Published Monthly during the School Year from October
to May, inclusive, and July-August, by the College

Entered as second class matter, May 19, 1921, at the Postoffice at Westminster, Md., under the act of August 24, 1912. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, act of October 3, 1917.

Record Enrollment At W.M.C.

Western Maryland College opened its eighty-first year with the largest enrollment in its history as 273 freshmen began their college careers to bring the total registration up to 856. Of this student body 464 are male and 392 female. There are 282 veteran men and five veteran women. Other shores than our own are represented by students from China, Greece, Holland, Poland, Sweden, Puerto Rico, and Hawaii.

Seven new faculty members have been added to care for the increased classes and all the facilities of the college are being used to the limit of our resources.

Register Now For Fall of '48

Because the college has had to refuse admission to hundreds of applicants, President Ensor is anxious to have our alumni and friends submit the names of prospective students of unusual ability for immediate consideration. The difficulty of meeting the heavy demand during these years makes it necessary for the college to have all applications early so as to render proper and selective service to our constituency.

Fifth President Takes Office

The formal inauguration of Dr. Lowell Skinner Ensor as fifth President of Western Maryland College will take place in Alumni Hall on Saturday, November 8 at 10:30 A. M. Reserved seats may be had for these exercises by application before November 1.

Preceding the ceremony of induction there will be an academic procession. Included in this group will be representatives from other educational institutions throughout the nation and prominent officials from Department of Education in the State of Maryland. Several organizations interested in the College will be represented. The board of trustees and faculty of the College will march in a body.

The special speaker for the occasion will be Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, formerly president of DePaw University. Bishop James Henry Straughn, president of the Board of Trustees, will be in charge of the induction into office, after which Dr. Ensor will deliver his inaugural address. Bishop Charles Wesley Flint, resident Bishop of the Washington area, Methodist Church will lead in the invocation and pronounce the benediction.

Immediately following the exercise President and Mrs. Ensor will hold a public reception in McDaniel Lounge to which all those attending are invited.

At one o'clock luncheon will be served in the College dining hall for the invited guests who were in the procession. Others may make reservations to attend the luncheon at $1.50 per plate by writing Dean S. B. Schofield. These reservations will be received, up to the capacity of the dining room, until Saturday, November 1, and must be accompanied by a check.

The Living Endowment Fund

Your Alumni Association has voted to make this an annual Project. If you gave last year we are counting on you again this year. If not, why not begin now? Help your class to be represented.

Our enrollment has gone up to 850 and our expenses have increased proportionately—more chairs, desks, lights, maps and other classroom equipment—more heat, light, water,—more faculty members and staff—and all in a period of inflation.

But no more return from fixed endowment than last year.

Yes, tuition, room and board have increased but the complete cost of a college education is never borne by the students—yours was not either. Somebody helped you through Endowment Funds—now you can help others through The Living Endowment Fund—you know the value of an education. Some people of another generation underwrote higher education for you.

You can underwrite it for this generation and posterity.

This gives each alumnus a part, no matter how large or small, in the ongoing program of higher education for a better world through a liberal arts college—WESTERN MARYLAND COLLEGE.

How Does Living Endowment Work?

By putting W.M.C. in your annual budget of giving.

By creating a source of income to W.M.C. from its investment in you.

By 3000 living Alumni giving an average of $10.00 to create a $30,000 return on a $1,000,000 endowment.

HELP SWELL THE FUND FROM YOUR CLASS!

Dean Bertholf Goes To College of the Pacific

Dr. Lloyd M. Bertholf, dean of the faculty and professor of biology at Western Maryland College, has been appointed Dean of the College of the Pacific, at Stockton, California. He will assume the new position February 1, 1948, and will continue in his present capacity at the College until that time.

Dean Bertholf came to Western Maryland in 1924 from the University of North Carolina, Women's College, Greensboro, where he had been teaching biology. In 1925 he received his Ph.D. degree in Physiology at Johns Hopkins and continued as head of the Biology Department. In 1933 he became dean of freshmen and in 1939 dean of the faculty.

A native of Kansas, Dr. Bertholf received his early education at Friends University, Wichita, and Southwestern College, Winfield. In 1930-31 he was a National Research Fellow, studying in Germany.

The College of the Pacific is a senior college, giving one additional year of graduate study, and is the oldest college in California. It is fully accredited and is a Methodist church-related institution. The campus was moved to the present site in the Sacramento Valley 24 years ago.

Dr. Bertholf's scientific career includes the publication of several research papers on honeybees and other insects, and membership in many organizations. He spent fifteen summers with the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture on honeybee research. His varied interest is indicated by his membership in the Marine Biological Laboratory at Wood's Hole, Massachusetts. He is a life member of the National Education Association, Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, American Society of Zoologists, American Association of Economics Entomologists, member of Sigma Xi, Phi Beta Kappa, Gamma Alpha, Pi Gamma Mu.

He will leave his position on the Commission on Research and Education of the Board of Natural Resources in Maryland, but will continue as national president of Tri-Beta, a national honorary biological fraternity with chapters at Western Maryland and the College of the Pacific. He has been twice president of the Maryland Association of Biology Teachers.

As an active churchman, Dean Bertholf is a lay member of the Methodist General Conference to be held in 1948, president of the Board of Education of the Baltimore Conference, and Superintendent of the Church School of the Westminster Methodist Church. He was chosen to write the program materials for Laymen's Day, 1948, by the General Board of Lay Activities in Chicago.

Martha Washburn of Spirey, Kansas, became Mrs. Bertholf in 1921, and they have two children, Max and Mabelyn.

President Ensor has announced the appointment of Dr. G. Franklin Stover as the new Dean of Faculty to succeed Dr. Bertholf. Dr. Stover has been Dean of Education succeeding Dean Isanogle, who retired in 1946. The position of Dean of Education has been abolished, but Dean Stover will continue as head of that department and Professor of Education. He came to Western Maryland College from the State Department of Education in Harrisburg, Pa.

The Living Endowment Fund

for the year ending August 31, 1947

We are giving herewith a report listing the names of contributors to the Living Endowment Fund, whose total gifts amounted to $2338.50. A careful check has been made from our files in the hope of avoiding any mistakes. However, if there are omissions, please advise us promptly, so that we can correct our records.

Your support has been encouraging, and it is hoped that the fund will continue to have the enthusiastic support of Alumni and friends.

New Year Greetings

Published Monthly by Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md., during the school year from October to May, inclusive, and July-August. Entered as second class matter, May 19, 1921, at the Postoffice at Westminster, Md., under the act of August 24, 1912. Retrospect and Prospect

As we enter the year 1948 Western Maryland College celebrates the eightieth anniversary of the granting of its charter, under the auspices of the former Methodist Protestant Church. During the intervening years the college has witnessed a steady growth and has developed many worthy traditions which it is well to recall at this season of inventories.

Western Maryland was the first college south of the Mason-Dixon Line to open its doors to both young men and young women. It has continued to be coeducational in its growth from a student body of seven to 865 and has maintained a fairly even balance between males and females. This policy has made for a wholesome attitude on the part of students in the formative years of their lives.

By keeping a limited enrollment the college has been able to be selective as to the type of students and has maintained a student-faculty ratio of twelve to one. This has made possible a close relationship between instructor and pupil, stimulating character growth, an important end in education.

Faculty members have been chosen on the basis of character, scholarship, ability to teach, and willingness to counsel with students. Each of these qualities is essential in the close association necessary to achieve the objectives of a college with the ideals of Western Maryland. This policy has paid rich dividends in terms of the influence its graduates have had on the lives of others who come under their guidance.

Keeping within the bounds of the Liberal Arts Tradition the college has emphasized the importance of a well-rounded education and has expanded its curriculum to meet the changing conditions of each generation. It has kept pace with the pre-professional schools throughout the country and has studiously avoided the temptation to move into mere vocational training.

Western Maryland has weathered the extremes of the Victorian Nineties, the Chaotic Twenties, the Depression Thirties, and two World Wars. It has grown intensively and extensively because of these experiences. From Old Main to twenty buildings, from farm land to campus beautiful, College Hill stands proudly as a monument to the efforts of many loyal alumni and friends and serves as a pedestal from which to view new horizons in the field of education and character training, an evidence of the power of faith in man and his Creator.

In this day of highly secular and materialistic interpretation of life, Western Maryland is proud of its Church-relatedness which has permeated its philosophy of education with a Christian atmosphere. It maintains a tradition of religious freedom and tolerance, makes no religious tests of those whom it admits, but is constantly seeking to produce men and women of high integrity, with qualities of leadership, and conscious of personal values and social responsibilities.

It is significant that in this eighty-year period only four presidents have served the institution and the fifth has just begun his administration. Traditions and policies have been wisely developed under these past leaders, each with a unique contribution, and a worthy successor is making his debut with great promise.

The future is bright as plans are laid for a Greater Western Maryland College, not in terms of expanded enrollment, but in terms of public service through character building, higher scholarship, campus beautification, and the strengthening of ties between alumni and Alma Mater.

THE INAUGURATION OF
LOWELL SKINNER ENSOR
AS
FIFTH PRESIDENT

WESTMINSTER, MARYLAND
SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1947

Published Monthly by Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md., during the school year from October to May, inclusive, and July-August. Entered as second class matter, May 19, 1921, at the Postoffice at Westminster, Md., under the act of August 24, 1912. LOWELL SKINNER ENSOR
FIFTH PRESIDENT

PRESIDENT ENSOR

BISHOP STRAUGHN

INVOCATION

BISHOP CHARLES WESLEY FLINT

Reverently we bow before Thee, invisible King over every nation, supreme President of every college, Lord and Master of us all.

We thank thee for this institution, its campus and buildings, its traditions and ideals and the treasures of knowledge and wisdom accumulated by generation upon generation;

for trustworthy trustees, for loyal Alumni, for trained teachers whose life blood has dyed the fabric of her history, for faithful administrators who have woven according to the pattern set before them from above.

Even more do we thank Thee for those fundamentals which are the very warp and woof of this college:

for the perspective which accounts wisdom as more precious than rubies indeed a tree of life to them that lay hold thereon;

for the realization that the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom and to depart from evil is true understanding;

for the recognition that more important than learning truths is to know the Truth more important than finding facts and forces is discerning their significance for time and eternity;

for the conviction that spending self in sacrificial service is life's crowning achievement,

*On this auspicious occasion reorient us by these fundamentals;
"Let fall on every College wall, The shadow of Thy Cross."*

We are grateful for the talents entrusted to Thy servant who today is invested with the insignia of his high office; and for his faithfulness in the Stewardship thereof.

For this great new task, graciously and generously endow him with the physical strength, the intellectual acumen, the administrative genius and the spiritual power which will enable him to elicit cooperation both within the academic organization and in its public relations;

to coordinate the manifold activities of the College and subordinate all to the purpose of its high calling;

*to stimulate all colleagues to highest effectiveness;
to lead young men and women to seek and to find not only the pearls of human wisdom, but to seek and to find the pearl of great price, Thyself as Companion and Co-worker*

Under President Ensor's leadership may Western Maryland continue to be God-centered.

*"And let those learn, who here shall meet
True wisdom is with reverence crowned,
And science walks with humble feet
To seek the God that faith hath found."*

In the name of Christ,

Amen.

HAIL, MR. PRESIDENT

BISHOP EDWIN HOLT HUGHES

LYMAN BEECHER once went unannounced to preach at a church. The weather being inclement, his audience consisted of just one person. Changing his message to fit the occasion Lyman Beecher gave out his text: "Thou art the man." His congregation never forgot that sermon!

If I understand my present duty, I am to speak to an audience of one, lifting Lyman Beecher's text from its painful surroundings and transferring it to the hope of this Inauguration. These people, then, are here merely by suffrance,—permitted to overhear a private conversation without being accused of eavesdropping. The current of the stream of talk flows to one man; only the circling eddies drift toward the listening friends.

The very difficulty of your work makes it attractive. Your task is not to be accomplished by spectacular graces, nor by jaunty efforts. It is too long to be done briefly, too big to be done meagerly. You can give it every ounce of your strength, every drop of your blood, and every day of your life, and still feel that your service is a thing of ages rather than of hours. American education is still young. What you are to do here may last thousands of years. In the evening times, when you are weary, feed your hope on the long vision. Hear the marching of eager feet as they move hither with the swing of youth and in season pass out into the world touched into culture and character and service. Unless you can behold this, you will sometimes doubt whether your work is worth while. If you can hear that far-away music, the future will touch the present into a grateful sense of achievement. It may seem little to add $100,000 to endowment; but if that fund is to work for hundreds of years, who can compute its worth? It may seem little to add fifty students to your roster; but, if these are to do effective work for half a century and to start yet others, and these others again, then earth has no recorders that can write a history so meaningful.

I place myself back yonder, more than forty years ago, and ask,—“What would you have someone say to yourself? Or what converse would you have with your own soul, if you stood again at the door of a collegiate presidency?" This method need not limit me to the knowledge gained from five years; it may claim the larger fund gathered since that time,—so that the President may be supplemented by the Teacher, the Traveler, the Trustee, and by other aspects of life that entitle one to give modest advices. I was at least forty years of age when you were born! No one would suspect this unless it were duly advertised! If, then, you expect to know more forty years hence than you know now, there is a quite obvious conclusion that you are entitled to draw! Since I have watched with eager interest the administrations of many Presidents for many years, I may draw on the composite wisdom which they have made ready for this hour.

This charge, like Calvinism and New York, has "Five Points" !!!

First of all, do not be of a fearful heart. As work develops, we develop. We did not see where two sermons a week would come from, but such as there were they came! You stand on the border of this ocean. You wonder about your power as a navigator! My prophecy is that you will learn how to handle the sails, or if you prefer, manage the engine. There is a compass at hand; and charts are available; and courses of travel are fairly fixed. Ardent alumni said to me long since, "Get this college out of the ruts." But I found a machine that seemed almost self-running. The first three weeks I did not have much to do. So I spent the time on my Inauguration Address! The educational mechanism continued to function. Once I was asked by my anxious help-meet, "What have you been doing all day?" I sincerely replied, "I have spent the time thanking God for those ruts." The answer was justified. This College has not been put together carelessly. It could get on without you for still a season! You can trust it, even though for a time you may not wholly trust yourself! Men began to get it ready long before you discovered America! When you and I are together in the comradeship of dust, and of glory, this dear School will continue its larger life. The grooves are here, and you can be secure about them. You may occasionally make a new groove. Be careful in so doing not to cut into the nerves of a planet! I felt restful in discovering that the work of my predecessors had been handed over to me as a free gift. When the heavy loads approached nine of us lifted them. Then there was the form of the Tenth! God was with us all,—the Comrade of the decades, the unchanging Helper,—the Same yesterday, forever,—and Today! St. Paul was cheered when once he heard a voice saying, "I am with thee: and I have much people in this city." So speaks the Lord to you. He is here! And He has appointed scores of His nearer representatives and thousands of His distant commissioners to be partners with Himself and yourself in this service.

My second counsel is, That you pay heed to the balance of the Ledger. You will sometimes receive counsel to the contrary. Once a College President said to me that deficits were signs of expansion and healthy growth. Later I discovered that according to that principle he himself was positively robust! Some will tell you that you cannot afford not to have another Recitation Hall; another Auditorium; another Gymnasium exclusively for women; a million dollar social center; and a new Stadium! Had I followed like suggestions, another college would now be in the Educational cemetery! An inappropriate epitaph would have been, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." Debts that stand for income-bringing assets are one thing; debts that represent frozen assets are no more available than their great cousin, the North Pole! The General Education Board has been rightly conservative about assisting an institution that lives beyond its means, even as bankers are conservative about loaning to a man of like character. The Carnegie institutions have been cautious in their aid for Colleges that endangered sacred endowments by "unsacred" deficits. A college is no place for frenzied finance. Philanthropy will insist on seeing your ledgers. Excessive "outgoes" make recessive incomes. Easily assumed debts are easily rejected credentials. When an institution casts herself down from the pinnacle of the financial temple in the presumption that God will bear her up, it often takes a lengthy period for the arrival of the fiscal angels! This College will observe under your administration the principle that arithmetical progression saves from geometrical retrogression! Count that man an enemy, and an agent of the commercial Devil, who advises you to run Western Maryland College into debt!

The third counsel is,—That in providing for a balanced ledger, you provide also for a balanced institution. We must all wonder what genius chose first as the name of the ampler college the word "University." What man had insight enough to note that such a school had universal life for its subject and object? All men who have specialties are prone to judge a College by their own razor edges. But this College is more than a training school for ministers; or a counting room for business men; or an office for social workers; or a normal college for teachers; or a preparatory forum for statesmanship. Its appeal is from all life that it may go back to all life. It is not a glorification of one point of view. A lop-sided college is no more attractive than a lop-sided man. A law of proportion is the test of all arts. Caricature is, therefore, based upon misproportion. Enlarge the eye one-third; extend the nose one-half inch; bend back the chin a fractional degree; and you destroy beauty. A college like this is not built as the headquarters for one reform, however good; nor is it fashioned for the worship of one minor deity. It is built for all of God to all of man; and its glory is its universal appeal.

It is not easy to keep this balance. There remains an interesting question as to what the mission of the College may be. Is it only for the man with ten talents? Is it to have no place for the man with two talents? Does an institution which lifts sixty percent men to the eighty percent grade do something for life, even as it does when it takes eighty-five per cent persons and lifts them to the ninety and nine rank? Granting that it has no room for the one-talent man who specializes in a napkin as a sepulchre for his slight power, is it true that it has no place for the "moderates" if they be found faithful? Ere you have been here many months, you will discover that this institution has sent out many graduates who were not geniuses! Several of these are in your Board of Trustees! Some of them are Phi Beta Kappas,—post mortem! It will often be interesting when you hear them discussing standards that they themselves never met! It may even be that a study of the records of your faculty members would disclose that they had to secure long postgraduate study ere they knew,—not only something of everything, but everything of something! While we are to continue to prepare specialists, we shall likewise continue to prepare all kinds of specialists. Our graduates shall still go toward markets, and pulpits, and courts, and factories, and school rooms; toward all employments whose credential is that universal life needs them. You, as the chief representative and executive, will endeavor to keep this balance of life to the end that you may be the personal symbol of this symmetrical endeavor.

IV

My fourth counsel is,—That you are to continue here the primacy of the student. Our Trustees, our Teachers, our Buildings, our Endowments are all for him. The President is for him! Years ago there was in some quarters a false emphasis upon research. We were raising up a group of teachers whose ambition related to their subject rather than to their object. They wanted to use the College as a base of supplies rather than as a base of operations. The student was secondary; the theme primary. Some men wished to teach little so that they could spend their time in so-called research. Without doubt we often went to the other extreme. The poverty of our treasury compelled us to ask men to do too much teaching. But even so these over-worked men dried up no more surely than did those who lost the human inspiration for their toil. The midday of the professional careers found the latter type degenerating into pitiful abstractionists. It requires a living student to make a living Professor.

This College has always had a wonderful student-body. Whatever be the explanation,—the religious homes from which they come; the cohesiveness of the constituency; or the initial enrollment of strong young men,—it still remains true that the sight of the student body here makes a persuasive call to this Presidency. These students are our glory, our building, our field, our joy, our crown, our hope, our love. Our work has slight meaning apart from them. Once I preached a Baccalaureate on the text: "For now we live, if ye stand fast in the Lord." That text still abides as our best motto. We, as Presidents, and Professors, and Trustees, really live as they stand fast in the Lord. Our titles and property rights are in them. Twenty-five years from now you will be meeting your boys and girls all over this continent. If you can feel that your investments in them have not been squandered in the world's swine-fields, you will know the fullest recompense of a President's life. If you begin with the doctrine of their primacy in your motive, they will have the primacy in your later joy.

My final counsel to you relates to the purpose of this institution. From the beginning this College has been related to a Church that has been proud of its puritan character. The President who brings hither an irreligious and undevout teacher is a betrayer of a sacred trust; and the Professor who cannot conscientiously yield himself to the religious mission of this College has no ethical right on this campus. He ought to exercise his academic liberty by going elsewhere! The loyalty to this ideal has never been narrowly held; but it is the gladly confessed ideal. To that ideal, and to the faith that girds it, you once gave yourself by great vows at a holy altar. You do not now remove yourself from that shrine. The pillar of cloud and the pillar of fire guide you in this new field of your purpose. You have never had such a platform for its proclamation, such a field for its application, such a scope for its continuation. In his tribute to his wonderful father Arnold says—

“Thus it was given to thee
Many to bring with thyself.”

Having witnessed the good confession you are to win the junior confessors of an eternal faith. In a day of secularism and materialism, you are to sound here the note of a high creed. Above these buildings you are to keep floating the banner of Christ. Here you are to maintain in holy visibility that Cross where men gather for their inspirations of love and sacrifice. Unless Christ is to be thus glorified by you, your administration is already doomed to failure. Amid the many teachers that are here, and those that you are to bring here, He is to be Chief and Lord. You and they are often to go to Him in the heat of the day and in the cool of the evening, to say reverently, “We know that thou art a teacher come from God.”

The religious motive goes more widely than this. Western Maryland College was not founded in 1868; it was founded more than 1900 years ago. If native quarries and forests furnished its outer materials when the College was projected to the tunes of hymns and the breathings of prayer, its spiritual materials were imported from Galilee. Its real builder was a Carpenter from Nazareth. He is still at work. He has called many apprentices, like unto Himself. Our great benefactors have all been Christian souls. Here they wrought with Him,—a company of partner-builders. Into their fellowship, and into His, you come today. In that nearer presence I end this counsel to you,—adding from one poor heart a benediction to which many thousands will repeat their fervent Amens,—

Lowell Ensor, go, and God be your Comrade!

CHARGE TO THE NEW PRESIDENT

BISHOP JAMES HENRY STRAUGHN

LOWELL SKINNER ENSOR, by the unanimous vote of the Trustees, you have been elected President of Western Maryland College. And, by reason of the fact that I happen to be the president of the Board of Trustees, I am charged with the responsibility of charging you. The election in itself carries with it very definite responsibilities and duties, and the unanimity of that election carries with it additional compliment and confidence.

Broadly speaking, it is your business to "run" the institution but in all probability it may "run" you. Some better term could be used to indicate your office but none would be better understood. Perhaps it sounds better to say that you are to be the head of the institution and, speaking plainly, that is exactly what is expected of you. At no time may you be expected to abdicate that authority. Presidents of Western Maryland have always been given wide latitude in the exercise of administration. Your trustees and your constituency are prepared to accept leadership and they will look to you for a continuance of that trust. There are many things I might say unto you but you cannot bear them now. Time will do its own revealing and you will know your task the better as you face the problems which come to you day by day. There is no need to be afraid of what may lie ahead. The College is well founded. It has had a great history and it has a host of men and women who love it.

In line, therefor, of your administration let me note somewhat briefly a few particulars. In general it is matter of administration and promotion—a general oversight of all that relates to the institution. In all probability more will be expected of you than any person could do. But you are to know the institution and all that relates to it. But more specifically:

First of all there is a student body, real boys and girls, men and women. They are not digits, they are not things. They are lively, throbbing human beings and the first interest of all concerned is that of their well being; that they shall get and be given what they came to Western Maryland for. Buildings, equipment, faculty, staff—all are subordinated to their needs. It is not that these students will get what the College may try to give or be appreciative of the effort, they may be students or they may not. After four years they may go out just as they came in, no better, nor worse, but in no sense can the College be relieved of its responsibility to give every one who comes within its walls the fullest opportunity at life and the unfolding of personality.

Then there is the Faculty, these other vital personalities connected with the College. And here is no mean obligation. They too are real persons and their interests must at all times be respected and cared for. As to compensation, a president always sees to it that financial needs are met and the money always is at hand. They are a select group; they are the president's own choices; they are the ones in cooperation with you who must carry the burden of the school. No curriculum, however well wrought out, rises higher than the abilities and capacities of its teachers. The president is the friend of them all. He knows them and he trusts them. And may I add, somewhat facetiously, while he knows his men the president is supposed to know more than they know. Or how else can he have converse with them! How may he otherwise judge of the fitness of a biologist if he himself is not one, or a philosopher, or a chemist, a physicist, or—a multitude of such! What a world the president lives in! Then there is the physical equipment. A president surely is not making the grade unless every once in a while some new impressive building finds place on the campus. The library must always be bursting at its seams. The laboratories cannot conceivably be considered adequate unless for radar and the humbled atom there is found full provision. To be sure all of this requires money but a real president has no difficulty in this direction. He has access—he knows a person—he has the Midas touch. The Endowment? One of course would not pass it by. A million a year added to the invested funds may be considered successful financial administration and would be most pleasing to the Trustees. And then in your spare time you must be on call for lectures, addresses, sermons and picnics. You will, of course, because of your exalted position be prepared without necessity for adequate preparation to inform medical societies, historical bodies, labor unions and chambers of commerce, to give sage advice at teachers' institutes and summer assemblies, to speak profoundly to the brethren on abstract theological questions. Or you may have one address for all these affairs, simply changing the phrasing of your topic or your text, as one friend years ago loved to when radium was new in the land. Yes, a college president is really a very versatile person.

And now, while I am outlining the duties of a president, may I add three other relationships which a president enjoys. There is your Board of Trustees—thirty-five or six of them, with two exceptions all men. But they are good men and true, and so are the women. I speak no truer word than when I say they are your friends, every last one of them and all of them are 'pulling' for you, they want you to have a great administration. Nor is this all selfishness. They are concerned for the College, they want this College to be as fine an undergraduate institution as exists in the land; they have pride in it. But in all candor, their feelings are never wounded when the president at the annual meeting is able to state "we have had a successful year—the enrollment is the largest in our history and we have ended the year with a substantial balance in the treasury". Then there are the parents. Yes, the parents. One must not forget them. No, one cannot forget them. These boys and girls who have broken home ties are still their children. All the love of which they are capable follow their children here, and they are here because these parents have confidence in the school, because they believe in the people who are responsible for the school, and because they trust those who operate the school. It is not just an educational trust; it is that but it also is an ethical and religious confidence. Of course some of them will surprise you by expecting you to do for their children what they themselves were unable to do, and will greet their homecoming with some eagerness to see what they have been educated out of and into. And what may I add more? Oh, yes, the alumni, the ALUMNI. There are many of them, thousands of them. Most of them love the College and some do not. But for all promotional activities this is the group—you cannot get along without them, and sometimes with them. If you are looking to the future, on every horizon keep the alumni in sight. Some of them will prosper as the green bay tree, and that is good—perhaps for the College;

some of them certainly will be prominent and influential, and you will need them. Some of them will be your advocates—the College simply cannot get along without them. But for many of the old grads there is one credential of love, you must every year produce a winning football team. They will not be greatly concerned where the material for this team comes from, or how they rate in the class room. 'We want a touchdown' is the battle cry. And so long as you can win—how sweet and lovely the world!

But now may I add in a much more serious tone. It is the matter of the accrediting agencies and Western Maryland's A 1 rating. That simply means we do have here on the hill an institution of high grade, taking its stand by the best colleges in the land. These standards inhere in the Faculty and in scholarship of the student body. These must at all costs be maintained. Western Maryland has long enjoyed the confidence and support of the state of Maryland. The state has been good to us but let it also be said that Western Maryland has not failed the State. We have given back more than we have ever received, and for witness one has only to visit the High Schools of the twenty-three counties and of the city of Baltimore. We are proud of our products. And then, Sir, may I remind you that Western Maryland College is a child of the Church. It has never been anything else. While the Board of Trustees is a self-perpetuating body, from the very beginning the College has been sponsored and nurtured by the Church. Its four presidents were ministers of the Methodist Protestant Church and one third of its Trustees were required to be ministers of the same denomination. And now with Methodist union, you Sir, a minister of The Methodist Church are in this succession. The College in its administration has never been sectarian; no religious test is exacted of its teachers, but the institution, founded out of religious conviction, has never deviated from the conception that the religious life must accompany the educational life. While there has been no definite religious control over the students we have sought by atmosphere, by example, and, by religious services to hold our people to love of the good life in Christ. And finally, I come to say that in the president of the institution we look for the incarnation of the ideals and principles for which Western Maryland stands. You, Sir, are the College and we feel we have a right to say that in you is Western Maryland.

To this end, on behalf of your Board I give you the right hand of greeting and of promise. God bless you in your new task.

INAUGURAL ADDRESS

PRESIDENT LOWELL SKINNER ENSOR

DURING the past four months I have been becoming progressively aware of the many and varied responsibilities that inevitably fall to the lot of a college president. It has been a period of introduction, of getting acquainted, both with people and procedures. Like a young bird ready to leave its nest, I have been feeling my wings even to the point of a trial flight or so. But now, I suppose, the inauguration signifies that this initial period draws to a close, and it is time to fly out in my own strength for better or for worse.

The words we have listened to this morning from both Bishop Hughes and Bishop Straughn have been tremendously helpful on the one hand but terribly sobering on the other. They have been helpful not so much in strengthening the wings (none other than myself can do that), but helpful in giving courage and fortitude to the heart as the fledgling takes off. They also have been sobering, however, in creating an awareness of the difficulties of flight in the rarified atmosphere of collegiate education amid the grim realities of the fifth decade of the 20th century. When one listens to such a challenging charge from the President of his Board of Trustees who has known the college intimately across the years, and hears the ripened wisdom of a man who has been not only a university president, but twice retired and active a third time in the highest office his church can bestow, he wonders "What hath God wrought" that He should lay His hand upon this person for the high privilege and responsibility of leading this college out into the great opportunities and difficult problems that the next few years will afford. I must admit that as I stand poised on the edge of the nest I tremble, not with a coward's fear I trust, but with a mingled sense of human inadequacy and thrilling anticipation.

In coming out of the pastorate my mind naturally turns to the scripture as I face this task. The 11th chapter of the Epistle to the Hebrews contains the honor roll of the faithful saints of Israel. The chapter concludes with this statement: "apart from us they should not be made perfect." And then the 12th chapter continues: "Seeing we are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us run with patience the race that is set before us." In those words we find a setting that can well be adapted to our present situation.

We are compassed about with a great host of witnesses who have studied in these classrooms, who have taught from these rostrums, and who have administered from these desks. Men and women whose lives are bound up in this institution to such an extent that we cannot think of Western Maryland apart from them. They belong to its life. They have bequeathed to us its spirit. The imprints of their feet as they walked over this hill were not simply footprints on the sands of time, obliterated by the passing years but prints cast in bronze that will endure the ages in their influence on succeeding generations of students passing through these halls. Many of you in your mind's eye call up faces and names that you knew intimately, and not the least of these witnesses are my four predecessors in the office of president. J. T. Ward, Thomas Hamilton Lewis, and Albert Norman Ward are witnessing this event today from the battlements of heaven, while Fred Garrigus Holloway is detained in the less heavenly spot of New Jersey.

It is not an easy matter to find one word to describe the principal contribution of each of these men. All were broad in their approach both from the standpoint of the physical expansion of the college and the educational enrichment of its curriculum. Under each the college literally grew in wisdom and in stature and in favor with God and man. J. T. Ward was the courageous pioneer; Thomas Hamilton Lewis, the matchless educator; Albert Norman Ward, the dynamic builder; and Fred G. Holloway wove all these elements together as the distinctive organizer.

It is before the contributions of these witnesses that we must stand in reverence on this occasion, and it is against the background of their accomplishment that we must plan for the future because "apart from us they should not be made perfect." That which J. T. Ward pioneered has not been completed. The educational achievements of which Thomas Hamilton Lewis dreamed have not been attained. The great institution into which Albert Norman Ward built his life is still to be realized.

The last word Fred Holloway said to me as he left the campus was "carry on." Apart from us, you see, they should not be made perfect. And so "let us run with patience the race that is set before us."

Only a fool would be willing to prophesy today with any degree of certainty what does lie before us, and it would hardly be appropriate for a new president to qualify willingly under that title so early in his administration. It may come soon enough. Therefore, I am not predicting. But whatever our modern world holds for us in the immediate or more distant future, I am convinced it has a place, a unique place, for Western Maryland College to run the race alongside its sister institutions in the arena of higher education. It will hold that place, however, only insofar as it meets certain specifications for which it has been distinctive in the past, and which must continue to characterize it even to a greater extent in the future.

I would mention briefly some of those specifications—the rules of the race, if you please, that Western Maryland must follow. First, continued attention must be given our physical equipment. Mark Hopkins' college consisted not only of the professor and the student, but they were sitting on either end of a log. We dare not overlook the log, nor the importance of keeping it in good condition and adequate for the tasks to which we are committed. The original selection of this particular site for a college campus bears testimony to the practical wisdom of our founders. Situated on this eminence amid the rolling beauty of Carroll's hills, adjacent to a thriving small city, within easy reach of the nation's capital and a large industrial metropolis, its location and natural beauty are difficult to surpass. Through the years buildings have been erected on this hill. Some are of modern construction and adequate facility and will continue to serve us well for many years to come. Some, stirring tender emotions and warm memories in the hearts and minds of our older alumni, have outlived and outworn an adequate usefulness and must be replaced though they will be sorely missed in tradition. Some funds are in hand for these buildings, but when the funds were raised, it was without knowledge of the present increased cost of building construction, so that our present funds must be supplemented by generous giving if we are to have the physical equipment necessary to meet the demands that the immediate future will make upon us. I call attention to this not for the purpose of fund-raising propaganda (although a generous benefactor is always welcome), but to point a direction that we must follow if we would run the race that is set before us. The log must be adequate. Those original planners of this campus should not be made perfect apart from our attention at this point.

A second specification has to do with our fundamental purpose. That purpose, of course, is education. In the light of the multitude of sometimes conflicting and contradictory disciplines, however, that live under the banner of education, the word itself needs further definition as it relates to the fundamental purpose of this college. Probably no two of us could agree upon an identical definition, and certainly mine will leave a lot unsaid. But after reducing it to its simplest form, I would suggest that the purpose of this liberal arts college is to lead young men and young women to the point where they can live effectively and intelligently in this modern world. Now, I suppose, in order to do the job in good academic fashion, each one of those words should be defined. I shall depart from accepted procedure, however, and be content with merely pointing out briefly some of the critical factors in this modern world in which our graduates are to live effectively and intelligently and how we as a college should gear ourselves to that purpose.

The outstanding characteristics of our modern world, as I see them, are these:

It is a physical world governed by certain natural laws with which man must learn to live in harmony.

It is a technical world in which the machine has assumed a position of supreme dominance.

It is a social world in which man cannot live unto himself alone.

It is a world in which man must make a living to care for the physical necessities of himself and family.

It is a world of political entities that have become so completely interdependent by the force of circumstances that we are compelled to think of it as one world.

It is a world of values—spiritual values; a world of mingled beauty and ugliness; a world where moral law is no less inexorable than physical law in its demand for obedience.

You might add other characteristics, but I think the most important are included in this list. Some have been acquired in recent years, others are as old as the race, but their relative novelty or antiquity has no bearing on their critical importance as factors with which modern man must deal intelligently if he would live effectively.

Now in a world like this and in accordance with the best tradition of the liberal arts college, I do not conceive our purpose as being narrowly confined to preparing our students to face any one of these characteristics to the exclusion of the others. Our task is a well-rounded preparation.

There is, for instance, the rather insistent demand from certain contemporary quarters that a college curriculum should push aside as inessential, impractical, and old-fashioned all courses that will not make a student economically self-sufficient when he gets out. That demand is a paraphrased quotation from a recent article in SCHOOL AND SOCIETY entitled, "The Veteran Flunks the Professor: a G.I. Indictment of Our Institutions of Higher Education." Certainly we want our students to be economically self-sufficient when they graduate, and our curriculum must be planned with that in view, but to live effectively in this world they must be prepared to do more than make a living and to be more than mere breadwinners.

Or we might illustrate it this way. It is not our primary concern to train a pre-medical student in physiology or a pre-ministerial student in the philosophy of religion. Each will receive a more elaborate and exact training in those specific fields when he gets to the professional graduate school. But it is our concern to see that the pre-ministerial student has a basic knowledge of physiology, and the pre-medical student has an insight into the great philosophies of religion. If they don't get those with us they probably won't get them anywhere, and the minister today needs a knowledge of physiology to live effectively no less than the physician of today needs a sound philosophy of religion to live effectively.

The point of my argument is that I conceive Western Maryland's purpose and place in the educational world as providing a rich background in the arts, the physical sciences, and the social sciences from which the student can go out and live effectively whether it be to the graduate school, the professional school, business, homemaking, or any other field of his choice.

The one exception to this is the matter of teacher training. Here we do deviate to some extent by giving technical professional preparation to those who plan to teach in secondary schools. We have been doing this with a marked degree of success through the years as an integral part of our total program, and feel that by this means we are rendering a real service not only to a portion of our students but to the State and communities in which they serve.

I might mention at this point that in order to do a better job and keep pace with the ever-increasing demands for higher standards in the field of secondary education, we are planning, as a part of our curriculum, to reinstate a program leading to a Master of Education degree. But even at this point we can best fulfill our educational purpose, and better run the race that is set before us, by providing a breadth of cultural background that will enable our graduates to be intelligently at home in the world and to live effectively as human beings.

There is one final aspect that must be considered as we run this race that is set before us. Western Maryland is a church-related college. It was founded by the Methodist Protestant Church and at the time of Methodist Union in 1939 it was one of the great contributions of that church to the educational system of the new church. This relationship carries with it a responsibility that must ever be kept in the foreground of our thinking and planning if we would attempt to make perfect the work of our many witnesses from the church whose interests across the years have been identified with this college.

It is true that we welcome students of all faiths and require religious tests of none, but the emphasis on the moral and spiritual realities of life have always been and must continue to be an integral part of our total program. I say this not simply because of our church relationship—this focuses our responsibility—but I say it because of the danger inherent in divorcing so-called secular education from the controls of ethical discipline.

Less than a year ago Justice Robert H. Jackson, speaking from this platform, said "In this age of atomic bombs nearly all the enemies of mankind have been conquered except man himself. And it is no longer primitive or illiterate man who represents a menace; it is the technically educated people, who hold the secrets of destruction and can loose those forces upon the world. . . . Education, of course, brings knowledge, and knowledge is power, and power unrestrained by moral principle leads to catastrophe. The question, perhaps, is not merely how well we can educate, but how we can inculcate those restraints which enable peoples to live at peace with one another in this highly organized and competitive world."

I submit this morning that that responsibility rests upon every institution of higher education. The world in which we live demands it. But for the church-related college, above all, it can no longer be an elective. The high morality of the Hebrew-Christian tradition, as symbolized by the church, provides the only ethical basis yet discovered by man adequate to offset a modern catastrophe far greater than anything the world has ever seen. An uneducated rogue is a nuisance, but an educated rogue is a menace for whom society has no room.

It, therefore, becomes a primary purpose of Western Maryland College, not only in reponse to its church relationship, but in response to the demands of a world of moral law, to emphasize those high principles of character and virtue without which the educated man becomes a distinct liability.

These then are the propositions to which I commit myself as before God I accept the charge of leading this college in the race that is set before us. Our witnesses are many both seen and unseen; to them I pledge my best efforts to perfect that which they have begun. Our problems may be difficult, whether real or imaginary; to their solution I will give my closest attention. Our opportunities are superb, whether in the immediate present or in the more distant future; to their seizure will I direct my every energy. With the cooperative help of trustees, faculty, student body, alumni, and a devoted constituency we shall move forward to a Greater Western Maryland.

WARD MEMORIAL ARCH

Published Monthly during the School Year from October
to May, inclusive, and July-August, by the College

Entered as second class matter, May 19, 1921, at the Postoffice at Westminster, Md., under the act of August 24, 1912. Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, act of October 3, 1917.

The Living Endowment Fund

A recent study of endowment needs for colleges like Western Maryland indicates that endowments which once provided 28% of the operating income now only furnish 11%. To help overcome this decrease, your Alma Mater is seeking to enlist its alumni and friends in a program of annual giving which will provide the equivalent of interest on a $1,000,000 endowment.

3,000 living alumni giving $10 each would reach this goal.

Educational costs have increased 103% since 1939. Students costs have advanced 41%. The college student in this day must carry a higher percentage of the cost of his own education than in your day or at any previous time. If Higher Education is to be restricted only to persons who can pay their own way, many young people of our constituency will be denied its benefits (maybe you would have missed yours if no one had contributed in your day). Western Maryland has never been a "class college" nor do we want it that way.

Class agents have been selected to contact you personally about this project of your Alumni Association. Your contribution, large or small, will help put life into The Living Endowment Fund.

Western Maryland College has invested in you—why not declare a dividend today?

May Day --- Saturday, May 1

The New Dean

Of The Faculty

DEAN STOVER

Dr. G. Franklin Stover took office as dean of faculty at Western Maryland College on February 1, 1948, succeeding Dr. L. M. Bertholf. He will also continue as head of the department of education of the college, where he succeeded Dean Isanogle in 1946.

Dean Stover was graduated from Susquehanna University in 1927, received his master's degree at Pennsylvania State College in 1933, and his doctor of education degree was conferred at Columbia University in 1939.

A native of Millheim, Pennsylvania, Dr. Stover has spent most of his educational career in that state. He served as an instructor in the School of Education, Pennsylvania State College, from 1933-38 and after three years in educational administrative work in Troy, Alabama, returned to the Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction as curriculum consultant and Director of Secondary Education Evaluation. Much of his experience during and since the war has been in connection with the problems of veterans' education which makes him well qualified in this field.

Several research studies, manuals, and educational articles have been published by Dean Stover and his name is listed in Who's Who in American Education, Leaders in American Education, and the Biographical Encyclopedia of the World.

Dr. and Mrs. Stover reside in the former home of Dr. Bertholf and have a son attending Western Maryland College, and a daughter in the elementary school in Westminster.

Two honored trustees of the college have died since the publication of our last news bulletin. The Rev. Dr. Richard L. Shipley, pastor of West Baltimore Methodist Church, passed away November 25, 1947. He had served several prominent charges of the former Methodist Protestant Church, and was editor of the Methodist Protestant Recorder for eight years. Western Maryland College honored him with a Doctor of Divinity degree and elected him to its Board of Trustees in 1927. He had served the College in that capacity since that date. His daughter is head of the Art Department of the College.

D. Roger Englar, Esq. ('03) died January 18, 1948 at his home in New York City. He was a noted admiralty lawyer, and had practiced his profession in New York for several years following receipt of his law degree at Harvard University in 1906. He was elected to the Board of Trustees of Western Maryland College in 1942 and has had an active interest in the College for many years.

Your Association is governed thusly: The membership, at its annual meeting elects six members to the Board of Governors (2 each year, for a 3 year term). The President of the College, the President of the Association, the Immediate Past-President, the Treasurer and the Executive Secretary are Ex-officio members. This body then elects the President, fourteen Vice-Presidents, Treasurer and Executive Secretary. From there, on, each is required to promote the interest of his or her Alma Mater wherever an opportunity presents itself. For this year, let's invent or make some opportunities.

A SELL OUT

Unfortunately we were compelled to turn a few away from the 1948 Alumni Banquet. With an estimated probable attendance of 400, we set up for 448. At the last moment, Alumni walked to the door without reservations. It was not pleasant to be forced to say "Sorry, no seats".

And then over 60 persons did not turn in their tickets (envelopes). If you are one of these, please return the ticket to me (with dues inserted) so I can make a correct accounting for the dinners.

T. K. HARRISON,
Executive Secretary.

1936 SPECIAL MEMORIAL

Two years ago—at their Tenth Reunion—the Class of 1936 inaugurated a Memorial Fund to furnish a room in the men's new dormitory, when it is built, in memory of the members of the class who had died in World War II.

By Commencement, 1948, this fund had reached a total of $220.00 through contributions from the following members of the class:

Baker, Anna M.
Bratton, W. W.
Broadwater, Louise Birely
Brooks, Edgar Robert
Brower, Ethalinda
Clark, Josephine D.
Cockey, Joshua H.
Corbin, S. Edward
Daneker, C. R.
Elserode, John
Eveland, Thos. C.
Folda, Rosalie Gilbert
Kamens, Helen Jacobson
Kean, Anne C.
McDonald, Zaida McKenzie
Miller, George C.
Onley, Elizabeth Byrd
Perry, Cora Virginia
Pue, Margaret Lansdale
Read, Charles E.
Roberts, Maurice W.
Romine, Elizabeth Wolford
Schad, M. Willette
Schneider, B. Aubrey
Schneider, Ethel Gorsuch
Sievarts, Kathryn Wentz
White, Harold
Wilke, Elinor Tollinger

This campaign is now closed; when the dormitory is built, the class memorial for its deceased members will become more than a "fund." In the meantime, the individual members of the class are demonstrating their continued loyalty to and support of their Alma Mater by contributing annually to her needs, particularly through the Living Endowment Fund.

President Ensor

As I look back over my first year as President of your Alma Mater, I have two very strong emotions in relation to our Alumni. The first is one of great joy and happy recollection as I recall many of the Alumni whom I have been privileged to meet for the first time on various occasions during the year. In every case they evidenced a hearty enthusiasm for the College that has been stimulating and encouraging. Taken as a whole, they have been men and women of whom any college or university could be proud and I am proud to be the President of a college that has placed so many of its graduates in positions of service and leadership in their respective communities.

My second emotion, however, is one of regret—regret that my alumni contacts have been all too few. The great majority of you are still unknown to me personally, and I to you. How can we get to know each other?

1. I plan to attend again this year all of the local Alumni Dinners. Can I count on seeing you at New York, Philadelphia, Salisbury, Washington, Baltimore or any other points North, East, South or West?

2. If you visit the campus, don't fail to stop at my office or home to say "Hello."

3. Feel free to call on me for any service I can render. It will be a joy to hear from you.

Finally, the class of '48 is one of the finest classes Western Maryland College has graduated in its distinguished history. If there is a member of the Class of '48 in your vicinity, contact him as a fellow-alumnus and thereby strengthen the bonds which unite us in the love and service of our Alma Mater

LOWELL S. ENSOR.

President Rein

There is a certain pleasantness about being a member of an organization. There is also a responsibility for doing, if one believes in the purpose of the organization.

What the Alumni Association of Western Maryland College stands for is well expressed in the Preamble to the Constitution of our organization. Have you read it recently? On the side of pleasantness, we believe in "fostering the liberal culture we have learned to love," and in, "perpetuating the friendships of our college life." These are so easy to accomplish. We also believe in "actively maintaining the honor and promoting the interests of our Alma Mater." This is more of a responsibility but it can be a pleasant one.

Those who have been active in the Alumni Association have done something toward furthering these purposes in the past years. I am naturally hopeful as President of the Alumni Association that each of us during the present year may do a little more a little better than we have done it before.

How can we best carry out these purposes? As a beginning, we can send in the name of one high-grade prospective student (in advance of his or her graduation from high school) or attend one meeting of our local district chapter, or contribute to one of the projects sponsored by the Alumni Association. Assuming some responsibility as a member is the best assurance that you will remain an active member, and by your welcome suggestions and criticisms the officers of the Alumni Association may better foster, perpetuate, maintain, and promote those things for which the Alumni Association of Western Maryland College was constituted.

WILLIAM C. REIN

Chas. J. De Manss, '44, teaching at Catonsville, is taking advanced work at Teachers College, Columbia U.

Thomas S. Englar, '10, M.D., has been appointed health officer for Prince George's County, Md. He and Mrs. Englar reside in College Park.

Passing thru the halls of University Hospital; Wm. Holloway, ex-'45; Arlie Mansberger, ex-'44; Howard Hall, ex-'44; David Auld, ex-'46; internes.

You just go up (or over, or down) to Madison, N. J., find Drew University—find the house of its new Prexy—ring the bell and when (or if) the door is opened, just say "I'm a Western Marylander" and Fred Garrius Holloway, '18, will yell "Well, what are you standing out there for? Why don't you come on in."

John D. Makosky, '25, is back from Sabbatical leave and is in his class room beginning with the second term of Summer School. He has been rusticiating at Columbia University, if you get what I mean.

Mrs. Malcolm Wenner will return to her classes in September, after doing special work at George Washington University.

Ruth M. Reese, '41, and Elizabeth S. Harrison, '37, have been on 2 weeks duty in the navy—at Norfolk, Va. Lieutenants, (j.g.), U.S.N.R.

Dr. Donald J. Roop, '14, has been appointed Asst. Health Officer of Baltimore County. He comes to his new position from Frederick, where he was Health Officer for Frederick City and County.

Fred G. Holloway, Jr., '47, has been awarded a certificate of graduation from the Commercial Audit Corp. training school, leading to a junior executive position.

John J. Lavin, '38, Major, U.S.A., is with the U.S. Army group in Greece. One of "Sarge's" boys.

William J. Felton, and Jack L. Larrimore, have recently become members of the Maryland State Constabulary, having graduated from the new, expanded State school.

Did you see Alice Rohrer Downey, '48,

(Mrs. Daniel Downey), in the brown section of the Baltimore Sunday Sun recently. Two pictures and a write-up. Chief of the Maryland Chapter of the 4-H Club All-Stars, she does a real job—beside gardening, canning, running "Dan!" and a 205-acre farm. Daniel, we are as proud of her as you are.

Wm. B. Jones, '34, has been appointed principal of Wicomico High School, Salisbury, Md.

Sterling Franklin Fowble, '37, made the headlines, picture and all, in The Evening Sun on June 25th. "Sheriff" has long been active in baseball circles and is a member of the "Maryland Board of Approved Basketball Officials". One of Harlow's boys, by the way.

Wm. C. Coulbourn, '11, got in the army—liked it—they liked him—so there he stays—Lt.-Col. JAGD—more initials—presently at Fore Benning, Ga. Come up to see us, "Kunnel."

George S. Bare, '37, Major, U.S.A., stationed in Colorado. Jean Harlow Bare, '37, with two children, visiting Mr. and Mrs. "Dick" in the Poconos and Westminster.

Remember "Major" McLaughlin, assistant PMS&T? Retired Colonel, now, and living in Westminster.

Capt. Holmes, Retired Colonel, and residing in Cambridge.

The Carroll County Board of Education announces the following appointments: Charlotte Zepp Kephart, '29, and Geraldine LaRue Frizzell, '48.

Wm. Ackley, Ex-'44, finished his work at State Teachers College, Towson, and will be an instructor at Gilman County School for Boys, Lower School.

J. N. Link, '25, S.T.D., recently elected president of the Wilmington (Del.) Ministerial Association. A trustee of the College.

"Ed" Cushen, '48, and five other Western Marylanders working at Aberdeen Proving Grounds.—Who are you?

Capt. Archie C. Allgire, Jr., '38, sends a 4" x 4" clipping from the Service paper in Yokohama, Japan, with a boost for Western Maryland Athletics, mentioning Havens, Ferguson, Ortenzi, Kern, Adamovitch, Piavis, Sibiski, Thompson, Jacobson, Paul, Stephenson, Lathroum, Seibert, Zawacki, Macie, Burch, Gill "Gym", Elliott and our schedule. Thanks, Archie.

Lillian Jackson Martin, '45, teaching in the Westminster High school for two years, has joined the editorial staff of The Maryland Teacher, published by the Maryland State Teachers Association.

Ruth A. Leister, '45, received her R.N. degree from the Maryland General Hospital on May 4th.

We acknowledge, with appreciation, a copy of St. Mary's School Bulletin, Raleigh, N. C. Richard G. Stone, '26, President.

Wm. E. Smith, '45, S.T.B., Boston University, ordained Methodist Minister June 4th, is Minister to the Trinitarian Congregational Church, Wayland, Mass., and will do graduate work at Boston U.

Wm. Roy Keffee, '44, S.T.B., Boston University, has been appointed Chaplain at Montana Deaconess Hospital, Great Falls, Mont.

Warren M. Roberts, '45, S.T.B., Boston University, ordained May 30th; will continue at Boston U. for further graduate study.

The Baltimore Alumni Picnic was held in Leakin Park on Saturday, July 17th. Those who attended found it so enjoyable that they expect to make it an annual affair. The two Baltimore Vice-Presidents did a splendid job. They deserved a better attendance.

ALUMNI MEETINGS

When the New York Alumni met at the Parkside Hotel on Friday, Feb. 27th, they had their first contact with President Ensor. They just stayed on, and on, and had a real time, and . . . the same thing was repeated in Philadelphia on April 9th,

and in Salisbury on April 27th,
and in
Hagerstown on April 30th.

That fellow, Ensor, takes to Alumni like a duck takes to water. And Alumni seem to reciprocate—sort of a mutual admiration society. Well! Isn't that the old Western Maryland Spirit in action?

PENSOR

This was his first commencement—his first Alumni Day. He measured up to expectations. Did you meet him? Hear him? If not you owe yourself the pleasure of doing both at the first opportunity. His letter in this issue is written in sincere desire to meet you. Why not go a little more than half way to bring this about. You will like yourself better, if you do. Prexy Ensor is a man to know.

1938 MEMORIAL

When this class held its 10th anniversary reunion, on May 29th, it decided to establish a memorial fund in memory of their four classmates who made the supreme sacrifice in World War II.

Mildred Wheatley, Dorothy Vinup Myers and Dorothy Fridinger Dawson are the committee. You will hear from them. What the Memorial will be will depend on you classmates.

Mr. Schaeffer is Treasurer of the Alumni Association. Make your check payable to "Western Maryland College Alumni Association", mail to the Executive Secretary, state the purpose of the check and it will be kept intact until such time as the Class determines the nature of the memorial.

1898

Celebrating its golden anniversary they came from far and near. Attending were Charles O. Clemson and family, Roby F. Day and wife, Clara Bacchus Earnshaw and son, Miriam Baynes Matthews, Maud E. Miller, Clarence L. Daugherty and wife, Caleb W. O'Connor, Edna Schaeffer Reese. Daugherty pronounced the invocation; Day nominated the 1938 Class for membership; Clemson introduced his classmates, individually. All three are to be congratulated. They have our thanks for helping make our program what it was.

1948

The class of 1948 has the distinction of being the largest class ever to graduate at W.M.C. The score is incomplete, but will likely exceed 150. They have spread to the far corners of occupational pursuits—Medicine—Law—Teaching—Preaching—Connubiality—More Study—Farming—Regular Army—All happy. Greetings to our newest members, and good luck!

1948-49 ENROLLMENT

Every effort to reduce congestion in dormitories and classes has been made. The enrollment limit has been set at 650 boarding students. The list was closed months ago—325 men—325 women, with a long waiting list. 150 day students—no more.

You mamas and papas—have a heart! Tell us of these blessed events, please.

TAPS

Dr. Walter H. Brown, of Youngwood, Pa., died March 4, 1948.

Those who attended WMC at the turn of the Century will regret the passing of Leon Sampaix, for many years our Piano Instructor, at Liege, Belgium, on April 24, 1948.

E. T. Mowbray, D.D., '86, died on Saturday, March 20, 1948, in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Mrs. Maud Heath Travers, '30, died at Salisbury, Md., this past winter.

Ira E. Crouse, Ex-'03, died June 8, 1948, at the Frederick Memorial Hospital.

As this goes to press comes the sad news of the sudden death of Mrs. J. P. Wantz (Carrie Rinehart, '96) at 10:30 P. M., July 21st. Few Alumni have worked as earnestly or as long as she is the upbuilding of her Alma Mater.

ALUMNI WEEK END

The Week End at Commencement time was quite a success. Those who came and had rooms felt they were well taken care of and had a splendid opportunity to see and hear all that was going on, and meet more alumni by getting in early and staying late.

Shall we have another?

EVENTUALLY! WHY NOT NOW?
YOUR DUES.

BUILDING

After endless efforts, workmen are busy on the job of erecting a new shop and utility building on the Uniontown Road, using the brick building to the rear of the Administration building, as a starting point. This will remove all shop and storage from Yingling and Smith Halls.

NEW INFIRMARY

The "Thompson" Infirmary is to be erected on the lot, just East of the Reifsnider Home. It will face the Taneytown road and the President's residence. Plans are now in and it is hoped work may start immediately (?).

SOUVENIR PLATES

Those who are still thinking about getting plates should hurry. Every customer has been thoroughly satisfied with the appearance of the plates as far as we know.

Better get yours while they last. The price is $2.35 each, through the mail, or $2.00 over the counter. Those now available are:

1. Baker Chapel;
2. Ward Memorial Arch;
3. "Old Main" Tower.

Why not include you "dues" in your check?

SOMETHING NEW

A dignified folder of twelve lovely views of the college mailed you for 17c.

A TREAT FOR YOUR KIDDIES

A Western Maryland "T" shirt, with college name and seal in sizes 2-4-6-8-10-12. Ready to mail you Sept. 7th. $1.00 each; 90 cents, with your dues.

A CLASS RING

Have one? Want one? Available at $22.57 and $35.00 (including Federal and State taxes).

Just A Touch Of College Spirit

COLLEGE MOTTO

E Tenebris In Lucem Voco
("I call you from darkness to light")

ALMA MATER

College ties can ne'er be broken,
Formed at W. M. C.
Far surpassing wealth unspoken,
Ever may they be.

Chorus

Western Maryland! Hail, all Hail!
Echo softly from each heart.
We'll be ever loyal to thee
'Til we from life shall part.

When our college days are over,
Round our hearts shall cling
Memories of our Alma Mater,
Every day shall bring.

But our life is swiftly passing,
Soon its course is run,
Whate'er our lot we'll ever cherish
Friendships here begun.

BATTLE SONG

The glory of Alumni is the service we can show
As we help to make our College just a little better grow.
Let us make our Western Maryland one that all shall like to know
As days go marching on.
Building Greater Western Maryland!
Building Greater Western Maryland!
Building Greater Western Maryland!
As years go marching on.
