Homecoming Game November 2

W. M. C. vs. Hampden-Sydney

Hoffa Field --- 2 P. M.

New Terror Team In Training

After a lapse of three years the pleasant sound of barking signals can be heard coming from the practice field beside Gill Gym. Coach Charlie Havens has been working with a squad of over fifty huskies who opened Fall training camp on September 4.

The team that has finally been shaped up for action will have its first test before this account is read by an ardent following of alumni and friends. The prospects look fine, considering the necessity of building a new team spirit after such a gap in experience.

Coach Havens has two able assistants in Bruce Ferguson, star blocking back for Bill Shepherd, of Terror fame in the early thirties, and Mike Phillips, All-Maryland center and captain of the 1942 team.

Among the veterans who have returned to the hill under the G.I. Bill are several pre-war football men. They are Sig Jensen, Art O'Keeffe, Joe Kittner, George Piavis, Carlo Ortenzi, George and Bart Norman, and Stan Kulakowski. These have formed a promising nucleus for the current team.

If you can not make any other game on the schedule, do not fail to see the Homecoming Game on November 2. That day the Green and Gold is pointing for a victory over Hampden-Sydney College, a new rival from Virginia. Many grads who missed the special Homecoming last June will be on hand that day and will expect to meet old friends and renew past acquaintances. Don't disappoint them.

Plan to stay for the Homecoming Dance that evening. See you then.

Published Monthly during the School Year from October to May, inclusive, and July-August, by the College

Entered as second class matter, May 19, 1921, at the Postoffice at Westminster, Md., under the act of August 24, 1912. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, act of October 3, 1917.

Eightieth Year Brings Peak Enrollment

Western Maryland, like many other colleges, is experiencing difficulty in housing its largest enrollment, brought about by the influx of many veterans. At the opening of its 80th year, there is a student body totaling 780, equally divided between men and women. Of the men, 270 are G.I.s and there are nine veterans among the women. Sixteen new faculty members have been added by President Holloway to take care of this expansion.

Another novel development is the appearance of wives and some children as family men attempt to complete educations delayed by the war. There are approximately forty married couples, among them an English war bride.

Housing for these families is being provided under the Meade-Lanham Act in the form of eight one-story army barracks which will be divided into three units and four barracks, divided into four units each, making a total of forty units. Each unit will contain a living room, a kitchen, two bedrooms, and a bath. There will be large storage cupboards and oil space heaters. Each kitchen will be equipped with a gas range, an ice refrigerator and a sink. New insulation is being installed. They are now being erected at a site about three blocks east of the campus and will be completed in the near future.

While this project is being completed, comfortable quarters have been established for the overflow from the dormitories by housing them in Gill gymnasium. (See picture on next page.) In these busy post-war days Western Maryland is seeking to do its part for those whose education was interrupted through no fault of their own.

The latest information is, that some of the housing units should be ready for occupancy by the second week in November.

WESTERN MARYLAND COLLEGE BULLETIN

Do you subscribe to Reader's Digest, Coronet, Life, Look, Harper's, Atlantic Monthly, Collier's, Saturday Evening Post, or one or more similar magazines? The chances are that you do, or, if not, that you borrow these magazines from your neighbor. It is amazing how our interest in periodicals has grown, despite the important place which the radio has occupied in our lives over the past generation. New publications are constantly appearing to satisfy the demand of the reading public for concise articles of general interest, or more detailed treatment of specific subjects.

Do you subscribe to the Book-of-the-Month, or the Literary Guild or some similar book club? In all likelihood you do, or else borrow the books from friends who do. It is astounding how large the editions are of so many contemporary books, despite the large role which the cinema has assumed in both our entertainment and our education. The average person is often desperate in his attempt to peruse a fair percentage of the volumes of interest which are coming from the press.

Ever since the invention of the printing press, books have been our chief sources of entertainment and of education. In recent years they have played an increasingly important role in teaching on the college level. The textbook plays a much less significant function in a given course than it once did. When Dr. Harvie Branscomb made his important study (published under the title "Teaching with Books"), he learned that the students' use of college libraries in certain cases increased as much as 300% over a fifteen-year period.

When Thomas Carlyle said, "The true University these days is a collection of books" he made no trite statement. The library is certainly the very heart of the academic life of a college. It is the one material asset of highest importance. It is the place in which faculty and students alike come into contact with the great minds of history and the great thinkers of our own day. No college can be a college without a library. No college can be a good college without a good library. The best colleges will have the best libraries.

Those of us who love Western Maryland must be increasingly aware of the importance of our library to the life of our Alma Mater. We must share responsibility in bringing into reality that type of library building and that collection of books which will make possible the highest educational aims.

The Living Endowment Fund

SATURDAY EVENING, MAY 25, 1946

After Dr. Holloway presented for membership in the Association, the Class of 1946, the President of the Class of 1896, Mr. J. W. Smith, responded with a challenge.

When the Class of 1896 was called upon, Mr. Smith introduced Dr. Lewis K. Woodward '96, who in turn presented Miriam Lewis Veasey, '96. She spoke in behalf of having a real live Historical Museum for the College as soon as a permanent place is available. She asked that a committee be appointed by Dr. Holloway, President of the College, to look after the interests of such a museum.

Mr. Smith then introduced Mrs. James Pearre Wantz (Carrie Rinehart, '96) who presented an oil painted picture of Mary Ward Lewis, 1852-1935, to the Alumni Association for the Historical Museum.

The picture was unveiled by Pauline Keefer, '21 (Mrs. Floyd Cromwell), because in 1920 the Browning Literary Society created a fund, the income from which was to be used to purchase a Mary Ward Lewis Medal for the best all round girl of the year, thereby perpetuating the name of Mary Ward Lewis. Miss Keefer was the first young lady to receive that medal and her class of 1921 was celebrating its 25th Anniversary.

The Class of 1896, after paying for the picture of Mrs. Lewis, had the sum of $101.75 left, which was presented to Dr. Holloway for the work of Historical Museum Committee.

As Mrs. Lewis was one of the first graduates, Class 1871, she was termed "The Mother of this Alumni Association." The children of Dr. and Mrs. Lewis were six, all graduates of the College and members of this Association.

Those present at the Banquet of Class 1896 were introduced by President Smith:

Mr. John Willis Smith—Baltimore, Md.
 Rev. John L. Ward—Baltimore, Md.
 Mr. Milton L. Veasey—Pocomoke City, Md.
 Mrs. Miriam Lewis Veasey—Salem, Indiana.
 Mrs. Mabel Elderdice Freeny—Pittsville, Md.
 Miss Ida May Dodd—Centreville, Md. (Poetess of note).
 Miss Minnie P. Keating—Centreville, Md.
 Mrs. Mary Englar Englas—New Windsor, Md.
 Mrs. May Kemp Howard—Trappe, Md.
 Mrs. Nellie Porter Brown—Lansdowne, Pa.
 Mrs. Hannah White Cordrey—Salisbury, Md.
 Mrs. Dora Price Robertson—Middletown, Del.
 Mrs. Blanche Davis Webster—Hagerstown, Md.
 Dr. Lewis K. Woodward—Westminster, Md.
 Mrs. Sadie Myers Bennett—Westminster, Md.
 Mrs. Carrie Rinehart Wantz—Westminster, Md.

A reunion of the above was held later that evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Pearre Wantz.

At the banquet, Dr. Holloway appointed the following as the Historical Committee:

Mrs. Dorothy McDaniel Herr, '18
 Miss Nannie Leese, '95
 Miss Carrie L. Mourer, '87
 Miss Wilsie Adkins, '09

Mrs. Miriam Lewis Veasey, '96

THE visit of both the rich and poor to the manger scene in Bethlehem has given the Christmas story a universal appeal. The one whom they were thus honoring was later to lead all men to a new conception of human ties that bound them as brothers the world over.

To enlarge on that concept and to give emphasis to its implications has been the task of Christian institutions since that day. Among these institutions in more recent history has been the Church related college. While such colleges have sought to strengthen Christian and democratic ways of life they have been limited to the relatively few young people whose parents could afford to send them to college.

This year has seen a new opportunity present itself with the matriculation of thousands of veterans into institutions of higher learning, who otherwise could never have afforded the privilege of such a training. President Holloway, at the Fall Convocation, indicated there were tremendous implications in this new development and certainly this is true for the Christian college in a unique sense.

Challenging thinkers of today are pointing to the need for the development of a deeper and more sincere sense of social and moral responsibility in a chaotic world. The Church related college is best prepared to meet this demand because of its emphasis on the spiritual as the source of dynamic fulfillment of such responsibility. Morals lose much of their meaning without religious support and social service finds its best expression through religious motivation. For these reasons such colleges commend themselves to the serious consideration of all public spirited people. Free higher education in a free society is a guarantor of the democratic way of life. From Bethlehem to Calvary and on to the end of time the Teacher who is the Way, the Truth and the Life is influencing men in all strata of society to seek better human relationships through the insights of religion. The Church college is committed to such a philosophy of education and has never faced a better opportunity to permeate society at its higher intellectual levels.

Without an economic barrier to higher education, the masses will find this training within their grasp and this country can look for fine new leadership in the world of tomorrow. To contribute its share of Christian influence in this new day is the responsibility of the church related college. To direct potential leaders to its halls is the task of the alumni and friends of such institutions.

CONVOCATION ADDRESS

BY

ROBERT HOUGHOUT JACKSON

Published Monthly by Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md., during the school year from October to May, inclusive, and July-August. Entered as second class matter, May 19, 1921, at the Postoffice at Westminster, Md., under the act of August 24, 1912. Accepted for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, act of October 3, 1917.

This address was delivered to the Trustees, Faculty and Students of Western Maryland College at the Convocation held Thursday, December 5, 1946, at which time the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Mr. Jackson, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Mr. President, Faculty, Students and Friends of Western Maryland College:

I deeply appreciate the honor that has been conferred upon me by this typically American institution of learning. I am glad to discuss with this audience of typical American young people what the effort at Nurnberg, which has been referred to, means to the future. I recognize that the tribute of this morning is not to me personally but to that work, one in which many persons were engaged and in which distinguished service was rendered by many persons whose names never saw the headlines.

The opportunity to speak before you who are engaged in the serious work of preparing for life is a somewhat challenging one. My generation will probably not see much of the consequences of the effort that has been made at Nurnberg, but your generation may. I hope and pray that there will never again be an occasion when it will be necessary to invoke such law or to set up such a tribunal. We all hope the peace of the world will not be again disturbed as it has been. But in the uncertainties of these days it is well to look ahead and see if any comfort can be had from the work that has been done at Nurnberg. After all, it is for you to take a long view of it because it will be twenty years from now, perhaps in 1965 or 1970, when you young people will be at the height of your powers, when you will be running the United States of America. That is significant because the danger of war is not tomorrow nor the next day. All of the peoples of the world want peace at this moment. No matter what country you visit you find the common people weary of flesh, their resources exhausted, and they are tired of war. They are disillusioned, too, and they know that war solves no problems. They know it brings disaster to the just and the unjust alike. So there is no imminent danger of war. The danger will be 25 or 30 years from now when the lessons of our experience will have been forgotten, when the people again will become restored and rested, and ambition may then seek ends that can be accomplished only by wars. Because you, who are students today, will be in charge of the world tomorrow when the danger of a renewal of strife really comes, I think you will be interested in the effort at Nurnberg to make war a less attractive enterprise for statesmen.

I must, of course, admit a good deal of embarrassment about trying to advise you of the problems you will face. Any man over 45 years of age should be embarrassed to try to tell you how to manage the world in your time. But there is this much consolation: No matter how bad our advice, it is likely to be harmless, for you probably will not take it anyway. That thought gives a bit of relief from responsibility. But, seriously, it is easy for you to say, or to think, "If you older men are so wise, why have you let the world get into such a mess?" After all, we haven't much to boast of—this generation of men who are represented on the platform today. When you add up the score, you find that our century is the bloodiest century of all history. Never before were so many people taken out and slaughtered because of their race as in our time. Never before were so many people impressed into human slavery as during the last decade on the Continent of Europe. When you read of displaced persons in Europe, I don't know whether you know what they are. Most people do not. They are the slave laborers who were pressed into service in the occupied countries of Europe and forced to come into Germany for war labor. When the "master race" collapsed, the slaves took their freedom and fell into lawless ways of existence, causing much trouble today. Then, two wars—two devastating wars—in a single century, and we live under the threat of more scientific devastation to come! And so I want you to know that I speak humbly today, because I do not think the men of my time can profess very much by way of wisdom to guide the future. Perhaps, however, out of our mistakes some wisdom can be learned.

I think it was H. G. Wells who said that "All history is a race between education and catastrophe." But I am not sure that Wells was right, if we are speaking of the age of atomic bombs. In this day, nearly all of the enemies of mankind have been conquered except man himself. The one thing mankind needs to fear is man. And it is no longer primitive or illiterate man who represents a menace; it is the technically educated people, the competent people, who hold the secrets of destruction and can loose those forces upon the world.

If we have reached the point where it may be said the only thing we need to fear is the educated man, that calls for serious consideration on the part of institutions of learning. What shall we do to be saved from them? Is not the answer that the race really is between catastrophe and an increased sense of moral responsibility on the part of peoples? Education, of course, brings knowledge, and knowledge is power, and power unrestrained by moral principle leads to catastrophe. The question, perhaps, is not merely how well we can educate, but how we can inculcate those restraints which enable peoples to live at peace with one another in this highly organized and competitive world.

I would like you to think of the Nurnberg trial as an effort to teach some moral responsibility and to enforce some legal responsibility in international affairs. Moral responsibility seems more effective if there is some legal responsibility to strengthen it. We have tried to set up standards of conduct for nations and for men who control the destiny of peoples.

There is no need in this presence to argue the point that war is the catastrophe which we most fear and the worst we are likely to suffer. For the vanquished, war is uncompromisingly terrible. Those of you who have not seen a people conquered, a people with their social institutions thrown down, their legal institutions destroyed, their homes and buildings and utilities in rubble, cannot know what it is to lose a war; and I hope you never will. But for the victor also, it means troubles such as we read of in the daily newspaper. It means shortages, inflations, strife. For the young, war meant, for too many of them, a rendezvous with death. For a whole generation of youths it meant that they must give up the privilege of pursuing their own chosen way of life. They must be conscripted to take up tasks in which they found no pleasure, were sent to places they did not care to go. They have lost from their education and from their opportunity to get settled in life some of their best years.

Certainly it is not necessary to argue that war has all the characteristics of the most monstrous of crimes. But despite its morally criminal character, International Law in the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Centuries had come to teach that all war was legal and there was no distinction between legal and illegal war, or between just and unjust war. It said there was no machinery to judge sovereign nations and all war therefore was to be treated as lawful. That doctrine did not prevail earlier. Grotius, the father of International Law, taught that there is a distinction between just and unjust wars. And the early Christian teachers turned attention to the principles that do, or ought to, govern the society of nations and also condemned certain wars as unjust and illegal. But in more recent times, those teachings were abandoned and the last two centuries accepted war as always legal no matter what its purposes were.

In the period before the first World War it was thought that law could be used to make war really humane. We often hear that hope expressed in the term "civilized warfare," which we now know is a self-contradictory and illusive phrase. In order to make warfare more civilized, however, a great many treaties and rules were made by the nations. Such are the rules by which a soldier had a right to surrender, and when he surrenders he must not be killed or mistreated but must be treated as a prisoner of war and provided for according to his rank. A great many other principles were adopted along similar lines, such as that armies should not use dum-dum bullets or poison gas.

These agreements were heralded as great advances and indeed they did represent a certain amount of progress. But the first World War made it apparent that rules of the game would not confine war to civilized limits. A new approach to the problem was then made. The purpose, instead of setting up rules to govern fighting was to outlaw war itself. It was recognized, of course, that it would not be possible at once to end all war. But statesmen revived the early teachings that some wars were just and some were unjust. The statesmen struck at the most unjust kind of war—war of aggression. Nearly all of the nations of the world agreed that a war of aggression thereafter should be illegal and renounced use of wars of aggression to promote their policies. All of the nations, which later included the Axis powers, agreed to that. There was hope in the hearts of many and there was a belief that something, perhaps, had been accomplished to end war, for nearly all of them had their origins in aggression. Then clouds began to appear and they grew larger and darker until they nearly eclipsed civilization. Then came World War II, the most extensive and bloody war ever perpetrated.

When we undertook the task of conducting these international trials, I frankly did not know and could not imagine that men of our century could descend to the depths to which we found men had descended in Germany. It was only when we had incontrovertible evidence, their own photographs, their own records kept from day to day, their boasts and their testimony in open court, that I could believe that over six, perhaps eight million human beings had been slaughtered in Europe—not because of anything they had done, but because they had been born Jews. It was hard to believe that in this day slave labor of the worst type, of the most cruel type, had been resorted to. And the persecutions of the Christian Church, things we read about as belonging to the Dark Ages—they were living among us again.

When the war came to an end, the United States found in its hands prisoners whose names were household words as the responsible leaders who had directed all of this evil work. I am not prepared to say that they were the only men guilty of evil deeds of the sort. They were not. But you do not refuse to punish any crime just because we cannot punish all crimes. Here they were, and the problem was what to do with them. Three courses were possible: The prisoners could be restored to their liberty; but that would be a strange thing to do considering the lives of Americans had been spent to capture them and the crimes charged against their names. Of course, they could be executed or otherwise punished without trial. Everybody agreed that would be perfectly legal, but to punish without trial would hardly satisfy today's conscience nor tomorrow's historian. It is not more indiscriminating bloodletting that will bring peace and civilization to the world. The third course, and the only other course suggested, was to put them on trial for their offenses, to prove their guilt, to expose to the world their sham and degeneracy, to hear their defenses, and then to mete out such sentences as were just in the light of the facts. That course was adopted.

Then came the question what to try them for. Many persons thought we should just try them for simple murder. But that did not seem to go to the root of the matter and really strike at the real causes of the catastrophe that so long hovered over civilization. We believed it was time to invoke and act upon the treaties which outlawed aggressive war. We thought we should punish breach of the promise not to resort to aggressive war as instrument of policy; and that we should hold statesmen responsible for breaking the promises their nations had given. It was agreed by the four leading allied nations and nineteen others who adhered to the Agreement that these men be placed on trial for crimes against peace—for planning, inciting and waging a war of aggression, fighting it ruthlessly and by illegal method and terrorizing civilian populations. That was the trial which took many months. Out of the salt mines of Germany where they were supposed to be hidden, out of the double partitions where some documents were kept, out of field offices and headquarters of the defeated Army, came document after document (now published in eight volumes by the Government) which show how carefully the German militarists had planned the war—not as a war of defense, they didn't make a pretense of that, but as a war to kill off competing peoples and gain more living space. Day after day, by captured documents we showed the ways and means by which the peace of the world had been attacked and destroyed. When the evidence was completed against them, each one of these men had what they never gave their adversaries in Germany—a chance to defend himself, to take the witness stand, to call other witnesses, and tell his story. To have condemned these men without giving them a chance to be heard would always leave the impression that we were afraid of what they might say. By hearing them it became apparent from the very arguments made in their defenses how complete and inexcusable was their guilt and how ruthless men become when they have absolute power. It has been said that power always corrupts, and absolute power corrupts absolutely. These men had absolute power and destroyed the people's right to control their officials, and revelling in such power these men had come to the point where they had no sense of moral responsibility and no sense of legal responsibility. In fact, just before they invaded Poland, Hitler called together the high military men of Germany and told them he was about to strike. Hitler said, "I will give a propagandist cause for starting the war. Never mind whether it is true or not. The victor will not be asked whether he spoke truth—what matters is not truth, but victory."

That is the philosophy which rejects all moral and all legal basis of responsibility which brought into the world the catastrophe of the second World War. The planning, inciting and waging a war of aggression is the crime for which, among many other crimes, men who once held the greatest power in Europe have now been hanged.

Such a lesson alone, of course, is not enough to prevent future wars. The great weakness of the example is that the crime of making a war of aggression, like other crimes, is set in motion by men who expect not to be caught. But at least it puts International Law on the side of peace instead of on the side of the foul doctrine that all wars are legal and all must be treated as just. Much more will have to be done to give peace a firm footing in the world. People will have to be alert to see that statesmen do not take advantage of trivial incidents to precipitate large crises and risk wars. We must be patient with our neighbors. We cannot ask that all patience be extended toward us. We, too, are a singularly impatient people. It startles me sometimes after a year and a half in devastated and demoralized Europe that Americans can become so discontented over the shortage of steak or other fine things we have been accustomed to. We have to learn a little more patience in the United States because we are a people with great power and we, too, might become a provocative force in the world. Our power must be wielded with a high sense of responsibility.

We have established as a precedent the principle of International Law that statesmen who rule great states are nevertheless under the law when issues of peace and war are concerned. A great English Judge, Lord Coke, was summoned along with other of the highest judges of Great Britain, to a conference with King James. At the risk of his life Coke declared that "the King is under God and the law." That is the principle we are trying to establish in international affairs—the principle that sovereignty and great power in any country must be exercised under God and the law. May the Nurnberg trials help bring about a regime in the world in which nations as well as individuals will have to obey the law, so that people like you and me will be "free to live, by no man's leave, underneath the law."

(Two weeks after Commencement)

College Hill Is Yours Again

for the two days, June 7-8. Those who attended last year had a grand time. Many others have written about this year—so, here it is! Live in the dorm, eat in the dining hall—no “rat” rules—no “lights out”—no “rising bell”—the part of college life you always longed for.

All For The Sum Of $6.00

This will include Saturday lunch; free use of Golf Course, Tennis and other sports areas; Alumni Banquet; Grand Ball in Gill Gymnasium; Room; Sunday breakfast; 11 o'clock Chapel, with all the old choir members; Sunday dinner. You will mingle with your old cronies—meet your old “gang”—visit with the old “profs”, and relax and rejuvenate.

Advance Registration (not transferable)

$2.00 per person registration fee should be sent in as soon as possible—to T. K. Harrison, Executive Secretary—giving full name and class of each person who is coming. A receipt will be mailed you. This receipt must be presented on arrival on June 7th, when you will pay the additional $4.00 and be assigned a room, and given some identification badge which will admit you to the dining room and dance.

Any registration fees received, after we have sold every available room, will be returned.

Cancellations

Should you make reservations and then find you can not come, please cancel at once, so another may have your place. Instead of a refund, your $2.00 deposit will be transferred to your dues and Class Memorial account.

Make checks payable to Carl L. Schaeffer, Treasurer.

P.S. DO NOT CONFUSE THIS WITH CLASS REUNIONS AT COMMENCEMENT. THEY ARE TWO SEPARATE AFFAIRS.

The Living Endowment Fund

Your Alumni Association has voted to make this an annual Project. If you gave last year we are counting on you again this year. If not, why not begin now? Help your class to be represented.

Our enrollment has gone up to 800 and our expenses have increased proportionately—more chairs, desks, lights, maps and other classroom equipment—more heat, light, water,—more faculty members and staff—and all in a period of inflation.

But no more return from fixed endowment than last year.

Yes, tuition, room and board have increased but the complete cost of a college education is never borne by the students—yours was not either. Somebody helped you through Endowment Funds—now you can help others through The Living Endowment Fund—you know the value of an education. Some people of another generation underwrote higher education for you.

You can underwrite it for this generation and posterity.

This gives each alumnus a part, no matter how large or small, in the ongoing program of higher education for a better world through a liberal arts college—WESTERN MARYLAND COLLEGE.

How Does Living Endowment Work?

By putting W.M.C. in your annual budget of giving.

By creating a source of income to W.M.C. from its investment in you.

By 3000 living Alumni giving an average of $10.00 to create a $30,000 return on a $1,000,000 endowment.

Dr. Holloway was appointed president of Western Maryland College in 1935, after having served three years as president of Westminster Theological Seminary. He is an alumnus of the college, class of 1918 and of Drew Theological Seminary, class of 1921. In 1932 he received the Doctor of Divinity degree from Western Maryland, and in 1936 Dickinson College conferred on him the Doctor of Laws Degree.

tion of the Association of American Colleges. He is a member of the University Senate, the Commission on Chaplaincy, and the Ecumenical Methodist council.

Under his administration, the college has grown scholastically and physically. Departments in library science, philosophy, psychology, and sociology have been added, and the music department has recently been accredited by the National Association of the Schools of Music. Faculty has improved in quality and increased in number proportionate to the increased student enrollment. Albert Norman Ward dormitory for men and Gill Gymnasium have been built and Levine Hall renovated into a music hall containing practice and recital rooms.

President Holloway and his family go to their new home with the best wishes of the alumni, college personnel and community.

LOWELL S. ENSOR, D.D.
President

Lowell Skinner Ensor, A.B., B.D., D.D.

At the meeting of the Board of Trustees of Western Maryland College, held on Wednesday afternoon, June 25, 1947, announcement was made that the Rev. Lowell Skinner Ensor, D.D., pastor of the Westminster Methodist Church, had been unanimously elected our fifth president.

Dr. Ensor will succeed Dr. Fred G. Holloway, who resigned in April to become dean at Drew University, a Methodist institution, at Madison, N. J., on the opening of school this fall.

The new president has been a member of the Board of Trustees of Western Maryland College since 1944. He was ordained a minister in 1929 and was accepted into the Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Church, and has served pastorates at Prince Frederick, '31-'33; Pikesville, '34-'39; coming to Westminster in 1940 succeeding the Rev. Allen F. Poore.

He is a native of Baltimore, a son of the Rev. John T. Ensor and Mrs. Ensor. The elder Ensor is a native of New Windsor. Dr. Ensor married the former Eloise Bittner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Bittner, of Harrisburg, Pa., in 1931 and they have one daughter, Caryl Jeanne. Mrs. Ensor received her Bachelor of Science in Education degree from New York University, where she matriculated. Later she earned her Master's degree at Drew University.

President Ensor received his Bachelor of Arts degree at Johns Hopkins University in 1928; and his Bachelor of Divinity degree from Drew University in 1931. Western Maryland College honored him with the degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1944. His earlier education was at Towson High School, graduating from Baltimore City College in 1923.

As pastor here he was instrumental in effecting the merger of Immanuel and Centenary Methodist Churches. The church now has a membership of 1100. Dr. Ensor has held important posts in the Conference and was recently named a delegate to the Jurisdictional Conference.

He is a member of the Westminster Kiwanis Club, the Carroll County Ministerium, the Methodist Conference Board of Education, a Trustee of the Conference Claims Endowment Fund and The Asbury Methodist Home for the Aged.

Dr. Ensor assumed his new office July 1, 1947.

President Ensor's Message

Since this is my first message to the alumni through the columns of this Bulletin, I suppose I should be expected to ask for your hearty support. This I do most sincerely—not so much for my sake as president, but for the sake of the continued development of this great institution which we all love. I love it as an adopted son who was honored with a degree a few years ago and who now has been called to service. You love it because of the years spent on its campus and the intellectual, spiritual, and social contributions it has made to your life.

You are impressed, as I have been, in reading this rather imposing list of alumni who are now serving the College in one capacity or another. We are proud of them, and happy in their devotion to their Alma Mater. But as I look over the list, I can see additional names in my mind's eye of those who through the years have been unofficially serving the College in varied fields of activity. There are those who in any company are enthusiastic boosters of Western Maryland's merits. There are those who are sending us constantly the names of prospective students of whom we can be proud. And there are those who are liberally supporting the College through significant gifts to some phase of the Building program, or through annual contributions to the Living Endowment Fund, or some other open avenue of service.

It is this sort of support, whether official or unofficial, that will guarantee the kind of college we all want Western Maryland to be. I am confident I can count on the continued allegiance of our alumni, and I pledge you the best I have to offer.

LOWELL S. ENSOR

Alumni President

A few weeks ago when you elected me President of the Alumni Association of Western Maryland College you conferred upon me an honor I did not seek. However, the honor is appreciated and the responsibility which goes with the office is recognized by your humble servant.

This association has been a great factor in the development and growth of Western Maryland College in the past. It can be a greater and more potent factor in the future if we want it to be.

The Board of Trustees, the Executive Officers, Faculty, Athletic Directors and Student Body all expect the wholehearted support of Western Maryland Alumni. Do you think we have done our best in giving the support expected of us?

When the Trustees selected Dr. Lowell S. Ensor to succeed Dr. Holloway as President of Western Maryland College they obviously made a wise choice. Dr. and Mrs. Ensor will do their part to not only keep the College on its present high plane but to advance its cause whenever and wherever possible. They shall have my support and I ask for them the support of every Alumnus and every friend of Western Maryland.

Let us speak our minds freely with the thought of making our Association a more powerful and more effective organization in the life of Western Maryland College. Your constructive criticism and helpful suggestions will be appreciated.

This Memorial, established last year, now totals $153. Fifteen members of the class have made contributions. Approximately one hundred and fifty have made no contribution. Your class officers have made an earnest effort. Why not back them up?

PREXY, THE FIFTH

On July 1st, Lowell S. Ensor donned the toga of our fifth President. Elsewhere you will find something about his life. In still another column you will read a short message from him. On the campus, in his home, at the Homecoming game and at our sectional meetings you will have opportunities to personally greet him and offer your loyal co-operation. He is, by virtue of his office, a fellow Alumnus. He is a swell chap to know and one whom you will be proud to help. You are going to like him. I have publicly promised your hearty co-operation. Why not drop him a line (ask him not to reply) telling him that I have not overstated the case.

To him and to Mrs. Ensor—another whom you will be delighted to know—and to Caryl Jeanne we extend a cordial welcome to our College life.

LIVING ENDOWMENT

A complete report of the Living Endowment for the year ending August 31, 1947, will be carried in the next issue of the Bulletin.

A MEMORIAL

Amon Burgee, '87, A.B., A.M. Just two years ago this man passed on to his final reward. No word we can say will add to his fame or soften the blow that fell on his loved ones. We do wish to record the fact that for the better part of half a century he engraved on the hearts and in the minds of the youth of Frederick, Md., ideals of the highest order. Principal of the Boy's High School from 1894 to 1916, the Alumni of that institution have erected a granite pedestal, on which is placed a bust of their beloved teacher. A bronze plaque carries this inscription: "Amon Burgee, Scholar, Teacher, Friend: Born April 16, 1865; Died August 6, 1945. He moulded the thought and character of his boys. Erected in loving memory by the Boys' High School Alumni Association, 1947."

OUR OLDEST ALUMNA

Mrs. Clara Smith Billingslea, '73, closed her eyes and entered eternal rest June 18, 1947. To us not just a heartache for another passing friend. The significant thing was that she was our oldest Alumna, having graduated in 1873. She entered W. M. C. in the days of hoop skirts, coal oil lamps, wood fires and no lavatories. A daughter of John Smith, one of our founders, she always retained a keen interest in her Alma Mater and it was just before she left us that your writer had a note from her expressing her devotion to W. M. C.

ALUMNI WEEK END

'S'matter? You did not come this year—was the time wrong? the price wrong? or the idea? Those interested for next year—what about a date in early August? The first week end after conferences leave is suggested. If you think this plan better than June, drop me a note when sending your dues. Thanks.

TIME TO TAKE INVENTORY

Once each year every business house "takes stock". The sale counter carries those slow moving items that reflect the poor judgment of the buyer. Mr. Alumnus, look at yourself in the glass and, from the standpoint of your Alma Mater's interest, decide whether you go back "in stock" or should you go on the "sale counter"? We need live wire membership.

HAWKINS HONORED

Earle T. Hawkins, '23, who has been one of the bulwarks in our State Board of Education and who was elected Vice President of the National Education Association in July, has just been made President of Towson State Teachers College, to take effect September 1, 1947. Congratulations, Earle.

THE HOLLOWAY'S FAREWELL

Alumni Day, Saturday, May 24th, was full. 'Twas reunion day and no class aroused more enthusiasm than the nine graduates of '97, celebrating their Golden Anniversary. Every living graduate of the class had made reservations; sudden illness kept one away.

The Garden Party, the Annual Meeting, the general "Western Marylanditis" was heart warming to behold. The Banquet was good and the speeches short. Toastmaster J. Francis Reese, '13, threw verbal barbs right and left at our Guest of Honor—Dr. Holloway, '18—attending his twelfth and final Alumni Banquet. The Holloway repartee was at its best. The keynote was one of happiness in the realization that he was going on to bigger things—still interested in his Alma Mater. The program ended with a presentation from the Association—a traveling bag—the singing of Alma Mater, and a "reception" to Dr. and Mrs. "Fred".

MORE ABOUT ALUMNI WEEK END

While the attendance was not as large as last year, there was an even greater enjoyment; all were housed in Blanche Ward Hall, the dance was in the same building, so the fact that there was a storm did not matter. Twenty-five classes were represented, and at least one class has made reservations for another reunion next year. The suggestion that the date be changed to near mid-August might be a good idea—maybe come Friday night-a-swim-and other things not yet tried.

ENROLLMENT FOR '47-'48

The coming school year promises to have the largest enrollment in the history of the college. The total will be nearly 900.

ALUMNI MEETINGS

The New York and Metropolitan Area Alumni held another delightful fraternization on Friday, February 28, 1947, at the Parkside Hotel, New York. The number of classes represented and the "spirit" promise much for the brighter days that lie ahead. A. S. Crockett and George Waesche, class 1891, were especially honored. Charles A. Stewart was the guiding star. Thanks, Charlie.

Washington Alumni gathered at the Hot Shoppe, 3110 Lee Highway, Arlington, Va., for their '47 reunion. Some wizard told them where to meet. Chairman-Toastmaster W. C. Rein, '31, and his committee did a splendid job. Captain E. A. Cobey, U.S.N., '01, who retired about June 1, was the guest of honor. Twenty-one classes were represented. President Warner of the Alumni Association was present and addressed the meeting. The key speech was by Captain Cobey, who was presented with a memorial. He has moved to California.

Garrett-Alleghany Club. May 16th was "get together day" for Garrett-Alleghany County Alumni and friends of the College. A delightful dinner, presided over by Club President Leo Delaney, was held at the All-Ghan Shrine Club, Cumberland. Music—chatter—greetings were the order of the evening. From the College were John Bayley Jones, '41, Director of Public Relations; Dr. G. Franklin Stover, Dean of the Department of Education, who made the address of the evening and T. K. Harrison, '01, Executive Secretary. At the business session, the following officers were elected: President, Leo Delaney; Vice-President, Catherine Speicher; Secretary, Jane Gilchrist; Treasurer, Lester J. Knepp. Plans are under way for an October picnic meeting.

Philadelphia Meeting. Saturday, April 26th, "Kugler's" was the scene of another record alumni gathering. COLLEGE SONGS AND YELLS

ALMA MATER

College ties can ne'er be broken,
Formed at W. M. C.
Far surpassing wealth unspoken,
Ever may they be.

Chorus

Western Maryland! Hail, all Hail!
Echo softly from each heart.
We'll be ever loyal to thee
'Til we from life shall part.

When our college days are over,
Round our hearts shall cling
Memories of our Alma Mater,
Every day shall bring.

But our life is swiftly passing,
Soon its course is run,
Whate'er our lot we'll ever cherish
Friendships here begun.

DEAR WESTERN MARYLAND

Dear Western Maryland, fearless and bold,
We're here to cheer to victory the Green and the Gold.
And we will always be loyal to thee,
We'll love thee ever, dear old W. M. C.

Cheer Western Maryland, cheer evermore,
We're here to see the Green and Gold score and score.
And we will always be loyal to thee,
We'll cheer to victory dear old W. M. C.

"WIN WESTERN MARYLAND"

Win! Western Maryland, roll up the score;
We're here to win again, just as we have before;
And we will march on to victory—
Never give in;
We will fight for dear Western Maryland,
To win! win! win!
