TO THE RETURNING VETERAN:

You will be very welcome on the campus of Western Maryland College. Should you decide to enter, on leaving the Armed Forces, you will find a friendly atmosphere in which you may pursue your college education.

This booklet is intended to give you a brief statement concerning Western Maryland, particularly as it relates to veteran's education on the collegiate level. Further information may be obtained by writing the Registrar, Western Maryland College, Westminster, Maryland.

INTRODUCTION

Western Maryland College is a coeducational, liberal arts college, offering courses leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science. It is located on the outskirts of Westminster, Maryland, a county seat of five thousand, with an elevation of nearly one thousand feet. The College has dormitory and dining hall accommodations for two hundred fifty men and an equal number of women and its enrollment is limited to six hundred students. Those attending must live at the College, unless they can live at home or with near relatives.

ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS

Students will be admitted with the rank of freshman who:

(1) are graduates of a secondary school accredited by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, by similar associations, or by the Department of Education or State University of the state in which the school is located.

(2) are recommended by the principal of the secondary school attended.

(3) have satisfactorily completed fifteen units of secondary school work including Mathematics 2 (two years of Algebra, or one each of Algebra and Geometry), English (four years) 3, History 1, and nine units elected from the following: History 3, Foreign Languages 6, Physical Geography 1, General Science 1, Biology 1, Zoology 1, Botany 1, Chemistry 1, Physics 1, Algebra 1, Geometry 1, Solid Geometry $\frac{1}{2}$, Plane Trigonometry $\frac{1}{2}$, and from approved vocational work 4.

Students are accepted for advanced standing through work completed at other accredited institutions on the basis of a transcript sent direct from the institution to the Registrar. The transcript must contain a statement of honorable dismissal. Courses pursued at colleges and universities under the Army Specialized Training Program, the Navy College Programs, and the USAFI correspondence courses may be included for transfer credit in an amount equal to that granted by the institution in which the courses were taken, provided they are comparable to courses offered for degree credit at Western Maryland College and provided they do not duplicate courses previously taken. No transfer credit will be allowed for courses completed with the lowest passing grade of the institution formerly attended.

Advanced standing may also be obtained at Western Maryland College by war veterans by taking the USAFI Subject Examinations and by their ratings obtained through Formal Service Courses. A complete discussion of the manner of obtaining credit for work of this nature is given in the publication of the American Council on Education entitled A Guide to the Evaluation of Educational Experiences in the Armed Services. The Subject Examinations are tests of achievement in regular college subjects. If possible they should be taken before the person has been separated from the armed forces. Veterans may take these examinations at the college, if they have not been taken before separation takes place. Credit for Formal Service Courses will be established by the Registrar on the basis of the statement of ratings on the veteran's separation papers.

DATES OF ENTERING

The regular academic year begins in late September and ends in late May or early June and is divided into two semesters. Students may enter at the beginning of each semester, in late September and early February. There is a summer session beginning in June. Students may commence their work at this time also.

COURSES OF INSTRUCTION

Instruction is offered in the departments listed below. Except as noted, a student may take either a major or a minor towards the Bachelor of Arts degree. In the Departments of Biology, Chemistry, Home Economics, and Physics, students may study for the Bachelor of Science degree also. The departments of instruction are:

Art, Astronomy (no major or minor), Biology, Chemistry, Dramatic Art (no major or minor), Economics and Business Administration, Education (no major or minor), English, French, Geology (no major or minor), German (no major or minor), History, Home Economics, Latin, Library Science (no major or minor), Mathematics, Mechanical Drawing (no major or minor), Military Science (R.O.T.C.) (no major or minor), Music (Piano, Violin, Voice, Organ, Public School Music), Philosophy and Religion, Physical Education (no major), Physics, Political Science (no major), Sociology, Spanish (no major).

EXPENSES

Charges for the regular academic year are as follows:—

|----------------|----------------------|
| Tuition | $280.00 |
| Board and Room | $350.00 to $425.00 |

These charges cover the ordinary costs at Western Maryland.

Courses in Art, Dramatic Art, and Music, requiring individual instruction, have supplemental fees. Science courses having laboratory instruction have the customary laboratory fees.

GOVERNMENT AID TO VETERANS

At this writing two federal laws provide for educational assistance of veterans. They are public laws 16 and 346. A comparative study of these two laws, published in Bulletin No. 81 of Higher Education and National Defense, issued by the American Council on Education on May 2, 1945, summarizes these two laws quite completely. It is reprinted with permission of the Council.

ELIGIBILITY

Discharged under conditions other than dishonorable. Served 90 days service since September 15, 1940. 90 days requirement waived if there is a service incurred disability.

Honorably discharged with pensionable disability. Served since December 6, 1941, and before end of present war; shows need for training.

HOW TO APPLY

Fill out VA Form 1950 either at institution or regional office of Veterans Administration. The latter certifies eligibility. Form must be filed within two years after the war or after discharge whichever is later.

File VA Form 1700 with V. A. regional office paying the applicant's pension. Must file while handicap exists and only after application for pension (VA Form 526) has been approved.

COUNSELING; SELECTION OF INSTITUTION AND PROGRAMS

May request tests and guidance. May select any institution approved by the state in which it is located. May take any courses the institution permits. Can change institution or courses with approval of the Veterans Administration.

Must take tests and use counseling services provided by or through V. A. Institution selected with cooperation of V. A. with those having contracts or agreements with V. A. Courses selected in cooperation with V. A. but must lead to employability in a specific occupation. Occupation selected with approval of V. A. May not change courses unless absolutely necessary.

As this bulletin goes to press legislation is being considered in Congress that would materially change the provisions for Length of Training and Benefits. That part of the study is printed separately, so that it may be changed if Congress alters the law.

LENGTH OF TRAINING

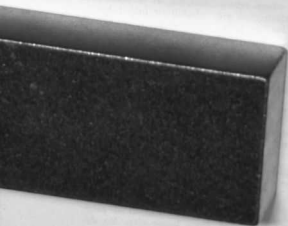

All eligible for retraining and refresher courses not to exceed one calendar year; those inducted prior to 25th birthday and others whose education was interrupted are entitled to further training equal to length of active service (certain kinds of specialized training—ASTP, V12, etc., may be termed inactive service) but not in excess of 4 calendar years or its equivalent in part-time study. No benefits beyond 7 years after war.

A course of training not to exceed 4 years nor to extend beyond 6 years after the end of the war. Will receive as much training as is needed to rehabilitate into a specific occupation.

BENEFITS

U. S. pays tuition, books, and fees not to exceed $500 during an ordinary school year (30-38 weeks). All amounts paid under this law will be deducted from any future bonus. During time actually in school (30 days leave) $50 a month if single and full time student. Reductions if part time. $75 if one or more dependents. If taking on-the-job training certain adjustments are made in allowance.

U. S. pays tuition, books, and fees (generally not over $500) including transportation to and from institution if away from home city. No deductions from bonus. During training and for two months after—$92 per month including pension, if single. If married—$103.50 per month, additional allowances for other dependents. Certain adjustments made for on-the-job training.

The entire cost of tuition and fees at Western Maryland College are within the allowance of these laws. The allowance for subsistence of public law 346 cares for the cost of room and board.

COUNSELING SERVICE

Counseling service is furnished all students at Western Maryland College. In order to care for the particular problems of the veterans a special Veterans Counseling Committee has been appointed. Each veteran will be assigned to a member of this Committee, who will give him assistance in as informal and natural a manner as possible.

Veterans receiving financial assistance under public law 16 are required by law to accept counseling service of the Veterans Administration before being assigned to a college educational program. Veterans receiving aid under public law 346 may receive this service on their request. Although they are not required to follow it, they have the benefit of recommendations made; therefore, it is felt that they should take advantage of this opportunity.

Where Biology and Religion Meet

DR. LLOYD M. BERTHOLF

Dean of the Faculty and Head of Biology Department

The thing that gives me the greatest thrill in the study of science is the occasional realization of a new point of unity between two or more things that at first seemed entirely distinct and different. For example, I had heard all my young life about x-rays, and radium rays, and ultra violet rays, and light rays, infra red rays, and radio waves, and then one day I learned that they were all the same except for a mere difference in wave-length—all different yet fundamentally all alike. Likewise I remember the thrill I got when I first learned of the periodic table in chemistry—a simple numerical arrangement of elements that brings out the fact that oxygen and carbon and nitrogen and helium and iron and all the rest of the 92 elements are alike except for relatively simple numerical differences in number of electrons.

Another was the way that geological history was cleared up in my mind in an instant when I learned about the principle of isostasy and the alternation between gradation and diastrophism. Another was the amazing clarification of the relation of plants to each other when I learned of the principle of alternation of generations.

Sometimes these clarifying generalizations occur within one branch of learning, or one discipline as the Europeans say, as in the above examples, but sometimes they occur even more strikingly between different disciplines. Such, for example, is the striking relation between mental states and bodily health—between psychology and physiology, and therefore between religion and physiology. Why, often times the only thing needed to cure a bad stomach or a case of jittery nerves or even a broken leg is a good dose of religion. Stanley Jones has shown by repeated examples that the Kingdom of God is within us—within the very cells of our body. It begins to look in very truth, as if everything is related to everything else, and that Einstein is on the right track when he is searching for a single mathematical formula that will apply to everything. It begins, indeed, to look like the whole universe was made by one mind, according to one basic principle, and within it there can be no contradiction, no matter how greatly our finite minds may have cut it up into separate fields of study.

II

All this is by way of pointing out to you another of these striking points of unity between science and religion, a point whose significance has been growing on my mind in recent years with great force. It is in the field which the biologist labels conservation.

Conservation is a fairly new word in science. Gifford Pinchot was perhaps more responsible than anyone else for introducing it, to Americans at any rate, when he was made first head of the Forest Service in 1901. Pinchot saw our forests disappearing, and started out on a national program to prevent this. Now-a-days the word conservation is applied to all our resources, whether plant or animal or mineral or human.

Nearly everyone realizes, I think, the utter dependence of modern civilization on power. At first, primitive man had only his own muscle power at his disposal. Then he discovered fire and the power of this concentrated heat was added to his resources. Then he began to use simple machines like the lever and the wheel, and to domesticate animals and use slaves. Then water power and steam power and chemical power were added gradually, and finally in these days the enormous power of electricity and of the internal combustion engine.

The result is that in the U.S.A., there is actually in use more than one continuous horse power for every man, woman and child. The total capacity of our installed machinery is about 10 horsepower for every man, woman and child.

But the source of power is natural. Some of this is inexhaustable (though often misused): water, sunshine, wind, salt, lime, sand, clay, etc.

Some is maintainable (though often not renewable when once exhausted): timber, soil, ground water, range grass, fishes, wild animals.

Some is definitely exhaustible (though often reusable): gems, metals, coal, petroleum, natural gas, helium, non-metallic minerals.

And the decline of nations since the beginning of national organization has resulted from nothing so much as from the decline of the natural resources they are able to command. If one needs proof for this last statement, the most striking evidence that I know of is the mass of facts about the soil of North Africa, Syria, and Palestine, the cradle of civilization, as revealed in a recent survey by Dr. W. C. Lowdermilk.

"What was once the granary of Home in North Africa during the Empire is now a desolate landscape of miserable villages of illiterate poverty-stricken inhabitants in a region studded with the ruins of magnificent Roman cities of power and culture. About the buried Roman cities of Djemila, Tingrad, and Tebessa, we found soils washed off the hills and the alluvial plains ripped up with great gullies. Soil erosion and accelerated runoff from bared hills have damaged much of this country beyond recovery.

"In Northern Syria, we found an area between Hama, Aleppo and Antioch, of about a million acres of rolling limestone hills where soil erosion had done its worst. Doleful ruins of a "hundred dead cities," as the French archaeologists have called them, stand out as tombstones on bare limestone hills. These were not cities as we know them, but were villages and market towns. Here once was a thriving region, resourceful and progressive in its architecture, gaining its wealth from the growth and export of wine and olive oil to Rome during the Empire. Ruins of private and public buildings of these centers of population bespeak wealth and prosperity. In their places now are ruins and desolation; only a few scattered and wretched semi-nomads have sought refuge within these doleful ruins, as they tend their meager flocks of goats and sheep.

"This region was overrun by the Persians in 610 A.D. and 630 A.D. The population was dispersed and their villages destroyed by the nomad Arab invasion from the desert. Measures formerly used to conserve soils and waters were neglected; flocks of goats overran the region; soil erosion was unleashed and for several centuries swept soils from three to four and one-half feet deep from the gentle slopes to best rock throughout this area. If the soil had remained, even though former populations had been mercilessly decimated, it would still be possible to rebuild and to repopulate the cities, but when the soils have gone, no hope remains; the region can never be restored to its former agricultural prosperity. It is too late. The basis for feeding a people is gone.

"Palestine, too, presents a remarkable contrast. Only last year we surveyed the country from the ground as well as by airplane, and discovered that soils had been washed off to bed rock from more than half of the uplands. Soils washed from the hill slopes had in part been swept out to the sea and in part lodged in the valleys. The valleys were still cultivated to grains, but in much reduced areas.

"The present population of the uplands has been reduced to not more than one-fourth of the population 2,000 years ago, as shown by the number of abandoned village sites.

"From the air the tragedy of soil wastage is even more apparent; for soils have been washed off to bed rock over extensive areas where terraces have been allowed to fall into disrepair, and only dregs of the land are held back on floors of the narrow valleys. It became apparent that Palestine can never be restored to what it was as the Promised Land; the land can be much improved, as recent Jewish agricultural colonies have demonstrated, but it can never be restored to what it was as the Promised Land; it is too late."

The conserving of these resources, then, is not a matter of mere convenience, not a matter of living a little more abundantly than we would otherwise. It is a matter, in the end, of either conserving these sources of power or not living at all.

III.

The first requisite for the biological preservation of the genus Homo is a food supply. In the early millennia of human history it was found that to depend for food on hunting and trapping and collection of wild plants was too uncertain for increasing populations, and consequently agriculture was begun. At first nearly every family raised its own food supply, supplemented by the collection or capture of wild plants and animals. But as the ways of agriculture were better learned it was found that one family could raise enough to support more than one family, until now in this country one family on the farm can raise enough food and fibre for three other families in the city. This advance has been due partly to improving the plants and animals genetically, to combatting of parasites, to fertilizers, and to irrigation, but mostly to the use of machinery in the intensive cultivation of the land. The result is that in the past 100 years we have ruined for any further cultivation 100,000,000 acres of land, an area exceeding the combined area of the New England States, New York, Pennsylvania, and Maryland. In addition, we have nearly stripped the topsoil from an additional 100,000,000 acres, and have allowed a third 100,000,000 acres to be severely damaged by erosion. That leaves us, according to Dr. Bennett, only 460,000,000 acres of really good land. That's all we have. And when land is gone, it is gone for good—unless you want to wait several million years for geological processes to catch up again.²

The picture is similar when we look at other natural resources for so many of them depend on the soil. Take for example the matter of ground water. In Maryland the supply of fresh water from wells in the coastal plain area for industrial use is getting to be a real problem. 50,000,000 gallons are pumped daily. As a result, the water level lowered 100 ft. in places.³

Water comes from rain. If rain runs off, not enough remains in the ground. If soil is not properly farmed, as much as 15-40% will run off. If properly tilled and planted, less than 1% may run off.⁴

Or again, consider the fisheries resources. We in Virginia, and Maryland are in a unique position to take advantage of the wastage from the leaching out of soils, which of course takes place no matter how carefully agriculture is practiced. The leached-out fertilizer from the upland farm finds its way sooner or later to the waters of the bay where it supports the life of countless millions of tiny water organisms—the plankton. These organisms in turn furnish directly or indirectly the food for practically the entire fin-fish, crab, and oyster population of the bay. And thus our minerals are kept within the state.

But if the farmer does a poor job of farming; if he allows a flood of silt to be brought down by every freshet, then the benefits are nearly all spoiled. For the silt cuts out the sunlight, and clogs up the gills of tiny fishes, and worst of all, covers up the tiny spot of oysters, and the result is a serious depletion of organic life in the bay.

If to this factor in depletion we add the selfish and shortsighted practices of over-fishing and under-protection we then have the result: Oyster production in Maryland down to about one-fifth what it was in 1880; menhaden down to one-half of the 1920 level; crabs less than half of their peak years; river herring about one-fourth of its 1908 level; shad down to about one-fifth of its former yield.

IV.

Well, what is to be done? What do we mean by conservation? Not simply saving things, not simply refusing to use our resources but, as Paul B. Sears says, "Conservation is thrift and the avoidance of waste. It is management with an eye on the future as well as the present. It is responsible conduct, based upon a desire for permanent and stable prosperity."⁵

Thus, painting your house is conservation; preventing rust is conservation; planting a new tree when you cut down a mature one is conservation; throwing back a brood fish is conservation; planting grass on a hillside, throwing brush in a gulley, leaving weeds along the fence-row for bird foliage, planting rows along the contour,—all these things represent an attitude, a way of looking at nature which fits the true definition of conservation.

We must see nature as a whole, not in terms of one animal or one crop or one class or generation of human beings. It is essentially the ecological approach, where we recognize that through millions of years organisms have learned to live together, each depending to a certain extent on the other. Man can change that relationship to a small extent—he can encourage corn and discourage cockle-burs, for example—but he had better understand the relationship pretty carefully before he goes to tampering with it too much. He had better know woodpeckers and trees and insects, all three before he starts shooting woodpeckers to preserve the wood supply. And he had better get his facts straight before he starts killing all hawks and owls and crows and even coyotes, or before he starts building dams on every river. Sometimes these things conserve and sometimes they do not. Every situation requires research on the spot.⁶

That puts a tremendous responsibility on education, for education must train not only the conservation specialist, the conservation engineer we may call him, but must do a far greater job in informing the general public and in bringing up a whole generation to see the necessity of conserving the resources of the world for the sake of all the people of the world.

And here is where we come to that unity I spoke of in the beginning—that point of union between biology and religion. For most of you have already seen that the thing I have been talking about is nothing new to religion. The idea of conservation is only about 40 years old in biology but it is nothing more or less than that old idea of stewardship that religion has been talking about for at least 3000 years. "The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof, the world and they that dwell therein," the Psalmist declared. The early Hebrews had no doubts as to who made the earth, but they pretty soon convinced themselves that all the Creator was interested in was one-tenth of the income from it. They began to separate sacred from secular. Paul took up the idea and made a whole philosophy on the notion of carnal vs. spiritual. But as we have looked into the structure of matter and seen both the marvelous architecture and the marvelous operation of the atom, we have come to take off our shoes in the presence of such profound mystery and power, and have come to realize that God is actually incarnated in his creation. The carnal has become spiritual also, for it too was made by God. Natural has become supernatural and supernatural natural. All belongs to God; God is not only above all but in all. All matter and all energy reveal His glory. He is obviously not limited to matter and energy as we know them, but His presence pervades everything.

Truly then, man is a steward. Not merely 10 percent but 100 percent belongs to God, and belong to him in such an intimate way that He is actually a part of it. To waste God's substance or put it to unworthy use is therefore an affront, a sacrilege. To do so, man cuts off his own nose to spite his face and at the same time slaps the face of God, as it were.

This then is a place where biology and religion meet. This is what might be called "natural piety." This is Christian conservation.

Endowment Dialogue

- Alumna '40:* Say, did you read that Intercepted Letter in the Summer Bulletin?
- Alumnus '30:* Yes, I did and it aroused my curiosity to know more about it.
- Alumna '40:* Wonder when we'll get some more information?
- Alumnus '30:* Well, I did some inquiring during registration week, and I'm sold on the idea. You see, we grads begin to get the college spirit after a few years away from the Hill and wish we could do something to help the Alma Mater.
- Alumna '40:* What's wrong? Is Western Maryland in danger of folding up?
- Alumnus '30:* On the contrary. She is getting ready for a new building program. The present dorms are filled to capacity. A good many old grads and friends have made large donations for these projects but the college needs to keep its Endowment Fund active to meet current annual expenses.
- Alumna '40:* Oh, I see, they don't want to ask the big contributors to duplicate their generous gifts. How do they expect us to give much when we haven't begun to earn big incomes yet?
- Alumnus '30:* We are not expected to give directly to the Endowment but rather give the equivalent of the interest on an endowment. For example, we could hardly give a thousand or even five hundred dollars to the Fund, but we could give thirty or fifteen dollars, which would be the same as three percent interest on the principle. Why, if all three thousand of us who are living alumni would give an average of ten dollars, the college would realize the equivalent return, at present rates of interest, from a million dollar endowment, or $30,000.
- Alumna '40:* Say, that sounds like the answer to my desire to do something to help W.M.C. even though I can't do much. Do you realize that's less than a dollar a month? When do we start giving? When does the campaign start?
- Alumnus '30:* I understand the organization is getting ready to solicit us personally within the next few months. We should hear from someone in our class any time now.
- Alumna '40:* Whose idea was this anyway?
- Alumnus '30:* President Holloway proposed it after he noticed that the income from our present Endowment Fund was waning, due to the present economic conditions. He felt sure there were many Alumni and friends who would like to give something to their college and yet had limited incomes which prevented large gifts.
- Alumna '40:* Well, that includes me all right. How can Prexy carry on this campaign with so many other duties?
- Alumnus '30:* He doesn't have to do that because he found one of our trustees who was willing to direct the campaign. He is Mr. T. W. Mather, a successful business man, of Westminster, who has always been an ardent supporter. Mr. F. Murray Benson of Baltimore, another enthusiastic trustee and alumnus is general Chairman of the Committee.
- Alumna '40:* You can count me in on this proposition, and I think I'll drop a line to my roommate. Been wanting an excuse to write her anyhow. I've owed her a letter for months.
- Alumnus '30:* They tell me the idea is spreading like wild-fire. Even parents, friends, and present students are asking for a chance to chip in.
- Alumna '40:* And may they?
- Alumnus '30:* Sure thing—any amount from anybody will help us put this over the top. So long for now. I'm going to a luncheon with some classmates today. See you at the big Alumni weekend on the Hill this year.

Thanks to the loyal support of Alumni and friends, in schools, churches and business, Western Maryland College was able to begin this semester with the largest enrollment of women in its history. Four hundred women have taxed the capacity of the dormitories and developed a waiting list during August.

Because of the continuation of Selective Service and the slow rate of demobilization of men who are interested in college there is a different story to report concerning men. Less than a hundred men are on the campus at present but indications are that there will be more to enter by February. McKinstry Hall is still available to returning veterans and high school graduates at mid-year.

Tell your friends about your Alma Mater and direct our attention to any who wish advice about their rights under the "G.I. Bill".

The Faculty

This past summer found Professors Makosky and Parker preparing graduate studies at Columbia University. Dr. Berthoff was doing research at Wood's Hole, Mass., and Dr. Marshall taught English at the University of Pennsylvania. Dr. Earp wrote contributing articles for a new Encyclopedia of Social Science.

Dr. Mudge taught in the Educational Department at Johns Hopkins University. Professor Mirise is continuing his studies at Ohio State University and Professor Esther Smith is still on leave to work on the dramatization of her sister's book, "Strange Fruit."

New members on our faculty are: Miss Helen Brainard, Assistant Professor of Music; Dr. Lisgar R. Eckardt, Visiting Professor of Philosophy and Religion; Miss Kathryn Haganir, Dean of Women and Assistant Professor of English; Miss Dika Newlin, Instructor in Music; Mr. Karl G. Reynolds, Assistant Professor Economics; Miss Erma Barnes, Instructor in Library Science; and Dr. William A. MacDonald, Instructor in Art.

Alumni interested in sports will be glad to learn that Captain Bruce E. Ferguson, '35, expects to be released from the army in time for the basketball season. This means that Western Maryland should be on its way to restoring athletics as a major extra-curricular activity on the campus.

As this is written President Holloway is reported to be well on the way to complete recovery from a recent major operation.

Footsteps

"By strength shall no man prevail." 1 Samuel 2:9.

We hear the drums of millions trudging down
Along the road grim centuries have made hard
With spike and steel: The spike and steel shall find Within themselves, one day, supreme defeat.

The centuries move; mere strength has not prevailed.
Beside the road we trace the pointing treads
That seem, but are not frustrate as they turn
To face the heights: they all in stillness wait,
While age-long midnight breasts approaching day.

The centuries wind; bald strength does not prevail.
Thru veils of gray we glimpse the shimmering peaks
That prophesy man's higher destiny;
The centuries hear our footsteps up the trail,
As one by one hearts arise to know,

Not Strength alone, but Faith, Light, Love prevail.

T. K. HARRISON.

THIS is the first Christmas Season in five years when the song of the angels, "On earth, Peace," can be heard without the tumult of war in the background. Because of this the season has a deeper meaning. Fathers, husbands, brothers, sisters, sons, daughters, and sweethearts are returning from distant lands. Families are being reunited. Church bells are ringing with a more joyful note.

It is significant that all this joy and fellowship revolves about the memory of the lowly birth of one child who was to influence the course of history as no other man has done. He was nurtured in the Home, Synagogue, and Temple, representing three institutions basic to our society—the Family, School, and Church.

The fundamental value of these institutions is sometimes forgotten in the tempo of our modern day. Mass production resulting from the Industrial Revolution has tended to set the pattern of our age. Not only mass economics, but mass education and mass political movements have made the individual feel dwarfed and insignificant in the social scene. However, again the Christmas message centering around an individual and His ability to stir the masses to great change, brings that same spirit to bear on this age.

The small Christian college bears a living testimony to the need and opportunity for developing individual initiative. It fosters the growth of these institutions by developing leaders with new insight into the needs of humanity. Personal relations between faculty and student body give opportunities for counselling, guidance, and inspiration which strengthen the bonds of and further these basic values. As long as education is imbued with a humble, wholesome, sacrificial spirit of the Christmas story, it will continue to permeate the social world with high idealism and bring the hope of ever increasing the number of men of good will.

Ties are formed in undergraduate days which bind Alumni to Alma mater in an unbroken fellowship making all conscious of each other, though scattered to the ends of the earth. May the Christmas Star continue to shed its radiant blessing on all who come under the influence of the Hill.

ROBINSON GARDEN, IN JANUARY

(Story Inside Cover)

Miss Margaret M. Robinson

The alumni and friends of Western Maryland College were saddened to learn of the passing of Miss Margaret M. Robinson, Preceptress at the College from 1908 to 1928. She belonged not to the group who love Western Maryland but to those who love her most. While her residence in later years was in Frederick, Maryland, it may well be said that her heart was in Westminster. Nothing pleased her more than visits from former students with news concerning our Alma Mater and her children.

Her entire life was devoted to education. After graduating from State Normal School in 1876, she taught in Harford and Calvert Counties. Later she became principal of Girls' High School in Berlin, Maryland, where she remained eight years. Following this she organized several schools in Baltimore County. In 1889, Miss Robinson was chosen to be the first principal of the new Girls' High School in Frederick, Maryland. She held this position until 1908 when she was appointed to the faculty at Western Maryland College. She remained on the staff of the College until her retirement in 1928. Her chief hobby during these latter years was the care of the wild flower garden which she planted behind McDaniel Hall.

Because of her devotion to Western Maryland and her beautiful character, Miss Robinson will always be held in fond memory by those who knew her. The garden in McDaniel quadrangle, dedicated to her, will now become her perpetual memorial.

The President's Page

For a long time I have cherished the hope that the College might have a Home Coming for Alumni that would extend beyond a one-day visit. Such an opportunity is now proposed. We are inviting our graduates to spend Saturday and Sunday, June 15th and 16th, on College Hill, sleeping in the dormitories, eating in the dining hall, in short, becoming undergraduates again for a two-day period! The Board of Governors of the Alumni Association is arranging a program, which, with other details, will be announced in the April Bulletin.

The invitation is extended not only to our returning veterans but to all alumni of all classes. What an occasion it will be, when all of us will join in the fellowship of those who are children of our Alma Mater! It gives evidence of an event of major interest and notice of its coming is hereby given so that those interested may put the dates down in their calendar.

Frankly, no one can be more eager for this Home Coming than I, for I am all agog in anticipation of it. We all will eagerly await the detailed announcement that will appear in the April Bulletin. In the meantime, those who may desire to make immediate inquiry may write to Alumni Secretary T. K. Harrison. Hoping to see you in June,

Sincerely yours,

Fred G. Holloway
President.

Faculty News

December 1945 marked the completion of a decade of service to Western Maryland College by President F. G. Holloway, as its chief executive. Those years witnessed the erection of Albert Norman Ward Dormitory for men, Gill Gymnasium, and the completion of Harvey Stone Park and the Golf Course. Last fall the fourth floor of McDaniel Hall was remodeled to provide excellent accommodations for several more women students.

Although the war years have made building construction impossible during the latter half of this period, Dr. Holloway has been active in raising funds for a post-war building program, including four new structures: a chapel, an infirmary, a library, and another men's dormitory.

Dr. Holloway has recently been honored by appointment to the Ecumenical Methodist Council.

Dr. Kathryn B. Hildebran, head of the Western Maryland Modern Language Department and professor of French and Spanish, is the new president of the Modern Language Division of the Maryland State Teachers' Association.

Faculty members returned from Army to Campus:

Charles Havens, Director of Athletics
Oliver K. Spangler, Instructor in Music

Paul Harris, Instructor in Art

The Music Department of Western Maryland College has arranged a series of excellent recitals to be given this season by members of the faculty. Each of these artists has given numerous other recitals and has been well received. In order to accommodate the faculty, students, and many friends in the community, these recitals are being held in Alumni Hall. It is hoped that many of the Alumni may be able to attend.

The schedule of events follows:

Piano recital, Friday, January 18, by Miss Helen Brainard.

Vocal recital, Tuesday, February 25, by Professor Alfred de Long.

Piano recital, Tuesday, March 19, by Dr. Dika Newlin.

Violin and Piano Sonata, Friday, April 5, by Professors Philip Royer and Oliver K. Spangler.

Alumni Homecoming Week-End

June 8-9, 1946

COLLEGE HILL IS YOURS

for the two days, June 8-9. These days have been set aside for you (and your wife or husband) to return to your Alma Mater, live in the dorm, eat in the dining room—no "rat" rules—no "lights out"—no "rising bell"—just have a good time from Saturday morning to Sunday afternoon.

ALL FOR THE SUM OF $5.00

This will include Saturday lunch; free use of Golf Course, Tennis and other sports areas; Alumni Banquet; Grand Ball in Gill Gymnasium; Sunday breakfast; 11 o'clock Chapel, with all the old choir members; Sunday dinner. You will mingle with your old cronies—meet your old "gang"—visit with the old "profs", and relax and rejuvenate.

ADVANCE REGISTRATION (Not transferable)

$2.00 per person registration fee should be sent in as soon as possible—to T. K. Harrison, Executive Secretary— giving full name and class of each person who is coming. A receipt will be mailed you. This receipt must be presented on arrival on June 8th, when you will pay the additional $3.00 and be assigned a room, and given some identification badge which will admit you to the dining room and dance.

Any registration fees received, after we have sold every available room, will be returned.

CANCELLATIONS

Should you make reservations and then find you can not come, please cancel at once, so another may have your place. Instead of a refund, your $2.00 deposit will be transferred to your dues and Class Memorial account.

Make checks payable to Carl L. Schaeffer, Treasurer.

P.S. DO NOT CONFUSE THIS WITH CLASS REUNIONS AT COMMENCEMENT. THEY ARE TWO SEPARATE AFFAIRS.

The Living Endowment Fund

Why Living Endowment?

Because income from fixed endowment has been cut in half.

Because tuition charges do not cover all operating costs of education—not even yours.

Because operating expenses of the College have greatly increased.

Because W.M.C. wants to advance its standards—which helps your standing.

Because of the satisfaction you get from giving to others.

How Does Living Endowment Work?

By putting W.M.C. in your annual budget of giving.

By creating a source of income to W.M.C. from its investment in you.

By 3000 living Alumni giving an average of $10.00 to create a $30,000 return on a $1,000,000 endowment.

So What!

So, you can't give the principal, but you can give the interest.

So, write that check now!

$10 = 3% on $333

$15 = 3% on $500

$30 = 3% on $1,000

So, you have joined your many fellow Alumni in building a greater W.M.C. as others have helped their Alma Mater.

SEND YOUR CHECK TODAY!

DO NOT WAIT TO BE CALLED ON!

In Retrospect

(TO MY CLASS)

That little closet where I've kept
A tryst with memory
Holds many a treasured souvenir
Of dear old W.M.C.
I love to linger there. They speak
Of things most tender, true;
No mementoes are more precious
Than these, dear class, of you.

Our class colors, white and maroon,
Pressed in my year book lay
With portraits of the boys and girls
Who climbed a hill one day
In search of wisdom. W.M.C.
Held all our hopes and fears;
Her halls were ringing with our mirth!
For four brief happy years.

We drank our fill of learner's lore
And mingled with her measures,
Those days of "boning" Latin, Greek,
Were multi-colored pleasures.
And in the hour of retrospect
No matter what may fade,
One thing has stood the test of time,
The loving friends we've made.

These old school ties are calling us:
We gather here again.
For schoolmates are a rarity
When one is three score, ten.
But friendship is a fragrant flower
That knows no time but now;
In glamour of her golden hour
We take our youthful bow.

There is no snow upon our hair,
No twilight in our smile;
We come in gladdest note of cheer
To laugh and chat awhile.
We drink to joy that we are here;
'Tis transport passing sweet
To gather in these hallowed halls
In happy heart to meet

Our class again in unity
Of spirit. There are none
Forgot. Upon this sacred hill
We walk and talk as One.
We drink to college loyalty
In hearts, grown fond and true,
And to the class of Ninety-six
We pledge our love anew.

IDA MAE DODD, '96.

Dedication

Alumni Hall has been the setting for commencement exercises since its erection in 1896. The graduating class of that year had a significant part to play in its construction and is planning a reunion on the fiftieth anniversary of that event. Mr. J. W. Smith, class president, and Miss Lena Parker broke ground for the building, and the class helped lay the cornerstone.

Twenty-one girls and seventeen boys graduated that year, the largest class up to that time. This class was the first to graduate under the new curriculum of a classical and scientific course, both leading to an A.B. degree.

We are grateful to Mrs. Carrie Rinehart Wantz, salutatorian of the class and chairman of the anniversary committee for the above information. It is most fitting that we give recognition to the achievements of the members of the class so far as they could be learned and are dedicating part of this Bulletin to that purpose.

SARAH E. MYERS BENNETT

For five years I served as one of the secretaries of the Sidwell Friends School in Washington, D. C. Later, I married Nimrod T. Bennett of New Windsor, Maryland, where we lived for eight years. Since the death of my husband, I have lived in New Windsor and Westminster with the exception of two years in Washington, D. C., one winter in Arizona and California, and one winter in Florida. The last eight years I have been engaged in the management of two dairy farms.

NELLIE S. PORTER BROWN

I have lived with my family at Lansdowne, Pennsylvania, for the past thirty years. My husband, Dr. Jesse H. Brown, who practiced dentistry in Philadelphia, died in October, 1944. My daughter, Emilie, who graduated at Western Maryland in 1933, is now associated with the Farm Journal in Philadelphia. My son, Harper, recently received his honorable discharge from the Army after having served twenty-seven months in the Medical Department.

IDA MAE DODD

Since my graduation from Western Maryland College in 1896, I have spent most of my time in teaching in the public schools of Queen Anne's County, Maryland. During the last sixteen years of my teaching career, I was Head of the English Department in the Centreville High School, also Director of dramatics, and faculty advisor to the student editorial staff. Since my retirement I have devoted some of my leisure moments to writing for various Poetry Magazines and for the Poet's Corner in our local paper. In essaying to live up to the honor of class poet. I have written some verse as a tribute to our Golden Anniversary which is much nearer truth than poetry.

MARY E. ENGLAR

In 1899 graduated from the Church Home Hospital, Baltimore, as a nurse. Took a post-graduate course at Jefferson Hospital, Philadelphia. Was Clinic Nurse one year at Jefferson. In 1903 went to Europe and through the kindness of two doctors who had visited Jefferson while I was there, I was given the privilege of taking a short course in the American Hospital in Paris. Returned to Philadelphia, did private nursing. In 1907 married Ezra Joseph Englar of New Windsor.

ALICE M. ELDERDICE FREENY

My activities have been confined principally to my own household, and my contribution to outside affairs has been negligible, although I maintain an interest in the work of my church and in movements for the betterment of my community. At present my leisure time is devoted to reading.

Two of my children graduated from the Alma Mater of their parents. Alice C. Freeny Gillis, '28, now living in Wilmington, Delaware, is the mother of one daughter; Lawrence C. Freeny, '39, recently retired from the army as a captain, is now studying journalism at Columbia University.

MARY KEMP HOWARD

I taught school from September 1896 to February '25, and was then married to W. E. Howard of Salisbury. I lived a normal, quiet life in Salisbury until his death in 1940. Since that I have made my home in my hometown of Trappe.

NANNIE P. KEATING

In January 1897, I started my teaching career in the Centreville Primary Academy, the last twenty-five years of the forty years that I taught were spent as instructor in French and Latin in the Centreville High School. I retired January 1937, and in January 1941, I volunteered for service with the Red Cross and have felt greatly privileged in serving as Knitting Chairman and very proud of the work accomplished by the women of our small county.

HARRY A. LAKIN

1903 to 1910 practiced medicine in Adams and Perry counties, Pennsylvania. 1910 to 1919 Assistant Medical Examiner Pennsylvania Railroad.

1919 to February 1943 Chief of the Department of Anesthesia at the Harrisburg Polyclinic Hospital. Retired and returned to the Pennsylvania Railroad as Assistant Medical Examiner, which position I now hold.

1940 was president of the Eastern Society of Anesthetists, also a member of the International Anesthesia Research Society, Associated Anesthetists of the U. S. and Canada, member and Fellow of the American Society of Anesthetists, member of the International College of Anesthetists, Fellow of the American Medical Association, Pennsylvania Medical Society and the Dauphin County Medical Society.

Married and have one daughter.

LENA GRAY PARKER

Almost all of the years since my graduation at Western Maryland have been spent in doing office work. Taught school in Seaford, Delaware, 1896 and 1897. I held positions with the Columbian Peanut Company, Suffolk Gas-Electric Company, War Work in 1918 in the Construction Division of the War Department, Washington, D. C., and in 1925 accepted a position with the Virginia Electric and Power Company in Suffolk, Virginia, and am still with them. Received my twenty-year service pin when last October.

JOHN WILLIS SMITH

I taught school for three years, two as Assistant Principal of the High School at Elkins, West Virginia, and one as Principal of the school at Huttonsville, West Virginia.

I then entered Railroad work, became successively Car Accountant, Superintendent of Car Service, and Superintendent of Transportation, of the Western Maryland Railroad Company.

In 1917 I was called to Washington by the U. S. Railroad Administration to take charge of Troop Transportation during the First World War and handled the orders to the Railroads all over the U. S. covering the movement of troops until after the Armistice was signed. I was then sent to Buffalo, New York, as Manager of the Car Hire Bureau of the U. S. Railroad Administration.

I was called on March 1, 1945, to become Curator of the Masonic Museum under the Grand Lodge of Maryland A. F. & A. M. I have retired from the coal business and am now devoting my entire time to the work of this position.

I have several hobbies to which I devote my spare time when I have any such. One of these is working in metal, and another is writing verse. Another of my hobbies is that of Research Work—Historical. I am now engaged in writing the History of Concordia Lodge No. 13, A. F. & A. M. for the one hundred and fifty years since its organization. Have gathered enough material to write a history of the Lodges of Maryland.

NANNIE B. THOMAS

After leaving college I taught a country school for several years. My mother had a severe illness, and I willingly gave up teaching, keeping house being much more to my liking. In 1920, some years after my father's death, my mother and I moved to Baltimore and made our home with my sister, Elizabeth Thomas Keller, '95. There I took a business course and for the next years was in the business world, which I greatly liked. In 1934 I married and spent the next ten years in Washington. In 1944 my husband retired after 42 years of service in the Bureau of Standards, and we moved to Gulfport, Florida, a suburb of St. Petersburg.

MIRIAM LEWIS VEASEY

I've been a housewife for forty-two years, living in the east from Rhode Island to Florida. Our two children were daughters, one still living and both were for a time students at the College. Now we are living in the Hoosier State on a big stock farm, where I have taken over the role of "farmer's wife" in these last days.

I am entirely a product of Western Maryland College, having matriculated in 1886 and graduated ten years later, never having gone inside any other school, either kindergarten, primary or High School. Whatever I am educationally speaking, is due to the College.

For my work with the Girl Scouts, I have recently been honored with the "Thank You Pin", which that organization gives for outstanding service, and which I prize highly as I did those few College Gold medals I received in my schooldays. Being the granddaughter of the first President and the daughter of the second, and the schoolmate of the third, and an admirer of the fourth, I have the interest of the College always foremost in my thoughts.

CARRIE E. RINEHART WANTZ

Organist and choir director at Grace Lutheran Church for eight years, beginning September 1896. In November 1903, married James Pearre Wantz, now president of the Union National Bank, Westminster, and vice-president of the Board of Trustees of Western Maryland College. I have two children, Caroline Rinehart Wantz Taylor, '26, now choir director of Reformed Church of Westminster, and James Pearre Wantz, Jr., Assistant Cashier of Union National Bank.

Service

I have no desire to wear a crown
And sit on a golden throne;
I would not fawn at the feet of the great
And live the life of a drone.
Let me march in the rank and file of men
Who toil and win their way;
Then I can lie down to a sleep profound,
Content, at the close of the day.

I do not care for the pomp and show
Of honors too lightly won;
I crave not to have my name inscribed
On banners vauntingly flung.
Let me serve in the humbler walks of life
Where I can help carry the load;
And there let me live close to my fellow-man
Till I come to the end of the road.

My name may not find a place with the great
On history's glamorous page;
It may not be carved in the Hall of Fame
With Doctor and Saint and Sage;
Yet, if I do my part in the battle of life
And patiently serve to the end,
I can then be sure of a place quite secure—
I shall live in the hearts of men.

J. W. SMITH, '96.

Alumni News

"News is news until you have read it here."

Alumni Weekend

JUNE 8-9

Advance Registration is going along nicely—BUT—Rooms will be assigned in the order reservations are received. Will you please send your reservations early.

The Class of 1896 is setting a worthy pace for the younger alumni by its contributions toward The Living Endowment Fund. More than half the members have made contributions and they are hoping to reach one hundred per cent by reunion time.

Reports of progress are coming in from the counties and Baltimore but we are waiting until they are more complete to release the statistics. Get your contribution in early so as to be numbered with your class and area.

It is a welcome sight to see familiar faces of many former students returning to Western Maryland College to complete their studies under the "G.I. Bill of Rights". Life on the campus is becoming more normal as the male enrollment continues its decided up-swing and the morale shows considerable improvement. Indications are that Western Maryland College will have to deny admission to many men this fall, as it has to women, because of limited dormitory accommodations. Therefore, our alumni and friends would do well to advise qualified young men to apply immediately for admission this fall. Remember, you can help your Alma Mater to select the type of student best suited to represent her.

FRATERNITIES:

The fraternities are in their rooms in Alumni Hall once more and the Inter-Fraternity Council is functioning on the campus. The present Council is composed of Roy Carter and Joe Wilson of Alpha Gamma Tau, Ken Volk and Doug Beakes of Gamma Beta Chi, Bob Beglin and Nelson Wolfsheimer of Delta Pi Alpha, and Don Burroughs and Bill Shires of Phi Alpha Alpha.

FACULTY:

President F. G. Holloway has been a member of the Advisory Board for the Revised Standard Edition of the New Testament which was published February 11, 1946, by the International Council of Religious Education. He was one of a carefully selected group of qualified Churchmen and was chosen because of his expert knowledge of Greek.

Dr. Holloway was recently appointed a trustee of Scarritt College.

Brigadier General Robert J. Gill
1910

Robert J. Gill

We know of no Alumnus whom we are more proud to honor than "Bob" Gill, of the class of 1910.

Born June 22nd, 1889, he entered the lower sub-Freshman class at Western Maryland, September 1903; he entered college in September 1906 and from all reports was quite a lad in those days. From his own class "ALOHA", his write-up is as follows:

"A lion among the ladies is a most dreadful thing".

In addition to this, we find other references, among them:

"Ethnology—formerly 'Guile'. Not a misnomer."

"Best all-round man". "Tallest". "Best Debater" (tied with Moser).

"Best Football". "Best Basketball". "Most Popular".

"Most Influential (tied with Moser)".

QUOTING from The WAR DEPARTMENT Bureau of Public Relations, Release of January 23, 1946:

"COLONEL ROBERT J. GILL NOMINATED TO BE BRIGADIER GENERAL. The President today recommended to the Senate the promotion of Colonel Robert J. Gill, Infantry, to the temporary grade of Brigadier General. Colonel Gill is Executive Officer for Mr. Justice Robert A. Jackson, Chief of Counsel for the United States for the Prosecution of Axis War Criminals.

"In recommending Colonel Gill for the promotion, Justice Jackson stated that his outstanding performance in that position has contributed in vital measure to the success of the trials at Nuernburg, Germany.

"A veteran of both wars, Colonel Gill served under General of the Army Douglas MacArthur in the 42nd Infantry Division in France with the American Expeditionary Forces of World War I, rising to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. Recalled to extended active duty in October, 1942, he served as Post Executive at Fort Story, Virginia, until September 1943, when he was assigned as Director of the Army Specialized Training Program for the Third Service Command at Baltimore, Maryland. He went overseas in April, 1944, and was awarded the Legion of Merit for his services as Chief of the Prisoner-of-War Division, Office of the Provost Marshal, European Theater of Operations, until June, 1945, during which time he supervised 2,852,000 prisoners-of-war.

"Colonel Gill was graduated from Western Maryland College and the University of Virginia Law School. He was associated with the law firm of Gill, Greene and Waters at Baltimore between wars.

"Colonel Gill plans to return to civilian life following the completion of the Nuernburg trials, and his promotion will not affect the War Department's plan for the reduction of general officer strength."

He was awarded the Third Order of the White Lion by the Czechoslovakian government, the presentation being made by General Bohunil Bocek, Chief of the General Staff of that Army, in a ceremony at the General Staff Building in Prague.

General Gill has been a member of the Board of Trustees of Western Maryland College since 1925. It was for him our new Gymnasium for men was named in 1939.

ALUMNI WEEK END

The June 8-9 Week End is now history. A list of those who registered for the Week End is given below. In addition, some on the Hill were a like number of Alumni who came back to fraternize with those who were living in the dorms, and also to attend the dance.

The sun shone brightly and every one seemed to have a good time and as they left College Hill Sunday afternoon, the cry seemed to be unanimous "do it again".

Is there a sentiment for this? If so, we will try to pick a date next summer, free from interruptions from summer school and conferences so that there will be no restricting influences. Suggestions for a change in the program or additional features will be welcomed, and will be taken into consideration when plans are laid for next summer.

SUMMER SCHOOL

The tables are turned! Any one who has visited the College in the last three or four years was struck by the preponderance of co-eds.

As this is written, the veterans decidedly are in the majority. Four tables in the dining room will hold all of the co-eds with something like three times that number of boys, most of whom are veterans. This for boarding students. With day students, the enrollment is over 200.

CASSELL HALL

With Blanche Ward full, McDaniel Hall full and McKinstry Hall full—all girls—it has been necessary to add another dormitory for the accommodation of incoming freshman girls, and so "Cassell Hall" comes into being. Located at the "Forks," it can accommodate 26 girls, together with a director of residence. In addition to dormitory rooms, it contains four baths, living room, laundry and dining room. Those residing in the hall will take their meals there.

INTER-SORORITY ALUMNAE DANCE

On May 18, the Mount Washington Casino (Baltimore) was the scene of a most successful dance sponsored by sorority Alumnae under the general direction of the following committee:

Lucretia Day Moog—General Chairman—Phi Alpha Mu.
Elizabeth Crisp Rechner—Delta Sigma Kappa.
Virginia Karow Fowble—Sigma Sigma Tau.
Mary L. Sehn Parks—Delta Sigma Kappa.
Ruth MacVean—Iota Gamma Chi.

In addition to a large crowd being present, the dance (music furnished by the Southern Revelers) was so thoroughly enjoyed that another is planned for the Fall.

Why not a similar dance in other cities?

NEW MEMBERS OF THE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

The induction of the Class of 1946 into the Alumni Association at the Alumni Banquet on Saturday, May 25th, swells our membership by approximately 100 more live-wire Western Marylanders who have left our halls for the bigger things of life.

In this first issue since their graduation, we wish them God-speed. What they do in life is going to affect the standard of our American civilization. May their influence be such that it will definitely raise this standard.

President Holloway's Message

The alumni of the college have made an excellent contribution through the past few years in supplying the names of prospective students. Through this cooperation we have been able to maintain good enrollments despite war conditions.

The present influx of veterans now changes the picture. We will turn away hundreds of candidates for the year 1946-47. Through veteran housing and other emergency means we will increase our student body to a total of 750. This is a temporary provision and not a permanent policy.

Advanced registrations for 1947-48 are already mounting. We are especially interested in the sons and daughters of alumni so we are advising immediate reservation of room for any of you whose children desire to matriculate at Western Maryland.

Elsewhere in this bulletin are detailed reports on the Living Endowment Fund. I want to take this means of thanking the leaders who have helped to sponsor this fund as well as all those who have contributed to it. I regard the enterprise as not only worthy of the support of all Western Marylanders but as a vital part of the financial stability of the college.

We all watch with interest the making of history in these troublesome days. Our Alma Mater must continue to produce men and women qualified for leadership and determined to make a contribution to the new world in the making.

The Alumni President Speaks

Dear Fellow Alumni:

It is in keeping with the many long established traditions of Western Maryland College, that the new incoming President of the Alumni Association take advantage of space in the summer Bulletin to greet, admonish or encourage his fellow Alumni, or proffer a plan or policy of Alumni activity for the coming year.

Now that the war is over, there is no good reason why the Alumni Association should not again be an active and moving force for the support and betterment of our Alma Mater. Altho economic uncertainty and industrial unrest and strife have been left in the wake of the war, this fact should not serve as an excuse to remain passive or dampen our ardor to perpetuate those things we cherish at Western Maryland.

The Living Endowment Plan is one of your golden opportunities. The response from the Alumni has been by no means unanimous. Don't wait to be personally solicited. Sit down now and write a check to Carl L. Schaeffer, Treasurer, for one-tenth the amount you think you are indebted to the College and continue to do the same every year until your children and children's children have had the educational opportunity afforded by this big little college. Where your fond memories and money are, there will your heart be also.

Organized intercollegiate sport will be resumed at Western Maryland this fall. The schedules of such activities probably appear elsewhere in this Bulletin. Give the teams their deserved Alumni support. Try to return to the Hill for one or more of the home games. The returning GI's, who matriculate this fall, should be in good shape for football from their rigorous service experiences. Best wishes for success in the post-war resumption of sports. It pleases the Alumni as well as the students. It is another vital bond between College and Alumni.

There is a regional Alumni group in your State, County, City or community that is planning some sort of activity for the fall or winter. Be ready and willing to support such enterprise and even be instrumental yourself in calling together a small Alumni group in your local community for dinner, bridge, bowling or movies sometime this winter. The social contact together of those with a common bond of residency on College Hill will be beneficial to all parties concerned.

Let my one admonition to you be—do something in the coming year that will remind you that you are an Alumnus of Western Maryland College. Perhaps a contribution to the Living Endowment will appeal to you; possibly a visit to the Hill for a football game; maybe a dinner or movie date with previous classmates; but do something to keep the spark of school spirit alive throughout the year.

*HOME COMING DAY NOVEMBER 2

It is a little difficult at this early date to state what activities will be provided on that evening but you may rest assured every effort will be made to provide entertainment for those who come to College Hill. Certainly an effort will be made to have a dance.

It is not too early to plan your week-ends so that you can be with Charlie Havens and his Green Terrors.
