

His meditation was suddenly interrupted by a soft, chilling blow that struck about the face and chest. The stench of the manure hurled by the overseer's neighbor from a chronicle of love which he had first fastidiously sterilized, filled the farmer's nostrils.

And the odor of the excrement was very foul.

The overseer's neighbor washed his hands at the farmer's pump and righteously stalked away into the straight and narrow road, bleached by the cold, impotent moonlight.

I never heard what became of the farmer or his field. Some say he was discreetly hounded out of his town and his fields burned by the good folk of the village, whilst his sympathizers stood by and played their guitars and grew their hair. One fella from the next town said that that weren't the way it went at all. Said the farmer that he just stayed there and loved the hell out of 'em. . . Last I saw, the people were suffering powerful famine, even though the grain appeared to be more uniformly plentiful than ever.

As I say, I dunno, I never heard for sure.

I just know that from the little I saw of him the couple years I lived in his town, he was a mighty good farmer.

Sortories Entertain, Begin Bidding System

The four sororities at Western Maryland will sponsor an afternoon tea on March 16, 1966 to present sorority life to the freshmen women. The purpose of the tea will be to acquaint the freshmen with the various members of the sororities.

In accordance with a St. Patrick's Day theme, Phi Alpha Sigma is in charge of decoration; Sigma Sigma Tau will provide refreshments; Iota Gamma Chi will make the freshmen wear tags; and invitations will be sent by Delta Sigma Kappa.

The tea, in keeping with the new bid system initiated in the fall, will be a follow-up of the March 7 assembly. These plans are part of the general effort to revivify the sorority system onto the national basis of attitude and procedure.

Freshmen: Will You be Called?

Very soon freshmen must decide on a fraternity preference, or no preference at all. Freshmen will only see the end result of bidding, a piece of linen finish paper engraved with a plea. But what occurs before the delivery of bids? You, freshmen, must become aware of how you were chosen, before patting yourself on the back. In an attempt to make you aware, I will construct a hypothetical bidding session in a fraternity. Although I was a member of a fraternity, my remarks are by no means unique to any particular organization. Rather, they may be considered a generalization of all four fraternities.

The meeting is called to order with a prayer. After the old business has been cleared, the bidding session starts. In the possession of the fraternity are mug, notes of each freshman eligible for a bid. You had better hope your hair was combed, your glasses straight, and you didn't have an "odd-ball" look on your face when the photo was taken. These will become important later on if a member doesn't know what you look like. When an eligible person's name is brought up there is the inevitable cry, "What's he look like?" After his mug has circulated there is a speaking for and against. Usual comments are, "He's a nice guy, he's dependable, he always treats me okay, he can do a lot for the fraternity."

There is no mention of what the fraternity can do for him! It is assumed that it can do something, but nobody seems to think of anything. Once the prolific character references have been voiced, it's time for the prosecutors to speak up. These guardians of fraternity images are much less sincere than the "for's," and much more bombastic. Remember, it only takes a minority to black-ball. A sampling of comments may go as follows: I saw him hanging around another club room . . . If he's swayed that easily let them have him . . . He hangs around with a bunch of weirds . . . He doesn't fit our image . . . He's always brown-nosing the professors by asking a lot of questions . . . So-n-so said the guy across the hall told him he was told by his roommate that he . . . He's rooming with a freshman who is going another way, so he'll probably go the same way . . . He has a beard and goes with a girl that has straight hair . . . He's an introvert. On and on it goes. If a person is blackballed, the "for's" have another chance to plea, unless time is short and the members have some studying to do. The meeting is adjourned with another prayer.

On the day bids are given out the GIOSEV ones now face deciding which bid to accept. Don't feel bad if you only got one bid. That will just make the decision simpler. Those that received no bids are the luckiest of all. They can sit back and watch the transformation of their friends take place. Then when next bidding period comes around you won't be swayed by romantic visions of fraternity brotherhood. Fraternity brotherhood means carrying a drunken brother's body up to bed and finding each other dates. I am sure there is true friendship and brotherhood in fraternities, but the fraternities had nothing to do with it. It was there before, and it will be there after they leave or quit.

Although many arguments can be voiced against what I have said, I assure you that the general impressions are truthful and accurate. For them to be otherwise would be to commit the same errors committed by bidding. I only hope a number of you will consider what I have said, and perhaps wait another semester before accepting. You are the changing force of fraternities. Without your membership they cannot exist for long. The fraternities realize this, giving you the power and opportunity to change and mold them into organizations that can do something for the members, other than providing parties. They should provide entertainment, but more important, they should help the introvert, help the local community, help the college community, and in the end they will be helping themselves. All of these things can be accomplished in three years by you, the freshmen!

Boyd: The Profane?

Dear Editor: I wish to express my complete disgust with the performances put on at this college by one Mr. Malcolm Boyd. There is no excuse for the use of such foul and vulgar language as that used by him. Certainly there was not one instance where the use of such language contributed anything to what he said. Indeed, it appeared to be a case of vulgarity for vulgarity's sake. But then, was this not to be expected? Boyd has made his name and his bread by sensationalism. He does get paid for these appearances, you know. He knows where his bread is buttered.

What are we to think of those who brought Boyd to Western Maryland? I have been taught vulgarity, like bad manners, demonstrates a lack of respect for others. Are we to believe that Boyd's language during the screeching in Baker Chapel and throughout the show in Alumni Hall was some indication of the respect that Boyd, and those who brought him to our campus have for the faculty and for the students of this college?

I hope that the administration of this school realizes that Boyd was heard also by alumni and people of the community with sons and daughters who will be of college age within the next couple of years. I seriously wonder whether these people will want to send their funds and their off-spring to a college which, in good faith, requires its students to attend chapel services but then fills its chapel with the likes of Malcolm Boyd. Sincerely, Lanny Harchenhorn

Why Grace?

To the Editor:

Why say grace at the evening meal? I think it is an atrociously hypocritical tradition that should be abolished. Every evening some assigned member of the student body, in a humble groveling voice, asks God's blessing on the "bountiful gifts" before them. These same representatives, along with a major portion of the head-bowers, lament about the garbage that is fed to them. They say it isn't fit for dogs; so how come they bless it and eat it? At least be honest. If the food is so poor why not ask God's help in digesting it; but then again, this doesn't help the conscience. After spending a year and a half walking the center aisle, I can objectively report that almost two-thirds of the students are looking around to see who has their head bowed, or are coughing, or are checking out the dame across the table.

I am not against saying grace. Why abort what should be an honest expression of thanksgiving? If you are afraid your conscience will bother you, or of your parents finding out, try the comfort of sheer honesty!

Time for Reform

by Timothy Hart

Rise up, fraternity men! The time for revolt has come, and you must be prepared to fight. If you sincerely believe there is a need for fraternities, then stand up and assert yourself, your fraternity, and your fraternity system. The time for debate has passed; the time for action is upon you. Enough has been said concerning introspection, it is time for exertion.

In order for your fraternity system to exist much longer, it must come to the position of self competition with independence. The first step must be to limit each fraternity within itself, not to emphasize its selectiveness, but to obtain a manageable group. Each fraternity is now bogged down with men who have been called "dead weight," "outer fringe," and, I am sure, many other things. In order to be able to compete with independence, no fraternity system can afford anything which would result in inefficiency. Second in the list of improvements which fraternities must make is that of carrying out a program of activities designed to give the student of the college to produce well-rounded individuals. Don't be afraid to have an activity that does not emphasize a test of masculinity or doesn't gain wide-spread attention. So far, very few areas have been approached with the exception of social functions. There is no reason why a man's joining a fraternity must make him lose his individuality, or a man's remaining an independent must make him gain individuality. This should come from within the man, not from without.

A third area of important necessary strides is that of rushing. What is needed is a conscientious effort to inform the freshmen of the values and disadvantages of fraternities, and to learn all you can about the character of the rushee, so that intelligent bidding can take place. In addition, after attaining fraternity membership there is the point that a man informed about all the fraternities can restrain from hiding behind his walls and making ignorant assumptions or hasty conclusions. Play the game with the entire deck of cards; don't hesitate to let a rushee know your attitudes, for he should join your fraternity and then find out the not-so-good points, it is very likely that he will become disappointed and lose his willingness to support the fraternity, and the system. Rushees have the right to know what they are getting into, as well as you have the right to learn all you can about him.

One other step of necessary improvements is that of a mature pledge program, designed to instruct, test, and train the man in the complexities of fraternity life. Hazing and general harassment accomplish nothing, except his ill feelings and distrust. Treat these pledges as the men you extended bids to.

The above steps are by no means a solution to the problems that exist in your fraternity system, but they need to be made to establish a foundation upon which to build a strong fraternity system. They are steps which can be made from within the system, however, there must be an independent faction with a substantial program and opportunities offering strong competition to the fraternity system. When this competition is keen, the fraternity system will show its best talents and develop itself further.

I have challenged fraternity men to stand up and fight, but I also direct these comments to freshmen and those presently weighing, by their own criteria, the values of fraternities.

"Jaw, Sweetheart" Add Spice To WMC Sports, Greeks, Socials

Beauty Among Beasts by Barb Smith, M. L. Warren Elizabeth Ann Murphy's outstanding personality, popularity, and four-year record of service and achievements has earned her a well-deserved position "High on the Hill." Betsy's triumph (not just the TR-4) in college activities include leadership roles such as captain of the pom-pom squad, the 1965 news editor of the GOLD BUG, and a valuable member of the FAC. Betsy served her sorority, Phi Alpha Mu, ably as vice-president, and as co-editor of the 1965 TORCH.

This lovely, smiling blonde graced the 1965 May Court as the Junior Duchess. The Preachers selected her as their sweetheart. (Reliable sources also report that these qualities were also appreciated by the students at Lech Raven Junior High School where English-Education major Betsy did her student teaching!)

Yes, Betsy Murphy is truly a gem of a co-ed. Mr. Karl Schuele, a well-remembered alumnus, recognized this fact early and placed a gem on the third finger of her left hand. After March 26, Betsy will become a commuter to the Hill. We feel assured that Betsy's "new" career will be equally as successful and distinguished as that demonstrated by her four-year college career.

No Bland Boy Is Kulick by "Trumpet" "All the world's a stage, so watch out for them falling sandbags." Gary Kulick truly can be called that product of liberal education, "a well rounded person." But Gary is by no means bland as are most of these liberally educated roundheads (and not as nebulous as are most of those who appear in this column). (personal opinion) "Jaw" is a senior sociology major who calls the coal mining country of Pennsylvania home, Casandra to be exact. However, unlike Agramemnon's wailing captive, Gary is right at home here in agriculturally oriented Carroll County, Md. Thanks to his rugged childhood environment Gary excelled in high school football and brought his experience here to college where he lettered four years for the Terrors at tackle, serving as co-captain this past season. Gary also won four letters in varsity wrestling, and was elected co-captain this year. For the past two seasons he has been chosen Outstanding Wrestler by his teammates, and just last weekend became Mason-Dixon champion in the 191 pound weight class. Gary is presently serving as president of the Letterman's Club. Gary's "animal" nature (he is presently serving his second term as Vice-President of Delta Pi Alpha) has nothing over his "spiritual" nature. He is an active member of the Newman Club and has been vice-president of that organization. Add to this listing ROTC D.M.S. and Executive Officer. He's too much—you know he's out of sight!

Gary, after his required stint in the Army, plans to attend grad school in Community Planning. Using his success at WMC as a guide, one can predict only success for Gary in the future, if he can only learn to franchise his fratch.

ROTC Cadet Finalists Vie for Scholarship

Seven sophomores of 24 applicants will compete as finalists for the four Army scholarships. The finalists are: Robert Hilbard, Stephen Jones, William R. McNeely, James Morgan, James Resau, Glen Spiegelhalter, and Jerome Wolf.

The finalists qualified by being in the top third of their ROTC class and the top half of their academic class.

These two-year scholarships offer $5000 to cover the costs of tuition, books, and lab materials for the junior and senior years of the winners. The four winners will also receive $50 a month for twenty months.

Mites Break AGT Title String; Leishure's JV Ends Season Terrors Show Improvement

Mites Break AGT Title String; Dietrich-Fanning Duo Donate 38

There is an old maxim that it is easier to reach a winning b-ball team, but the Mighty Mites of the intramural hoop proved everybody wrong by winding up the season in the slot with a perfect 9-0 record.

The Mighty Mites replaced the height with hustle, desire, and a well-rounded scoring punch to wind up as this year's only undefeated quint. The Mites grabbed the crown from the highly favored AGT netmen last Tuesday night in a thrilling 65-59 contest. It marked the first time in five years that the Bachelors did not finish on top. In a game billed as a high-scoring battle, both teams were disappointing in their poor shooting, but made up for it with pure hustle and good defense.

Vince Festa and Tom Fanning, the two scrappy guards for the Mites, kept the backcourt Bachelors flustered through the game with their accurate shooting on defense and Joe Koerner, Earl Dietrich, and Jerry Borja managed to make the most of their size in grabbing more than their share of rebounds. The Mites' defense was excellent in forcing the Bachelors to shoot from the outside and in keeping Bob Hollywood from making many of his flashy drive shots. Not once did the Mites falter despite the constant pressure applied by the Bachelors fast break, and even in the tense final minutes they kept their poise. On offense the Mites took advantage of the defensive tactics employed by the Bachelors to spring men open almost at will. Because of the powerful scoring punch of Jerry Borja and Earl Dietrich, the Bachelors had to put two men on them whenever one of them had the ball. This left one man free whenever Borja or Dietrich had the ball. There was nothing the Bachelors could do but hope they could cover the free man for some part of a defense around the key. The Bachelors never found the right combination.

Top scorer for the evening was Dietrich of the Mites, who total 24 points, followed by his teammate Bill Fanning with 14. Carroll Yingling was high for AGT with 14.

This year's season was by far the best ever at WMC, with encouraging support from 700 fraternal teams. It seems these teams have just as much spirit as the frat teams and are eager to provide keen competition.

Sam Leishure's boys came off a sound 96-65 victory over Frederick Community College to end their sixteen-game season with a loss to Baltimore University.

February 21 ended a long and hard season for this year's JV basketball team. Ending up with a not so impressive 4 and 12 season, however, doesn't come close to covering up the fact that the players and coach had a lot of fun working together to develop skills and better knowledge of the game. There is no doubt that the JV system is an asset to Western Maryland's sports scene. The JV system, under the leadership of a good coaching staff, affords the student a learning situation at least as valuable as the one offered by the study classroom.

In the learning process, the Western Maryland JV's manly performances - teamwork as well as individually. Freshman Bill Dudley sported the highest point average with a solid 24.1 points per game. Bill played in only seven games. The seventh game was the first win on the season for the JV's as they beat four men in double figures to defeat Dickinson 79-72. Dudley broke his foot in a following practice, and the teamwork that took seven games to establish had to undergo another building period. Dudley's scoring punch was missed for the rest of the season. The team had a respectable 69 per cent from the free throw line. Shapiro was tops in this department with a steady 74 per cent.

The starting quint of Dudley,

Davis, Wolf, Shapiro, and Gable did, nested considerably more than 100 points apiece on the season. Team captain Jerry Wolf led the scorers with 172 points in the season. In many high scoring efforts at the end of the season. His high game of 26 points was second only to today's 32 against Lebanon Valley. Wolf averaged 11.1 per game, followed by Shapiro and Gable with 10 and 9, respectively.

Second semester saw the JV bench strength grow when Pete "Gomer" Markey joined the squad. The trio of Markey, Kimer, and Michael saw a lot of action, as all three were constantly vying for starting positions. Leishure kept in the team a constant spirit of competition, and the boys had a fine time working together as a team.

Old Dominion Dominates Mats; Casemen Shine From Behind

March 5, 1966, will be remembered as a very important date in the Wrestling Renaissance brought about by Coach Sam Case at WMC. It marked the final day of the Mason-Dixon Conference Championships in Gill Gym.

The tournament was very much an Old Dominion-dominated event with that college retaining its Conference Championship and sending two of its wrestlers to the College Division Playoffs of the NCAA, with the Terrors in fourth place. Our first four backcourtmen (Baker, Shapiro, Gable and Michael) were out of the contest with five fouls apiece. Coach "Gomer" Markey put in five important points near the end of the five minute period to give the Jr. Terrors the victory, 86-83.

The Mysterious Kid Returns; Mowbray Takes Tennis Reigns

Look! Out on the tennis courts, it's Chuck McKinley, Roy Emerson, No. 1 in the world. Yes, it's "the Kid" - strange visitor from the Eastern Shore who came to WMC with powers far beyond those of ordinary tennis coaches, but who, disguised as Hay Mowbray, mid-mannered Wednesday, the men's tennis and tennis assistant. Admission Counselor, fights a never-ending battle as the protector of the freshmen and assistant guardian of our sacred portals.

But let's turn back time to where it all started. Wray was brought up in Cambridge, famous breeding ground for many Maryland racketeers.

For four years he was a member of the Cambridge High School tennis team, was coached by Howard "Shrimp" Boyce, coach of formerly nationally ranked Terry Campbell and other Cambridge players who have filled number one slots in many Maryland colleges.

man effort, however, is being made to whip this year's edition into shape and if the team can further avoid running into walls and breaking tennis rackets in half, Wray predicts a good season. A big factor will be the unusual turnout of interested and talented freshmen.

"Will 'the Kid' be a hero of a good Don't miss the next exciting chapter entitled "Wray Gives Washington No Quarter," or "Don't Dally With 'the Kid'." Kidding aside, Wray's Mowbray will be a welcome addition to the athletic department here at WMC. He has already gained a great deal of much respect from his team.

SAM LEISHURE

point average with a solid 24.1 points per game. Bill played in only seven games. The seventh game was the first win on the season for the JV's as they beat four men in double figures to defeat Dickinson 79-72. Dudley broke his foot in a following practice, and the teamwork that took seven games to establish had to undergo another building period. Dudley's scoring punch was missed for the rest of the season. The team had a respectable 69 per cent from the free throw line. Shapiro was tops in this department with a steady 74 per cent.

The starting quint of Dudley, was a smashing one. Wolf was high with 24 points as everyone on the team made the scoring column in the 86-83 romp. A solid 78-62 victory over Baltimore Institute.

Sam Leishure's first year as a coach was a good one. Statistically, the Jr. Terrors didn't look so good, but based on improvement and desire, there is no doubt that Sam did a terrific job of cementing a team together. Most of the teams faced by the freshmen were composed solely of freshmen. Such a team from Western Maryland would be composed of our Varley stalwarts such as Smithers, Baker, Gaby, and S. D. D.

There is little doubt that if Sam had had this material to work with, his season record would have been improved immensely.

Perhaps the most exciting game of the season was the clash between the Leishures and the Towson frosh. This battle went into overtime with the score tied at 73 apiece, and with the Terrors in four trouble. Our first four backcourtmen (Baker, Shapiro, Gable and Michael) were out of the contest with five fouls apiece. Coach "Gomer" Markey put in five important points near the end of the five minute period to give the Jr. Terrors the victory, 86-83.

The victory over Frederick was a smashing one. Wolf was high with 24 points as everyone on the team made the scoring column in the 86-83 romp. A solid 78-62 victory over Baltimore Institute.

Coach Case could not say enough for the team, but there may be some indication of his respect for the guys in his statement: "This is the hardest-working team I've ever had; the morale has been excellent. Indeed we can prove of a student body that showed its appreciation by turning out in respectable numbers and cheering enthusiastically."

In regard to next year, Mr. Case was quite optimistic, though his optimism was somewhat tempered by the thought of the coming graduation of Seniors Gary Kulick and Bob Bayse. However, with 14 out of 16 wrestlers remaining to grapple another day on our Hill, we can certainly expect to see the silver lining in WMC's wrestling cloud, especially if we get some freshmen next year of the caliber of Jim King and Mike Simecock.

Outstanding Terrore performance were turned in by Rick Schmetzler, who finished third in the 152 pound class; Jim King, who came in second in his unlimited class, and top-seeded Gary Kulick, who won the conference title in the 191 pound class by defeating Abrams of Old Dominion. This impressive list might have been longer if Bob Bayse had not been injured and dropped from the proceedings at the halfway mark. Bayse suffered some torn rib cartilage, an injury which is not serious but is painful. All of the Casemen are to be commended for their respectable performances. Thanks largely to their efforts, and the coordinated efforts of Coach Case and the Letterman's Club, the event was a spectator's delight.

Schmetzler prepares to pin. There is only one point upon which I disagree with Coach Sam Case. He overstates the success of this wrestling team. It was completely the result of the effort and the innate ability of the members of the team. I and the members of his team agree that there is an excellent Case for another factor.

Diamondmen Eye Championship Renewal; Captains Ingalls, Joyner Boost Battery

turning to their regular positions. Freshmen Vinny Festa, Bill Fanning, and Jerry Shapiro are all eyeing the open outfield berth as well as the positions of the regular starters.

The infield will be experimenting with numerous combinations this season. Junior letterman John Carey will be the most experienced starter, beginning his third year at first base. Junior Butch Behne seems reasonably secure on third, but short stop and second will find Barry Ellenberger and freshman Earl Dietrich, Larry Soder, Phil Riggins, and Gary West all seeking starting positions.

Hitting should improve with the experience of the returning lettermen, the pinch hitting of John Johnson, and the aspiring freshmen. The long ball should play a more important role in this year's success, with Scott Dietrich reinforcing the powerful duo of Joyner and Anthony.

The emphasis this season will be upon experience and the freshmen. The letterman's past performance needs little elaboration in light of last year's Mason-Dixon championship. This freshmen are, by any estimate, impressive. Larry Soder was a high school All-American in both football and basketball. Soder seems to climb the mound and carry through onto the diamond as well. Dietrich, Riggins, and West also show high promise.

March 21 when they play RPI in Richmond.

This year's baseball team has everything in its favor. We will coach him good, and realistic prediction of an improvement of last year's 12-6 record and another Mason-Dixon championship.

Coach Sam Case, when questioned informally, made the statement that this was an "exceptional" season. In review of this year's record (6-7) very much justifies Mr. Case's satisfaction in the performance of the team - particularly when we consider that last year's record last year was 0-10, that all but five people on the team had never wrestled before entering

by Gordon Shelton

On April 2, Western Maryland's championship baseball team starts its regular season play against Loyola College.

Although practice just began last week, coach Fern Hitchcock and many of the returning players feel that this spring's squad is stronger than its predecessor in all departments. This is the eighth returning letterman and the unusual promise of the freshmen trying for the team.

The pitching staff finds itself in all of its regular starters again on the practice field. The versatile co-captain of this year's team, Scott Joyner, will again face opposing batters with his usual mixture of skill and self-composure. Junior letterman Jack Bentham and John Johnson again play the mound and should be in their usual fine form. Rounding out the regular pitching staff is sophomore letterman Ralph Will, another outstanding pitcher and athlete.

The regulars are backed up by Jim Resau, a member of 1965. He is a freshman. Al Kemptke, and possibly sophomore letter-winner Barry Ellenberger, who could step in from his usual infield position. Sentinel will round out the battery with his excellent catching and will be backed up by freshman Greg Kelly.

The outfield should be as potent as ever with Scott Joyner and letterman Joe Anthony returning to their regular positions. Freshmen Vinny Festa, Bill Fanning, and Jerry Shapiro are all eyeing the open outfield berth as well as the positions of the regular starters.

The infield will be experimenting with numerous combinations this season. Junior letterman John Carey will be the most experienced starter, beginning his third year at first base. Junior Butch Behne seems reasonably secure on third, but short stop and second will find Barry Ellenberger and freshman Earl Dietrich, Larry Soder, Phil Riggins, and Gary West all seeking starting positions.

Hitting should improve with the experience of the returning lettermen, the pinch hitting of John Johnson, and the aspiring freshmen. The long ball should play a more important role in this year's success, with Scott Dietrich reinforcing the powerful duo of Joyner and Anthony.

Dietrich, Riggins, and West also show high promise.

Thursday night the Casemen held their annual pre-season banquet at Angelo's. For his scrappy number, Coach Case had a group of new and different faces. To Bob's delight, Roger Shipley, for reasons uncertain, went authentic reproductions of the northern end of a southern bound horse. To Dave Turner, pined more times than any other Terror, went "The Canvas Back Award." To Tom Fowler, who somehow managed to break all of them, went "The Cardinal Rule Award." The race for most Photogenic was really no contest as Gary Kulick won easily by a head. Junior Jim Hyding was the recipient of "the Conditioning Award."

Congratulations to Larry Soder and Ralph Wilson. Both received Honorable Mentions in the all-junior sections in the Southern Division of the Middle Atlantic Conference. Soder was also named to the second team in the All-State listings. And speaking of the Cloverleaf, Richie Egan, reserve named to Dickinson's all-opponent team, ended his Western Maryland basketball career with a total of 1053 points, making him the fifth member of a very select 1000 point career total club. He joins Art Press (472), Richard Kitzberg (1351), Dave Matlock (1301), and Tom O'Malley (1262).

WMC's baseball team could use a man who plays every position superbly, never strikes out and never commits an error - but there's no way to make him into a pitcher's hot dog and come out of the grandstand.

Besides his coveted Most Photogenic award and the Mason-Dixon tournament title, Gary Kulick also managed to garner all three of the matmen's seasonal awards and broke all three of the standing records, while he was at it. Gary took the trophy for our top record-team in the All-State listings, which eclipsed Gil Sminik's old mark of eleven set in 1964. Shaving twenty-five seconds off the old record, Gary took the honors for Fastest Fall with a forty second performance in the Quadrangular Meet. The Outstanding Wrestler award, based on net total point contribution to the team throughout the season, also went to Gary, whose sixty-nine points were good enough for still another record. Apparently, he has to me a man who plays every position superbly, never strikes out and never commits an error - but there's no way to make him into a pitcher's hot dog and come out of the grandstand.

In their most exciting contest to date, the Terrorettes slipped a powerful Morgan State sextet last night by the uncomfortably thin margin of 34-32. Betsy Horn and Ginny Brace contributed a pair of key bonus tosses to deadlock it 32-32. Benny "the Bomber" Bennet's clutch hot dog in the final seconds with a big two pointer from the floor.

Smith Celebrates Holy Week In Religious Drama Program

As the observance of the most significant event in Christian history approaches, Miss Esther Smith will celebrate Holy Week in a religious program featuring a presentation of Michel de Ghelderode's drama, "The Women at the Tomb."
Beginning at 7:15 pm in Baker Memorial Chapel, the program will include two anthems from the College Singers under the direction of Mr. Oliver K. Spangler, accompanied by Joan Humphreys MacDonald on the organ. William Weaver, a dramatic art student, will give the reading of the Scripture and the congregation will join in silent prayer with a passage from the Jewish Yom Kippur service.
Interprets Dramatic Past
In an interpretive reading of de Ghelderode's play, Miss Smith, Associate Professor of Dramatic Art, will turn the imagination back to the evening of the day of Christ's death, when the women of Christ's life are gathered in a small house. Through the roles of the Virgin Mary, Mary and Martha, and Mary Magdalene, the woman who Christ cured, the woman taken in adultery, and the wives of Pilate and Judas, Miss Smith will dramatize the lives of those whom de Ghelderode pictures as "fiery and grievously aimless on the most harrowing night in the world."
Michel de Ghelderode, the noted Belgian playwright, died in Brussels in 1961 at the age of 63. His works are dark dramas which seem to be ahead of their time in their foreshadowing of today's "theatre of the absurd."
Sees Drama as Art
Miss Smith whose special field is dramatic interpretation, chose the play as a project at the University of California several summers ago. She explains that she had always been interested in the area of interpretation but she again "became enthusiastic over the possibilities of dramatic interpretation as an art form, during that summer."

Eric Bentley points out that the play is "one of the few... produced on Broadway (rather than on the streets that cross it)—namely, at the Broadway Congregational Church," and there is a similar story of Miss Smith's first presentation of the drama in Westminster.

MISS ESTHER SMITH

Several years ago, the congregation of the Union Street Methodist Church were faced with a problem when their minister found that he could only be present for the sunrise service on Easter. The members wanted another worship service on that special morning, but the situation seemed bleak until Miss Smith offered to do "The Women at the Tomb." Easter morning came, and the service was so eagerly awaited that Miss Smith found herself playing before an audience with "standing room only!"

SOS Proposes Aid For Appalachia, Caribbean Areas

The SOS is planning two field service projects for this coming summer. They are scheduling their first project to Appalachia and will be returning to Puerto Rico for the third time.

The members have catalogued over two thousand books during the year to take to Panther, West Virginia, where they hope to rebuild a library that was burned out last year. Those who will spend the six weeks in Panther are Dan Bohn, Joan Dowell, Walter Michaels, Will Davis, Jan Hazelton, Casey Henson, and Linda Sullivan.

Four groups will participate in the Puerto Rican project. Maggie Elgin and Debbie Sturdivant will work in either Ponce or Aguirre. David Carrasco, Jeff Ludlow, Chris Connolly, Ginny Brace, and Frank Rinehart will be in Coto. Ralph Wilson, Jerry Wolf, Diane Benhamer, and Diana Long will spend the six weeks in Ensenada; while Ronald Boone, Bill McClary, Nini Sloan, and Pat Perego will work in Castano.

Teams were picked earlier this year so that the SOS could arrange an orientation program. Dr. Griswold has spoken to the teams on social change and culture, and Dean Zepp has spoken on group dynamics. Other members of SOS are giving Spanish lessons to the Puerto Rican teams. Diana Long, Kay Coleman and Bill Deckert are in charge of the orientation program.

Team members attended a covered-dish supper with their parents on March 27. The groups will be leaving at the end of July or on August first. The SOS is hoping to make speaking engagements to raise the money for their transportation. While on their assigned locations, the individual teams will make the plans for the work projects.

Spring Weekend Rocks With The Admirals; Open Party Heralds Annual Festivities

Little Anthony and The Imperials will entertain students and guests at the concert with a variety of music styles.

Spring has returned once again to the Hill and for those students who have not already blown their minds, the IFC-ISC has something to help you along—IFC-ISC weekend—a short cut to Western Maryland's own special type of insanity.

Tonight on the stage of Alumni Hall, Little Anthony and the Imperials will sing in concert. Although Little Anthony is primarily known in the rock and roll halls of fame, all types of music will be presented for your listening pleasure.

The group's well-known records include such favorites as "Tears on My Pillow," "Take Me Back," "I'm on the Outside Looking In," and "I'm Hurt." Little Anthony and the Imperials record for the D.C.P. label. Little Anthony has made numerous television appearances, including a spot on Ed Sullivan's Coast-to-Coast broadcast and on an hour long TV special from New York. Little Anthony has been featured on the radio from the Fontainebleau in Miami to night clubs and hotel spots in New York.

Operation Match Finally Arrives; WMC Recognized in National Game

In spite of the fact that WMC was omitted from Yale's Guide to "Where the Girls are," the school was finally recognized by the nationally published Operation Match.

Operation Match is the brainchild of several Harvard students who realized that most college students know what kind of people they enjoy dating. Blind dates were fine up to a point, but there had to be a better way than the present system. This is where Operation Match comes in. The test is composed of two parts. The success of Operation Match depends on the accuracy with which the person answers the questions. The factors in the first section are of an absolute type and indicate your interests, attitudes, background and reactions in various situations.

Part two of the test contains questions which you answer twice—once for yourself and once for your ideal date. The idea isn't necessarily to match you with someone similar to you, but with someone who meets your specifications. This section insures that the person, not the computer, does the choosing.

When Operation Match receives a form, the statistics are placed in an IBM 7090 computer memory, and remain there for the rest of the academic year. The matches will be mutual, chosen on the basis of your desirability as well as your date's desirability to you. The names, addresses and telephone numbers will be mailed to you.

After taking the test you send the answer sheet, along with $3 to Operation Match, Compatibility Research, Inc., P.O. Box 72, Cambridge, Massachusetts. The entire idea will provide an interesting and possibly rewarding experience in an attempt to meet your match.

"Freedom of Drink": Will Campus Be Wet?

As part of its new broad-minded expansion program, the WMC administration has decided to loosen its restrictions on campus drinking. In fact, it was proposed that the administration allow complete freedom of drinking on campus even as early as 1967.

Students will no longer be carded at the Carriage House. All that will be necessary in order to be served will be to state that one is a member of the WMC Drinkers Club. A discount of 12 1/2% will be given.

Other proposals presented were an evening cocktail hour before dinner, to be held twice a week in McDaniel Lounge and a course for incoming freshmen given the evening after. At 101. Students with advanced standing can qualify for Intermediate Drinking 103 by passing a capacity test.

"Enough booze to float a ship," motioned one dorm representative from ANW. "Let the beer, Colt and Cokes, a nighty, hangover and maid service will be provided."

Students will no longer have to "take the Fifth" when asked to give bounce on dorm windows to the tone of that blood curdling scream, "let me in."

Instead of "are those bottles really empty?", they will be full. April Fool!

Maryland Colleges Accept, Ratify State SGA

Representatives at the Maryland Association of Student Government's conference enjoy a sit included in the after-dinner entertainment.

The General Assembly of the Maryland Association of College Student Governments unanimously adopted its constitution and elected officers on Saturday, March 12, at WMC.

The first Spring Convention of the Association began Friday, March 11, at 4:30 pm in Eldredge Hall with the registration of 16 of the 20 member colleges.

Dan McCreedy opened the banquet, and President Ensor gave the closing. After Dan officially welcomed the delegates and guests, President Ensor remarked favorably on the activities and purpose of the convention. Senator Tydings, who was the president of the Student Government at University of Maryland in his junior year, spoke about the necessity of college students to take an active part in their state government. He challenged college students not only to become aware of the world and national situation, but also to take an interest in the state, which had been slipping out of the hands of the people.

Chapel. Allan Ingalls, the recorder, gave the credential report, which informed the assembly of those delegates who would vote and the procedure for voting. Dan McCreedy, the chairman of the constitutional committee, gave his reports.

Next, the assembly elected its new officers. They are: secretary, Robert Hearn (WMC); vice president, Tom Hendrickson (U of Md.); recording secretary, Mary Midgett (Notre Dame); treasurer, Jim Kenny (Frostburg). The five council seats, consisting of two delegates to the state meetings, are: Morgan State, Mt. St. Mary's, Towson State, University of Maryland and WMC.

This convention is the culmination of a series of meetings held throughout the year at various locations in the state, and many long hours of planning and hard work on the part of all the participating colleges.

The constitutional committee met on December 28 in Wheaton. The fourth meeting, at University of Maryland, was a state leadership breakfast held in cooperation with Governor Tawes on February 12, 1966.

The Association has received letters from Governor Tawes, Senator Robert Kennedy, Governor Gill, and Senator Brewster commenting on the value of this organization of student governments, and wishing the Association the best of luck in its endeavors.

ODK Sponsors Symposium Stressing Fraternity System And Individual

Omikron Delta Kappa, the men's leadership society, will sponsor a symposium entitled The Fraternity System and the Individual at 7 in McDaniel Lounge on Tuesday, April 5.

In accord with its custom of presenting each year to the Western Maryland campus a program of relevance to the college community, Omikron Delta Kappa is preparing a study program to continue into the next year of the male at Western Maryland.

Such a study is tentatively to include an examination of the incoming freshmen to determine many of their prevalent attitudes and values as possible, and a study of the changes which Western Maryland effects upon these attitudes and values with its various social, academic, intellectual, and extracurricular influences and pressures.

One area relevant to the study which is currently of great interest to the college community is the fraternity system and its effect not only on the individual but also on the campus as a whole. The purpose of Tuesday's symposium is to present the vital issues to the college community of freshmen, independent, and fraternity men are urged to attend the symposium, which will take place at 7:00.

Pratemics have agreed to move their meetings to another time so that the program may take place. Tim Hart, Jack Ballew, Bob Rosen, Mike Itoine, Bill Falkner, David Cohen, and Bob Hollywood will present their views on the strengths and weaknesses of the fraternity system, the good and bad effects of the system on campus life and thought, and on individuals, whether they are independent, or on the fringe of a fraternity. It is hoped that the symposium, through a public airing of those issues which have long been discussed in private, will initiate an open dialogue that has thus far been lacking among the members of the college community.

Symptom, Not Cause

The problem on this campus is not environment, it is heredity. Fraternities may not be "useful," "democratic," or "purposeful," but they were here before we arrived on this campus and they may still be propagating after we leave.

Abolition of the fraternities perhaps would be a positive step toward campus unity and more world-centered concern; but their abolition still would not answer the college's need for active, meaningful, and individual-centered activity. The Administration should not take away any of the only pleasures a typical student can find on this campus. Creating a suitable challenge and incentive to take its place. It would be analogous to taking away the honey and serving the students vinegar. If the Administration would take an active interest in the welfare of the students and provide more opportunities for social activity and off campus, the need for fraternity control of all major social functions could be proportionately reduced. The college doesn't have to pay for the parties and dances that the fraternities sponsor; the money comes out of the students' pockets. The college has, in effect, put its hands on the reins for its students' social well-being. By keeping inactive it has allowed its students to divide into eight factions with their main purpose being to entertain and divert their members.

The festering source of the matter is that if a student finds himself without a Greek affiliation, his existence on the Hill will be practically barren of social life. He will be a social outcast, in feeling and in fact. He is the rejected nickel from a machine that takes many 'wooden' nickles.

However, once a member of one of these Greek organizations, he often makes lasting friendships which serve to enhance his college experience. One doesn't miss what one has never had, but it would be very painful to many if something that has become personally meaningful were abolished.

It is good that the issue is being faced now. Fraternities and sororities have been making a penetrating evaluation of themselves since the statement on abolition was circulated Tuesday afternoon. They are trying to find their weak points so they can attempt to correct them. Can the Administration of WMC say it is doing the same? AC

Threat of Creeping Vegetable-ism

by Cary Wolfson

Certainly so much has been said about the hypocrisy of such college backbones as we want courses, professors who don't care and ridiculous in loco parentis rules on curfews and drinking, that it could say would be only another lost grain in the proverbial sand heap. Rather, what I would like to examine is the attitudes prevalent among the future teachers, doctors, scientists, or career men and women of America.

It is generally bemoaned that when this generation takes its place of leadership in society, America will become a country headed by radicals, pinkos, and demonstrators. Yet nothing could be farther from the truth. The typical college student is a functional illiterate; a pseudo-educated vegetable. The collegian is, for the most part, all sensation and no feeling; all regularization and no creation. It makes me cringe to think that these people, as adults, will read a fascinating novel by Camus, or Sartre, or Hemingway, and flip back and reread their underlinings. The student is being trained to respond in a predictable way to oversimplified cues.

As I said before, I am concerned with student attitudes, and thus I am not making an indictment of English professors. If the students care enough to show that they felt there was more to O'Neill, or Camus, or Golding, than 10 points on the next test, their instructors would show a lot less reluctance to changing the approach. But the student does flip back and reread their underlinings; is a unique individual, he when we feel we have no new comes more and more an automaton as his college experience increases. If this were simply college backbones as we look it would be bad enough, but there is an unlimited amount of transfer into his personal life.

The college has made love and passion sordid by driving them underground (the motel, or lost week-end) or to places too uncomfortable or public to be meaningful (backseats, back-camp, the clubroom). The student's values have been twisted completely. His mind dwells constantly on that three-letter word that ends in X. He has become completely self.

Afraid of love. He is downright impossible to have any meaningful relationship, whether sexual or chaste. He is afraid to get involved, "afraid of getting hurt," or "afraid of getting caught." He is afraid of being profaned by a four-letter word; a word which is the basis of every evil of the world's great religions: Love.

Years of Indecision. Undoubtedly these college years are years of indecision, but they shouldn't be years of no decision. The college student is so afraid to give that to his parents, to society, and most important, to himself. He can not afford to be narrow-minded, stagnant, or complacent. It is his duty to be pliable when necessary; to come out of his personal grandstand—whether it be the 7-day a week library; the omnipotent fraternity—sorority complex, or the blandness of a textbook education—and get on to life's playing field. Trustees Meet, Abolish Tenure

At the last meeting of the Board of Trustees, held on March 22 at the Sheraton Belvedere Hotel in Baltimore at 8 p.m. Mr. Paul F. Wooden, president, proposed a change in the tenure policy to the Centennial Expansion Program.

Philip Schaeffer, Treasurer, stated firmly that he was disappointed with the College's tenure policy, whereby a professor cannot be dismissed from his position after a three-year period unless he is guilty of some sort of heinous crime or is otherwise unseemly in his behavior. "This system," he said, "has led to a lazy, devil-care attitude on the part of many of our professors. They have found that they need not maintain optimum performance to maintain their positions on the faculty. While the tenure system may be a means of giving the professor security, it is a better new professor have only stayed until they have been offered tenure, and then have gone off to a better-paying job elsewhere. I feel that in the interests of a better intellectual atmosphere at WMC, this tenure system should be abolished."

Chairman Give, in response, chuckled. "You know what they say folks: 'A new broom sweeps clean...'"

Students Evaluate
John H. Edwards suggested that faculty performance be evaluated by the students. "After all, when you pay $30 per credit hour you should have to take what you get and the Students have the right to evaluate their professors, just as they have a right to evaluate the work of their students. We don't want any 'no-no's' on the faculty, do we?"

"No!" chorused the trustees. The issue was brought to a vote and the tenure policy was abolished by a vote of 18-0.

Gotta Go, Go
Other, smaller changes were made. No longer will The Methodist Church contribute 7% of the college's income. "It's time we stood on our own two feet," said Lowell S. Ensor, WMC president. Also abolished was compulsory chapel.

Lease Bussard remarked, "It's like anything else: if you gotta go, you go, if you don't you don't." There's no question the kids sit for an hour unless they want to. We aren't toilet training them, we're training them to think for themselves. And lastly, Jacqueline B. Hering was appointed to consult the Women's Council and Dorm Council about the girls' curfew. "Isn't it ridiculous!" she exclaimed. "I hated them in 1951, and I know the girls must hate them still. There should be a two o'clock curfew on Friday and Saturday nights, and one o'clock on every other night, at least for the juniors and sophomores. Give us our own latch keys. We're not running a jail, we're just providing a place for them to live while they're here. Chaque'un a son coin de curfew say!"

The meeting was adjourned with the singing of the Alma Mater and April Fool!

Modern Marriage and Miscegenation enslaved to the myths of pure blood and race. The hysterical question, "Would you want your daughter to marry a Negro?" simply reveals the guilt of the white man who has been usually blaming the Negro woman for entries—from our founding fathers' mistresses to the present day.

Freedom of Choice?
The State does not have a right to dictate who should marry whom. This is a matter of personal freedom. Negroes are not dying to marry white people (let's face it, we are not all that irresistible), but two people should be free to decide whether they want to marry or not.

Now it is naive to assume that this freedom to choose will not be, culturally, very hazardous. We do not live in Hawaii and in our country interracial marriages pay a severe price. The responsibility for paying the price, however, should be the people involved, not the sons in the State capital. Parenthetically, it is interesting that even in our American society, marriages between the non-Caucasians and Orientals are almost completely accepted.

It is also naive to suggest that interfaith and interracial marriages are usually happy ones. Any clergyman or marriage counselor has abundant documentation to the contrary. But the Church and State have determined to encourage such a couple after they are, in fact, married, there would not be as many divorces among this group as there are at present.

All of One Blood
A Christian is free to say the unsavable about interracial marriages. Let it be said that the Old and New Testaments (and the Koran, for that matter) are quite clear that God made all people of one blood and that there is no such thing as Jew or Greek, slave or free, man, male and female; for you are all one person in Christ Jesus." (Gal. 3:28)

Let it be said that there is nothing Biblically, morally, and rationally wrong with intermarriage. Let it be said finally that marriage is not primarily a matter of sex, race, or religion, but a matter of persons and love!

Are Pickets Effective? Let's Try It, Find Out!

Of what value, if any, are demonstrations on a college campus? Do they accomplish anything worthwhile, or are they simply a device to get off steam? With much more than a little circumstance? While it would be nearly impossible to come to any concrete conclusion about them, it is possible to look into them a little more closely, if for no other reason than to clear up any misconceptions that may have arisen. About a year and a half ago a group of students at the Berkeley campus of the University of California conducted a "four-day" campaign to test the administration's free speech policy. That campaign gradually grew into a major demonstration attracting national publicity and providing a starting point for similar outbreaks on other campuses. Students, realizing that they no longer had to accept without question the administrative policies with which they disagreed, began campaigning for changes.

The demonstrations usually began with a relatively small number of enthusiastic students, and grew as more and more people became involved. At their largest, however, they involved only a small percentage of the entire student body. But remember, when you consider of a large university, ten percent of the students would be numerically equal to the total population of Western Maryland College.

Not only students demonstrate, however, for often they are supported and joined by faculty members. In fact, at times the faculty members have initiated protests. At St. John's College, for instance, 200 professors, supported by the students, demonstrated for more academic freedom and higher salaries.

The reasons for the protests are varied. They range from broad political and social controversies such as the Vietnam war and segregation—University of Kansas students demonstrated against segregation of the university's fraternities and sororities—to topics of purely local campus interest. Many of the problems now being protested were previously considered the prerogative of faculty and administration: curriculum, grades, faculty hiring and firing of faculty. With an increased sense of freedom, however, students are demanding, and getting, more of a voice in these matters. After all, who is more directly affected by them?

A problem of local interest is the student's right to action at Yale University to protest the firing of Bernstein for not having the requisite number of publications to be granted tenure. Students at the University of Washington staged a protest against forced membership in the student association, while at girls' curfews were the problem under attack at the University of Chicago. (Say, that sounds familiar.)

The means of demonstrations are almost as varied as the causes. The most widely published, of course, are those involving attracting national publicity and providing a starting point for similar outbreaks on other campuses. Students, realizing that they no longer had to accept without question the administrative policies with which they disagreed, began campaigning for changes.

The effectiveness of such measures has been established in many cases. At Swarthmore, for example, students were successful in having their Friday and Saturday night curfews extended from 1:30 to 2. The Yale demonstrations brought about a reconsideration of the firing of Bernstein. Some schools, such as Brandeis University, have established a system whereby students take part in criticism of courses and professors.

Not all protests, whether or not they reach the dimensions of an actual demonstration, are successful in achieving their aims; but at least they do serve the purpose of drawing attention to the problem. This may ultimately bring about some sort of resolution. Are they are unquestionably effective in bringing the administration to realize that the students have a right to be heard on matters that so closely concern them; that they want a change to be heard.

Some schools, such as Brandeis University, have already granted students an active role in deciding campus matters, and more seem to be following suit. Note: The information presented in this article was provided by Mr. Jerry Solomon from a project conducted by one of his classes.

Through Lieb's Lens
The Oscar
by Ron Liebman
This week I thought I would treat you, dear fans, to a typical glorious Hollywood extravaganza. As I walked out of the theater I swore that this one would positively be the last ever for me. The movie is Joseph E. Lewis' production of Richard Sale's novel, The Oscar. Before The Oscar receives the coveted Lieb's lens rating, I feel that it is my duty to point out some of the truly magnificent aspects of this mammoth motion picture. They are: an immense all-star cast, beautiful color photography, heavenly sets and costumes, and an infinite amount of pure lavishness. The rating for The Oscar is a two out of a possible ten.

Let it be said that there is nothing Biblically, morally, and rationally wrong with intermarriage. Let it be said finally that marriage is not primarily a matter of sex, race, or religion, but a matter of persons and love!

Fraternities, SLC and the Gold Bug

Open Letter

This past month has witnessed a definite formulation of ideas for and against the fraternities and the fraternity system at this college.

The system itself has been suspended between stagnation and revitalization. The fraternity men acting together have established a system under the ratification of the new IPC Constitution that will hopefully lead to a more mature development of fraternity cooperation. Fraternity life should be providing for the potential maturity that stands behind learning to "serve every fraternity. Those who choose to alienate themselves from their fraternities fail to realize this potential for their own growth in close association (in brotherhood) with others of dissimilar attitudes. The system and the fraternities are both improving. Nevertheless, the fraternities must be cognizant that in order to fulfill their roles as social institutions their members must become more responsible for their actions and those of their brothers. This can be achieved (contrary to the loudly expressed but little accepted attitudes against fraternities) through the organization of the fraternities.

The fraternities have most recently come to a decision concerning their relationship and their judgment on GBX for its open party of March 12 because of their lack of controls at that time. The responsibility of the college community when sponsoring these parties has been recognized both by GBX and by the fraternity system. Such responsibility hitherto not accepted points to only one reason why the future of fraternities will be greater than in the past.

Fraternities can develop leadership potentiality, a feeling of group organization and a practical field for their activities effectively in the social situation. Insofar as they have failed to make full use of the human resources they have available, but this is the failing of any organization until it becomes aware of its faults. Fraternities at WMC remain an asset to the education of this campus and will continue to play an even more important role in the educational process in the future.

Brotherly Love

To the Editor:

After reading the letters by Misterns Idoine, Cohen, and Sautter in which bitterness, confusion and misconception are so freely promulgated, I feel prompted to reply to their mimeographed protests. Unfortunately for the freshmen each letter writer fails to realize the interdependence of this system. This in itself turns their arguments to mistrusts, and misleads the potential members of the fraternities.

One of the main themes of the letters was the lack of "community service" performed by the fraternities. It should be made clear that fraternities on this campus were originated primarily as social organizations. If anyone wishes to perform "community service" there are hundreds of groups available to join such as the Red Cross, SOS, YMCA, Lions Club, UNICEF, NAACP, etc. The Fund, March of Dimes, Union Street Tutors, Masons, etc. This is not to say fraternities are not to be on the front page of the news. For instance, A&G each Christmas gives a basket of food to a needy family in the area. Also, the fraternity system at WMC has a Red Cross Girls' Reformatory to entertain the girls with basketball and volleyball games. Activities such as these are not new to the front page of the news as Mr. Cohen suggests when he states that, "Even the constructive projects of fraternities are not a tree of selfish political motives."

A second common theme is "loss of individuality." To be more specific, the organization are transformed into a common form. But to say, for instance, that to be a Bachelor you must play basketball for the school or intramural sports is misleading. We have our athletes, but we also have our scholars, extroverts, introverts, musicians, and artists. A generalization was the "fraternity freshman ties." In my freshman year I was most friendly with men who since have become members of the "fraternity." Today, I still number among my friends most of these older acquaintances. If you break ties that prevent the joint of our fraternity surely your "friendship" during the freshman year was not a very deep one. Again, the generalization of "unwritten pledge of estrangement . . ." and " . . . brotherhood contradiction inherent in WMC fraternities," do the system injustice.

Mr. Sautter's description of bidding leaves much to be desired. From my experience I know that A&G does not blackball a prospective pledge because of picture, friends, second or thirdhand information, or any of the other stupid reasons for their rejection. Nor are our bidding sessions stopped because of lack of time. Our sessions have lasted as long as seven hours (from 3 am) with two or three controversial people alone being discussed for two of these hours. Mr. Sautter probably receives these "genes" from his previous fraternity and is wrong to apply his feeble knowledge to the other three fraternities that possess the knowledge of their workings.

It is obvious that I advocate fraternity life. I have thoroughly enjoyed my three years as a member of the fraternities, but that individuals must have an equal place with the fraternities. However, it is a shame that persons who depend on (and the school administration) do not realize that abolishment or improvement of the fraternity system will not create this equality, that though the system has its faults, it is not the source of the chaotic social life found on this campus. Bolting the nail on the head when he called for an evaluation of the entire student life. The building of the dorms will create the facilities for the independents, but this is just a small step forward. The administration must get off its butt and realize that the SLC should have the authority and the money to run the majority of the social life of the campus. Taking this as a basis, the independence of the fraternities will enable the fraternities to "spend more time and money on cultural and educational projects, and provide specified amounts of money for future expansion of housing and dining facilities, and be an integrated members of the college community." The emergence of a strong, universal student organization will create an atmosphere in which all the fraternities and the independents can exist harmoniously. Then and only then will the prospective pledge see the good and bad aspects of remaining independent or joining a fraternity.

And, so, Misterns Cohen, Idoine, and Sautter, if you must improve your position on campus fine. However, I do not do this at our expense since deep down we are not the source of your unhappiness. Remember, you may have your parties, or homecoming banquets, our participation in intramural sports, decorating uniforms, and dancing, searching along super highways and garbage dumps for Marlboro packs to win a TV, composing the songs for the "Olive Oil" skunk's footprint from the Washington Zoo, etc. This is your choice. However, WE LOVE IT.

Sincerely,
Rowland Creitz, Jr.

Honesty at last!

Reflections to the Editor:

The majority of freshmen speak of their independence to "fit in" academically, and above all, socially. There is constant pressure to "play the game" of the rules and not be too different. This pressure reaches its peak when it becomes time for sorority and fraternity pledging. From this point on, one is classified on which group he joins, if any. His remaining college years are spent in trying to live up to or down to his "label." But how can a superficial label define the true work of a person? It arose by any other name would smell as sweet."

Once one has been accepted by a group, one should know his individuality to be swayed by that group. There are a great many people who join a particular organization for the sole purpose of using its name to predict their actions. For example, the name "Phi Alpha" equals "party girl." Therefore, a girl who joins this sorority is said to be rather uninhibited. (It ain't always true!) Another drawback of social grouping is that many allow this to become a barrier. Malcolm Boyd told us how his fraternity life prevented him from getting to know many people that he wanted to know. We should keep in mind, for along in a small group, ignoring the rest of the world and what it has to offer.

Each year one must decide whether or not a particular group will contribute to his growth. Everyone has got to learn to think for himself. The cause once he is out in the world there is no label behind which to hide. If one could choose one word to guide us in life we would choose the word "HONESTY" for if one is honest with himself and with others, and sincere in all that he does, he will be a person who is respected, regardless of his classification.

Sincerely,
Lynn Browning

Why Not Change?

To the Editor:

Let's not throw out the baby with the bathwater.

Having read the statement on the abolition of fraternities I am assuming that sororities will be the next target, we find grievous fault with the fault-finding.

It seems a great shame that those of us who do not like "the system" should be the ones to be deplored. Instead of giving of themselves and doing something about changing the system as it now stands, they are washing their hands of it. The fraternity system has its faults (though how many of these faults are real is a moot question), but cannot something be done to alter the present structure without abandoning it entirely? The ones who are deploring are the ones who should be trying to change the system.

Within the present structure there is plenty of room to improve. Why do a great deal of backtracking to fulfill needs which could be met without abolishing fraternities? Sororities can be maintained; civic activities can be pushed; independents can be provided with facilities equal to those of fraternities (especially with the new dorms)—all without demolishing the fraternity system. Everything need not be torn down to start afresh. The watchword should be "change—not destroy."

Why Holy

Also inspired by letters recently appearing in the GOLD BUG, I too would like to comment on the idea of being "holy."

Today, there is a large tendency on the part of some of the older generation to try and make a conservatively held belief that are out of focus with the changing world today. In regards to religion, most of the older generation are trapped in their religiously far behind the fast pace of modern theological thought. What I am questioning mainly in this letter—honesty is that constitutes being "holy" why?

Years ago, most people were satisfied with the church as a kind of religious club where, through active membership in the altar guild, church school, or choir, one could be more assured of attaining God. It is

by Ron Boone

Johnny was an average high school graduate from an average middle class neighborhood. Johnny, however, was unusual in two respects. He had no physical defects and he was especially well liked for getting along with people.

SLC Advises Campus Groups

Behind the mechanization of administrative and student policy-making organizations, is a little-known group called the Student Life Council. This council, composed of faculty and student members, achieves what the campus as a whole is still striving for—complete communication between adults and youth. Coming together once a month not to "meeting of the minds," the council evaluates campus programs and then advises the group in charge (whether it be the Student Government or the Administrative Advisory Committee) of its decisions. In almost every case, the recommendations are followed.

When the SLC was formed, it outlined its purpose as follows:

To concern itself with campus life in all its phases . . . To sound out student opinion and on the basis of its deliberations, to make recommendations to the various branches of the staff upon whose cooperation the action depends . . . To discuss faculty recommendations to add its own authority to those it believes should be recommended to student organizations . . . It does not interfere with organizations as they do their duties . . ."

In the past few years, the SLC has initiated the honor system, chapel, assembly attendance and worked to include Easter as a vacation. This year they are trying to make the library staff remain open on week-nights until 11 pm and to promote a more cultural-intellectual atmosphere on the campus.

Current members include: chairman, Dr. Jean Kershner; secretary, Diane Bennekemper; member, James Robinson; member, Ronald Dean Jr. Zepp; Mr. Colver Jones; Linda Spear; Daniel McCreedy; Allan Ingalls; Alva Baker; and Phillip Mervin. This spring applications will be available for sophomores and juniors to apply. The SLC functions under the premise that "education is a twenty-four hour process and not just something which takes place in the classroom."

—a church where orthodox and tradition reign all powerfully—necessarily holier than to day's churches with jazz services and upbeat, natural language? In the church today people tend to get bogged down in the same old symbols and traditions—in too many doctrines. What do we really mean by what we say in church? It is a better question when you ask when we use a word like God? Is freeing the word of God from a creed, liturgy and language of a bygone world so atheistic?

God is still very personal today: How much more personal can you get than talking to a God who is neither "here" nor "there," but the very basis of our individual existence?

Today's secular world is a changing one where we should all be drawn to a reappraisal of what our faith means to us individually. This means forgetting that religion you are sort of into and forgetting what faith your parents are and by rethinking your own religious position in terms of what you really believe—not be discarding your beliefs, just by questioning them. You can't exist dormant in today's world as a kind of "holy" background like trying to fight the Civil War over again—It just can't be done.

Linda Sullivan

Johnny's average middle class parents wanted to send him to a small, average, church related liberal arts college out west where they knew he would be comfortable. So Johnny went. But when he got there, he found he wasn't very comfortable. In fact, he was humiliated.

After an embarrassing loss to hear the word fraternity more and more and came to suspect it as at least a part of the reason for his dilemma. One day he stopped a fraternity man to ask him some questions. He opened simply with "George, what is a fraternity?"

As time went on Johnny began to hear the word fraternity more and more and came to suspect it as at least a part of the reason for his dilemma. One day he stopped a fraternity man to ask him some questions. He opened simply with "George, what is a fraternity?"

Johnny was a little distressed that night as he lay down to sleep. A vision of Bob Berthel had just before him. To see people Bob was a series of labels—Omega Delta Delta, senator, varsity athlete. To Johnny, who was just Bob, the vision slowly faded and Johnny began walking in search of him.

For a while Johnny just wandered. Then in desperation, he stepped to the Omega Delta Delta, fell down a flight of stairs, and halted in front of the club-room door. The door opened and a hollow, shrill, and hideous laughter echoed in his ears. "Is Bob here?" Johnny screamed trying desperately to be heard. Everyone ceased what they were doing and looked to the door. "Oh my God!" Johnny gasped. He closed his eyes tightly, rubbed his hands over them roughly, and then opened them again. Every face was Bob's. His fists clenched tightly, every muscle of his body shrank and his eyes were forced shut. Then when he opened his eye-splitting laughter—HA HA HA HA HA—physical defeat—HA HA HA—defeat. Johnny's eyes opened almost involuntarily, widened, and then closed tightly again. "No, no, no," sobbed Johnny, burying his chin in his hands. The faces were featureless. The mocking laughter came again. Finally the laughing degenerated into a soft hum. Several minutes passed before Johnny recognized the familiar tone of the alarm.

Johnny learned quite a bit that year. The spring when the fraternity men had come down from their self-righteous seats of social discrimination and his classmates were leveling in the artificiality of their new found acceptance. Johnny "the unaccepted" became Johnny "the rejected." He had many didn't need it. He could live and learn and grow without it. Johnny was free.

Three years later, Johnny spent his last year of graduation in sober reflection. Johnny thought about his classmates that night. He said a special prayer.

"Lord, help them to see that a fraternity isn't necessary on this or any other campus. Help them and his classmates to know they can express. Help them to find something to reform. "Help the freshmen too. Let them know that rejection by three is not rejection by six. Help them to see that an image, or a jacket, or a club-room is no place to hide. Lord, help them to see that they are not from themselves. Help them see that their education should direct them to freedom—not add to their burden. Help them know Suffering is far more meaningful than superficiality. Help them understand that one or two defects don't make them defective. Lord, Help them see that they can live and grow

Maybe We're Hurting

Since it is not New Year's Eve or the end of the school year, I am going to give you some reflection for reflection on the student philosophies of the year. Rather than set myself up as a judge I prefer to quote students' opinions. Although they are direct quotes, few will deny that these were probably said. Oh well, I'll refer this to you because I am sure that "a very nice" idea.

College is where we come back to rest after a long summer of fun "in the cold, outside world." It came back because Ocean City is closed and there's nothing better to do . . . It's a hell of a lot better than getting drafted . . . Or working as a secretary . . . Or working . . . Very nice, very nice . . . My parents don't give me an allowance in the summer. They suppose I'll be a better worker when they can tell their friends their kid is going to "College" . . . Besides, where else can you find a manager of a bygone world? Very nice, very nice . . .

College is where you're bored to death by the professors . . . You're bored by professors who are bored to death by the students . . . What do you want to do—be a brownie? . . . Very nice, very nice . . .

College is where we should all be drawn to a reappraisal of what our faith means to us individually. This means forgetting that religion you are sort of into and forgetting what faith your parents are and by rethinking your own religious position in terms of what you really believe—not be discarding your beliefs, just by questioning them. You can't exist dormant in today's world as a kind of "holy" background like trying to fight the Civil War over again—It just can't be done.

Students Extend Selves — Act in Black Belt

Teachers Will Help!

To the Editor: Because students too often do not see their teachers functioning in other than classroom and guidance roles and because of the great and immediate importance of students' rights, I want briefly to tell the students about the current efforts being made on their behalf. In 1960 the American Association of University Professors began a working on a policy regarding the academic freedom of students. Other groups, representing administrations and educators, have also been engaged in formulating such a policy. The Western Maryland chapter of the AAUP, whose membership comprises about 80% of the full-time faculty, has devoted a sizable chunk of time both this year and last in studying, and in suggesting revisions to the tentative policy statement forwarded to us by the national AAUP.

AAUP Sets Guidelines
Students at WMC would be surprised to find out the degree to which the AAUP statement seeks to recognize and to widen their exercise of freedom as mature and responsible citizens. Guidelines are set forth on classroom activities, on student records, on student affairs on and off the campus, and, finally, on the procedural standards to be used in disciplinary proceedings. A couple specific provisions will show the attitude of the framers towards students. Too often in the past, students' records had on them both the academic and disciplinary performance of the students, and such records were handed out to whomever wanted to see them, whether it be a prospective employer or the P.R.I. Under the new statement, the academic and disciplinary records would be kept separate and access to them would be set forth in an explicit policy statement. Another example that is highly relevant these days. The statement provides for student freedom to invite and to hear any person of their own choosing. Under this section neither the faculty nor the administration would act fairly if they tried to censor such guest speakers by withholding campus facilities for the sole purpose of preventing the appearance of the speakers. The responsibility of guaranteeing students' rights rests with the faculty and the administration. Such a policy statement reaches far, and nobody knows exactly what the final draft will say. College Curriculum

Given Frank Look At Initial Meeting

A uniquely stimulating student-faculty meeting was held Thursday night to discuss changes in the college curriculum. The sixteen students and an equal number of adults, including several interested (!) non-teachers, seriously considered such progressive proposals as: interdepartmental, life-related courses; elective courses outside the major field in which only pass-fail grades are given; giving colloquium courses for credit over a full semester. It was also revealed that the faculty has been devoting much consideration to a switchover to the three-semester system, facilitating a lighter overall subject load.

A second general meeting will be held on Saturday, April 16, at 1 o'clock. All students are urged to come and discuss this most important topic at this afternoon-long workshop.

is clear: the statement holds students to be citizens, not children—with all the rights and responsibilities of citizenship. Raymond C. Phillips, Jr.

by Chris Connelly

This Spring vacation, four Western Maryland students, Richard McCanna, Jack Ballard, Bill McClary, and myself, traveled to Lawrenceville, Virginia to participate in a voter registration campaign.

Although we were contacted by the YWCA, we actually worked under the local NAACP of Brunswick County, which organized the drive. The SCA sponsored the four of us. Our headquarters was St. Paul College, a small Negro college of 400, supported by the Episcopal Church. We found it to be small in many ways, and received little support from the student body for our project.

There were 24 students from five colleges: WMC, Boston University, DePauw University, Bucknell, and Smith.

When we arrived Saturday afternoon, we were tired and appreciated the fact that little had been planned for us. Twenty-four hours later, however, we became a little impatient with the apparent lack of organization. The "orientation program" was a local NAACP meeting on Sunday. Thanks to the questions and probing of the students we managed to glean enough information to give us a little direction. Later we finally met with the director of the program, Mr. Beverly Taylor, who told us that we would be on the road the next morning at 9 o'clock.

The county we worked in is right on the North Carolina border. Brunswick County, (part of what is known as the Black Belt of Virginia), is an extremely rural area, most of the inhabitants being small farmers. There are approximately 22,000 residents, 59% Negro. Although the majority of eligible voters are Negro, many of them have never exercised their right to register and vote; consequently, the local government is entirely white.

The school situation is an example. There are two public high schools—one Negro and one white. Although legally there is integration in the school system, a Negro can attend Brunswick High only by requesting a transfer. Few do for fear of trouble and social ostracism. The Negro high school is severely overcrowded and ill-equipped, but last year when a new high school was under construction, the County Council claimed they had no further funds for education and sold the half-finished building to the private, white Brunswick Academy. Several months later, the County Council allocated $28,000 of public funds to this same Academy. No objection was legally raised.

With county and town elections coming up this year, the local chapter of the NAACP decided to organize a campaign to register as many Negroes as possible before the primaries in July. It was our job to contact every eligible Negro voter educate him as to the importance of voting, and encourage him to register.

We divided into six groups Monday morning and set out to cover our first district. Luckily, we were aided by local Negro high school students. They knew every road, home, and family in the area. They were dependable, perceptive, and seemed deeply concerned about their present situation and their future. Through them we discerned the attitudes of this generation of young Negroes in the South.

For five days we canvassed the county. By Friday at one o'clock we had contacted a majority of the Negro voters in Brunswick County, and had promises from many of them to show at the Courthouse in Lawrenceville on Saturday to register. Of these approximately fifteen hundred names, we felt that we would have accomplished a great deal if only five hundred of these actually did register.

A large percentage of the people we contacted had never registered or voted before. This is due in part to the literacy test which, administered by white registrars, made it nearly impossible for Negroes to qualify for registration. With this abolished by the Federal Government two years ago, the only deterrent to registration was the poll tax. On Wednesday of last week we received the news that this too had been declared unconstitutional.

During the week we talked to many people who complacently listened, saying "yes" to every sentence, and never absorbing anything they heard. We also talked to people who showed a genuine interest in our project and seemed to comprehend how their voting could bring about a change. One very old woman I spoke to, who had never voted, assured me she would this year. She said, "I see that my voting won't change things for me but it might for my grandchildren and that's the important thing. I'm just the beginning."

We met one farmer who was two years ago, realized the necessity for Negro representation in the county and began his own personal campaign for voter registration. He has since encouraged over one hundred of his neighbors to register and vote.

Our purpose in the campaign was to contact every Negro in the community, but sometimes we found ourselves at the door of a white family. On such occasions, we delivered our dissertations on the importance it was to vote and that we hoped they would come and register on Saturday—we omitted only the part dealing with the NAACP. Undoubtedly, the most effective campaign would have been one which contacted every eligible voter in the county, regardless of color, but because of time and our sponsorship, this was impossible.

We had been told at the beginning of the week to expect to find a great deal of fear among the Negroes in the county. This, however, did not turn out to be the case. Most of the men and women we talked to were extremely friendly and seemed more ignorant of their rights than afraid to utilize it. In several areas, though, where Negroes live as tenant farmers on a white man's land, we did experience instances when we could summon no one to the door even though we knew people were in the house.

In the week we were in Virginia we became very aware of the absolute segregated atmosphere in the area. We heard stories about the "white" ambulance which was called to an accident recently, only to turn around when it found out a Negro had been injured. And about the segregated Episcopal Church in town whose minister "baited the service and dismissed the congregation" because of students from the Episcopal-supported St. Paul's tried to attend. We confiscated Ku Klux Klan posters around the countryside. Once Bill stopped at a "white" gas station and asked for several dollars worth of gas. The attendant surveyed the occupants of the car, two of whom were Negroes, and curtly replied, "We're all outta gas."

Since we left Friday night we as yet, have no idea how successful the registration was on (Continued on page 5)

Low on the Hill

Beah, Wilyom Deserve April Honor

Bill Fools April

In keeping with WMC traditions, that of doing small things in small ways, it is a pleasure to honor Bill Spangler as one of the recipients of "Low on the Hill." As a matter of fact, Bill could be one of the greatest April Fools jokes seen on this campus in a long time.

Known as William by his friends and many other things by his fraternity brothers, this dehydrated math major hails from Chatham, New Jersey. Bill is a transfer from Pinnocchio University and has adjusted to campus life on the Hill very well. Not only has he excelled in his academic pursuits, but "the Nose" has many outstanding credits to his name in the way of extra-curricular activities. For the past two years Bill co-captained the soccer team providing coaches and players throughout the Mason Dixon and Middle Atlantic Conferences with many laughs. However, he still claims he's a star. His theatrical talents terminated with his outstanding, but dubious, portrayal of "Hoss" in last year's Junior Fraternity. As intelligence officer in the ROTC program, "Gidget 007" has been cited as a Distinguished Military Student. The Truth were to be known, Bill was the only cadet to lose his socks at Summer Camp last July. A member and tireless worker of Alpha Gamma Tau Fraternity, Bill served as first semester social chairman and worked like a Trojan in planning memorable social functions.

When Bill graduates this June, he plans to go either to graduate school or to Vietnam—whichever offers him the best deal. But whatever he does, or wherever he goes, Bill Spangler will still be "Low on the Hill."

Bear Fools Bill

And speaking of small things, we now introduce the female recipient of "Low on the Hill"—Lynne Mark, affectionately and otherwise, known as the "Bear."

Freckles, red hair and a karate chop distinguish this pint-sized dynamite from the run-of-the-mill college student. A product of the great New Jersey swamp, she blatantly reveals her barbie background in her mispronunciation of the King's English. To date, she is the only "Fyah Warden" in Blanche Ward's record.

Unable to keep her mouth shut, or her foot out of it, the Bear has had ample opportunity to voice uninhibited opinions about campus life. For the past two years she has served as vice-president of the class and with this experience in view, capably led the Phi Alphas as the Big Bad Cow, first semester this year. As a glorified newsboy, she served as Circulation Manager for the GOLD BUG and in the realm of school spirit, is known as the pom pom with the shortest skirt. To top this, she was type-cast as the brazen and boisterous "Mary" in the Junior Follies.

As a student teacher, Lynne is presently corrupting tender young minds in the early science of biology. With this devilish influence on the youth of tomorrow, the world will truly reach April Fool proportions and Lynne will forever be "Low on the Hill."

The Bicentennial Celebration of American Methodism will be the featured program at the Baltimore Civic Center on Friday evening, April 22, at 7:30 pm.

registered, I don't think any of us would consider our week unfruitful. Personally, we gained a great deal, and, I think, our presence in the community did a great deal for the morale of Negroes of Brunswick County. As strangers we stirred up interest where none had been before and helped the people to realize that change can occur, things can be better, if energy and enthusiasm are present.

Elections Near, A Time For Serious Decisions

Preston Balderson Contend For Class of '67 Presidency

Class elections will be held on April 29. Balloting will be held at the student center at the same time as the SGA elections. The slate of candidates for senior class officers include Michael Preston and John Balderson. Mike, who was president of his class this year, is an economics major from Baltimore and a member of Delta Pi Alpha. He plans "to strive to maintain class unity and cooperation in the hope that the relationships made during the four years here will last in the years to come." Mike feels that if some of the major dashes are given back to the SGA by the IPC, that the senior class could sponsor one of these dances like the successful Sadie Hawkins Dance they sponsored in their freshman year.

John Balderson, co-director of the Junior Folies, hopes that "through the activities of the Class of 1967 we can keep the class informed of the issues pertaining to us. I hope that we can work closely with the SGA and that we will become an active part of the school." John is an English major and a member of Gamma Beta Chi.

Senior candidates for vice-presidency include Joseph Giradina, Lynn Browning, Constance Vanderloo, and Michael Parris. Running unopposed for the office of treasurer is Carol Wilkie.

Carolyn Henson, Jacqueline Raynor, Barbara Hetrick, and Christine Connelly are candidates for secretary. Candidates for the Class of 1968 are all unopposed. They include Bruce Wells, president; Richard Boswell, vice-president; Linda Sullivan, secretary; and Gordon Shelton, treasurer.

The Class of 1969 has nominated William Dudley for their president, David Danley for the vice-president, and Mary Massey for secretary. The office of treasurer is going to go to Russell DeHart, Jean Kirtwiese, or James Godwin.

FAC Orientation Program Begins For New Members

The 1966-67 FAC is training diligently for the orientation of incoming freshmen next year. A workshop was held the week of March 27 to begin instructions. On Sunday night a reception was held. The responsibilities of the Freshman Advisor were informally discussed on Monday. The next day the discussion topic was "Working with the Faculty Advisor," and on Wednesday Dr. Miller spoke on Counseling—the "semi-professionals" role. The workshop concluded on Thursday with "Contacting the Freshmen Summer and Orientation week."

The FAC is attempting to revise its policies for next year in order to fulfill the needs of freshmen more adequately. A ratio of 1 FAC member to every 6 freshmen with the advisor living near his advisees is being planned. Advisors will be assigned to freshmen who have majors in the same general category of the humanities, or science. Since seniors are often faced with other responsibilities, it is hoped that soon all FAC members will be juniors.

Leroy Reminisces, Bids WMC Adieu Guthrie Assumes Managerial Post

At the close of this school term, Mr. Donald A. Guthrie, currently owner of the Hamilton House in Westminster, will become the manager of the College Bookstore.

Following graduation from Westminster College in Westington, Pennsylvania, Mr. Guthrie entered the retail business. He moved to Westminster when he assumed management of Hamilton House in 1958.

Mr. Guthrie will replace Mrs. Grace Z. Leroy, who has managed the bookstore for eight years. Mrs. Leroy has asked to be relieved in order to pursue other interests.

Speaking about her stay at WMC, Mrs. Leroy said that "my eight years at WMC have been enormously fulfilling and some of the happiest of my life. Managing your bookstore (which admittedly sometimes managed me) has been a privilege, for there were such exciting challenges and opportunities.

"I would thank so many who have enriched these years—an Administration which has given a generous reign to the Bookstore's development, a faculty and staff both cooperative and cordial, a student body which, without unduly restricting 'yellow cards' and paperbags, has been a joy and a delight.

"I take with me a veritable kaleidoscope of treasured memories, for my years on the Hill have been rich in new experience and old truths reaffirmed."

Junior Class Stages Broadway Comedy Hit "Birdie" Feathers New Nest In Alumni Hall

The Class of '67 will present as their Junior Folies "Bye Bye Birdie" on May 5-6. The committee and cast have been working hard under the direction of John Balderson and Joyce Ferguson, co-directors. The class decided to break tradition and produce a well-known Broadway musical comedy, rather than an original one.

"The cast has been rehearsing four nights every week, and the various committees have been working long and hard hours. The Junior Folies this year will be unquestionably the best folios that Western Maryland has ever seen," say directors Joyce Ferguson and John Balderson optimistically.

The remaining cast consists of Clayton Leister as Charles F. Maude; Nona Browne as Gloria Rasputin; Dennis Wool as the Mayor; Suzanne Sumati as the Mayor's wife; Helen Voe as Mrs. Merkle; Barry Canaras as Mr. Johnson; and Larry Dorsey as Harvey Johnson.

Priest Reviews Concepts of Ecumenical Movement

Reverend Joseph M. Connolly, a Catholic priest, will speak at chapel on April 24th. Father Connolly's topic will be "The Roman Catholic's Contribution to the Ecumenical Movement."

After graduating from Loyola College, Father Connolly served in the Marine Corps. He entered St. Mary's Seminary in 1947 for studies in philosophy, and in 1948 he entered the Pontifical Gregorian University in Rome for the study of theology. Father Connolly was ordained in 1951.

Besides serving at St. Charles and St. Gregory's Churches in the Baltimore area, Father Connolly is the Archdiocesan Director of Radio and Television and a member of the Archdiocesan Liturgical Commission. In 1965 Father Connolly participated in the television series "Faith to Faith." He has done a tremendous amount there to foster understanding between

His Church is actively involved in world affairs. Father Connolly is the head and he has done much work with the Negroes in the Baltimore parish by improving conditions there under the Western Improvement Organization. His work includes jobs, legal justice, proper education, and housing for negroes.

Seven years ago, he was one of a few Catholic priests to participate in an early church demonstration led by Bishop Carson Blake, where he was arrested in Gwynn Oak Park.

When the equal housing bill was defeated in Baltimore by the City Council, Father Connolly, calling a spade a spade, preached against the Catholic members and their priests, who rejected the bill of the City Council, for not showing the Church's position.

The student body will elect the 1966-67 SGA officers from a slate of thirteen candidates on April 29.

ROTC President's Review Climaxes Year's Cadet Activities in May

The ROTC President's Review will take place on May 3. At this time the battalion will be presented to President Ensor for his inspection in a passing review. Culminating the year's training activities for the cadets, the President's Review will include the presentation of awards for outstanding cadets. Visiting dignitaries will also be present at the review.

This year's ROTC sponsors, the girls elected by the companies to represent them in the parade reviews, are Carolyn Seaman, Battalion Staff Sponsor; Virginia Hess, Band Sponsor; Martha Happel, Honor Guard Sponsor; Diana Long, A Company Sponsor; and Anne Spencer, B Company Sponsor. The sponsors will escort the visiting dignitaries in the President's Review.

Each year about this time in a poorly attended assembly a few people express their wish to be elected to office in the Student Government Association. The typical Western Maryland Reaction is "Echhh!" Why should I vote in the SGA Election? There is every reason to vote in this election as Dan McCready says "Even though it sounds carry the SGA is the voice of the students." It is the one legitimate, recognized avenue open between the students and the Administration.

Three years ago the SGA Finance Committee was established. This committee receives control of $12.00 per capita of the Student's Activity fee. This adds up to the time of $10,000 a year. This is student money in the hands of regents of the Student Body. From this amount the Aloha, the Gold Bug, Contrast, the SGA itself and the classes receive their respective cut. This Finance Committee composed of students who decide what to do with our money. The money which remains after these initial expenses are taken care of is set up in a loan fund.

This year the IRC borrowed money to foot the bill for its sponsor of the Student Body. The IRC borrowed money to finance the IPC week-end. This year the IRC borrowed money to foot the bill for its sponsor of the Student Body. The IRC borrowed money to finance the IPC week-end.

This year the SGA has been directly responsible for the improvement made in ANW, held Homecoming and is responsible for all activities in connection with the crowning of the May Queen and her court. The SGA has presented a formal petition to President Ensor that the new dormitory be named Henry Hall and has also begun a Helen of Troy Memorial Fund, the monies of which will be used to furnish the lounge in the new dormitory. Present projects that the SGA is involved in (through the Student Life Council) are investigating improvements of the food service in the dining hall, looking into improving conditions and hours in the library.

That is what the SGA has done this year and its potential is unlimited. You name it and the SGA is the existing body through which it can be accomplished.

Nominees To Campaign For SGA Offices

Each year about this time in a poorly attended assembly a few people express their wish to be elected to office in the Student Government Association. The typical Western Maryland Reaction is "Echhh!" Why should I vote in the SGA Election? There is every reason to vote in this election as Dan McCready says "Even though it sounds carry the SGA is the voice of the students." It is the one legitimate, recognized avenue open between the students and the Administration.

Three years ago the SGA Finance Committee was established. This committee receives control of $12.00 per capita of the Student's Activity fee. This adds up to the time of $10,000 a year. This is student money in the hands of regents of the Student Body. From this amount the Aloha, the Gold Bug, Contrast, the SGA itself and the classes receive their respective cut. This Finance Committee composed of students who decide what to do with our money. The money which remains after these initial expenses are taken care of is set up in a loan fund.

This year the IRC borrowed money to foot the bill for its sponsor of the Student Body. The IRC borrowed money to finance the IPC week-end. This year the IRC borrowed money to foot the bill for its sponsor of the Student Body. The IRC borrowed money to finance the IPC week-end.

This year the SGA has been directly responsible for the improvement made in ANW, held Homecoming and is responsible for all activities in connection with the crowning of the May Queen and her court. The SGA has presented a formal petition to President Ensor that the new dormitory be named Henry Hall and has also begun a Helen of Troy Memorial Fund, the monies of which will be used to furnish the lounge in the new dormitory. Issues of Frat Control News

Alumnus Reminisces

To the Editor:

In 1957 I chose to spend four years on the Hill instead of a closer school because the Hill had a strong campus life. In a few short weeks of attendance I found this campus life was generated by its fraternities and sororities. As I read your News letter (Alpha Gamma Tau) it was quite evident the same campus life exists through activities of its frats and their sisters. What could replace the loss of such organizations, their activities and brotherhood? Unless there is a sound answer to this question the consideration of abolishing such groups is both foolish and dangerous to the special way of life our campus is known and loved for by her alumni.

Aside from social activities, it plays an important role in a student's life and education which I am afraid is too often overlooked by the students and administration. As a trained professional social worker I have become increasingly aware of that magical word "process" in a man's life. Within the fraternities the school would be solely a center of education—a sterile academic world. How would a young man be prepared to become a member of an organization or company; to carry his responsibility for its success or failure; to depend on his fellow members and to be dependent on their acceptance of their own responsibilities as they are on his? This cannot be taught in a classroom but is an integral part of brotherhood and life in business or professional practice. If frats are abolished can the administration fill this void? I doubt it, not in terms of any specific administration strengths or weaknesses, but in terms of relationship. No one can dispute the relationship of the members in a brotherhood, or the fraternities to each other and to the campus as an entirety. The relationship is there and is needed. The school administration cannot replace this irreplaceable relationship because by nature of its function it must maintain a different relationship to the student and campus activities.

—I feel fraternities must remain on the Hill. As for the Bachelors—good luck and remember it was being Bachelor and not Bachelors that caused many such crises throughout their glorious years. For myself—it is simple—no Bachelors, no Alumni.

Open Letter

To the Editor:

The Fraternity system at Western Maryland College is now under direct fire from a group of individuals who feel that the fraternities are not serving a useful purpose to the college community. It may be stated that the abolitionists feel that fraternities do not serve a useful purpose; that is they do not say that fraternities are all bad but rather that the balance is in favor of the term side. It would like to see one who would attend a meeting with the abolitionists at which their views were expressed to the fraternity members present and we, in turn, attempted to present our personal viewpoints. The abolition movement started on shaky grounds and still is on shaky grounds. The position paper appears to have been written for the purpose of all its starts off in vague generalities which can neither be proven nor disproven. Secondly, specific instances of their own experiences are used to generalize for the entire male population of the campus—this is not fair!

These generalities and instances cannot be proven or disproven because they are a matter of opinion—Why, then, do they ask the members to defend themselves? The fraternities have rightly declined to do so. I feel that the people who organized this movement have not looked around them as much as they might have.

The proposal is to eliminate the fraternities so that discrimination, pressure and unfairness now existing would be removed. When the members call them fraternities or whatever groups of people with similarities will congregate, select a leader and develop a membership (discrimination). Also in this group will be found social sanctions—both positive and negative which will govern the behavior and interaction of the group. There will be competition among these groups which, at times, goes a little wretched.

These groups have no names and are not called fraternities but do exist and we see them in the "outside world" where they are called cliques. By eliminating the fraternities some of the ills of this school would be corrected. How would abolition change matters when it can be seen that only replacement groups would form and function very similarly to a "Fraternity"? This is the real work and this is the real work here—-to function in a real world such as the one we face when we leave here. These people wish to live in a Utopia idealistic intellectualism which may be good, but not practical here and now.

Fraternities function now just when they were initiated in 1929—SOCIAL. Not just parties and dances. Those who see only this miss a great deal that fraternities have to offer. Specifically in social interaction and responsibility. The individual is provided with opportunities to lead or to follow or to support. It is democratic and discriminating (we discriminate when we simply select a seat on a bus but we do not discriminate when we close personal relationships??). The individual learns to live with and among these people who have similarities but still many many differences. This is growing toward adulthood and giving a chance to learn now instead of the hard way later.

Fraternities do not stifle individuality in my opinion, but if they do then I ask the abolitionists to show me this in more than several instances. The Fraternities are a reflection of the entire school and society. They are not closed to change and probably do need constructive reform but let's not get rid of them until we have tried to help them. The abolitionists who left their own fraternity must decide honestly if they cried for change in their fraternity before they left it. If they did not then maybe they missed a big chance.

I think the fraternity men and the entire college are entitled to specifics and in black and white the charges placed by the abolitionists rather than a blanket indictment of the entire system on broad generalities. They should look at the campus as a whole and get to work rather than selecting the Fraternities which they were unhappy as a starting place. Their suggestions if they are approached properly, "Civility is not a sign of weakness and sincerity is always subject to proof" (J.F.K. 1961 Inaugural Address). We challenge their sincerity.

Grad Lauds Death of Apathy

To the Editor:

Certainly any recent alumnus of Western Maryland College is pleased that the days of complete apathy at our Alma Mater seem to be over.

The atmosphere of open discussion and reexamination of cherished patterns which the GOLD BUG has reflected is a distinct credit to you of the present student body. WMC has begun to catch hold of what is good here in Berkeley. But there are two ways of doing this, both current here. There is intelligent, reasoned discussion and there is the kind of argument which must be supported by attacking the motivations of anyone who disagrees. These attacks, here in Berkeley, are often joined with action and rebellion for the sake of action and rebellion. But WMC may well need none of that right now, so I'll talk only about "getting Personal."

What about fraternities and sororities? Is all the truth on one side? Is there only one position for a sincere student to take? I doubt it. Someone at the College—a fraternity brother—made a remark to me once which I disagreed with at the time but which makes sense in this particular situation. He said that changing a student's own's sole was among the most important problems. In a college of Western Maryland's size, there is no way of doing a kind of individuality through virtual anonymity, as is possible on a campus like the one here. There will be social groups. Don't we, as individuals, tend to choose our associates too narrowly? Isn't Mr. Advance right when he says that fraternities can provide for "growth in close association (in brotherhood) with others of dissimilar attitudes"? And isn't Mr. Sautter right to find it possible that bidding in relationship which may not have been conducted on a higher level than in the past? Aren't many people right when they say that fraternities have often acted in a hostile, biddling manner? Aren't many people right who say that fraternities have not been really dead in the end of one year but have become a lot deeper, were it not for such people which (for example) is suspicious of "outsiders" invading the inner sanctum of the fraternity section? Isn't it possible for every upstart to have at least one extra ally outside his fraternity? Above all— isn't it possible for the fraternities to learn what the Student Body has learned—that "education is a twenty-four-hour process"? What kind of education are you providing for each individual within your "club"? Have your fraternities brothers or sorority sisters become more mature people than your group's influence?

In short, I think the fraternities and sororities can have—probably should have—a future at Western Maryland. But unless they start desiring to have a future, they won't.

It's The Only Way To Get A Man To Camp

The snatch of news scurried from Grill to Dining Hall. It fluttered down to McDaniel and BW, ruffling the feathers of even the coolest chicks. From room to room the chicks clucked and pecked at the strange tearing of the fabric.

FRIEND OR FOE? Out of the vast wasteland from the wilds of Western Maryland, trudge two rugged soldiers, Mike Washburn and Charley Moler who suspiciously investigate their newly acquired unidentified object.

Merger Preserves Remains

The snatch of news scurried from Grill to Dining Hall. It fluttered down to McDaniel and BW, ruffling the feathers of even the coolest chicks. From room to room the chicks clucked and pecked at the strange tearing of the fabric.

A guy's voice, husky with emotion, cracked. "When I pledged my undying devotion I knew it was silly, that I was wrong, but somewhere else I knew it was right. The wind sighed through the tree above his head. Another guy put in selflessly. "I agree with what it says, but I gotta do something." The answer to the dilemma hit them forcibly. In unison they cried "Preserve the Remains!" "FORMALDEHYDE!"

They stormed to action, marched down the hill gathering forces as they went, ranks of (alas) . . . black and white, red and blue. As the sun blazed down they forged off toward Levine chanting. Formaldehyde. Save our Pride. Formaldehyde. With us abide. Meanwhile emergency meetings had been called at B and P headquarters. Outside, Christmas tree lights, symbol of love and hope, blined in the nights. For the men FOR-MALDEHYDE wasn't enough! (Men, we need a strong communal action," cried the leaders. "A Fifth Dimension must be born!" cried many. Excitement rose to an unbearable pitch. Suddenly, otherworldly waves of spontaneous communication began to glow between the B and P section.

Behold! A healing light gleamed from within the ferment of decay!

And then It Happened.

On April 1, 1966, this reporter could hardly believe his eyes!

From all over, from the Washington Zoo, where industrial Men were gathering skunk tracks, from garbage dumps, from The Homestead, from cleaning paint brushes (used to paint parking meters), and from their corners in the Grille, Men gathered. The B's gathered in front of Alumnae and the P's congregated in front of the gym. Dressed in insatiable principles, they marched with new dignity, formed ranks with new pride. The bugle sounded. The men. Glee fully, joyfully (oh, what a sight) they joined hands, B's and P's forever mixed! Hugging and kissing they began to cut their jackets in half! Round and round the chapel they circled singing—

"I've stopped the purge
We MERGE We MERGE
To compromise we surge
We MERGE We MERGE
Up from the football field where they had been rolling in FOR-MALDEHYDE. Waving banners upon which their slogan was emblazoned, they came out strong. What a combination! The All-Inclusive Frat!! One Grand and Powerful organization!"

As they cut their jackets into quarters a roar went up from the fortresses of McD and BW and, what about our pins and our parties! The cool chicks wailed miserably. But those galsant men came to the rescue. They donated all 25,000 of their Marshboro packs (now common property) to the weeping women in order to sponsor their annual educational field trip to Carling Brewery! As the merrymaking went on far into the night the strains of James Brown and his Famous Flames playing an immortal "Ballad of the Green Bree" drifted across the Hill. K. I.

The Movement

"We the undersigned students of Western Maryland College feel that the fraternity system should not be abolished."

Two weeks after the appearance of the Position Paper on the Abolition of the Fraternity System, the members of that system, in IFC assembled, have finally articulated their position. Their one-line declaration of the status quo is based upon the eminently reasonable assumption that the Fraternity system does not need to state its position, aims, or plans for reforms, because everyone knows that it is a good and meaningful pursuit. The short, but emotional reaction to the paper when it first appeared began to cool as the reforms, so quickly drawn up by the fraternities, were voted into oblivion in the IFC.

One wonders what ever happened to those valiant patriots who vowed to resign from the fraternities if reform did not take place. They, too, have returned to the ranks of those who do not wish to have waves through their swimming pools. It is not unreasonable to suggest that if a thing is worthwhile having, it is worthwhile maintaining and tending. Religions, philosophies, and nations repeatedly have had to justify their existences and defend their tenets. If they could not they have been replaced by ideas or institutions which have more to say for themselves and which are able to show their worth. The opportunity was provided last month by Omicron Delta Kappa for the System to present its honored position in a formal position. The fraternities unanimously backed-down, which term I used advisedly. The reasons given were: 1) Our lack of effect, become pro-abolition since most of its members had signed the Paper; 2) the fraternities wished to avoid heated debate and argument at the meeting; and 3) the topic of the meeting, they said, had been changed because of the appearance of the position paper. In response to the members of ODK were merely sponsoring the program and would not present their opinions. Moreover, if several members had not signed the Paper, ODK would obviously have been pro-fraternity; but this, of course, would have been just. 2) A spokesman (1) of various persons presenting positions for the consideration of an audience; no debate, heated or otherwise, is included. 3) The topic, "The Fraternity System and the Individual," had been planned months in advance of the drafting of the Paper and was, from the outset, to be presented by students both pro and con.

When the Paper came out it was not clear to anyone wishing to sign it could see certain specified people. Also, meetings to explain the position were held in strictest confidence so that they would not feel that their chances of being bid were hindered. The choice of resigning or not responding was left up to the individual. The IFC, on the other hand, has indicated a door to door solicitation in the reshuffle sections to recruit signers for their awful document. A more flagrant pressuring and rushing process has been set up and carried. Members of fraternities are being sent right to prospective pledges, who are asked to sign. The reminding eye of the big brother, a paper which shows their support of the System. What happens to the freshman who does not want to sign the document so he does not wish to ruin his chances of joining a fraternity? Many would certainly be ashamed to lack in effect, become pro-abolition since most of its members had signed the Paper; 2) the fraternities wished to avoid

A further pressure placed upon the freshmen is the fact that, if he wants to get out of the system, he must sign by a certain date. He has no choice, under the present system of sectioning, but to join a fraternity. This is not to mention that the male student pays the same room and board. It should not be the prerogative of the fraternity that its members should have special accommodations for the same price for the mere reason of membership in a group.

It is an anal comment on the reaction of students to the criticisms presented by the "abolitionists." Many students have felt that the Paper is an honest in proclaiming that the criticisms do not apply to them; they are not stereotyped. They are not stifled. They are not unresponsive to relevant issues. The reason, however, may be the same as that which renders us unable to see our own eyes. We are so much the anyone that we cannot see it. This is not to set the "abolitionists" up on a pedestal, however. Their intentions are like that of Socrates, not that they are any better or wiser than the others, but that they see their faults and the faults of the system and wish to engage in. At the same time, it appears that we will need more of this type of person if the needed reforms and new ideas are to be initiated.

All that we can do at present is to question, criticize, and suggest. We are not to expect of the campus. If the fraternities do not feel that they must justify their existence and meet criticism, then they have reached the end-point in their evolution and must die and be replaced.

Draft Exam Here Reclassifies Men

The Selective Service Qualification test will be given on campus on May 14 and 21. The test will be given to all students who wish to take the test. The test is an application from any draft board.

The duration of the test is three hours but examinees are to report at 8:30 am and will not be released until approximately 1:00 pm. It is extremely difficult to advise students of the likelihood of their being reclassified. IA. Much depends on the extent of manpower needs to meet the Vietnam war and the available non-student pool in the area for which your local draft board.

It does not appear reasonably certain that some students will be drafted beginning this summer from the football field where they had been rolling in FOR-MALDEHYDE. Waving banners upon which their slogan was emblazoned, they came out strong. What a combination! The All-Inclusive Frat!! One Grand and Powerful organization!"

As they cut their jackets into quarters a roar went up from the fortresses of McD and BW and, what about our pins and our parties! The cool chicks wailed miserably. Apathy: No Vacancy In SGA Frats Build Men

This article is riding on the year's largest wave of student interest in the Student Government. This apex results from the annual crisis of officer elections, spreading hope that the recent disinterest will be alleviated in the general mood of criticism apparent on campus.

Last year at this time, the SGA could not dream up even the present response of candidates. Yet, the question remains: will the interest last and generate to involve the entire student body? After all, we must admit, regardless of where the fault lies, the Student Government has failed to live up to its name. It is rather a government of nor by the students.

Of course, the standard explanation is student apathy but it is hard to comprehend that the atmosphere of Western Maryland College could be so lethal on the enthusiasms of high school leaders. The students may not be as indisposed to help themselves as this situation appears. Perhaps they do not find that the SGA does anything for them. In other words—What good is the SGA? Numerous achievements could be cited from the work of the present administration such as the correction of fire hazards in Albert Norman Ward Dorm. However, the concern is with the potentialities of next year's SGA.

The college administration and all off-campus agencies recognize the SGA as the voice of the student body. If the students would more vociferously express its will to their representatives perhaps then they could act upon it. The situation is doubly unfortunate: The SGA is as equally unknowing of the students' will as the students are of its willingness to act. Perhaps student recognition of the organization's capacities would add the glamour necessary for general support.

Perhaps you argue that the Student Government controls only mental and petty tasks. In that case, why preserve an outdated and stagnant institution? It could be dissolved and its responsibilities delegated to various student organizations or agencies of the administration. For example, Mr. Schaeffer, the College Treasurer, would decide how much of the student activities fees each of the student organizations and publications would receive. And then who could speak for the students?

Perhaps an unrecognized fact concerning the SGA is that it is a political institution which must act within the limits of diplomatic decorum. Diplomacy is, of course, not the most direct method and certainly not effective against all obstacles. Success may be slow or impossible because of these obstacles.

The Student Government has all the facets of a power structure. The executive branch is now under campus scrutiny. The campus became fiercely aware of the legislative branch in the controversy over Article 8 of the scheduling policies. The Men's and Women's Councils as agencies of the SGA could be termed the judicial branch.

Politically, the SGA lacks an essential requirement for good government—good citizens. If a student may call himself a good citizen then and only then may he exercise the right of criticizing the Student Government. P. A.

To the Editor:

In the last issue of the GOLD BUG there appeared an article by Ray Boone entitled "An Average Man With a Serious Defect." Along with several other letters and sage essays declaring the absolute uselessness and even very harmful effects of fraternities this one added its voice of experience.

According to Mr. Boone's vast store of knowledge of fraternity matters, the Greek organizations do discriminate against eligible persons because the eligibles have physical defects. To anyone who has had any part in Fraternity activities it is obvious that this obligation is ridiculous. It appears that Mr. Boone, having exhausted the valid criticisms of fraternities and the fraternity system must now turn to wild, irrational accusations.

Certainly the fraternity system at WMC is not perfect, far from it. But to those of us who view the system from the inside, it means a great deal. Mr. Boone asked, through his defective Johnny, what fraternities are, what they stand for, and what they do. To oversimplify for the sake of space, a fraternity is a group of men bound together by common interests who learn something called "brotherhood," and who enjoy sharing their experiences with each other. Fraternities do stand for "brotherhood" and someone who has never experienced it, it is an intangible. Brotherhood is being mobbed by forty-five guys when you turn in your bid; brotherhood is going up a night of your time to help another brother study for a test; brotherhood is standing out in a cold, snowy night snowing a girl who wears a brother's pin; brotherhood is staying up all night to decorate for a dance; it is intramurals, pulling together to make a project go over, Hell Week and Hell Missions that bring men closer than they thought they ever could be, it is all this and a hundred other things. But most of all, brotherhood is a feeling you have, a good feeling, even when you're just sitting around during a ball session with your brothers. Yes, Ron, there is a thing called brotherhood, and if I haven't explained it fully, it's because there is something that can only be felt that I can't find words to express. As to what fraternities do (besides, of course, parties, the only social life on this campus), they provide many opportunities for leadership—academic, administrative, athletic as well as social. A fraternity teaches a man responsibility and, at the same time, to rely on others. Being in a fraternity helps one to respect the judgment and rights of others as well as to have one's own opinion valued and sought after. Of course there are parties, because the fraternities on the Hill are social fraternities. Maybe if Johnny would have kept his eyes and ears open a bit more he wouldn't have had to ask George all these questions in the first place.

Undoubtedly there is discrimination when a man's name comes before a fraternity to be considered as a brother, but this discrimination is not unreasonable, laughing derision as Mr. Boone thinks, but quiet, logical discussion as to whether the eligible would help the fraternity and vice versa. This discussion is not based on whether a man has any physical defects for that fact is irrelevant. One outstanding example that disproves Mr. Boone's hypothesis is the fact that the highest honor of my fraternity can bestow upon a man—namely, honorary membership—was granted to a man who is confined to a wheel chair.

No one can deny that there is discrimination and that each and every one of us discriminates when we pick our friends. A person can't like everyone no matter how hard he tries, so I prefer to have fifty-five very close friends instead of eight hundred friends to whom I only say "Hi!"

Sincerely,
David Fisher

Goldstein, Ballard Personify Energetic, Earnest Involvement

SPRING FEVER doesn't sap the ebullient energies of Jack and "Goldstein."

Judy Goldstein "Busy Nervous Energy" "Goldstein!" If by chance you should even feel the desire to shout this name, you'll find yourself face to face with a cute, slim brunette who looks like a freshman but just happens to be a senior. You'll be immediately impressed by her big smile, her great ability to talk (She usually doesn't have a daffodil in her mouth!), and her enormous amount of energy. There is much more to Judy, though, than just a warm, enjoyable personality. She is a major, a member of the Argonauts, and a member of Kappa Mu Epsilon, the math honor society. For three years Judy has also been a member of Sigma Sigma Tau. She has served here as sunshine chairman and treasurer. Also an active member of the Jewish Student Association, Goldstein has been secretary for three years. Her other numerous activities include Honor Court, business manager of the Aloha, SGA floor representative, president of Women's Council, photography editor of the GOLD BUG, and a member of the dorm council for three years. (Who?) As a final tribute this year Judy was elected to Who's Who in American Colleges.

Western Maryland students in the past year have been accused of being uninvolved, un-intellectual, and generally unenthusiastic. It's pretty evident that the people who make these charges simply haven't met Goldstein yet!

Is Viet Nam YOUR War?

by Lanny Harchenhorn

There are many things to be considered when trying to make some judgment about the official American position on the Viet Nam War.

Some people will lose their decisions upon moral grounds and will debate whether it is the right for Americans to kill Communists or for Communists to be allowed to destroy the very souls of people who would just like to be left alone by everyone. Others worry about points of international law and ask if this is a conflict between two nations (possibly three or four) or just a civil war. If it is a civil war, should this power intervene or should the U. S. just say "It's not my problem."

The greatest issue is that of what role the individual should play in this matter when he is absolutely convinced that his country is wrong on every count. The answer is very easy when one remembers that we are a people under the law. We campaign for and vote for the officials who most represent our point of view, and then we abide by their decisions. At least this is how it supposed to be. Therefore, we have a right and a duty to make our feelings known on this and other issues. We are justified in protesting to our heart's desire so long as we do not destroy property and violate the rights of others.

If called upon (well, you know) to serve our nation in this conflict, we have no right to refuse. To do so should be to place ourselves above the law of the land; the Constitution does not charge the private citizen—not even a longshoreman—with the making of U. S. foreign policy.

There is one fly in the ointment. Specifically this: If you are between the ages of eighteen and twenty-one, you may be asked to carry out the policies of officials... officials in whose election you had no say. How does that grab you? Tell the editors.

of their classmates back to the Senate meetings. There would be a committee formed to build up on-campus relations between the SGA and the students, with special emphasis on popularizing campus speakers before they arrive. Bill believes there should be division of work according to capabilities so that a greater percentage of student talent will be used. Finally Bill sees the office of SGA President as a responsibility.

Jack Bentham, the third candidate for the presidency, stated a change must be brought about—not a change in the constitution or its by-laws, but a change in the attitude toward the SGA. I present to you no empty promises—only goals. I believe that with dedication and unification we can meet the challenge of success. The Bible states: "Ask and it shall be given to you; Seek and you shall find; knock and it shall be opened to you." I am asking you for your support in my attempt for the presidency. I sincerely believe that together we can seek and by seeking succeed in moving the SGA forward. One promise I can make is that many doors will be opened to all students because of the knocking done by a dedicated effort of the SGA. The challenge is present and will be met with your support. It is also my feeling that the GOLD BUG can be a means for further communication between the student body and the SGA."

America's Sports Defeat 4-3

Mowbraymen Swamp Shoremen; Frosh Shine in Twin Bouts

by Wayne Lessing
Tuesday, April 5, the Mowbraymen opened their season with a delightful 7-2 victory over the Washington College Shoremen, but since have suffered two straight setbacks.

On the banks of the beautiful Chesapeake, the Mighty Green outfit held the Terrors in check, contingent at bay. With winners Dave Christhill, Darrell Linton, Frank Bove, Charles Schmitzlein, and Hans Vandrey in the solo bouts, and twin victors Christhill and Bove, and Ken Nibali and Anthony Mazzie all contributing to the point total, the Terrors relied on an overwhelming 7-2 margin.

Then along with the ill-fated diamondmen, the Mowbraymen wrestled the April 15th invasion of American University. Valiantly, the Terrors traded the singles matches evenly, only to drop two of the three dual efforts, as the Americans edged out a narrow 5-4 decision. Linton, Bove, and Schmitzlein, bested their singles opponents, while Nibali teamed with Jim Godown to gain an upset in their twin bout.

The next day, down after dropping that tough, hard-fought decision, the Mowbraymen netters again joined Hitchcock's crew—all this time at Catholic University. The Terrors' racquetmen made all too adequate amends for the poor showing of their baseball squad, and the Mowbraymen were on the bloody end of a 7-2 bludgeoning. Ending a long dry spell, Captain Dave Horton garnered the only even victory, and joined Dave Christhill to form the dynamic duo which gained the Terrors' only doubles win of the day.

The team was obviously hurt by the Spring break layoff, but with practice underway again on a regular basis they are once more beginning to gain momentum. They are loaded with talent, much of which may not even be tapped yet. There are the freshman players, many of whom although to date have not competed in singles play have been coming off very well in the doubles area. The Terrors' own, Mazzie, and Nibali should be making substantial contributions by the season's end.

Under the guidance of the young and talented first year mentor Wray Mowbray, the team has developed good spirit and a keen desire for competition which should help them to return back into their winning ways.

Little Houston Bows At Beach — Defeated But Still Determined

by Steve Jones
Decked out in flashy, newly purchased green and white uniforms, the 1966 edition of the "Little Houston" linksmen, led by the able and aging mentor James Robinson, suffered two straight setbacks on their southern tour of the Norfolk-Virginia Beach area.

Led by team captain Jim Reck, the team left "The Hill" on Saturday evening for Good Friday. Included in the corps were Les Carlson, Bob Hollywood, Tom Chenoweth, Charlie Moler, Craig Davis, Steve Jones, and Mr. Bob Eise, a well known local golfer who drove one of the two cars used to transport the Green contingent.

The Terrors arrived at the ruggedly beautiful Stumpy Lake Golf Course only to meet an overpowering semi-professional contingent from Old Dominion. With six out of seven hitting in the seventies, OD easily submerged "Little Houston" (10-0) in a dismal contest played almost entirely in the rain. Medalist for the undaunted Terrors was Les Carlson with 85.

Traveling to Ashland, Virginia on Sunday evening, the team spent the night at Randolph-Macon Academy. On Monday they took the field again, ways. With five home matches scheduled in May and two remaining in April, there will be ample opportunity to catch a glimpse of the undaunted Mowbraymen in action. The next home tilt will be against Franklin and Marshall tomorrow.

SULLY'S SALLIES

by Linda Sullivan

Volleyball season is now underway for the girls this spring and the WMC varsity got off to an excellent start as they overwhelmed the Towson Teachers 12-6 in the first contest and then bested them 13-11 to clinch the first two of three series.

In the nightcap, Kathy Moore captained the JV squad which rolled to a two game sweep 15-6 and 15-6. The field general for both teams is Mrs. Faye Wood.

The distaff side has also begun their spring Intramural program. It's rumored that a few stragglers had to be pulled to get ready, and quite a racket had to be put up to secure tennis but both are now well underway. There will also be golf, of course.

Speaking of golf, there will be an intercollegiate match against Notre Dame at 10:30 am tomorrow morning with Ginny Brace and Elaine Brown participating for WMC.

Would you believe this was overheard last May Day:

SHE: Western Maryland has always had very beautiful Courts.

HE: Yes, I know—but since I don't play tennis . . .

Loyola Turns Back Terror Thinclads; Dana Huseman Watches Century Mark

The WMC track squad dropped its fourth meet of the season on Monday to a much improved Loyola of Baltimore squad, a score of 80-40.

The meet did produce several individual improvements, but they were not enough to offset the rash of first place finishes by the Greyhounds. Leading the way as he has in previous meets, the top runner, Dana Huseman zipped home for his first places in the 100 and 220 yard dashes. His time of 10 flat in the century was a personal best and he tied the existing school record.

In the long jump and triple jump, the DeWitt brothers, Piet and Clint, placed one-two respectively. Co-captain Dick Carlson was again the medalist for WMC.

The purpose of the southern trip is two-fold. First it provides the team with a coming season, technically. Secondly, and far more important according to Coach Robinson, it develops determination and team spirit.

The accomplishment of the latter objective was obvious during the season's opening match against Dickinson on April 12th. Playing in a heavy wet snow and biting wind, the team rejected the idea of quitting the match after nine holes, even though they were outclassed and certain losers at that point.

At the end of sixteen holes, Dickinson had won the match, but needed to complete the final two holes to win the second. Surprised that WMC refused to concede even three points for the comfort of the clubhouse, Dickinson gave the visitors the remaining two holes, resulting in the final 16-2 score. The individual results were:

Senior trackman, Charlie Wheatley has proved that it is never too late to start.

Charlie hails from Chestertown, Maryland, one of the many thriving metropolises on the scenic Eastern Shore. He went to Chestertown Senior High School, but as far as athletics were concerned, Charlie just wasn't there. However, upon reaching the Hill, he took advantage of the athletic opportunities provided by Western Maryland College. Judging by this year's turnout for the track team, it seems as though Charlie is one of the very few who realize that college has more to offer than parties, hours in the library, and long awaited weekends.

Track means a lot to Charlie. He co-captains this year's team and is looking forward to earning his fourth varsity letter in as many years. He has been the stalwart in the two mile event ever since he hit the event, and has devoted his time almost entirely to that event. This young season has been a rather trying one for Wheatley, as he has been hampered by a badly sprained ankle, injured just before the season got underway. Time being the healer of all wounds, Charlie is now getting back his true form.

Track is a lonely sport. If you win, you win. If you lose, you lose. It is no one else's victory; it is no one else's loss; it is only yours. When you are running the event, but most of all, you are alone in "sticking with it" during the many hours of self imposed practice. The two mile event is one which requires the runner to pace himself. So, track concerns itself with the mind as well as the body in demanding great control and patience. Charlie has a thorough knowledge of the psychological and physical demands of this grueling sport.

A real trackman doesn't wait until the Spring to get in shape.

Keeping in shape is a year round job. Charlie is proof of this. He knows Gil Cypriano knows the weight room, where he has spent many hours working just as hard as any football player or wrestler. But weather turns the basketball court into Wheatley's personal indoor track. The two mile event requires the greatest endurance of all the track events. This endurance is not demanded just during the race itself. It is demanded year round and creates quite a challenge to the man with enough guts to accept it.

A track meet is perhaps the most exciting athletic event to the participant as well as to the spectator. There is always something going on, and the spectator has a hard time keeping his attention to just one event at a time. When the "final call for the two mile" is sounded at Hoffa Field, all eyes turn to Wheatley. Charlie runs an exciting race as he executes that essential individual pace control. Only Charlie knows what Charlie's next move will be.

Charlie is a man of few words who finds diversion in cards, an occasional pick-up game of basketball, and occasional visits to Penn State. He majors in biology and is an officer in Western Maryland's advanced ROTC program. This July will more than likely find Charlie in the Army where he hopes to devote some of his time and talents to research.

Charlie is shooting for a record. The best Western Maryland time for the two mile is 10:28. Last year, he came within three seconds of that record with a time of 10:32. Charlie's ankle injury didn't help him to a strong start but there is no doubt that he will end up the season strong. "The Wheat," with all his desire and dedication, certainly deserves to break that record.

Monogram Men Elect Behnke And Stout

On April fourteenth the letterman's club held their elections for the coming year.

The selection of officers represents a healthy blend of many of the sports fields offered at WMC. Paul Behnke, third baseman in last year's baseball team and a junior member of Alpha Gamma Tau, was elected president. Dan Stout of this year's football team was elected vice president.

James Resau and Bill Chaskey, representing soccer and track, were elected secretary and treasurer respectively. Robert Sipech was named admissions director and Jack Benham was appointed chaplain. The sergeant at arms is two-letter man Barry Ellenberger.

The Club hopes to place a Sports Activities Bulletin in the area of the Greek area and start several drives to raise funds for the spring athletic banquet.

Highlights And Sidlights

by Ed Lovry
Now that spring football is over, Coach Jones and his staff are calling it a "real success."

The fact it uncovered a winning potential in backfield candidate Jim Die and a possible answer to the quarterback club, entitled "How to Take a Lead Off First Base With one foot on the Bag." A sequel soon to follow will be "Even if I do get picked off, remember Fern—the rundown is the most colorful play in baseball."

Scott Joyner, known in the Washington area affectionately as "Wag," is being closely followed by a number of major league scouts and isn't disappointing them a bit. His specialty seems to be connecting for extra base hits including six round trippers in seven games. It's also rumored that Billy Fanning is being followed by a number of scouts from the NFL! It all started at Catholic U. with his brilliant execution of a "standing Slide" which closely resembled a trap block, causing a 250 pound catcher to be bowled over backwards, drop the ball, and bleed severely

Terrors Finish Four Victorious; Joyner Provides Powerful Punch

The defending Mason-Dixon Baseball Champions, our own Green Terrors, opened the regular season Saturday, April 2 in a home tilt against Loyola and came out on top of a sizzling extra inning contest with a larrow 6-5 margin. The team continued their winning ways by defeating the Washington College Shoreboys twice in an afternoon two bill at Chestertown, Maryland, and then a week later at home suffered their lone defeat at the hands of American University 4-3. They bounced back the following day whipping Catholic University 14-2.

Scott Joyner started on the mound for the Terrors in their opener and was relieved in the fifth by Jack Benham, who got their lone defeat at the hands of American University 4-3. They bounced back the following day whipping Catholic University 14-2.

run. The first game at Washington was a typical baseball slug-fest that found the two teams combining for a total of 22 hits and 17 runs. The Terrors coming out on top with 14 of the runs. Joyner, Suder, Al Ingalls, and "Big Daddy" Joe Anthony knocked in a total of 11 runs by bringing out three home runs each in the fourth in which 9 hits carried 8 players to home plate.

The second game, the exact opposite of the first, produced a fine pitching duel between Dennis Chapman of Washington and our man Ralph Wilson. Ralph pitched a four-hitter, allowing only 3 runs, while Chapman came through with a six hit performance, letting four of the Terrors cross the plate. The Terrors picked up an unexpected run in the second inning and produced three more in the fourth, when Anthony and freshman Phil Riggins walked and the John Carey ringer double into right field, scoring Joe and sending Phil to third. Greg Getty in his first starting round then came up and smashed a two-run scoring single which put the Terrors ahead to stay.

Then came Friday, April 15, which found the Terrors on the mound for the Terrors but run. Both teams had 10 hits but Pleneche, the American U. pitcher, did a good job of scattering our hits and only allowed three runs despite a homerun and a triple by Scott Joyner. Jack Benham did a fine job on the ball and smacked a bases loaded single and a three-run homer to account for five Terror runs. Scott Joyner had another good day, smacking his first home run on one leg on the mound, just missing a shut-out giving up a lone run unearned in the 9th inning.

The next day the Terrors unleashed their full power against Catholic U. by winning 14-1. John Carey finally unloaded on the ball and smacked a bases loaded single and a three-run homer to account for five Terror runs. Scott Joyner had another good day, smacking his fifth four-bagger in as many games, and adding a run-producing double. Ralph Wilson again was on one leg on the mound, just missing a shut-out giving up a lone run unearned in the 9th inning.

The game but ill fated Cindermen are coming in a consistent second in their dual meets. As ominous as this cloud is, however, it's not without the proverbial silver lining.

For example, Dana "the new improved Flash Huseman, has been a consistent blue ribbon man in the dashes and recently equaled the school record in the 100 at ten flat and could very well get below it. The pole Fanning is being followed by a number of scouts from the NFL! It all started at Catholic U. with his brilliant execution of a "standing Slide" which closely resembled a trap block, causing a 250 pound catcher to be bowled over backwards, drop the ball, and bleed severely from the nostrils. Dave Horton, field general for the Terror racquetmen, ended a long dry spell by garnering an upset victory in his solo bout at Catholic University and went on to team up with Dave Christhill to nail down the only victory for the Mowbraymen in the dual efforts.

SGA Officers Vow Return Of Activities

The SGA and class officers were elected on April 29. For the first time the voters used voting machines.

The SGA officers are Ronald Kobernick, president; Ralph Wilson, vice president; Kathy Moore, recording secretary; Kaye Grossnickle, corresponding secretary; and Harry Durity.

In a statement of its goals for 1966-67, the new officers said that "the student government is the functioning organization for each of you. It is a place for voicing your needs and your opinions through elected representatives. The sentiments expressed during the recent campaign show that the campus is concerned about the role of the student government. Next year, the officers will be asking for your active support and suggestions, so that your SGA can return to its proper position—that of the spokesman of the student."

Ron Kobernick, SGA president, said after his election, "I thank all those students who actively supported my campaign for the presidency. Next year the student government will represent the students!"

Ralph Wilson stated that he believed in and will work for an SGA which lives up to and takes advantage of its fullest capabilities and potential.

Centennial Expansion Program Enters Second Building Phase

The Centennial Expansion Program, begun in 1963, has been detained by the Federal Government. Because Western Maryland has been granted a Federal Student Housing Loan from the Government, an approval for the plans to continue must be expanded.

The College had hoped that the new buildings, the heating plant, the Lewis Hall addition, a men's dorm, a women's dorm and a dining hall, would be ready for the centennial celebration of 1967-68. The fund raising campaign which began in 1963 has to this date netted over $1,000,000 from private contributions, the Methodist Church and the Federal loans.

At this time the heating plant on Union Street and the Lewis Hall addition have been completed. The new science wing will be dedicated on October 15, 1966. The ceremony will culminate the previous week's activities emphasizing science.

Maryland Court of Appeals Nears Decision

Judge O. Bowie Duckett declared that direct aid to church-related colleges is "valid and constitutional" in a verdict returned on March 11, 1965. Sometime in the next few days, the Maryland Court of Appeals will hand down its decision on the most recent test of the funds case. This major test case involves the constitutionality of state aid to church-related colleges. Whatever the decision, the case will definitely go to the Supreme Court. It could be a landmark on the school aid issue.

The main issue is that grants totaling $2.5 million voted by the Maryland legislature in 1963 and 1964 to the College of Notre Dame, St. Joseph College, Western Maryland College, and Hood College have been challenged by the Horace Mann League on the grounds that the grants violate the no-establishment-of-religion clause of the First Amendment to the Federal Constitution, as well as the State Constitution. The Horace Mann League is made up of public school officials and thirteen Maryland taxpayers.

Presenting final arguments for the challengers before the Court of Appeals was New York attorney Leo Pfeffer, a long-time advocate of absolute separation of church and state. Pfeffer contended that the "central point" in the case is that "the First Amendment forbids governmental aid to religion."

While the construction grants to the four colleges for use in building non-religious facilities are not "aid to religion in the narrow sense," Pfeffer said, he contended that nevertheless the aid "religious sectarian, church-related institutions."

Attorney William L. Marbury presented arguments on behalf of Notre Dame, St. Joseph, and Hood. He said that the key factor in the case is that the four colleges are bona fide liberal arts colleges, "not seminaries."

Mr. Marbury argued that the state was aiding education, not religion, through the grants. He also said that the idea that non-religious courses at the schools were "colored or permeated by religion" simply doesn't stand up.

He called the national need for higher educational facilities "staggering" and said that the four colleges were serving a public purpose by their educational activities.

To accept the idea that public funds cannot be used to aid secular aspects of education at church-related institutions would mean a "revolution" in the area of school aid, Mr. Marbury warned.

ESSAY

Student Body "Sees the Light": Honor Court Reveals Hidden Facts

Throughout the past year, the students of WMC have seen several notices in this paper pertaining to Honor System infractions. The Honor Court members as well as members of the GOLD BUG staff have listened to a number of comments that deal with these announcements. "Why? What happened? Who?"

What is an honor court member? A person who can't sleep well at night reflecting upon the people he judges, who is concerned about the other guy, who cuts classes in order to complete an investigation and sacrifices time at the grill, who calls a professor at midnight to ask a pertinent question about a case, a person who has a tight lip, who realizes the effect of his decision upon his fellow student, and finally, a person who actually sees the system in operation and sees that it works.

Have you ever tried to picture what our campus would be like without the honor system? The most obvious change would be the lurking shadow of a professor hovering over your shoulder during tests. During long exams it would not be possible to run down to the grill for a cup of coffee. In addition, no one would be allowed to take a test to his room, the library, or anywhere else. In short, responsible freedom would not exist.

Suppose the professors failed to keep a watchful eye during examinations. Suppose cheating on this campus were as rampant and widespread as at other colleges. Then a student could never be sure that the grades his fellow students received were really their own.

Answers would be tattooed to shirt cuffs, watch crystals, eyeglass rims, and hands. Disturbance and suspicion would be aroused at every glance or whisper.

However, we have an honor system, and as a result, the problems stated above do not exist on our campus. The Honor Court is the agency of WMC that deals directly with the problems of frustration and pressure. It considers not only the student who cheated but why he cheated. The Honor System is concerned with honor and you, the student. Are you concerned enough about the system?

Gary Crowell is chairman of the dance committee with Robert Deckert handling the publicity.

The co-ordinator of the weekend is the SGA with the co-chairmen of the weekend festivities Kaye Grossnickle and Bruce Wells. Gordon Shelton is in charge of the afternoon parade.

Who Will Speak At Senior Investiture?

Investiture of the Class of 1966 will take place on May 8 at 7:15 pm in Baker Memorial Chapel.

Investiture is a traditional ceremony with traditional hymns and renounces used annually. A member of the Western Maryland faculty will address the seniors' class, however, the name of the speaker will not be disclosed until the ceremony.

Two significant events occur with Investiture. This ceremony designates the first time the seniors march together as a class, and the first occasion the seniors wear their caps and gowns. The purpose of Investiture is to present the seniors with their caps and gowns.

*Tra la it's May

"A Spring Carnival" awaits all students participating in the annual May Day festivities here on the Hill. On Saturday, May 7 at 12:45 the May Day parade will leave from the Army and travel through Westminster, arriving finally at the Amphitheater back campus.

The coronation of Miss Carolyn Akagi as Queen of the May will take place at 1:15. The crown bearer will be Kip Darcy, crown Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Darcy. The flower girl will be Betsy Moore, daughter of Major and Mrs. James Moore. The Herald for the program will be freshmen Kathy James and Joann Lilly.

Following the coronation, Queen "Tami" and her court will be entertained by three sections from the Women's Octet, folk ballads presented by Linda Berry and Pat McNally and an interpretive dance executed by a modern dance group under the direction of Mrs. Taze Womack.

The afternoon's events will consist of a tennis match between our Terrors and Mount St. Mary's at 3:30. A track meet will be held on Hoffa field against Gallaudet. A reception with the queen and her court will be held in Robinson Garden at 8:30. Open house will be held as usual from 2 pm to 5 pm in the dormitories and club rooms.

President Ensor Responds To Position Paper on Frats

I have been requested by a group of students and faculty to appoint a committee composed of students, faculty and administration to study the place of fraternities at Western Maryland College. Although the position paper through which the request was made deals only with fraternities and sets forth a number of reasons for their abolition, it seems to me the scope of the committee's study should be considerably broader. For instance, the place of fraternities could hardly be considered without also studying the sorority system. Nor is it simply a question of abolition or status quo; a third alternative might be the continuance of fraternities and sororities on a somewhat different basis, possibly recommending the elimination of some of the worst. The study may have developed across the years. Perhaps such a comprehensive study is long overdue and the time has come when we should have but one purpose—the improvement of student life and the relationships on the campus that will contribute to the total educational process there by making Western Maryland a stronger institution.

The appointing of the committee has not been an easy task, but after a great deal of consideration I am appointing the committee listed below. It will be noted that the student members are being appointed as holders of specific leadership positions to which they have been or will be elected. This is being done in an effort to be as objective as possible in the appointment and, at the same time, have people who have demonstrated ability. I could think of no similar procedure in selecting faculty members, but I have chosen those whom I believe will be completely objective in their committee assignment.

"God Meets Easterday During Major Surgery; Pope Intends to Proclaim God A Saint"

(Atlanta, Georgia, May 5)

God, creator of the universe, principal deity of the world as Jesus, ultimate reality of Christianity and most eminent of all divinities, died late yesterday during major surgery undertaken to correct a massive dimpling of his face. His exact age is not known, but close friends estimate that it greatly exceeded that of all other extant beings.

Word of the death, long rumored, was officially disclosed to reporters at five minutes before midnight after a full day of mounting anxiety and the comings and goings of ecclesiastical dignitaries and members of the immediate family.

Unable to be in Atlanta owing to the pressures of business at the second Vatican Council, now in session, the Pope, in Rome, said, in part: "We are deeply distressed for we have suffered an incalculable loss. The contributions of God to the Church cannot be measured, and it is difficult to imagine how we shall proceed without Him." Rumors were spread that the Pope's death meeting under the great vaulted dome of St. Peter's, that, before adjourning the council in December, the Pope will proclaim God a saint, an action, it was said, that would be wholly without precedent in the history of the Church. Several aged women were reported to have come forward with claims of miraculous cures due to God's intervention. One woman, a 103-year-old Bulgarian peasant, is said to have gained a son at the very instant God expired. Proof of miracles is a precondition for sanctification according to ancient tradition of the Roman Catholic faith.

Reaction from the world's great and from the man in the street was uniformly incredulous. "At least he's out of his misery," commented a housewife in an Elmira, New York, supermarket. "I can't believe it," said the Right Reverend Horace W. B. Donegan, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of New York who only last week celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of his installation as Bishop. In Paris, President deGaulle, in a 30-second appearance on national television, proclaimed: "God is dead! Long live the republic. Long live France!" Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, widow of the late president, was reported "in seclusion" in her Fifth Avenue apartment. "She's had about all she can take," a close friend of the Kennedy family said. News of the death was included in a one-sentence statement, without comment, in the third page of Pravda, official organ of the Soviet government. "The passing of God has not been disclosed to the 800 million Chinese who live behind the bamboo curtain."

Public reaction in this country was perhaps summed by an elderly retired streetcar conductor in Passaic, New Jersey, who said, "I never met him, of course. Never even saw him. But from what I heard I guess he was a real nice fellow. Tops!" From Independence, Mo., Governor President Harry S. Truman, who received the news in his Kansas City barber shop, said: "I'm always sorry to hear someone is dead. It's a damn shame." In Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, released through a military aide, the following statement: "Mrs. Eisenhower joins me in heartfelt sympathy for the family and my friends of the late God. He was, I always felt, a force for moral good in the universe. Those of us who were privileged to know him admired the profundity of his character, the breadth of his compassion, the depth of his intellect. Generous almost to a fault, his many acts of kindness to America will never be forgotten. It is a very great loss indeed. He will be missed."

From Basel, Switzerland, came word that Dr. Karl Barth, venerable Protestant theologian, informed of the death of God, declared: "I don't know who died in Atlanta, but whoever he was, it has impacted me." Dr. Barth, 79, with the late Paul Tillich, is widely regarded as the foremost theologian of the twentieth century. (There have been unconfirmed reports that Jesus of Nazareth, 33, a carpenter and reputed son of God, who survives, will assume the authority, if the title, of the deceased deity. Jesus, sometimes called the Christ, was himself a victim of death, having succumbed some 1932 years ago in Palestine, now the state of Israel, purportedly on orders of a Roman governor, Pontius Pilate, and at the behest of certain citizens of Jerusalem. This event, described as "victicide," has lately occupied the deliberations of the Vatican Council, which has solemnly exonerated the Jews generally of responsibility for the alleged crime. The case is complicated by the fact that Jesus, although he died, returned to life, and so may not have died at all. Diplomats around the world were speculating today on the place the resurrected Jesus will occupy in the power vacuum created by the sudden passing of God.)

There has been as yet no statement from Jesus, but a close associate, the Holy Ghost, has stated the Holy Ghost's good works. He also said that it is the work of the family that in lieu of flowers contributions be made to the Building Fund for the Cathedral of John the Divine in New York City so that the edifice may be finished.

Spring Builds Men

Well, it's spring, that lovely time of the year when nature seems to burst forth in all of its proud glory. Spring feels great on the Hill. Why, if we didn't have classes and work to complete, we would be the one great big conglom club! Too bad! It isn't! When that warm lovely feeling hits, one feels as if the year's work is over (why study?), and looks forward with anxious anticipation to that warm long summer that one feels is here. Too bad. It isn't.

However, one place where that warm (would you believe hot), and not so long summer is right now in a place where the green meadows and dark woods are crawling with a particular type of ant, classified as Vietnamese Congus, in scientific terms. These ants are the carriers of a highly communicable disease that is often fatal and sometimes (if one is lucky) just irritating.

Well, it's not summer yet!

Westminster Is Bugeeing Metropolis; Brochure Reveals Area's Advantages

In the last issue of the GOLD BUG we dissected WMC's latest publicity effort. Now under scrutiny (not sarcastically, this time) is a brochure put out by the Westminster Area Chamber of Commerce City Area Westminster, Maryland. It is titled "Westminster: A Delightful Place to Live, A Good Center For Business." The information in the leaflet is highly informative. For instance, "Westminster, with a metropolitan population of approximately 25,000, is the commercial, geographical, educational, and political center of a rich and varied area. . . . a territory of almost unlimited possibilities." Westminster has experienced a steady growth rate in the past ten years, with an increase of 17.6%. People move here from urban areas "in order to take advantage of the exceptional suburban facilities of excellent schools, climate, environment, and a favorable tax rate." As for business facilities, "over 75 retail stores in (the) downtown area." "Amply parking facilities accommodate over 500 cars A livestock auction is held each week." "As for religious life, "a fine spirit of fellowship and cooperation exists between all "Most legal demonstrations are represented." (except Jewish)

The Carroll County Hospital has "35 acute physicians on its medical staff. . . . Transportation? "Buses serve the town on a regular schedule for passenger transportation." Educational facilities? "The Carroll County Public Library . . . has over 32,000 volumes Westminster is truly "in the heart of things," since it is so near to Baltimore, Washington, the Atlantic Ocean, Gettysburg, and the Skyline Drive. "Because of rapid transportation to Baltimore, the residence of the major league sports available at the large civic auditorium And finally, "An (sic) tourist attraction in Westminster is the Carroll County Farm Museum, one of the few of its type in the country."

Some of the larger manufacturing and distributing plants are Black and Decker, Congolux-Nalm (Incolux), Kessler Shoe Company (Mother Goose Shoes), Lehigh Portland Cement Company, Random House Book Publishers, and the Westminster Knit Corporation (Jantahan Logan manufacturers).

Really, then, in spite of all our sarcasms and occasional bitterness, "it is the love of Westminster" because "it doesn't do anything for us," it surely seems to be doing something for itself. Which is maybe what we should do about ours, if moralizing will be excused.

Good All The Time

The following quotes are taken from a fat two-page advertisement of Centreville Observer, September 5, 1886, and concern the celebration of WMC's 20th anniversary (actually it's a public self-inflicted pat on the back).

On an Art Exhibit: "Miss Abbott has also a shoving barrel scene from David Hild. . . . A bureau set of garnet plush pin-cushion and bottles worked with pond lilies in china. . . . Miss Lida Benson was also praised by all. . . ."

On Co-Education: "The effect of the presence of the one sex upon the intelligence and deportment of the other is good, only good, and good all the time."

Center Stage Features Modern "Chinese Wall"; Mute Dwarf Is Charged As "Voice of People"

by Suzanne Pratt

Out of a frenzy of insight, perception, and panic, Max Frisch produced The Chinese Wall. Through his artistic realism, his own director, Hans Sasse has converted this fanciful show into a plausible replica of the modern idiom. If there is any fault in the production, it is its ostentatiousness as shown by the bizarre characterizations and elaborate technical effects.

At first glance, the circus thanks to the virtuosity of the direction and the proficiency of the cast, the ironic intricacies and sarcastic subtleties of the play become clear and meaningful. John Shuch is excellent as the foolish, gullible, and deprecate Emperor. His performance is balanced by the more emotional attitude of Mealan, the Emperor's daughter, who despite her political position is just as helpless.

The first characters to appear are Romeo and Juliet who rehearse Shakespeare's lines from the balcony of a tightrope. Similarly, Napoleon appears as a clown in the grotesque manner of Marat Sade) who soon sloughs off his droolery to reveal the tragedy of a farmer here stripped of power. Col-lumbus, his companion, appears as a Long John Silver drenched in a thick Italian accent. But too, the instincts of the human heart for recognition. On and on the parade proceeds. Pontius Pilate, in his own hot-headedness, is characterized as a senile old man compulsively reminiscent, like the Ancient Mariner, about his greatest moment—his failure. Don Juan's stock image has been traded for another masquerade—a sort of degenerate Cisco Kid astute a pinata. Yet here, the search for an escape from the cage of his understanding in which he is confined by the image of bibliographers. Of all the characters the portrait of Brutus is most modern for he has traded his toga for a turtleneck. As the play fits easily into the prototype of the rash Bohemian demonstrator complete with protest signs.

In contrast with the carnivalescenes, is the author's picture of the royal Chinese court painted in several shades of gray, the main object being Emperor Hwang Tzu who is always in the shadow." In an atmosphere of right-power-seekers ruled by an ignorant cynic king, the Contemporary enters just as the final enemy of the people has been captured. Charged with being the rebelious "Voice of the People," the accused, a mute dwarf, is defended by the Contemporary who, after testing his case, realizes his own inadequacy as a powerless "intellectual." His position is contested with the more emotional attitude of Mealan, the Emperor's daughter, who despite her political position is just as helpless.

James Cromwell's Pontius Pilate is an unusually sensitive picture drawn by a very young man of a very old one. The primary difficulty with this play is the profusion of plots and themes, chief among which is that passive intellectualism is powerless to relate to a politically splendid world. The author can barely keep up with himself as he uncovers the unromantic absurdities of the human tragedy-comedy. Somebody Up There?

Commercials Are Religious

By Dean Ira G. Zepp, Jr.

Television commercials bore us, enrage us, humor us, and otherwise insult our intelligence. Nevertheless, they work! The adman's copy is full of symbolism which appeals to our unconscious. He knows that and success, to our subliminal urges for sexual expression and physical well-being, and to our natural desire to compare ourselves with others.

"Sing Out '66" Speaks Out FOR America; See This Group Free At Civic Center!

"Sing Out '66" will be presented at the Baltimore Civic Center Friday, May 6, 1966 at 8 p.m. Tickets are free through the SGA. See "Sing Out '66" in this issue.

SING-OUT '66 is a new kind of demonstration, a musical explosion. More than that it is 140 youth from 51 high schools and college campuses and 16 people singing out and speaking out in a positive dynamic way, expressing what they want to say to America.

SING-OUT '66 was written and produced at a Demonstration for Modernizing America last summer. At the Moral Re-Armament headquarters on Mackinac Island, Mich. five thousand students met to demonstrate a new image of young America. They decided to express their idea in the form of a SING-OUT.

Stars of the show are the Colwell Four, headed by Ted Colwell from San Marino, Calif. Also in the group are Fred Morgan, San Marino; Dan Broadhurst from New York; and David Allen, born in France. Ted has sung on five continents and with his brothers has sung to prime ministers and kings. Colwell has written 100 songs in the last two years and sung in 17 languages. Together with the other two in the group they have written many of the songs in the show.

Gold Medalist in rowing Richard "Whip" Wailes, speaking on behalf of the cast, says, "We don't want our generation represented either by a vocal patriotic minority or by a silent apathetic majority. We believe that free men and women should be the most revolutionary men and women on earth. We are determined to produce a new, hard-working, tough breed of young American. We want to find the men and women of guts and stamina to stand up, to step out and speak out for America."

Summing up the aim of the musical, Wailes said, "We are out to rouse the hundred million Americans of our generation to take the fullest, most responsible role in world affairs. We are determined to demonstrate a concept of society that all two hundred million of our fellow Americans can take part in and one which the whole world will follow."

The youth in SING-OUT '66 present this show without salary. They have sacrificed college scholarships, personal possessions and some sold cars to take their idea across America. They meet expenses through contributions and admission charges.

Last summer SING-OUT '66 played at the World's Fair. It played in Washington at the invitation of 90 Senators and Congressmen. It then, whistled by special train across the country to Los Angeles where 16,000 people saw it in the Hollywood Bowl while millions more viewed it on TV.

Students Establish Rapport At New Tutoring Center

In November of 1965 a second tutorial program was begun in the Charles Street area. Sponsored and financed by the Student Christian Association, it became a project for their Service Committee.

After encouragement by the elementary schools in the immediate area, contacts were made with the parents and children. Through house to house canvassing and informal contacts, we attempted to make the community aware of the project before we actually began. When the program was announced by Dr. Whaples at a Human-Relations Meeting, Mr. Troy of Center Street offered an unused tavern for our center of operations. With the help of twenty Western Maryland College students, our program was started.

Our greatest response has come from children in grades one through six. While on good days we tutored fifteen children, there were often disappointing days when there were only two. Our main purpose was to provide a place where children could come to study, and to encourage them to complete their homework assignments, giving help to those who needed it. Students who came without work or those who finished early were urged to work with extra arithmetic problems or to read. Through SOS and student contributions we have a small library of reading books to supplement this program of extra work.

The volunteer tutors from WMC have worked hard to meet the challenge presented by these children and their environment. Although the new math and certain foreign languages gave a number of us problems at first, we adapted to the situation and have since been encouraged by the efforts of these children to improve their efficiency.

Because of the family environments of many children, we claim a second role. A number of children coming to us are from large families and often lack the individual attention and concern normally given in smaller families. We therefore take extra time to talk and play with the children outside of the academic environment. Occasional trips to the candy store establish rapport and enhance the interaction between child and tutor.

Efforts are being made to expand the present program to cover recreational and social activities. Favorable responses have been given by the teenagers and children, so we hope new channels of communication and growth will arise this spring.

Students are always welcome to tutor. A car leaves from Baker Memorial Chapel Monday through Friday at 3:50 and 5.

As graduation nears seniors receive word of whether their future hopes have been realized or not. Among those who have been awarded fellowships is Darrel Linton who has chosen Florida State University from the six offering him financial aid. Wayne Porter will study for his Masters at Purdue University, Berkeley, Calif.

Elmes Says Draft Is Not Justifiable; Does Forced Induction Violate Liberty?

by Don Elmes

In recent weeks the Selective Service System has been criticized by many responsible groups in our country. Much of this criticism has been the result of classification changes created by the war in Viet Nam. Since most of the male students of WMC are directly affected by the draft system and its recent changes, it seems important that they examine the system and express their opinions on it.

Much of the current debate centers on the conflict between idealism and necessity: whether a draft system is just or not, and if not, whether its advantages outweigh its violation of human rights. In order to understand why this conflict is of current importance it is necessary to recognize the spirit of the generation we are living in—the spirit that all of us reflect in one way or another, regardless of how radical or conservative we are. Perhaps the best name for this spirit is justice, not for the United States, but for the entire world.

Young people are tired of seeing citizens live with unequal rights and responsibilities; they want to see literacy tests, discrimination against Negroes and false government propaganda eliminated. More important, however, is the fact that these people are living according to their ideals. Students are joining the Peace Corps and Vista, while others are challenging laws and regulations that appear unjust. This spirit is the motivation behind the demonstrations against the war in Viet Nam and behind the current criticism of our draft system. It is also the motivation that, in the future, will create a world of peace and mutual respect among men. Peace, however, cannot exist in our time, because war is far too convenient a means of achieving national objectives. War necessitates armies, and armies necessitate the employment of manpower.

At present, our military forces are approaching the three million mark. Twenty per cent of these forces must be replaced each year in order to maintain our military strength. Of that number, at least half will be drafted or motivated by the draft to enlist. Taking into consideration that this is for only one year, one can clearly see why the draft system is necessary in the context of our present military organization. This fact, however, does not justify the use of a draft system; it merely indicates a necessity for one under our present organization.

The question that is really being raised here is simply "Whether the government has the right to force us into military service?" Many people answer yes, saying that it is necessary in order to maintain our present military effectiveness, or yes because it is the responsibility of every citizen to serve his country. Some, however, answer no, usually for the following two reasons:

1.) Responsible authorities state that if the wages and benefits for the American soldier were increased, along with his term of obligation, a volunteer force comparable in size to our present one could be raised that would be of better morale, training, and efficiency. In light of this, the necessity of a draft system is extremely doubtful.

2.) Under a draft system, our government has the right to dictate who is to fight and possibly die for his country. This right is not in agreement with the much propagandized rights of life and liberty promised to every individual by our heritage. Most people do not mind working in the service for several years. What they do mind, is being forced into it, being paid meager wages while in it, and living under the threat of the draft while not in it.

NO MORE 7984

7984 was as much a part of WMC as is Memorial Hall, where he was best known. He was welcomed by Dr. Gradow, evicted by Dr. Pries, and enjoyed by Mr. Phillips. We all were saddened by "the pigeon's" demise.

He wore a band which bore his title but which no one was able to read until I removed it before his funeral. I mailed it to the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service to have it traced, and a month later I was told there was no information. They also sent two more addresses to which I could apply for information. The first of these replied two days later that 7984 had been sold in a pet store and no record kept of his sale. Therefore, someone is sadder than I was, and probably hoping in vain.

"Abolishment of Draft is Ridiculous": But Must C Students Be Picked First?

by Lanny Harchenko

Many people are concerned about the draft. How is that for a Batman-profound comment?

While many say the draft is unfair and suggest that further exemptions be made, it appears that the real injustice of our Selective Service System are results of exemptions made for those felt to be most essential to their family or nation.

Many of us have benefited from the IIS deferment. Evidently the powers that be have made a value judgment that college students are essential to the nation. Certainly this is true. But, what about bricklayers, carpenters, mechanics, and truck drivers? It is thought that any of us would like to live in caves, or walk everywhere, or have to do without goods from other cities and states. Perhaps the armed forces defer college students because they feel we are of little value. No, of course not.

Assuming that college students in general continue to get preferential treatment, we are still faced with this new (or revived) draft policy that some students will be called and others allowed to stay. We are told that if the need arises, "C" students will be drafted before students of "B" and "A" averages. The sad fact is that many "C" students are working to the best of their ability and (as has been demonstrated in the past) average students often contribute far more to society than their brighter colleagues.

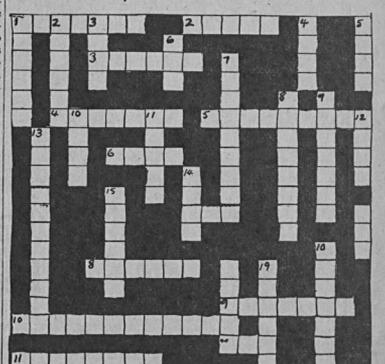

Perhaps the draft would be much more fair by just completely dropping all exemptions and deferments except for those who are the sons or daughters of dear old Aunt Bess who cannot earn her own bread. But there is that nasty word "except."

Any suggestion of abolishing the draft is ridiculous at this time. Some way has to be maintained to fill the manpower needs of our armed forces and the draft does its job.

ing to pay to run the wheat through a peeling process to make it look like rice. I wonder if LBJ told her about the Americans who are staying alive by eating snakes and dogs in the jungles of Viet Nam.

Second: Robert Strange McNamara, our Secretary of Defense, forgot himself on t.v. the other day and spoke of how powerful our offensive missiles are. Certainly, he knows that we have only defensive missiles.

Survey Finds Later Hours; WMC's Curfews Are Earliest

Remember when the GOLD BUG attacked women's curfews at WMC? Well, we are the only school with this problem. Bill Michaels, exchange editor of the Middlebury College Campus, sent us the results of a college curfew survey that his newspaper sent out to 47 colleges throughout the nation. Thirteen colleges replied.

Antioch College has no curfews for women at all, while Beloit has them only for freshmen. Rochester has a curfew for freshmen and sophomores. Kalamazoo allows unlimited hours to seniors and women over 21; Bantex to seniors; Allegheny to seniors on weekends; and Lawrence to residents of "honors" dormitories. All these colleges used the "key" system or the night watchman system. The others had defined curfews for all women.

Freshmen curfews range from 10 to 12 on weekdays and 12 to 1:30 on weekends, the modes being 11 and 1, respectively. At least five made provision for extra curfews. Swarthmore allows unlimited freshman signouts to 12:30 first semester, 2:00 second semester on weekdays, and 1:30 and 3:00 weekends, respectively. Upperclassmen may sign out to 2:00 on weekdays and 3:00 on weekends.

Parial Hours Do Exist

Antioch shows 53 open dormitory hours a week and Antioch 54 in women's halls. Other colleges allowing regular parial hours include Swarthmore, Grinnell, Lawrence, Rochester, and Kalamazoo. Five of the schools did not have open house. On the other hand, Beloit and George Washington University have no limiting rules.

Does Reform Exist?

The Swarthmore editor commented, "It is very difficult to reform what proceeds as quickly as our present policies. The deans listen politely and explain, but most of their statements are to a few students and off the record." GWU also felt that the deans only pretended to listen to suggestions. The Lawrence editor felt that "the deans are only too happy to listen, but they have a wonderful trick of never taking action and letting student feelings die unapologetically, you know." This does not eliminate the element of surprise—they toss us an occasional bone."

Are Rules Sadtistic?

Lawrence's editor says there is "too much in loco parentis." Swarthmore's editor felt that "the whole idea of rules assumes that stupidity cannot be responsible and cannot enforce their own penalties against offenders of the community. My opinion, in a word, is yick!"

Jr.-Sr. Banquet Goes Off Campus

With graduation rapidly drawing near, the festivities of honoring the Senior Class will be initiated with the Junior-Senior Banquet with Michael Psaris and Casey Henson, co-chairmen on Saturday evening, May 14, 1966. The tradition of the Junior Class honoring the departing Seniors will be continued this year in a more unique manner. In place of the Dining Hall, the Banquet this year will be held at Frock's Sunnysbrook Farm and will be open only to members of the Junior and Senior Class.

The evening will get underway with a Cocktail Hour at 4:30 and the Banquet, featuring a Hawaiian motif, beginning at 5:30. Later that evening at Frock's the Juniors will host a party for the Seniors from 8-12 featuring "The Catalinas." Seniors and Juniors may bring dates to this event. Michael Psaris, Chairman of the Weekend stated—"The decision to hold the Banquet off campus was necessitated by the Dining Hall charging an exorbitant rate for a half-decent meal. I was amazed at the lack of cooperation of the College to provide a banquet dinner after four years of paying board without having to drain the Treasury of the Junior Class. This way a better atmosphere and, of course, better food will result for the same price."

Frat Aimed Questionnaire Reveals Campus Attitudes

The following article is the result of a campus-wide survey made by its author concerning the fraternity-sorority system on campus for an English course on "Man and the Mass." S. Joslin

The Greek social system must be examined below the level of social activities. Greek values are more intrinsic. They fulfill needed social activities. But for our student body as a whole, what else do they do? Do our fraternities exist in only one dimension?

As social groups they contain all the necessary qualifications of purposeful organizations because they are solely social. Fraternities cannot avoid carrying a stigma as self-indulgence as their goal.

"The social fraternities have stressed the individual's relations to and with his fellows and the group as a whole." On this campus a member depends not only to the attitudes within his chosen womb but also the other world of the college. One must be reminded that this campus intensifies its problems because it is small. Fraternity criticism of personal relations carry bitterness because of the costly closeness of WMC. Smallness encourages eliquish criticisms. Personality clusters cannot be stopped. It is an undesirable aspect of any social group. The recent questionnaire responses agreed with this. Fraternities and sororities were considered by the student body to contain generally the same personality types.

Crudely, the questionnaire measured the high degree of a socialized image. The atmosphere here is very conducive to Greek life. The images are quickly learned by freshmen. Difficulty lies in the fact that since 85% of the student body is Greek, freshmen realize it is the only thing to do on campus. That's the truth even if it hurts.

For all its faults, the system is held with at least mild esteem. Fraternity and sorority members revealed that their organizations need some reform. That it should be more selective was the prime target. If selectivity increases, which it is, more independents will have to exist. Eventually this campus will support nationals and houses off campus. For the fraternities and sororities to really exist just on their own laurels of social activity they must be allowed to exist on their own.

It is more difficult on a small campus but it's worth it. Sure, selectivity increases social barriers but it hurts less than unaffiliates comprised a larger part of the student body. The independents pay just like anyone else yet they are the deprived. The administration has rested too long. The independents do not have equal social events, do not have equal material conveniences. They are made to feel unequal.

Yet what are the answers to his inequality? Abolition! The more one tries to discourage something, the more it flourishes. Abolishment is the best but most impractical way out.

This situation as has been stated above and over is unhealthy. How unhealthy? On this campus one is not allowed to be a political freak, for example, just a social one. The social structure on this campus is an artificial stratification. The recent survey revealed few surprises. The attitudes of those answering the questionnaire revealed that Sigma Sigma Tau rivals Phi Alpha Mu for leadership just as Alpha Gamma Tau and Gamma Beta Chi. Big deal, this campus has its have-nots among Greeks, too! Students must realize that everyone is not Greek material.

The survey revealed a bitterness among fraternities and sororities. Greek members are hostile to administrative control. Let the administration give the traditional dance. "The administration isn't worth two cents—to have the administration hold the dances would result in a Horror Show!! (Admin is now a horror show)—Strengthening the IFC would help—like the Dean has too much authority—"The classes can't do it because they don't exist."

A hipster running off at the pen—just maybe? But, no one likes anything. Fraternity discontent. Where there is social tension, reform is in the air. As a "lowly freshman" I'd like to see the sororities and fraternities blamed for their own mistakes and not for this school's indifference. There is good and bad in everything. The position paper has made a strong impact into the bad—students realize the malady. Does the administration have a cure? For one would like to hear about it.

SCA Integrates With RLC For Equal Representation

It has been decided to dissolve the Student Christian Association and integrate its responsibilities into the structure of the Religious Life Council. This decision was made following a period of discussion and consideration by representatives of both groups.

The primary motivation for this move is a desire that activities of WMC more adequately reflect the ecumenical thrust of our age. The change represents a shift from the predominance of a primarily Protestant Christian organization to that of a body on which all religious interests are entitled to equal representation. While technically the Roman Catholic students have been invited to participate in the SCA, they have not felt free to do so. Fewish students were automatically excluded from the SGA due to its Christian orientation. Both the Newman Club and the Jewish Student Association, however, are included within the RLC, and their representatives have played active roles, including service as officers in past years. The SCA was both a programming and coordinating body. Its cabinet was composed of representatives from each denominational group. They were responsible for a biweekly program of campus wide interest, and also for the scheduling of activities of the groups they represented. Two years ago, the RLC was given the coordinating function. Religion in the denominational representation. The programming responsibility remained with the SCA. In addition, the SCA this year has been charged of the Charles Street tutoring program.

Since the existence of two interfaith structures in order to be unnecessary, all of these concerns have been delegated to the RLC, since it is the more broadly based group. There are no fixed memberships in the SCA, and this factor made the transition easier.

Another committee is conducting with each exchange of students and faculty for a week to ten days with a Negro college in the South. The second semester is a "experiment in human understanding" during the second semester next year is currently being studied.

The membership of the RLC consists of officers and committee chairmen, two representatives from each campus religious group and six faculty members appointed by the president of the college. Officers of the RLC for 1966-1967 are chairman, Robert Whitfield; vice-chairman, Joel Smith; secretary, Patricia Kelly; and treasurer, Richard McCull.

The RLC conceives its purpose to include the following: Providing an ecumenical dialogue within the college community; 2. Presenting programs which meet the needs of the college. Taking an interest in the affairs of the college and the world, including statements on vital issues, and service to our fellow human beings; 4. Coordinating activities of campus religious groups. This purpose will be augmented primarily by the work of six committees.

A program committee, headed by the vice-chairman of the RLC, will assume the major portion of the activity of the SCA. It will be responsible for planning and presenting bi-weekly programs for the campus as a whole. It is not the intention of the RLC to find a level of common belief or a lowest common denominator to reflect in its programs. It is, however, a program representative of different points of view so that ecumenically based dialogue may take place between such as "should within an academic community."

A service committee will be responsible for administering all the tutoring programs in which students are involved. It will also deal with other aspects of involvement such as "service" particularly in the area of civil rights.

A committee on the Arts will develop presentations relating religion and contemporary culture. Included within this area will be the planning of a return visit by Ed Summerlin, who presented a liturgical jazz service on campus last year, and displays of religious art.

Another committee is conducting with each exchange of students and faculty for a week to ten days with a Negro college in the South. The second semester is a "experiment in human understanding" during the second semester next year is currently being studied.

Students Take GRE

All students ranked as seniors or sophomores are expected to take the Area Tests of the Graduate Record Examination on Thursday, May 12, at 12:45. Senior students will take the examination in the undercroft of Baker Memorial Chapel, sophomore students at the dining hall. Names of students who will take the tests will be published on the bulletin boards at the entrance of the dining hall and in the Grille.

The tests constitute the final stage in the College's study of its program in general education.

An official report of the scores will be sent to students participating in the test, accompanied by an interpretive commentary. The score sheet should be saved because institutions for advanced study may require such information, as may certain employers, and because Educational Testing Service does not offer reporting service on the Area Tests. At Western Maryland, the scores are used entirely for criticism of the College program; they will not be attached to the student's record, or revealed to persons outside the community except at the student's request.

Participation in the tests is a part of the College program. Unless the student for good and sufficient reasons excused by Dr. Miller, the Director of the Test, his record will not be complete until he submits scores. This is equipment not simply fulfilled because the Area Tests are not included in the periodic offerings of GRE and no further offering of the test is contemplated by the college.

Take your good time going home.

Fly half-fare on Eastern via Florida.

Florida swings in the spring—but it really swings in the summer. Lower off-season room rates are in effect. And Eastern will take you to Daytona or Ft. Lauderdale or even Miami for half-fare.

So take a detour and enjoy it on your way home. Or go home first and down to Florida later.

Just use your Eastern Youth ID card, or similar card from another airline. If you don't have such a card, it's a snap to get one—provided you're under 22 and can prove it. For the specifics, stop by a Travel Agent or any Eastern ticket office.

Once you have your card, you can get an Eastern Jet Coach seat for half-fare. You can't make an advance reservation. But if there's a seat available at departure time, you can fly to any Eastern destination within the continental U.S. Including Florida.

Darcy Rebutts Chaff

To the Editor:

While preparing a delicious mixture of Purina Chow and Carnation "powdered" for my dog, Mittens, last night, I thought of the plight of Chaff and wished I could extend a friendly bowl.

Truly she is to be pitied for not understanding that her aggression is misdirected. Mr. Rice is not a cat. "Starchy Girl" should direct her barbs at the campus social planners, who could create a much more cosmopolitan campus. For example, in the fall men from Mount Saint Mary's, the Hopkins, Gettysburg and other institutes are invited. The freshmen girls would then find the atmosphere less claustrophobic. Two other ideas come to mind, a freshman prom might be in order. The women of all classes might form together and pay homage to the Naval Academy. Dreadnought Sunday?

I think some of the old dogs need to learn a few new tricks. Chawing Mr. Rice is very old hat.

Students with gripes or general complaints about the curriculum they are forced to take may voice their griefs at a meeting for this purpose on May 14. The exact time in the afternoon will be announced.

Two such gripe-sessions have already been held and common problems have been recognized. Three groups have been organized to study the causes and possible alternatives. The subjects of these are: a possible alternative for the required introductory science course; a second track of honors programs; and a pass-fail system of grading for students taking courses not in their major.

The committees and general meetings are informal, free, and frankly honest. Although the attendance has not been large so far, both faculty and student participants have been enthusiastic.

If your ideas of a liberal education have been recently frustrated by the requirements and over-lapping scheduling, perhaps you would like to express your concern at the next meeting. Everyone is welcome.

There are those people who are of the belief that small colleges make small people. That is to say that there are many people who believe that small colleges cannot provide (either due to a lack of facilities or professors) as adequate an education as can a larger university. Though there is some truth to this belief—I am of a different opinion—To me, college is an opportunity to be taken advantage of; in other words, college is just what you make it. College can be a tremendous learning experience or a complete waste of time. As Dr. Enzor put it—You can get through Western Maryland without Western Maryland having gotten through you. To illustrate, I present a group of former "small college" students (former WMC's to be exact) who in my estimation, are doing a job that is anything but small.

At the present time, WMC has contributed more than 1000 men and women to Peace Corps Volunteers. These alumni are serving and giving in an effort to improve world relations and to build human friendship. They must face an uphill battle and overcome the "bad" sides of life such as poverty, illiteracy and disease. These PCV's have courage and compassion; they seek adventure—in leaving a comfortable life behind to live with needy people in far off lands, and they seek commitment. They all have a determination to change the world that they will one day inherit... These volunteers have served in jungles of Africa, the native villages of India, the slums of South America and the

For instance, Nancy Miller ('64) finds the names of the Philippine children a challenge in themselves; she reprimanded a child with these words: "Jesus, get the gum out of your mouth right now."

They face discouragement of all types through all kinds of hardships—For instance, Mary Ellen ('65) and Dennis Quibby ('64) were recently robbed of all their valuables while threatened by a machete... and this experience came while Mary Ellen was recuperating from a severe ankle injury sustained earlier in Malaysia! Yet throughout all these hardships they retain their sense of humor and understanding.

These volunteers who are helping others help themselves stand very tall in my estimation—and the people they help look up to these PCV's also—which is true in Nancy Miller's case anyway, for she's 6 feet tall.

Those people still remaining in the Peace Corps program are: Susan Gordon ('64), N. H. '64, and the people they help (65), M. E. Quibby ('65), Dennis Quibby ('64), and Ingrid and John Whaley ('64).

This, many of the PCV's are aware of, is not the world and the time into which they have emerged—a world where creature comforts abound and can be dispensed a time when the great moral issue is clearly the brotherhood of man—They are a mirror too, of their college and the world around them in my opinion their reflection is anything but small.

Though there is some truth to this belief—I am of a different opinion—To me, college is an opportunity to be taken advantage of; in other words, college is just what you make it. College can be a tremendous learning experience or a complete waste of time. As Dr. Enzor put it—You can get through Western Maryland without Western Maryland having gotten through you. To illustrate, I present a group of former "small college" students (former WMC's to be exact) who in my estimation, are doing a job that is anything but small.

At the present time, WMC has contributed more than 1000 men and women to Peace Corps Volunteers. These alumni are serving and giving in an effort to improve world relations and to build human friendship. They must face an uphill battle and overcome the "bad" sides of life such as poverty, illiteracy and disease. These PCV's have courage and compassion; they seek adventure—in leaving a comfortable life behind to live with needy people in far off lands, and they seek commitment. They all have a determination to change the world that they will one day inherit... These volunteers have served in jungles of Africa, the native villages of India, the slums of South America and the

For instance, Nancy Miller ('64) finds the names of the Philippine children a challenge in themselves; she reprimanded a child with these words: "Jesus, get the gum out of your mouth right now."

They face discouragement of all types through all kinds of hardships—For instance, Mary Ellen ('65) and Dennis Quibby ('64) were recently robbed of all their valuables while threatened by a machete... and this experience came while Mary Ellen was recuperating from a severe ankle injury sustained earlier in Malaysia! Yet throughout all these hardships they retain their sense of humor and understanding.

These volunteers who are helping others help themselves stand very tall in my estimation—and the people they help look up to these PCV's also—which is true in Nancy Miller's case anyway, for she's 6 feet tall.

Those people still remaining in the Peace Corps program are: Susan Gordon ('64), N. H. '64, and the people they help (65), M. E. Quibby ('65), Dennis Quibby ('64), and Ingrid and John Whaley ('64).

This, many of the PCV's are aware of, is not the world and the time into which they have emerged—a world where creature comforts abound and can be dispensed a time when the great moral issue is clearly the brotherhood of man—They are a mirror too, of their college and the world around them in my opinion their reflection is anything but small.

The office of the registrar wishes to announce that the exam schedule published with the May course selection sheet is the exam schedule for the first semester for next year. This semester, we will follow the exam schedule as it was printed in the December course selection sheets.

New Folk Mass Ordains Poist

The Reverend David Poist, Deacon of the Episcopal Church, chaplain at Canterbury House, and Curate at the Church of the Ascension, will be ordained to the order of Priests on Thursday, May 19, at eight o'clock in the evening at Baker Memorial Chapel. There will be a reception following the service in McDaniel lounge. The college community is invited to attend.

The service will be unique in that there will be a consecration by the Episcopal Bishop of Maryland, the Rt. Rev. Harry Lee Doll, and twelve assisting priests; the clergy will stand around a large table and celebrate the service together. This is probably the first time that such a service has been conducted in this manner in Maryland by non-Roman Catholic clergy. The music of the liturgy under the direction of Richard McCall will be folk, accompanied by guitar; a choir of twenty-five students will sing the folk music. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. Dr. Richard Katter, theology professor at Wesleyan Divinity School, New Haven, Connecticut, where Mr. Poist studied.

Darcy Rebutts Chaff

To the Editor:

While preparing a delicious mixture of Purina Chow and Carnation "powdered" for my dog, Mittens, last night, I thought of the plight of Chaff and wished I could extend a friendly bowl.

Truly she is to be pitied for not understanding that her aggression is misdirected. Mr. Rice is not a cat. "Starchy Girl" should direct her barbs at the campus social planners, who could create a much more cosmopolitan campus. For example, in the fall men from Mount Saint Mary's, the Hopkins, Gettysburg and other institutes are invited. The freshmen girls would then find the atmosphere less claustrophobic. Two other ideas come to mind, a freshman prom might be in order. The women of all classes might form together and pay homage to the Naval Academy. Dreadnought Sunday?

I think some of the old dogs need to learn a few new tricks. Chawing Mr. Rice is very old hat.

CONDORMEN CELEBRATE MAY DAY WITH GALLAUDET

Huseman Hopes For New Record Morrison Strong In Hurdles

by Bill Dudley
Tomorrow, the ill-fated Terror trackster will host a strong contingent from Gallaudet as a part of the Athletic Department's contribution to the May Day Gala.

Despite the prolific scoring of several of the WMC members, the thincalds have run their losing streak to five, and are still seeking their first victory. In their last two outings against Towson and Lyncoming the Terrors came out on the short end of the baton by scores of 88-48 and 83-57. Would you believe they're improving?

Although not supported by final score, most of the squad members are still working to reach their peak, while others have leveled off to a reliable consistency. Dana "the new-improved" flash" Huseman is now packing cigars in his gum bag in hopes of lighting up "Red Aurbach" style with a new century record. Dana has two meets and the Mason-Dixon Championships left in which to hit a new standard of 9.9, eclipsing the 10 flat record he now shares.

Jimmy Morrison has continued to dominate the scoring in the hurdles events, taking first and second places in the high and intermediate hurdle races against both of the last opponents. Similarly, Piet deWitt has been out-distancing most competitors in the long and triple jumps. Piet racked up a total of fourteen points in his last two showings in these specialties as well as places in the 100 and 200 yard sprints. Another new face breaking the tape was Charley Wheatley, who looked as though he may have found himself against Lyncoming, where he churned through a rain-soaked track to win the two mile marathon. "Wheaties" had been hampered by a weak ankle most of the season, but looks as though he may be ready to make his final assault on the record of his race. One other place where a little sun crept through the "liquid sunshine" at Lyncoming was in the mile relay when Coach Jones and Cass finally whipped up a victorious foursome. Various tetrads had been getting wiped out in all the previous meets, but Huseman, Morrison, Pete Kinner, and Bill Chasey finally brought home the bacon in 3:44 flat. Not a bad time considering they needed snorkels to get through the puddles on the back stretch!

Among the thincalds who have been consistent point getters are Rick Robbins in the mile and duce, Rick McCanna chasing Morrison through the hurdle courses, Kinner and Chasey in the 880, Dave Read in the 440, Jay Spjert in the pole vault, John Dally and John Clark in the weight events, Clint deWitt and Jerry Wolf in the assorted jumps and Denny Gossell and Bill Dudley in the javelin.

Last year's champions, Alpha Gamma Tau, will be shooting for their third consecutive undefeated season, but will have

Intramural Softball Underway; Softball, Tennis Share Spotlight

by Mike Ward
Spring intramurals open this week with the start of the softball season, the annual climax to the intramural scene on the hill.

This year, however, there will be a new look in the sporting program. Intramural tennis will make its debut with a slate of ten games scheduled between the five teams in the league. Three fraternity teams, a faculty team, and a freshman team will provide the action in this year's new sport.

Each tennis match will consist of three singles matches and a doubles match with the win going to the individual or individuals winning two out of three sets. Team scoring will be based on a scale of one point for each singles victory and two points for the win in the doubles match. The winner of the match will be the team that wins three points out of the five points possible. Team competition will be keen despite the fact that tennis will not count towards the intramural trophy. As usual, softball will take the spotlight by virtue of the fact that it is the last of the intramural sports and will decide the final standings in the intramural cup competition. Six teams will compete in the league with twenty-four games spaced throughout the month of May providing plenty of action. As during last year's season, the teams will be governed by slow pitch softball rules which rule against bunting and base stealing. These rules also restrict the speed with which the pitcher may throw the ball so that there must be a perceptible arch on the ball as it sails to the plate.

Last year's champions, Alpha Gamma Tau, will be shooting for their third consecutive undefeated season, but will have to look hard to find replacements for their entire infield which graduated last year. Delta Pi Alpha will also be tough to beat, coming out of last year's season with their lone loss an 8-7 setback at the hands of the champions by virtue of a last inning rally that tipped the scales in favor of the Bachelors.

This year's intramural program promises to be the best ever on the hill with increased interest generated by the addition of tennis to the schedule. Starting time for all tennis matches will be 6:30. Most softball games will also start at that time so there will be an excellent opportunity to take in some of the games after a short stop at the grille. Why not make it a point to drop in on a few of the games this year?

Mowbraymen Host Mountaineers; Action Tomorrow In May Day Melee

by Wayne Laessig
As part of tomorrow's May Day activities, the tennis team will play host to the Mt. St. Mary's Mountaineers.

On Tuesday, May 3, the Terror racket-men, led by Coach Wray Mowbray, completely annihilated the Towson teachers in a 9-0 shutout.

Dave Christif, Darrell Linton, Frank Rowe, Charles Schmitzlein, captain Dave Horton, and Ken Nibali each took a singles match while Christif and Horton, Linton and Winterling, and Godown and Manzi teamed up for the doubles wins.

Now that the rain has finally stopped, the Mowbraymen are on the move again after having five matches cancelled. With this smashing victory under their belts, Coach Mowbray and his men will take on first Johns Hopkins, and then the Mounts, hoping to bring a win home from the mountaineers on May Day.

In their recent trip to Hopkins, Darrell Linton was the only player to come out on top in an 8-1 loss; while in an 8-0 loss to Dickinson, Linton and Winterling were winning their doubles match when they were rained out. Because the Comprehensives are the same day as the second Hopkins match, Linton will be unable to play and will cause a slight gap in the line-up. Hanns Vandrey, with an ailing arm, will be on the injured list for the remainder of the season, causing another vacancy.

while the only slightly less than dynamic duo of Tom Chenoweth and Bob Speth playing in their last six points, hauled in four of their four points to round out the scoring.

The contest was a tri-set which also involved Mount Saint Mary's who turned back the Mighty Green 12-6. For the Terrors Jones shut out his third position opponent, Reek edged his rival 2-1, and Hollywood added one in a losing effort.

Earlier in the week, Little Houston had succumbed to a powerful Lyncoming contingent 14-4. Carlson carried a fine 78 energy to two of the four Terror points and took medalist honors handily. Hollywood again split for 14 and Chenoweth picked up the only other 1/2.

The only other win for Robinson's fearless sixome came in another tri-set which, saw the Terrors subdue a strong Baltimore University crew 11-7 to gain a split, as they dropped a tough 12-6 decision to the Loyola Greyhounds. Carlson's 73 which will probably stand up for the season low medal score honors, was good for a total of 5 1/2 points in his two matches. Ron Wood blanked his opponent in the duel with BU, while Chenoweth eked out a 2-1 margin. Reek added 2 1/2 and Chenoweth got the only other half, as Jones failed to draw blood.

In the only other tri-set of the campaign, the Terror linksters traveled to Newark, Delaware where they were overpowered by the University of Delaware 9-0, but managed to hang on and gain a 3-9 split with the arch-rival Bluejays of Johns Hopkins. In the early season dual meet with the F&M only Captain Jim Reek could get on the score boards as the Terrors bowed 17 1/2-1/2 while the Diplomats turned in four sub-eighty rounds. Juniata followed suit three days later putting no fewer than five men below eighty and halting the "fearless men of the green market" 16-2, as Carlson and Jones combined to produce the only Terror scoring.

TEARFUL EYES WASH-DIXON CHAMPIONSHIP

Spotlight On Ingalls

by Walt Michael

Senior Al Ingalls is a hustler on every field of school life here at W.C. It is almost impossible to dedicate one's self to many things at the same time, but Al does a good job of it. He should by all rights receive his master's this spring in extra curricular activities. If you are trying to find "the Prince," don't waste your time looking in his room. The only sure-fire way to catch Al is to show up at a Terror sporting event, and even then, you'll have to call a time out in order to talk with him.

Al came to Western Maryland from Edgewood High School in Harford County. While there, he earned letters in football, basketball, and baseball. In his senior year he captained the gridiron and dismanned, demonstrating the leadership ability which was to shine so brightly here on the Hill.

It might sound as if Al has been hindered everything on a silver platter, but this is not so. He has had to hustle for every-thing he has attained. Al was not a star Green Terror from the start. In his freshman year, Al was hardly a first year wonder. He played good hard football, but had to be content to play J.V. at the quarterback slot. As a sophomore, Al still found himself on the J.V. squad, but his junior year was his year to "shine." The Prince showed tremendous improvement throughout the season, and for the halfback slot, managed to Allan Southworth Ingalls, Jr. turn in quite a few creditable performances, such as a two touchdown day against Johns Hopkins. In his final season as a footballer, Al was chosen by his teammates to be one of the three tri captains. At 5' 10" and 160 pounds, he played both offensive halfback and defensive center.

Aside from his prowess on the ping pong table, Al anchors the WMC Mason-Dixon Championship baseball team. It is interesting to observe just who puts the spark in a title-winning baseball team. Many times it is the shortstop, but for the Green Terror's three years running, it has been Al Ingalls. When the chips are down, Al always has something to say from his catching spot. An effective catcher never lets down on the chatter; it would be an understatement to say that Al is effective. His arm is true and fast, and he was an extremely hot bat, as this year finds him batting a mean .333. Needless to say, Al is a co-captain of this year's baseball team.

Sports have not stopped the Prince from being valuable to other pastures of the college scene. As Commander of the ROTC Battalion, Al was the recent recipient of the Baltimore Sun Medal for the outstanding senior cadet, and plans to be an officer in the New Army.

Al has held the VP position of both the SGA, and the ODK, and has been one of the hardest workers on the IFC. He has shown leadership in other organizations such as the FAC, Student Life Council, Men's Council, and the Letterman's Club. A hard working French major, the Prince was chosen to Who's Who in American College earlier this year.

Al has done his best to drain the campus of all it has to offer the individual. But the campus hasn't begun to drain the Prince. Al has a lot to offer, and will certainly have success in everything he attempts. Why, you ask? Hustle is the word. Hustle.

SULLY'S SALLIES

Congratulations to the Terrettes volleyball squads!! Both finished undefeated this season with identically spotless records of 4-0. As a matter of fact, both WMC teams were all most untouched as well as undefeated. It was necessary on only one occasion for them to go to the full three games in the best two of three series. In a season which included Western Maryland victories over Towson, Catonsville Community College, Notre Dame, and St. Joseph's, there were numerous individual standouts. Freshman LaRue Arnold consistently gave an all out effort and an all around performance. Alice McGrew and Faye Bixler combined as excellent servers and Lynne Howard excelled at the net. These and their Terretic teammates, under the enthusiastic guidance from their Tage Wood, have produced one of the few high spots in this year's WMC sports campaigns.

Saturday, May 14, the WAA is sponsoring its annual Girls Sports Day, featuring such activities as tennis, volleyball, golf and archery. Among the schools participating in the festivities will be Towson, Catonsville, Villa Julia, Morgan, Hood, Mt. St. Agnes, Goucher, and the University of Maryland. If you are interested in participating, the sign-up sheet is posted outside Blanche Ward Gym.

WMC's Terretic racquet-ers, though a little rusty, are unquestionably one of the best. How can that be, you ask? Chiefly because the rain that has drenched the campus during the last week and a half has cancelled three matches for the team. Now only two remain—Notre Dame and St. Mary's.

The Women's Athletic Association recently held its elections for the coming 1966-1967 year.

Carol Morelock handed the gavel over to Faye Bixler, who will have Kathy Moore, Mary Reeves, and Lynne Howard assisting her as Vice-President, Treasurer, and Secretary, respectively. Also chosen were the managers for the various team sports:

- Basketball—Ginny Brace and Betsy Horton
- Field Hockey—Becky Matthews and Sarah Lednum
- Volleyball—Claire Whittington
- Badminton—Alice McGrew
- Archery—Elaine Brown
- Tennis—Carol Morelock

Would you believe . . . ? Two cats were walking past a tennis court and one turned to the other and said "You know, my mother's in that racket."

The Undefeated

Editor's Note:

In a recent visit to the home of Mrs. Richard C. Harlow, wife of the greatest football mentor in the history of Western Maryland, I found, amid the gallery of pictures and plaques that carefully record the unprecedented football era that was Harlow's, an interesting article about the undefeated season of his 1929 edition of the Green Terror.

It was a team which, as Feg Murray reported in the New York Sun, held eight teams scoreless—allowing three others only three touchdowns and a bonus bout between them. Under the captainship of Charlie Havens, who later became another of the Hill's memorable mentors, the Terror's rolled up 182 points, seventy-five of which came against outstanding contingent from Georgetown, Temple, Loyola, AND the University of Maryland.

Mr. Murray was quick to notice that Coach Harlow's eleven was not overlaid with tact—the Terror team never ever had been or ever will be. It was remarked in 1936 when Harlow was named Coach of the Year that ". . . Few could get so much out of such undistinguished material. He had a way of making a man bring out the best in himself—a way of instilling the attitude which is the key to success in every endeavor.

It was this attitude which Murray rendered in three verses—powerful even if brief and imperfect—at the end of his article. As we witness with the arrival of Spring the renewal of the movement of the Mighty Green onto the fields of friendly strife, we would all do well to remember those lines:

If you think you are beaten, you are;
If you think you dare not, you don't;
If you think you'd like to win,
You better start work or you can't;
It's almost a cinch you won't;
If you know you'll lose, you'll lose;
For out in the world you'll find Success begins with a fellow's will—
It's all in the state of mind.

Full many a race is lost
Ere even a word is run,
And many a coward fails
Ere even a word is begun.
Think big and your deeds will grow,
Think small and you fall behind,
Think that you will and you can—
It's all in the state of mind.

If you think you're outclassed, you are;
You've got to think high to rise.
You've got to be sure of yourself before
You can ever win a prize.
Life's battle doesn't always go
To the stronger or the faster man;
But sooner or later the man who wins
Is the fellow who thinks he can.

Fern's Crew Takes Three More; Joyner, Carey Deliver Goods

by Rick Boswell & Will Davis

The Western Maryland Diamonds continued their grasp on first place in the Mason-Dixon and Middle Atlantic Conference as they compiled a perfect record in their three latest contests.

Continuing their slugging ways, the Terror's easily routed Hopkins 13-0, squeaked by Shepherd 5-4, and edged Elizabethton 9-8.

Scott Joyner, currently the hottest Terror around, manhandled the Bluejays in allowing only two singles en route to his shutout. He also led the hitters with a triple and two singles while knocking in four runs. Larry Suder tripled and singled while Joe "Big Daddy" Anthony gathered two singles and Vinny Festa garnered two stolen bases.

Against Shepherd, the Terror bats were kept more silent as Joyner and Bentham were the only ones with more than one hit. Nevertheless, Scott continued his homer hitting and provided two rbi's. Jack Bentham started the game, struck out five Shepherdmen, and gave way to Ralph Wilson in the eighth inning. Things looked dismal for the Terror's until late in the game when Joe Anthony hit a sacrifice fly to right field to score Larry Suder and give WMC the eventual winning run.

Elizabethtown provided a sea-saw contest for the Terror's. E-Town took the lead in the first inning and lost it in the second; from then on, both teams vied for the game. In the ninth inning the opponents led by 8-6. But singles by Jack Bentham, Larry Suder, and

Scott Joyner loaded the bases; Gary Rudacille and Joe Anthony were hit by wild pitches to force home the tying runs. John Carey performed the heroics as his long drive over the center fielder's head pushed across the winning tally. Ralph Wilson started and went for seven innings before relief from Jack Bentham, who got the win. Larry Suder had 3 hits, including a triple, while Joyner, Anthony, and Wilson had two apiece.

The team has a combined total batting average of .325 which has powered the Terror's to an 11-2 overall record. Currently, we have sole control of first place in the Northern Division of the Mason-Dixon, winning six while only losing one.

In League competition, Scott Joyner has a 490 mark which includes six homers and brings his rbi total to 15 in seven games. Short-stop Larry Suder is holding a hot bat at a .430 clip with numerous extra-base hits. Senior catcher and co-captain Al Ingalls, along with doing a fine job of signal calling, has been a consistent base runner, getting on the path at least twice every game. His good eye has enabled him to accumulate five walks and a batting average of .383, including five doubles.

Big Ralph Wilson is our leading pitcher and has compiled a 5-0 log. His amazing fast ball and tricky curve have credited him with 25 strike outs in as many innings. Little John "the cutie" Carey hasn't been up to par in his hitting, but the hits he has compiled have been timely ones.

Highlights And Sidelights

WMC's Coaching staff is widely known for its "youthful look," but they may be carrying it a bit too far. Would you believe the following dialogue was actually overheard recently at Angelo's where our beloved tennis mentor was dining?
Mr. Mowbray: . . . and a glass of wine, please.
Waitress: Did you say wine?
Mr. Mowbray: I see your card, please.
Mr. Mowbray: Are you serious?
Waitress: Sure, we have to card all the college kids. . .

Ralph Wilson isn't winning everything around here—it only seems that way. Actually he suffered a rather ingominous defeat only recently at the hands of the multi-talented GOLD BUG Editor Dave Carrasco.

The dog-eat-dog duel was fought at the free throw line in Gill Gym. Wilson, who has been known to cash in on many enemy misuses at the bonus stripe during regular season play, could manage only a meager thirty-five straight swishes. Undaunted, the scram-

A faithful Terror fan for many years, "Smoke" has become a living legend in his own time.

What a difference a year makes! Dana "the new improved flash" Huseman, who is looking to better the 100 yard dash mark he now shares, turned in another in a long list of excellent performances against Lycoming.

Speaking of track, the following cindermen are going to the Mason-Dixon Championships at Mount Saint Mary's on May 13 and 14:

Dana Huseman, Jim Morrison, Rich McCanna, the deWitt brothers Piet and Clint, Rick Robbins, and Charlie Wheatley and John Clarke.

"Birdie" Leaves Nest Tonight! "Bye, Bye"!

RICHARD BURRIS, Joyce Ferguson, and John Balderson enjoy elixir after exhausting rehearsals.

The Junior Follies of 1966, Bye Bye Birdie, opens its second and final performance in Alumni Hall at 8:15 tonight.

Although not presenting an original play, the Junior Class is innovating in being the first to bring to the Western Maryland College campus a Broadway musical comedy. Bye Bye Birdie is a light, rollicking satire on modern teenagers, their singing idols, and their parents as well.

It is a play to be thoroughly enjoyed, featuring witty dialogue, lots of music, and many laughs. The only thing missing is the suggestion of anything serious, anything other than what is gay and sparkling, and it all adds up to a show filled with fun.

Bennett Cerf Provides Commencement Ke Note

Samuel Biggs Schofield Leaves Imprint Of Forty-Seven Years of Service to WMC

Today is the last day in the career at Western Maryland College of Samuel Biggs Schofield, a man who has influenced the development of this institution far more than contemporary students can possibly realize. Dr. Schofield is resigning his position as Professor in the Department of Chemistry after forty-seven years of service to the school.

Who has been students of Dr. Schofield over the past few years will remember him as a teacher. It takes but a quick look through past volumes of the ALPHA to realize, however, that he has held every major administrative office with the exception of President during his career here.

Dr. Schofield graduated from Western Maryland in 1919 and was immediately appointed Instructor in Biology and Chemistry. In 1920, he became Dean of Men, a position he held, with the exception of one year, until he took a leave of absence in 1924 to continue his studies in Chemistry at the Princeton University. Returning with his Masters in 1925, he was appointed Professor of Chemistry and Dean of the College, a position roughly comparable to the Dean of Faculty of today. In 1928, the "Deans" received his third Deanship, Dean of Administration. This job encompassed most of the responsibilities of the present Office of Physical Plant, in addition to many of those which now come under the Office of the Treasurer. He resigned as Dean at the end of 1932 and then, the next year, as Chairman of the Department of Chemistry. He has continued on as a teacher since that time.

Despite the meticulous detail with which he attended to his administrative duties, the Dean has always devoted the majority of his time and energy to the task of teaching. Those of us who have studied under him realize that his teaching went far beyond the narrow confines of the textual material. It was he who gave us an historical perspective. It was he, by and large, encouraged to cut corners, it was Dean Schofield who in his insistence that only our best was acceptable, developed in us pride in good technique.

Most of all, however, we appreciate the great interest he has shown in us as students and individuals. He has always come to the aid of a student who has shown the slightest sign of interest. His help has ranged from simple pointers to massive instruction and personal counseling. He has always taken time to know his students, and know about them, in order to better aid them in their scheduling of courses, choice of vocation, and solving of personal problems.

In keeping with his desire that students should have the best, he worked devotedly to build the curriculum and facilities of the Chemistry Department. The fact that graduates from the Department can enter the professional or academic world with confidence is a testimony to his labors. It is no accident, for example, that the library has a fine collection of most of the major Chemistry journals stretching back many years.

As we depart from the Western Maryland scene along with Dean Schofield, we will look back, not only at the school, but at a man who stands out for his straight-forward, frank approach, his refusal to compromise the best interest of the school or students, and for his disinterested energy which drove him to become better students and people.

Witches Dictate to Macbeth Evil Brew Predicts His Fate

"Double, Double, Toil and trouble" is the cry of Mr. Tribby, Assistant Professor of Dramatic Art, this year's director of the annual Senior Play.

Macbeth, one of the four great tragedies by Shakespeare, will be presented Thursday and Friday, June 2 and 3, 1966 at 8:15 p.m. in Alumni Hall. Students of WMC and faculty will be admitted without charge. The price for the general public will be $4.00.

In order to present a more realistic and unusual interpretation of the play the balcony of Alumni Hall and the aisles will be used as acting area. A thrust has also been constructed over a portion of the orchestra seating to add even more stage area. Jerry L. Solomon is in charge of scenery and lighting while Esther Smith is handling costumes and makeup.

Macbeth will be played by Gary Crowell, a member of Gamma Beta Chi. Lady Macbeth is played by Carolyn Peterson, a member of Iota Gamma Chi and the veteran of many campus productions. Bill McClary appears as MacDuff and Larry Eisenberg as Banquo. Richard McCall dies as Duncan, Ross is played by Allan Ingalls, and Carolyn Koerber is the wife of MacDuff.

Macbeth, written in 1605-06 from information taken from Holinshed's Chronicles, is more than the story of another heaped husband. The setting is sleight-of-century Scotland. It presents a man who learns to tolerate that ultimate "ends" cannot be faced. Once a man forgets this, his consequent dreams and actions can't lose the irrational powers in human as well as physical nature.

Ensor Addresses 1966 Graduates; Mass to Climax Baccalaureate

The Baccalaureate address will be presented to the 1966 graduating class in the 1966 at 10:30 a.m. in Baker Memorial Chapel. Dr. Ensor will deliver the address. Following the established tradition, there will be an academic by the graduating class in their caps and gowns. As in previous years, the class will recite the responses to the Ten Commandments.

Demonstrators State Reforms Attempt to Present Stimulus

One of the cars which demonstrated in the May Day parade and "placards read "Student Voice in Faculty Rank and Tenure," and "More Student Reform in Concert-Lecture Series."

"The march of needed reform must never cease. It is appropriate for any parade," answered one member of the group which organized in WMC's May Day Parade in answer to a student who asked, "why this parade?"

One member of this group recently expressed his ideas on the six ideas stressed in the demonstration. First, the proposal to make ROTC non-compulsory is a statement of his belief that it is not a part of a normal college curriculum. Because it is a private institution, "why participate in a government sponsored program?"

"Token Integration at WMC" is the second point discussed. The demonstrator feels that "we whites owe a little bit to the Negro, that whites should go a little overboard to compensate for their faults of the past. It seems that the only Negroes we have at WMC are 'jocks' that are exploited for their athletic ability. I wonder if they were the same guy, but not athletic, would they be admitted?"

The third point concerns "student choice in faculty rank and tenure. In some progressive schools across the country, the student has some voice in the tenure and rank committee because it is the student who is closest to the professor. And because he is closest, he is the best judge of the effectiveness of the instructor, whether he is 'truly communicating'."

Is the WMC curriculum "over-structured and under-inspired?" stated the demonstrator. He believes that "at WMC, there are too many requirements, that a professor is not now in a position to experiment with his students and to create unusual programs for the individual's needs."

In discussing the next issue, "Social Fraternities, Monuments to irrelevancy," the demonstrator stated that he feels that "something primarily social does not deserve as much time and interest as is devoted to fraternities on this campus. Since fraternities are so major at WMC, do they conduct programs that are relevant to student needs?"

The final point for discussion is "More Student Choice in Concert and Lecture Series." The demonstrator feels that "a primary reason why the assemblies are not well attended is because there is not enough student voice on the lecture committee."

Writer, Editor Now Speaks About Experiences

Bennett Cerf, writer, publisher, editor and current columnist will deliver the commencement address to the class of 1966 in Alumni Hall on June 6, 1966.

Mr. Cerf, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Columbia University with a degree from the Columbia School of Journalism, is the author of "Try and Stop Me," a daily feature syndicated in over 600 newspapers. He is Chairman of the Board of Random House (publishers of The Modern Library, Landmark Books, and The American College Dictionary); editor of An Encyclopedia of Modern American Humor; Reading for Pleasure; and Out on a Limb; columnist for King Features Syndicate; and panelist on the television show "What's My Line?"

Mr. Cerf began his career as a humorist while a student at Columbia University by editing its humor magazine "The Jester." After graduation, he became a reporter with the New York Herald Tribune and a clerk in the Stock Exchange. Later, he bought the Modern Library and began his publishing career by founding Random House.

In early 1960 Random House, already one of the country's leading publishers, reached a new height when it acquired the distinguished publishing house of Alfred A. Knopf, Inc. Later in the year the L. W. Singer Company, top-line publishers of elementary and high school textbooks, also came under the Random House set up. In 1961, Random House also acquired Pantheon Books, publishers of Dr. Zhivago, Born Free, and The Leopard.

Mr. Cerf is a natural speaker. He likes people, he listens, he likes to feel the pulse of the nation. He brings with him a world of publishing experience, an extraordinary knowledge of well-known figures of today and yesterday and a delightful sense of the humorous.

Baggs Creates Warm Alumni Spirit, Retires From Administrative Post presented him with his own box of chocolates.

The director of development was very busy much thought. He spent weeks traveling around the East Coast visiting alumni, contacting foundations, corporations and others who might want to assist Western Maryland financially. For many years the College has not had anyone traveling extensively to meet alumni and talk with friends and Mr. Baggs took to this job with gusto.

All of this interest in alumni was not hampered during the recent Centennial Expansion Program which the College conducted. Working with the professional fund raisers and with Mr. Philip E. Uhrig, director of alumni affairs, he helped make the campaign an amazing success.

It came as a surprise to many that Mr. Baggs was ready to retire. During all of his career on the Hill he had sported a brush cut which indicated a younger man. Recently, Mr. Baggs decided to let his hair grow out—to look his age, he said. But the natty jacket, which Mr. Baggs refers to as "Mother's Day this year" the secretaries got together and

WMC to Represent Typical American College

The Public Information Office of the United States and ROTC program has chosen Western Maryland College to represent "typically American College Life."

Colonel Stephen H. White, a Western Maryland alumnus, who is currently assigned to the pentagon in charge of Army ROTC public relations was recently given the task of modeling the ROTC brochure entitled "Where the Leaders Are . . ." The photographic essay, which is a major ingredient of the brochure, features Western Maryland as one of the sites.

Early this spring, G. Kenneth Adams of Ketchum, MacLeod, and Grove, Inc., the public relations firm contracted by the government to handle the program, met with Colonel John W. Walker, PMS & T, and Cadet Battalion Commander Allan S. Ingalls and planned the photographic itinerary.

Army contract photographer, John French, focuses on Anne Spencer and Bruce Knowles for a series of pictures that are to be used as a photographic essay for ROTC public relations.

On Thursday May 5, following the on-campus organization of WMC cadets and coeds by Battalion Commander Ingalls and Battalion Staff Sponsor Carolyn Seneman, Mr. Adams and professional photographer John French took pictures at nine different campus sites, including Gill Gym, the Library, Maclea Dorm, Ward Memorial Arch, and the Lewis addition. The more than forty photographs taken of WMC's cadets, coeds, and scenery will become a part of a permanent ROTC public information file.

In the afternoon, following Baccalaureate, the Western Maryland College Choir, under the direction of Professor Alfred DeLong, will again perform the Bellini Mass. The Mass will feature soloists Louise Nelson, soprano; Harry Loats, tenor; Ann Faulkner, alto; and two new members, Sunday Organist, Joan Humphreys MacDonald will accompany the choir.

Written more in concert style than in sacred music style, the Bellini Mass appeals to the contemporary listener. Professor DeLong believes that the Bellini Mass is a very melodious and fun to sing which has enjoyed a large degree of popularity with the present day listeners.

The Mass was previously performed by the Western Maryland Choir on Sunday, March 20 in Baker Memorial Chapel. The second performance will be given on June 5, in Baker Memorial Chapel.

Omlenon Delta Kappa, the Men's Leadership Society, will add two new members, Sunday May 22, at 4:00 p.m. in Small Baker Chapel. The short induction ceremony, which is open to the public, will be followed by a reception for the members and guests of ODK. The new members are Ronald G. Kobernick and Robert E. Whitfield.

The Sandpiper

Western Maryland is starting to get its feet wet—at least in the sense of contemporary issues and controversies.

With breakers that were furious (Boyd), inspiring (Coffin), confusing (Abolition), and silent (May Day Demonstration), a tide of new attitudes swept onto the campus and into the lives of its citizens. Coming as the college approaches its second century, the tension and controversy may be a healthy part of the historical setting that marks a new beginning for the college.

The sea came in with the Communicator, who tore furiously at the establishment and the college showed that it was a first—as least in terms of intensity and purpose. Mr. Coffin's knowledge, ability to communicate and charm revealed many of our inadequacies and inspired some of us to express ourselves. Evidence is seen in the curriculum study, the Fraternity controversy, and the number of letters in the GOLD BUG. These issues were previously rumbling in the underground but were given the impetus to come into the open.

The fact that these areas (social, academic—even the SOS) have come under attack and criticism and investigation hint to the fact that these facets of the college are growing up—or at least have the potential to grow. The shadows become lights of exposure—of both the weaknesses and strengths and are an authentic way to a new beginning and improvement.

On occasion, the expression of criticism can come in the form of a defeatist attitude—more often it is interpreted as such when it isn't—by those afraid of criticism. If the expression should come, it is more helpful if it appears in the context and meaning of the lovers' quarrel than the quarrel itself. Moderation is the key. Just as a student or teacher should not be afraid of unpopularity that comes from expressing a dissenting point of view—so he should not be afraid to accentuate the positive when he feels the urge and the time is right.

Some of the happenings mentioned earlier broke unwritten traditions. Generally speaking, this is a healthy step. There is a significant difference between having a sense of tradition which nurtures the vital aspects of the foundations and being paralyzed by tradition that submerges a people or institution into a lethargy so that they remain closed to a changing world.

This college is not so rich in intellectual and inspirational leadership or so certain of its growth or so perfect in its presentation of the liberal arts education that it can afford the suppression of different and vital voices.

Interestingly enough, the theme of the latest edition of the Alumni Magazine was change on the Hill. Two of the Deans authored articles concerning the changing face of the college—and they weren't limited to their discussions of faculty.

The point is that just as the college senior is moving into a new existence, so the college is moving out of some of its traditions. The areas which came under scrutiny this semester will continue to be scrutinized next year.

Robert S. Dickson of Denison University expresses it well.

The painful search of he who seeks not knowing for what or for whom he seeks is never so lonely as the self-contained strife of he who searches not remaining him, dry and aloof from the sea of human love.

Some feed on their own paranoia some in the sandpiper have the sandpiper to walk along the water's edge trying to escape the sea but even the sandpiper gets his feet wet.

The seas have come up before—but never quite so fast or so far or in so prophetic a manner.

I suppose you could call this a eulogy to my years on the Hill. The events of the past semester lend credence to the fact that those years are dead. The Growth, the opposit of death, may be the key to my problem. I continued my education in order to grow. But

I did not intend to see that growth manifested in becoming well-adjusted, knowing how to "make it" in a business organization, learning at what angle to hold my glass of scotch at that important cocktail party, memorizing a stack of facts that don't have a thing to do with the skin and bones that hang on my body or the brain that works in my head; so that I could fit into the monstrous economic structure that is our society. And that structure does not define me or the feelings and desires of a human being. We can use a system, but we cannot be a system, unless that system is a human being. Yet I seriously question whether the goals of this insti-

Reasons for Thoughts Around The College Green: "Big-League" WMC Precedes More Hesitation

by Cary Wolfson

I was just sitting here, busy not-writing the paper I have due in two days and haven't started yet. The day is beautiful. Outside one window I can see several floats in the final stages of preparation (some kind of oyster, a sardine, a turned beer can) and out of the other some brave souls are pasting unappreciated (but, alas, true) slogans on a Volkswagen. Somewhere else, a pretty court of maidens is preparing a redundant celebration of what was originally no doubt some pagan Spring phallic rite. I was just sitting here when I realized that this year was nearly over with still so much to do. I had to be said and done.

As you read this two weeks from now, these things probably won't seem so timely to you since finals are coming up and, I bet, like me, you're probably wanting to go somewhere and get drunk. Or, like most of you, you've been hiding in your attic hole all year, you'll want to stay there and study (since, as is likely, you don't have the common sense to take a final on your own) and read (since you've underlined 458 times without crumming for it the night before). That's why I'm writing this now while it's still fresh.

School Is In Transition

This year has been a year of transition—one of the likes of which I'm sure this school has never before. We have seen this newspaper change from the sickeningly saccharine of the past to a fairly decent semi-liberal recorder (and sometimes instigator) of student opinion. But it must be realized that such improvement could be made only because so much more was needed.

Our Student Government elections reflected at least a temporary growth in student interest by the fact that there was a field to choose from. The oligarchical ruling clique has been replaced by some steady thinkers. The new president has already begun to wrest the power from an autonomous handful and return it to the students. Little things like trying (against unwarranted administrative opposition) to play the kind of music that 800 students and their waitresses (working for 70 cents an hour) want to hear in the dining hall, and the creation of a Publicity Committee are beginning to give the WMC some of the sorely needed for a long time. It is a thankless job that cannot and should not be done by just students and conscientious workers. Strides are being taken, but giant steps are necessary, and only the support of an interested student body can accomplish them.

Curriculum Now Being Studied

Work is being done to bring about long-needed changes in the curriculum. This is still in the talk stage and will remain there or die shortly unless students begin to realize that education they receive at this institution is only adequate and begin to give their support to change. Too many can't comprehend that their instructors at WMC just don't tell it like it is. The dominant opinion which is constricting us all is that we are "good enough." In catering to the wrong people our really bright students are forced to take on "I don't give a damn" attitude, while the grinding vegetable walks off with the honors.

The truth is that students are being deluded: graduates of Western Mother College are simply not prepared to compete in the "real world" (which, I have been told, is somewhere "out there"). What kind of thinking individual can be produced by an institution which perpetuates such differences for alleged women, compulsory play-soldiers, church-related inquired chapel services (of which the results of a Gallup Poll in order to make up their minds, and who are not for sale. Some of my most exciting and stimulating moments are spent with people who strongly disagree with me. Life would be intolerably dull if there were no disagreement. Let us continue to develop and to hold fast to our convictions and have the courage to act upon them.

It is, however, quite another thing to be mad about our convictions, so mad that we think we have the deposit of truth in our heads, so sure we are about right. This madness often results in a refusal to talk with others who have a different point of view. What invariably helps those who hold convictions strongly is a sense of humor, an ability to laugh at their own white anger, and to what they believe with all integrity.

2. To endure tension without hatred. There has been an extraordinary and almost unbearable amount of tension engendered among the student body and faculty this year. The tension is welcome, healthy, and necessary for our growth and change. Tension is the womb out of which is born progress and improvement.

Tension created by the prophetic judgment of the Baals purified Israel. Tension created by Luther's criticism of the Medieval church resulted in a new form of Christianity. Tension created by Martin Luther King's demonstrations in Selma produced the restoration of suffrage of Negro citizens. Tension created by student and faculty protests will result in sound academic pursuits and administrative policies.

Trumpeters Selected

The annual Trumpeter tapping was held on Thursday, May 19, on the lawn in front of President Ensor's house. After a brief address by Kay Coleman, the following girls were tapped: the new Trumpeters: Christine Connelly, Carolyn Henson, Deborah Sturdevant, Connie Vander Loo, and Carol Wilcox. Nelson sang the Lord's Prayer, and all the Junior women joined the old and new Trumpeters in ringing the Alma Mater.

Another answer is, "Get rid of fraternities and you'll see a more improved attitude. But this is like trying to stop an epidemic by killing some of the victims. I think we've already given the great improvement coming from within the fraternities themselves. The abolition paper was the best thing that could happen to the fraternities if it managed to knock them out of their Ivory Towers. But a serious position paper would have to call for abolition of the college itself for it is the virus of decadence and stagnation hanging like a thick fog over the entire college which is responsible for the ill-of our fraternities. Improvement is Still Needed As I said before, this has been a year of transition. But let us not be fooled into thinking that the important changes have already been made, for those still lie in the future. Now is not the time for hesitation; you've got it all right out in front of you and the golden opportunity is not always going to be as easy to grab as it is now. Don't forget that if you want to make sure a job gets done, you've got to go out and do it yourself—so put down that notebook for awhile and do some real work. You pay your money, and you takes yer choice.

Somebody Up There?

Making Freedom Work

by Deen Ira G. Zepf, Jr.

The ABC's (Abolition, Boyd, and Coffin) of this wonderful year have been occasions for this writer to learn and relearn a few things.

1. To hold convictions without madness. As we all know, there can be no dialogue, and hence no compromise, unless convictions are held, points of view made known, positions articulated, and differences recognized. Personally, I appreciate people with convictions, people who stand for something, who do not swallow ideas and opinions wholesale, who do not need to wait for the results of a Gallup Poll in order to make up their minds, and who are not for sale. Some of my most exciting and stimulating moments are spent with people who strongly disagree with me. Life would be intolerably dull if there were no disagreement. Let us continue to develop and to hold fast to our convictions and have the courage to act upon them.

It is, however, quite another thing to be mad about our convictions, so mad that we think we have the deposit of truth in our heads, so sure we are about right. This madness often results in a refusal to talk with others who have a different point of view. What invariably helps those who hold convictions strongly is a sense of humor, an ability to laugh at their own white anger, and to what they believe with all integrity.

2. To endure tension without hatred. There has been an extraordinary and almost unbearable amount of tension engendered among the student body and faculty this year. The tension is welcome, healthy, and necessary for our growth and change. Tension is the womb out of which is born progress and improvement.

Tension created by the prophetic judgment of the Baals purified Israel. Tension created by Luther's criticism of the Medieval church resulted in a new form of Christianity. Tension created by Martin Luther King's demonstrations in Selma produced the restoration of suffrage of Negro citizens. Tension created by student and faculty protests will result in sound academic pursuits and administrative policies.

But, inevitably, with tension comes hostility. The status quo is always threatened and dissent. This threat breeds hostility which comes out of a basic defensiveness and an inability to sound with the tension in a positive and constructive manner. If we who are protested against could perceive the creativity in an "tension and if we who are protested against could speak "the truth in love," there might be less hostility and the tension would be more viable.

3. To enjoy freedom without license. Every contemporary revolution—racial, social, sexual, political—has as its ultimate goal freedom in some form of protest—draft card burning, Berkeley's FSM, University of Chicago's sit-in, and even WMC's own "uneventful" one has as its objective, some form of emancipation. At least, let's give them the benefit of the doubt.

Apparently, a country born out of the protest of the Boston Tea Party against the then established government of England had to be earning, through its revolutionary and protesting spirit. The democratic west and Christianity have a common end—the freedom of the human being.

But there will be no freedom to enjoy if the revolution does not result in responsibility and if the protest does take place within and have respect for order. Remember that the Declaration of Independence was the forerunner of the Constitution!

When liberty is synonymous with license we are not free at all, but enslaved in the worse form of bondage. To do as we please has never been the hallmark of freedom. To be as responsible as possible is the indispensable element in freedom and that which produces the only authentic liberty.

Lewis Hall Wing Heralds Expansion

The long awaited unveiling of the Lewis Hall extension has finally come. The sharp contrast of the new science wing to its surroundings is as noticeable to the student who strolls across the glass-walled skyway from Old Lewis as it is to the casual passerby.

The new addition will provide extra classrooms and laboratories for the chemistry, biology, physics, and mathematics departments, according to President Lowell S. Ensor. All will

New Improved Flash Smashes 1 Second Mark

Huseman Snaps 100 Tape In 9.8 deWitt Adds 2 Feet To Old Mark

by Walt Michael
The Green Terrors ended the 1966 thirteenth season in grand style with a 75-60 May Day drubbing of Gallaudet and terrific individual performances by Dana Huseman and Pete deWitt at last weekend's Mason-Dixon Championships.

At the championships held at Mt. St. Mary's, Dana, "the new improved Flash" Huseman, took first place in the 100 yard dash with an amazing time of 9.8 seconds. Actually, Dana broke his old mark of 10 flat twice at the championships; he ran a 9.9 in the semifinals, and then swept the event with his record breaking 9.8.

Dana is one of the few Green Terrors ever to win a M-D championship crown. In his last six long years since we have produced a champion, Dana has been improving on his time ever since he hit the Hill. Last year saw him run quite a few 10.4's. This year Dana has been a constant threat to the old 10 flat record, and he finally hit pay dirt at the Mount.

There is no doubt that the keen competition and the track condition helped to put Huseman past that old record. The race was extremely close as another boy ran a 9.8 but lost in a photo finish. The Mount has an all weather track which usually boosts times. But there is no doubt that Dana deserved the first place; he is truly a student of the sport, and a hustler to boot.

Co-captain Piet deWitt finished his last track season in a rush, as he jumped 44" 10" in the triple jump at the Championships. Piet took a second, and in jumping 44" 10", bettered his old mark by more than 2 feet, and also set a new school record. It is probable that the names of deWitt and Huseman will remain on the track board in Gill Gym for a long time. They were the team's high scorers on the season; Flash completed 82 points while deWitt pulled in 68. The former had 15 seasonal first places while the latter accounted for 9.

The May Day defeat of Gallaudet was indeed a pleasant one for the Terrors. They winless, were looking for a bloody win, and they got it. The weather was clear and the track condition was fast, thus "all systems were go."

The relay races split the score at five apiece as Western Maryland took the 440 but dropped the mile. The most exciting race of the day was the grueling mile event as Terror Rick Robbins lost out to Perry of Gallaudet in the home stretch. The 100 yard dash was, as usual, won by Huseman in a time of 10.1; Huseman also took the 220 with no trouble.

Freshman Pete "Showah" Kinner took a second in the 880, while Charlie Wheatley and Robbins placed one-two respectively in the two mile. Needless to say, Jim Morrison and Rick McCanna placed one-two in both of the hurdle races. All of these boys have been consistent point getters for the not-so-consistent thirteenth squad. 'Jay Sybert took the pole vault event with a clean jump of 11 feet, while Beineck of Gallaudet took the high jump with a not-so-high leap of 5' 10". Clarke and Daly took second and third places in the shot put.

The deWitt brothers took second and third in the broad jump behind the 20 2/4" performance of Gallaudet's Rambarger. Both had jumped further than Rambarger's mark in previous meets, but May Day just wasn't their day. However, Piet came through in the triple jump. He won the event with a jump of 42 feet, while Clint took a third. The discuss event saw the Terrors edge out Gallaudet 5-4 with second and third places by Markey and Gosnell.

The final score of the meet was 75-60 in favor of the good guys. The Thincads certainly deserved to win their final meet. Team spirit and hustle were evident in a win in the season. The following were awarded varsity letters for giving of their time and talents on the cinders: Dana Huseman, Jim Morrison, Piet deWitt, Rick Robbins, Jay Sybert, Dennis Gosnell, Clint deWitt, Pete Markey, Rick McCanna, Pete Kinner, John Clark, Charlie Wheatley, Bill Chasey, Jerry Wolf, and Bill Dudley.

Little Houston Ends Boostin' Jones, Reck Medalists At M-D

by Steve Jones
The 1966 edition of Coach Robinson's "Little Houston Linksman" has ended its season with a rather unimpressive 2-11-1 slate.

The "fearless men of the cinders" defeated American and Baltimore universities while tying Hopkins. The final match of the season saw Little Houston drop both ends of a tri-match against Elizabethtown (15½-24) and Lebanon Valley (17-1). Senior captain Jim Reck halved his E-town opponent while picking up a half a point against Lebanon Valley. The only other scoring was done by Steve Jones, who carded a point against E-town, and Bob Speth, who squeezed out a half point against his Valley opponent. Captain Reck was medalist with an 86.

Returning to the Norfolk, Virginia Beach area on May 9th, the WMC Green Terrors competed in the 36 hole Mason Dixon Tournament over a poorly conditioned Stumpy Lake Golf Course. As Coach Robinson stated after the Southern trip, "Stumpy Lake makes our course look like Pinehurst." As a team, WMC finished next to last, edging out arch-rival Johns Hopkins. Co-medalists for the Terrors were Jim Reck and Steve Jones at 176 for the 36 hole event.

At the First Annual Spring Sports Banquet on Tuesday, letters were awarded to Captain Jim "yes, I've done a little thinking about marriage" Reck. Les "the sophomore sensation" Carlson, Robert "I'll have a Bud" Hollywood, Tom "the Indian" Chenoweth, and Steve "???" Jones.

Numerals were awarded to Ron "but I'm hitting them straight this way" Wood, Charlie "the Tuna" Moler, Bob "where's my $1.60?" Speth, and Craig "love 'em and love 'em" Davis. Letters and numerals were presented by Dean "make mine a Bud, too" Robinson.

The Little Houston Award was also presented at the sports banquet. Les Carlson was this year's recipient. This award is given each year to the team member who has added most to the team, both on and off the golf course. Congratulations are in order to Les, a fine flogger and a sportsman in the true sense of the word.

Mowbraymen End Season Frosh Bring Rain, Talent

by Wayne Laessig
Rain, talented freshmen and innovations highlighted Wray Mowbray's first season as tennis coach on the Hill.

The rain was evident in the season's record of 4 wins, 6 losses, and 4 rained out. In their last 4 matches, the team took 2 losses at 8-1 and 9-0 from Hopkins and Delaware, and 2 wins from the Mount and Towson at 9-0 and 6-2.

At our second defeat from the second Hopkins team, Christhill and Bove took their doubles match for our only score, while at Delaware we faced our strongest opponents of the season, with no one even taking a set. Towson, a rescheduled match, was won by a crucial victory in the doubles by Linton and Winterling, with Mazzi and Nihali adding a win in the doubles. Bove, Linton, Horton, and Schmitzlein contributed to the score with their singles victories. The Mount's foray to the WMC courts gave us a 9-0 victory with everyone's win a strong one.

The improvement over last year's 2-10 slate was helped by the maturation of the senior members of the squad, Linton, Horton, and Winterling. Darrell Linton's consistent and talented play at the No. 2 position gave him 8-1 record, the best on the team. Team Captain Dave Horton had his most successful season on the Hill, winning 3 singles matches, while at

DAVE CHRISTHILL
The same time keeping the team's morale up and Coach Mowbray acting in on the team's progress. Kept from practices by his student teaching, Grayson Winterling played in the No. 2 doubles position and hustled hard to give the team added strength.

Next year, leading the returns will be Dave Christhill, who has been playing in the No. 1 position. Dave has a big serve and a strong net game, and with some added aggressiveness, potentially could become one of our best players in recent years. Charlie Schmitzlein hold the No. 4 position and consistently played the "longest match of the day." In No. 3 position, Frank Bove showed a knowledge of the game and talent. Next year he will be pushing Dave Christhill for the No. 1 place.

The new innovation this year was Coach Mowbray's alternation of several talented freshmen in the No. 6 singles and No. 3 doubles positions. In this experiment, freshmen Anthony Mazzi, Jim Godown, and Ken Nihali gained experience and skill for next year's season.

For Coach Mowbray this season has been both an enjoyable and a learning experience. Using the skill they had, the team, led by their able coach, faced several respectable competitors and came out with a successful season. But even now the team has prophesied another innovation—a winning season!

The Washington Post recently carried a picture of Terrorist bossman John Carey in action. The picture showed a close play at first. Vague reports have been circulating that a man in this was seen apologizing after the game.

The annual lacrosse game was held on Tuesday of this week. No doubt, stickmen of the year awards go to Wolfson, Smith, and Davis, who spent most of the afternoon sneaking up on opposing players.

Fernmen Drop M-1 Title; American Wins Finale 10-3

by Gordon Shelton
The Green Terror baseball team lost the final game for the Mason-Dixon Conference championship to American University by a score of 10-3 on Wednesday.

The last two weeks have been busy ones for the WMC diamondmen. May Day found them pitted against the University of Baltimore on their Rogers Ave. diamond. Jack Bentham pitched for 7½ innings and was taken for three runs before his relief, Ralph Wilson. The Bees got two of their runs on a bad throw home from center field. Unfortunately, the Terrors could post only two runs, the subsequent 3-2 loss bringing their divisional record to 8-4. The defeat tied both teams for first place, but WMC walked away with the Northern Division crown by virtue of its eight victories to U. of B.'s six.

Thursday, May 12, marked the beginning of the three game series against American University for the Mason-Dixon crown. The Terrors, led by Ralph Wilson and knocked them all over the field, winning 11-1. Ralph Wilson pitched one of his finest games all season, striking out twelve and allowing only four hits. WMC's batters did their best to back him up, collecting a total of 18 hits, 11 runs, and 5 stolen bases. Earl Detrick collected four hits, Scott Joyner three, with John Carey and Larry Suler collecting two apiece. The Eagles scored their lone run on a sacrifice fly in the eighth inning.

Friday provided a different story for the Green Terrors playing on A.U.'s home diamond. Scott Joyner went the distance for WMC, giving up only one run and losing 4-1. Perhaps the key play of the game was a disputed pick-off by John Carey at first base. The call later showed two runs in score. The Terror's batting deserted them, collecting only six hits and leaving ten men on base. Generally, we played very well but could not capitalize on the opportunities presented. The series was evened at one game apiece.

The Terrors visited Dickinson, starting Jack Bentham on the mound. Jack allowed only two hits in a fine game and went all the way to win, 2-0. Scott Joyner hit his eighth homer of the season in the first inning. The victory gave the diamondmen a perfect 6-0 record and the crown of the Mid-Atlantic Southern College Division.

The deciding game against American University was played on Wednesday on the Eagle's home field. Ralph Wilson started the game but was tagged for nine runs and the 10-3 loss before he was relieved by Bentham. The Terrors could not make up the deficit and lost both the game and the Mason-Dixon crown. WMC played a sloppy defensive game, committing five errors, each costing heavily. The bright spot of the afternoon was Scott Joyner's usual fine performance at bat, collecting a double and a triple in four trips to the plate.

In spite of the loss of the Mason-Dixon championship, Coach Fern Hitchcock seemed satisfied with the team's performance this spring. Hitting was his good with Scott Joyner, Earl Detrick, Al Ingrass, and Larry Suler doing outstanding jobs. Unfortunately, the defense was hampered by its lack of experience. Pitching was quite good, as was expected. Scott Joyner was undoubtedly the outstanding player this year. He excelled in all aspects of offense and defense and was a great inspiration to all his teammates.

The team's record of 15-7 is the best in many years. It is unfortunate that such a dedicated and talented team could not get all of the recognition that it deserved.

Sully's Sallies

by Linda Sullivan
Nine schools vied for the Western Maryland's annual sports day despite rather dismal weather. In golf, WMC took top honors as Ginny Bruce shot her low 42. Second to Ginny was Mikki Foster of University of Maryland with a 50.

In archery, Louise Kane of Towson won with a score of 707 over second place Elaine Brown of Western Maryland with a 580. In tennis, Pennington of Morgan defeated Freshman of Goucher for the singles championship while Wincoat and Raymond of Goucher beat the team of Bennelamper and Sullivan for the doubles title.

Towson and University of Maryland were tops in volleyball, followed by Catoctin and Mt. St. Agnes. All in all, the afternoon was quite a successful one.

McDaniel Dermid managed to squeak out a 17-10 romp over the infidels of Blanche Ward, in a recent softball game. Kay Colman pitched for the losers and Jo Ann Henkin allowed only 81 hits in firing an almost perfect game for the winners. Competition looks to be just as keen next year. Linda Holliday managed ok.
