NATIONAL BROADCAST American Liberal Arts Colleges

November 14, 1931, 9:00 to 9:30 P. M. (Eastern Standard Time)

Through the cooperation of the National Broadcasting Company and a group of educators interested in the future of the liberal arts college as a vital unit in our American educational system, a national radio program on the general theme of "The Liberal Arts College" has been arranged for Saturday, November 14, 1931.

This national broadcast is a concerted effort to interpret the needs, the aims, and the achievements of the American liberal arts college, to strengthen the appreciation of the public for the contributions the liberal arts college has made and is making to American civilization, and to enlist the sympathetic cooperation and support of the people in the enhancement of the services that colleges are rendering.

The national directors who have general charge of the program are:

Mrs. Cleveland E. Dodge, Trustee of Wells College
Albert C. Fox, Dean, John Carroll University
Robert L. Kelly, Executive Secretary of the Association of American Colleges and of the Council of Church Boards of Education
Charles R. Mann, Director of the American Council on Education
A. N. Ward, President of Western Maryland College and Chairman of the Liberal Arts College Movement
Albert St. Peter, of 393 Sveneth Avenue, New York, Executive Secretary.

In addition to the principal address by President Hoover, there will be talks by Dr. John H. Finley, Associate Editor of The New York Times; Dr. Robert L. Kelly, Executive Secretary of the Association of American Colleges and of the Council of Church Boards of Education; Mrs. Thomas J. Preston, Jr., (formerly Mrs. Grover Cleveland) and Dr. A. N. Ward, President of Western Maryland College and Chairman of the Liberal Arts College Movement.

Local programs, immediately preceding or following the national half-hour, will present the local institutions to their immediate public.

The colleges and universities participating in this program are doing so under the auspices of the Liberal Arts College Movement, the Association of American Colleges and the American Council on Education.

All present and former students and all friends of Western Maryland College are cordially invited to listen in on this program. In the various communities where any considerable number of our former students are located it is asked that local arrangements provide for the coming together of our friends in whatever way is most convenient or desirable. The initiative of our friends will be able to make arrangements to hear the broadcast so as to give the greatest possible publicity to our college.

The Broadcast will be a national affair, involving the largest hook-up ever arranged for any national interest.

Sunday morning, November 15th, ministers of all denominations are invited to preach on Christian Education, and the place and importance of the Liberal Arts College in higher education.

A STUDENT'S VIEWPOINT

When Western Maryland College opened its doors this fall to admit the largest freshman class ever enrolled, the student-body was agreeably surprised to find that practically all interior equipment in the dormitories was new or had been renovated to a state equal to newness. Not only that, but the "parlors" had each received treatment at the hands of a professional interior decorator until they no longer can adequately be called "parlors" at all. Drives had been resurfaced during the summer, and right in front of Old Main stood the lofty flagpole which is a gift of the Class of '29.

The first reaction was one of simple awe. After having spent a summer filled with stories of "depression, hoarding, and unemployment", to find that the College was not only "carrying on" as usual, but that the greatest single expenditure ever made had been used to completely revise our ideas of college life—well, frankly, we didn't see how it had been managed.

President Ward had been far-sighted, however. He realized that in making as many improvements as possible this year the College would serve a three-fold purpose: obtaining a permanent investment in beauty and utility, taking advantage of current prices, and lastly, doing its share in the "Buy Now" campaign which Pres. Ward is convinced is the only way out of the present economic situation in which the entire United States finds itself.

The fruits of his bold action are already apparent on the campus. College life is just as virile as ever and yet a new atmosphere seems to have crept into student life on "The Hill". Strange as it may seem at first glance, the new furnishings have brought about an air of appreciation on the part of the students such as has never before been apparent at Western Maryland. Roadwork, even the road type in which the student-body has been known to indulge in from time to time, has diminished noticeably. A better all-around outlook has resulted in more earnest effort in the class-room, so that even the most mediocre student seems to have crept into student life on "The Hill".

The improvements have been so wide-sweeping that a complete description of details would be impractical. A few of the high lights can be mentioned, however.

In McDaniel Hall, the full effect of the innovations are perhaps most apparent. This hall had been originally intended as a social meeting place where all students might congregate, but, until this fall, had missed its mark because of the emptiness of the otherwise beautiful room. Now the old barnlike atmosphere has given way to that of the most elaborate hotel lobbies. A superb, thick green carpet extends over all but the outer edges of the floor. On the rug and around it are placed well-chosen pieces of the extremely popular "occasional" furniture. Luxurious divans, deep wing-back chairs, and lounges are included. On several tables, softshaded lamps illumine the newly-furnished walls with a useful glow. For conviviality, the picture is made complete by the radio, victrola, which the Woman Students' Government League purchased last spring, at the west end of the lounge. Toward the opposite end, silhouetted against the French doors leading to the porch, stands a beautiful new Knabe Grand—the climax of the list of new furnishings.

In the other lounges ("Pretty Parlor" has now become a lounge for faculty members), and in the dormitories the story is much the same. Beauty has replaced commonness in almost every branch of student life. New beds, floors, desks, chairs, and furnishings have provided an incentive for better and neater work, but the fine thing about it all, is that, somehow, these material niceties have penetrated beneath the surface to bring about a changed outlook in the student-body.

President Ward, in one bold stroke, has proven that investing in beauty and utility pays by dividends in improved student morale.

HARVEY A. STONE

Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds

Speaking of repairs and improvements to buildings, furniture, and grounds, let us pay tribute where some tribute is due.

Who is directly responsible for carrying out the plans of the administration for alterations and improvements on College Hill?

Who rebuilds, remodels, repairs, floors, plasters, papers, paints, varnishes, and cleans buildings or furniture or directly oversees and supervises the work?

Who knows every wire and outlet in the buildings, every pipe and service line, every sewer, septic tank, and dry-well on the campus?

Who plants, trims, and nurses trees and shrubbery; sows, mows, and treats the lawns; builds walks and roads and keeps them in repair or sees that it is done?

Who manages the college farms so as to get the most in produce at the right season and with the least outlay?

All this sounds as though there is a superman on the campus, but, if you have been at all observant, you will know that the answer to each and all of the above questions is H. A. Stone, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds since 1887. And, if you have followed him through the years, summer vacations and succeeding college seasons, you know that the above does not do justice to his service to the College.

THE COLLEGE INN

Many of our friends are not aware of the fact that a College Inn is now being operated under the auspices of the Home Economics Department of Western Maryland College.

A few years ago the College purchased the beautiful grounds of the late John L. Reifsnider, just opposite the college grounds on West Main Street. This home was known for fifty years or more as "Terrace Hill," and was a centre of most delightful social interest to Westminster society.

Beginning with this year this home will provide quarters on the second floor for the practice house of the Home Economics Department. The first floor will be used as a Tea Room or College Inn for the convenience of the public as well as for the faculty and students. The Inn has been beautifully furnished and equipped in every way to merit the approval of all friends of the College.

Meals are served at moderate prices and a few rooms on the second and third floors will be useful for transients.

Our friends are invited to visit the Inn. When passing through Westminster or visiting the College plan to stop at the College Inn. The management will be glad to arrange for tea or dinner parties. Fifty or sixty persons can be accommodated in the Tea Room at any time. We feel that our many friends will be glad to know of these arrangements made for their comfort and convenience. The College Inn will meet the highest expectations of our friends.

DR. BERTHOLF

Dr. Lloyd M. Bertholf, Professor of Biology at Western Maryland College, returned to America on September 1, after spending his year's leave of absence in study at the Zoological Institute, University of Munich, Germany. Dr. Bertholf's year at Munich was made even more fruitful by his appointment to fellowship for foreign study by the National Research Council. While at Munich, he continued his study on the reaction of insects to light. The fellowship also afforded opportunity for Dr.

and Mrs. Bertholf to visit points of interest in Europe.

Dr. Bertholf returns to Western Maryland fresh from his experiences at Munich with new ideas concerning the work in his department and with new vigor for his many other duties on the campus. He continues as Head of the Department of Biology and as Chairman of the Freshman-Sophomore Faculty. His appointment to the fellowship and the successful completion of his study at Munich brings honor to himself and to the College.

FACULTY CHANGES

Resignations in some departments and additions in others are responsible for the six new names on the faculty roll for the year 1931-1932.

As previously announced, Dr. Lawrence C. Little has been appointed Dean of the School of Religious Education. He experienced upon his duties at the opening of the present session. Dr. Little is a graduate of Davidson College. His graduate work was done at Duke University and at Yale, having studied at the latter institution under Professors L. A. Weigle and Hugh Hartshorne. He comes to Western Maryland after having served for six years as Executive Secretary of the Department of Religious Education of the Methodist Protestant Church.

To succeed Mr. W. Scott Hall, resigned, Mr. Howard B. Wilson has been appointed to the Department of Social Science. Mr. Wilson's work will be entirely in the field of economics. He is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and holds a Master's degree from the same institution. He has also held positions of teaching in the Georgia Institute of Technology, Colorado College, and the University of California, Berkeley.

Filling the vacancy in the English Department made by the resignation of Mrs. Miriam Dryden Carpenter, Miss Mary C. Byers has been selected. Miss Wingate is a graduate of Blue Ridge College, and has done graduate work at Virginia, Columbia and Johns Hopkins.

She is a graduate of the University of Maryland from Annapolis High school where she was head of the Department of English and chairman of the committee on the construction of a Standard Curriculum in English for the Anne Arundel County High schools. She has the unqualified endorsement of both the Anne Arundel County Board of Education and the State Department of Education. Miss Wingate will teach the courses in Methods of Teaching of High School English and will have charge of the practice teaching in English along with her teaching of courses in the English Department.

Miss Mary C. Byers has been appointed to teach in the department of English and Speech. She is a graduate of Shorter College and of the Emerson College of Oratory. She has done graduate work at the University of North Carolina. She comes to Western Maryland after having taught in Limestone College.

In order to care for the additional courses offered for the first time in Home Economics, Miss Florence G. Love has been appointed to that department. Miss Love is a graduate of the University of Missouri and holds a Master's degree from Columbia University. Her experience includes teaching in the Reelleville, Arkansas, Agricultural College and in the University of Texas. For the past several years she has been therapeutic dietitian and instructor in dietetics at the City Hospital, St. Louis, Missouri.

Miss Evelyn Mudge will serve as a part-time teacher in the Education Department, taking over part of the work of Miss Mary O. Ebaugh who is on part-time this year while doing special work of the University of Florida and is a graduate student in Education at the Johns Hopkins University.

SCHOOL OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

Western Maryland College has inaugurated this year a School of Religious Education. The purpose of this school, as conceived by those responsible for its organization, is to integrate the various religious activities on the campus into one comprehensive program, to supplement this program at need, and to make it a more effective part of the total life of the college; to assist individual students in meeting their moral and religious problems; to provide opportunity for students who may desire to secure training in the basic principles of the Christian religion and in the application of these principles to the problems of modern life; to train leaders for the various activities of the church; and to prepare those who expect to become professional leaders in the various phases of religious work, such as ministers and directors of religious education, for successful study in graduate schools and theological seminaries.

The courses offered at present by the School of Religious Education are: Introduction to Biblical Literature, Life and Teachings of Jesus, Apostolic Age, Life of Paul, The Christian Religion in Modern Life, Principles of Religious Education, Method in Teaching Religion, Organization and Administration of Religious Education, and Psychology of Religion. A number of new courses will be added next year, at which time the requirements for a major in Religious Education will be outlined.

One of the major projects of the school for the current year is a thorough and comprehensive study of the religious activities, interests and problems of college students and their implications for the construction of a college curriculum of religious education. This study will include not only the students of Western Maryland College but also those of a score of other colleges and universities in various parts of the country. The findings of this study will be used as a basis for the development of a program of religious activities for the college as a whole and for the organization of the courses to be offered by the School of Religious Education in the future.

In connection with the regular summer school next summer, a five-weeks' summer school of religious education will be conducted, offering courses for pastors, directors of religious education, and other leaders in the education work of the church. These courses will be taught by members of the faculties of Western Maryland College and of Westminster Theological Seminary and by one or more outstanding leaders from other institutions who have been invited to attend. All courses will carry credit toward college and seminary degrees.

HOME ECONOMICS EDUCATION

Probably the next most important additions for the session are in the field of equipment of the Home Economics Department.

This department has not been meeting the requirements for certification of vocational home economics teachers. Two deficiencies being, inadequate practice house facilities and lack of a vocational high school in which to observe and practice. The need for a practice house has been met by the Home Economics Department taking over the College Inn on the second floor of which is being made into a complete apartment for student practice, and the addition of a teacher, Miss Love, to the Home Economics Faculty. Practicing in the practice school are being worked out, the State Department and the County Board of Education co-operating.

The acquisition of the College Inn enables the Home Economics Department to offer practical courses in cafeteria and teamwork service and management. In the past two years, the enrollment in the home economics classes has more than doubled and it becomes necessary to prepare for placement in fields other than teaching.

ART EDUCATION

Another course added this season, for the present in the Department of Home Economics, is a course in Art and Art Appreciation taught by Mr. Hughes Wilson, instructor in Art and Design at the Maryland Institute. This is the nucleus about which it is planned to build the courses in art which are needed for certification of teachers in this field and for a department of art in the College.

FORMER WESTERN MARYLAND STUDENT GAINS FAME

Winning first place in a national voice competition and making radio and stage appearances have been the outstanding events, this year, in the musical career of Earl B. Lippy, ex-'29, popular Baltimore barytone.

In June, Earl won the National Federation of Music Club's Contest held in San Francisco which, in addition to the usual honor, entitles him to an audition with the Chicago Civic Opera Company.

Returning from the West, he gave a recital in Baltimore over radio station WBAL singing among other numbers, the two selections which he rendered in San Francisco.

During August he also made a personal appearance at the Century Theatre in Baltimore where upon appearance he received several offers to appear at a later date in New York.

On Sunday, September 13th, Mr. Lippy was one of the soloists chosen by the U. S. Marine Band to assist this organization in two concerts held at the Baltimore Stadium. These concerts were under the auspices of the Citizen's Emergency Relief Committee which is raising funds for the relief of the unemployed.

For his selections at these concerts, he rendered three well-known numbers, "The Road Song" from "Carmen," "On the Road to Mandalay," and "The Rosary."

J. Hammett Simms, '29, has been awarded a four year scholarship to Columbia University where he will study law.

M. L. NELSON, '32, TAKES PART IN RADIO AUDITION

Miss Margaret Lee Nelson, a student of Western Maryland College, and a senior in the Voice Department, represented Eastern Shore in the state-wide Arwater-Kent Radio Audition which was held on Sunday, October 18, at the studios of WFBR. Miss Nelson sang Gault's "Eye Hath Not Seen" from the "Holy City."

The contestants were unknown to their judges and were announced only by number. All radio "listeners-in" were requested to aid the judges by mailing the number of the singer they liked best to the studio. The winner has not as yet been announced.

Miss Nelson won the Eastern Shore audition on September 6, at the New Theater, Easton.

FLAGPOLE

Making good the promise made on its Commencement Day, the Class of 1929 has caused to be erected on the grass plot in front of the Main Building an eighty-five foot steel flagpole. To give it a proper setting, the grass plot has been extended to take in the drive which formerly ran behind it. The pole, which is painted a metal white color, tapers gradually to its top, holding the flag higher than the roof of the Main Building. The flag, which flies daily, is the gift of Mr. Roger J. Whiteford, '06, who was the 1929 Commencement speaker. A remark in his address suggested to the Class of 1929 the idea of the flagpole.

SUMMER SCHOOL AT WESTERN MARYLAND

First term, June 14 to July 23

Second term, July 25 to August 27

Beginning in 1932, the summer session will become an integral part of the college year. The six-week term, June 14 to July 23, and the five-week term, July 25 to August 27, taken together will constitute two thirds of a semester. Students may register for either or for both terms. Matriculation, admissions, and credits will be administered as during the regular session. Catalogued courses will be given, taught, as far as possible by the regular college faculty. This places the emphasis upon academic rather than professional courses. The summer session will achieve certain definite objectives.

Connected by good roads with Baltimore, Washington, and other points of interest, the Summer Session offers academic and professional advancement as well as cultural passion and recreation. Topping one of the foothills of the Piedmont, Western Maryland is an ideal place for summer work and play.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

One well acquainted with the Campus of the teens or early twenties, returning almost any week-day afternoon will note a conspicuous change in the activities of college women. No, we do not refer to the greater freedom—of course, that is evident—but to the physical activities of the students. Hockey, field ball, base ball, tennis, and other games have replaced the aimless sauntering, group-hiking, and formal gym work of the past. The newer games for women afford sport and real competition comparable to the men's games. Only the competition is between classes and between organized teams of the same class. Inter-school games do not stimulate this competition because there are no inter-school games. The women's physical education department has achieved the seemingly impossible, practically one hundred per cent participation of college women in some form of athletic games and a live interest in athletics without the stimulus of inter-collegiate contests.

This was the objective set a few years ago and is now near realization. However, this is part of a larger, more far-reaching plan. Three years ago those at the head of the physical training for women at the college set out upon a program to prepare teachers of physical education. Last June, three graduates, probably the first women to prepare in Maryland, were certificated to teach physical education and are now teaching in Maryland high schools. These students prepare for certification in two other subjects. This makes a difficult course and comparatively few attempt it.

Physical Education for Men. Beginning this session, the Department of Physical Education for Men is preparing teachers of physical education for high school and college. The courses in the coaching of high school athletics which have been given quite effectively for the past six or eight years are now supplemented by other courses in physical education, including the psychology, philosophy, and methods in the various forms of high school athletics. Sufficient work may be elected during four years to secure a certificate to teach physical education in Maryland. Again, while coaching for a winning team is more important here than in physical education for women, the classroom work in physical education for men is quite important.

In most state and city school systems, the part-time special coach is giving place to the full-time teacher certificated to teach physical education and usually one other high school subject.

In connection with these courses, as in the case of the women, a program of one hundred percent participation in some form of athletics for men is in effect this session, the Departments of Physical Education and Military Science cooperating to carry out the program.

ALUMNAE OF W. M. C. MEET IN BALTIMORE

Meeting for the third time since the inauguration of their new program, the alumnae of Western Maryland College held a luncheon at Hutzler's Tea Room, in Baltimore, on October 15th. Mr. Marway Benson, the newly elected President of the Alumni Association, joined

Mr. T. K. Harrison, Secretary of the Association, and Mr. H. B. Speir, Graduate Manager at Western Maryland, in addressing the large number of alumnae who attended.

The next luncheon of the series will be held on December 7th. All alumnae are urged to attend, especially those living in or near Baltimore. Out-of-town alumnae desiring to attend, should notify Mrs. Howard C. Hill, 5018 Norwood Avenue, Baltimore, by December 1, 1931.

In his tour of the Eastern Shore in September, T. K. Harrison, Alumni Secretary, found considerable interest in the organization of local chapters of the Association at Cambridge, Crisfield, and Salisbury. We hope these chapters will be formed and that other large centers will organize during the winter.

ATHLETICS

Despite the loss of so many veterans that even finding enough men to round out eleven positions seemed an impossibility, the Green Terrors of 1931 are carrying on in that same fine spirit which has made Western Maryland famous in the football realm of the East. Coach "Dick" Harlow has succeeded in utilizing that spirit in shaping this year's edition of the Terrors, with the result that, considering the fact that Western Maryland is facing the most difficult schedule in her history, the team is doing splendidly. Now that the bugaboo of the "undefeated" record is over, the boys are all set to play real football.

Boasting a fairly well-divided balance of power, the Freshman team started this season in regular Western Maryland "never say die" fashion. In this game, the "Baby Terrors" were six points behind at the end of the first half. Coming back with a will in the next period, the yearlings swept their opponents aside, winning the game, 31-12.

In soccer, the student-coach Terror team, got off to a good start in their opening game, but wilted under heavy replacement tactics of larger institutions in their two subsequent games.

PROPOSED DORMITORY FOR MEN OR WOMEN

From artist's sketch

To Friends of Western Maryland College

This Bulletin is published in the interest of the building of two dormitories at Western Maryland College—one for men and one for women. The plan for doing this, as outlined in the following pages, has been approved by the Board of Trustees and has been commended by leading bankers and business men. Faculty, students, alumni, patrons and other friends of the college, all join in testifying to the need of these dormitories and in hoping that these dormitories may be erected at once.

Here is an opportunity to assist a worthy and a great cause. The plan proposed is commended to our friends who love the college and who are interested in the education of young men and young women for leadership in the days ahead. Those who love will find a way to serve. Serving in the way suggested deserves the attention of our friends.

"The resources of God are promised to those who undertake the program of God."

A GENERAL VIEW OF THE PROPOSED BUILDING SCHEME OF WESTERN MARYLAND COLLEGE

Two New Dormitories Needed—One for Men and One for Women

High-water mark was reached this year in student enrollment at Western Maryland College. The enrollment this year is sixty in excess of last year. In eight rooms three or more students are placed. Wherever additional rooms could be provided this was done. Another dormitory could have been filled if it had been available. More than one hundred students were turned away. Baker Chapel cannot accommodate the student body. Smith Hall auditorium is over-crowded. The library also. More reading room space must be provided, more book-shelf space and more books for our rapidly expanding needs. The gymnasium is entirely inadequate for our program in physical education.

If we had two new dormitories certain definite pressing needs could be provided for. We could push our enrollment at once to five hundred boarding students, two hundred and fifty men and two hundred and fifty women—the goal set in our program for a Greater Western Maryland College. This number, plus the day students to be cared for, makes a desirable size for a college which aims to do the most efficient work. The small college, adequately endowed and equipped and maintaining a teaching force adequately trained, offers opportunity for the most effective educational program. Our aim is to develop on College Hill an institution of the highest standing—a small college, but at the same time a great college. Not numbers but quality of work done. And character building our supreme end!

There are other needs which would be provided for if we could build these two dormitories at this time. The offices of administration could be removed to the old Main Building, releasing both stories of the present administration building for library purposes. This would be a temporary but a distinct gain, for the present and for a number of years, making room for our library needs. Ward Hall could be renovated at small cost and become the dormitory for Freshman boys. In this way four dormitories would make fine provision for five hundred boarding students. Smith and McKinstry Halls could be renovated also, and could be used for some years as residence halls for teachers. The Greater Western Maryland program will provide later—and before long, we think,—for a Women's Building for the housing of the women of the faculty.

McDaniel Hall, Ward Hall renovated, the two new dormitories, and a little later on a greater Ward Hall, will make permanent provision for a college of five hundred boarding students.

The great need now is two new dormitories—one for men and one for women. For these two buildings we appeal to all friends of Western Maryland College. We need and must have these dormitories.

Beginning in 1932, the Summer Session will become an integral part of the college year. The ten-week summer session will be broken into two five-week terms:—

First Term, June 18-July 23

Second Term, July 25-August 27

Registration will be completed for the first term, June 18th, and for the second term, July 23rd, so that classes will meet promptly on June 20th and July 25th and will meet six times a week throughout the session. Students may register for either or for both sessions. Eighteen hours a week—three courses each meeting six times a week—will constitute a normal program. This program satisfactorily completed will earn six semester hours each term or twelve semester hours for the session. Twelve semester hours approximates the credits earned in one third of a college year.

Matriculation, admissions, and credits will be administered as during the regular session. Regular catalogued courses will be given, taught, as far as practicable, by members of the College Faculty. This places the emphasis upon academic rather than upon professional courses.

The Summer Session at Western Maryland College will achieve certain definite objectives among which are the following:—

It will enable college students to continue their study during the summer and graduate in three years. i. e. By eliminating the long summer vacations, students may secure in three years the eight semesters of college work usually required for graduation. They may then secure positions, go to graduate schools, or continue for a year of advanced study at Western Maryland.

It will enable our students, transfers, and others who for one cause or another are out of regular class rank, to adjust their credits and improve their standing in the college.

It will enable teachers and others to work for self improvement and advanced credits during the vacation period.

It will enable ministers and others interested in religious work to pursue courses in Religious Education during their vacation period.

(All courses in Religious Education will be given during the second term.)

Courses will be offered in the following departments:—

English	Government
Language	Mathematics
Literature	Biology
Latin	Chemistry
French	Physics
German	Religious Education
History	Education
American	Music Education
European	Physical Education
Economics
