Has Modern Trend Gone Too Far Educators Ask

Along with a shortage of teachers and overcrowded school buildings there is a growing feeling among a few interested persons that something is basically the matter with the education that children are receiving in the schools. A certain portion of our educators and educated are trying to decide if the pendulum has swung too far from traditionalism to modernism.

Three totally different persons and groups have this past summer done some thinking about the state of education in the United States today. Professor Paul Woodring of Western Washington College of Education has stated his conclusions in a new book "A Fourth of a Nation." A group of theologians and scholars of many faiths attending a symposium at Kent School in Connecticut summarized their thoughts in "The Christian Idea of Education." Both conclusions were reported in Time magazine. Dr. Helen G. Howerly, Dean of Women at Western Maryland, came back from a leave of absence in England with some thoughts on the matter which are included in this Bulletin.

What Is Aim?

What should be the aim of education?, Woodring asks. It is "to prepare the individual to make wise decisions . . . An education must include learning how to choose when it is best not to conform and when one should differ." Basically what Woodring is saying is that education must be primarily intellectual for "all choice is intellectual."

The Kent School conference had as its aim a means of "regaining and restating what general education could be within a Christ-centered culture." In a pointed reference to the kind of school Western Maryland is, Princeton Historian E. Harris Harbison had this to say—"though liberal-arts education can never be completely Christian, or Christian education completely liberal the two are indispensable to each other. The goal of liberal arts is to provide hindsight and foresight; the part of Christian belief is to provide insight which is of crucial significance for living . . . William James remarked . . . 'When we see all things in God and refer all things to Him, we read in common matters superior expressions of meaning . . . ' Here is the essence of the relationship of Christian insight to the data of liberal education. In every concrete fact and temporal event there is potential meaning that beggars the imagination. A liberal education does not reach its own goal unless a student senses something in this meaning."

One of Dean Howerly's goals in England this past semester and summer was to look into the philosophy of education in English schools as compared to teaching here. Dean Howerly says that some of her most significant teaching had been in an experimental school where she had "come to think that traditional teaching hampered the student." But in England where traditional teaching still holds sway she found "real excitement of pupils over learning," this even in earlier levels. She has gradually reached the theory that some of our more liberal programs actually hamper the student's development. "In the interest of educating the entire population," she says, "We have neglected and deprived our brightest students of their intellectual heritage." Dean Howerly very forcefully stated the conclusion she has reached after putting together all her experience and thoughts on the matter . . . "We are under-privileged intellectually as a nation."

Complete Reform?

To put some of these ideas in action cannot be the work of a few weeks. It isn't even definite that the majority of educators believe that any change is necessary. The Woodring ideas, according to Time, would mean a complete reform of teacher education, but they would not mean eliminating professional training entirely, for "contrary to what some critics say, teaching is a science as well as an art. It does mean getting rid of

WESTERN MARYLAND COLLEGE BULLETIN

Volume XXXIX

December, 1957

No. 1

Western Maryland College Bulletin, Westminster, Maryland, published eight times a year, once in the months of December, March, April, June, August and October, and twice in February, by the College.

Entered as second class matter, May 19, 1921, at the Postoffice at Westminster, Md., under the act of August 24, 1912. Accepted for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, act of October 3, 1917.

Impact Also Felt In Two Year Colleges

It is perhaps in the junior college system in Maryland that the college's influence has been most heavily felt. The late Dean Alvey M. Isanogle of Western Maryland's Education Department was one of the leaders in developing this project in its beginnings.

As of this September there were 11 junior colleges in operation in Maryland meeting what educators feel is a definite need. More and more, business and industry leaders are thinking in terms of a minimum of two years of college as a requirement for their personnel.

There is a trend to call these schools, most of which are located in high schools, Community Colleges. One of the first to adopt this name is the Catonsville Community College. A Western Maryland graduate in 1931, Mrs. Ruth R. Rinehart, is counselor at the school. Mrs. Rinehart had been guidance counselor in the Milford Mill High School for the past six years. After receiving her degree from Western Maryland she taught in the high schools of Baltimore County and Carroll County. She received her Masters degree in Guidance and Personnel Work from the University of Maryland in 1952.

Another of the junior colleges to open this fall is Harford Junior College. Dean is Dr. John W. Musselman, formerly of the Baltimore Junior College faculty and a graduate of Western Maryland in 1933. Dr. Musselman, who received his PhD at Johns Hopkins, began his teaching career in mathematics and science in St. Mary's county and Baltimore city.

Until recently the Dean of Baltimore Junior College was Wilmer V. Bell of the class of 1930. Mr. Bell is now Director of Adult Education.

WM Graduates Take Big Part In Education System

A few years ago the State Department of Education compiled a set of figures particularly interesting to graduates of Western Maryland. Covering the 8 colleges in Maryland which provide teachers for the system, the figures showed that in a 20 year period Western Maryland furnished between 29.2 and 65.4 percent of the teachers each year.

These figures covered a twenty year span from 1931 to 1951. Since that time the college has graduated 291 persons equipped to teach in secondary schools. There are no figures available at this time as to how many actually stayed in the system or what the percentage from this school has been in that time. Nor, is there anything available at this time on the number of Western Marylanders who have gone into the elementary schools since 1951.

Two Are Presidents

However, in executive positions it is a little easier to see that the impact of Western Maryland teachers on the system in Maryland is still continuing. The presidents of two of the state's teacher colleges are graduates of the school—Dr. Earle T. Hawkins of Towson State Teachers College and Dr. Wilbur Devilbiss at Salisbury State Teachers College. All told there are seven Western Marylanders holding positions in the teachers colleges. Our role in the junior college program is outstanding.

Counties Have Grads

Four counties have superintendents of schools from the Hill—Willard L. Hawkins, Garrett County; Charles W. Willis, Harford County; John E. Yingling, Howard County and Lettie M. Dent, St. Mary's County.

On administrative and supervisory staffs the college has 34 representatives. And there are 27 principals in the system that claim Western Maryland as their Alma Mater.

These figures have to be general. There are probably more Western Marylanders in the system than indicated here. Also graduates from this school are playing an important role in schools in other states, particularly in southern Pennsylvania where our Masters program in education has been extremely popular in recent years.

Dr. I. Talks About Year In Lebanon

Since her return from a year's teaching in Lebanon, Dr. Isabel Isanogle of the Biology Department has been kept busy relating her experiences. Following is a partial reprint of an article that appeared in The Baltimore Sun of October 27:

"Marketing in Beirut, the capital city of Lebanon, was not too different from marketing in Westminster, Dr. Isabel Isanogle has learned.

"In both places you can get practically anything you wish.

"The difference lay in the fact that things cost from two to three times as much in Beirut, and because the Middle East has a concept of hygienic growing conditions which varies somewhat from the American, it would take nearly a whole afternoon for Dr. Isanogle to prepare her vegetables for storing in the refrigerator. Even such things as tomatoes, celery, cabbage or lettuce all got the same treatment as root vegetables . . ." (dipping in disinfectant).

"Dr. 'I', as she is known to all at Western Maryland, made the most of her time while in Beirut, using her school vacations to travel extensively throughout the Middle East, mostly with her students and with American missionary friends.

"As a result, Dr. Isanogle has returned to Westminster not only with a whole new conception of the Arab problem, but with vivid memories of every major ancient ruin in the Middle East, of the roses at Ispahan, of Persian gardens in the moonlight, of white domed palaces, of the exquisite courtesy and gentle manners of her Arab students and friends.

"So entranced was Dr. Isanogle by her stay, that prevailing sanitation conditions bothered her not at all. But being an American housewife as well as a professor of biology with more than a nodding acquaintance with a host of microbes, Dr. Isanogle did take her little precautions . . .

"Dr. Isanogle, in addition to her memories, also returned home with her own opinions. The one she is most frequently asked to give is on peace in the Middle East.

"There can be no 'permanent peace' until the Arab refugee question is settled, maintains Dr. Isanogle, who says that one of the most moving sights is that of the abject misery of Arab refugees unable to be assimilated economically by their own people because of the subsistence level of existence which exists as normal in so many widespread areas . . ."

Music Students Join Fraternity

Western Maryland College is now a member of Delta Omicron National Professional Music Fraternity. The local chapter is called Omicron Eta.

The professional fraternity, open to women students, was founded in 1909 at Cincinnati Conservatory. On November 16 the local chapter held its first meeting in Levine Hall. All of the joining members presented a recital as part of their initiation. Following the recital, a reception was held in McDaniel Lounge.

Trustees Elect Dr. Darner

Dr. Henry L. Darner, noted Washington gynecologist and surgeon, was elected to the Board of Trustees of Western Maryland at the fall meeting of the board held the end of October.

At the same meeting another Washington resident and long-time member of the board, Roger J. Whiteford, was elected Vice Chairman of the Board. Mr. Whiteford, a prominent Washington lawyer, replaces the late Dr. William W. Chase.

Student Union Located

The Board also approved a recommendation of the Building and Grounds Committee locating the new student union building on the hillside below Lewis Hall instead of beside Science Hall. In the October Bulletin it was suggested that the Science Hall location might be selected although it was still tentative. The members of the Board approved plans and indicated that construction should begin as soon as possible, probably when the weather is better.

Dr. Darner lives at 5001 Glenbrook Road, N.W. in Washington. Dr. Darner is of an old Western Maryland family—his father was in business in Hagerstown and his mother still lives there. He graduated from Western Maryland in 1916. Dr. Darner's sister, Madeline Darner, now Mrs. Eugene Gordon of Pittsburgh, also is a graduate of the school. The new trustee received his M.D. from Johns Hopkins in 1920 and did intern and resident work in gynecology at the Baltimore hospital.

Displays Gift

Known as the leading gynecologist in the Washington area, the doctor has in his career been associated with the University of Rochester, Emergency Hospital in Washington, Garfield Hospital, Army Medical Center, Glenn Dale Sanatorium and the George Washington University Medical School.

His current position at the New Washington Hospital Center is

Chairman of the Department of Gynecology and Vice President of the Medical Board of the active staff. Western Maryland awarded Dr. Darner an honorary degree in 1956. At the first trustee meeting and dinner that the new member attended he displayed a gift for telling tales that led the other trustees to wonder why they hadn't elected him to the Board before this.

Graduate Honored

Mr. Whiteford, who lives at 4101 Leland Street, Chevy Chase, is a member of the law firm of Whiteford, Hart, Carmody and Wilson. He graduated from Western Maryland in 1906 and was admitted to the Bar of the District of Columbia in 1912 after graduation from the National University Law School in Washington.

In 1943 Western Maryland honored Mr. Whiteford with an honorary doctor of Laws degree. He was selected Lawyer of the Year in the District of Columbia in 1955. Mr. Whiteford was the first general counsel for the Federal Housing Administration and for 13 years served on the district Court Committee on Admissions and Grievances. His son, Joseph, graduated from Western Maryland in 1943.

FORMER HILL RESIDENTS MAKE NEWS

News of former members of the Hill community has been coming into the Public Relations office in a very satisfactory way. We are always interested in what you are doing so don't be too shy to tell us.

Former Professor of Biology and Dean of the Faculty Dr. Lloyd M. Bertholf has been elected president of Illinois Wesleyan University in Bloomington, Illinois. Dr. Bertholf was a member of the Western Maryland faculty for 25 years before going to the College of the Pacific in California as Dean of the College. Recently he was named academic vice-president of COP.

Aids Boys

Another former member of the faculty, Dr. Milton J. Huber, is now director of Boys Republic in Detroit, Michigan. Dr. Huber, a professor of sociology on the Hill, was featured in the Detroit News at the time of dedication of a new campus and set of buildings for the 50 year old school which aids troubled boys. Dr. Huber is married to the former Ruth Miles, a graduate of Western Maryland in 1945.

The same edition of the paper had a picture of Joseph S. Whiteford ('43) at installation of an organ in the Ford Auditorium.

Wins Prize

In the light of current interest in satellites, Russian or American, the activities of Eugene Mechtly take on added interest. Gene, a graduate in the class of 1952, recently won a $1,000 third prize in a national essay contest on space satellites sponsored by Glenn L. Martin Company. Mechtly suggested using the shell of the actual spherical satellite as a battery to power its radio transmitter. Dr. Summers' former student is now working in the ionosphere research lab at Penn State.

In another field of research is

ART SHOWS DRAW MANY TO COLLEGE

The art exhibits opened on October 23 this year with a one-man show by Lowell Nesbitt of Baltimore.

Mr. Nesbitt, who is known as one of the most promising of the younger artists, has won many prizes and has his work in several permanent collections. Most of the art circle of Baltimore turned up on campus for the opening of the show.

This month the gallery is featuring the work of Pauline Dutterer. The show opened December 4. Miss Dutterer, who is from this area, is a prominent designer of fabrics located in Baltimore and the owner of Myron Paul originals.

The artist graduated and taught textiles and crafts at the Maryland Art Institute, Baltimore. She also studied weaving and ceramics at the outstanding school for this type of work, Cranbrook Academy of Art, Bloomfield Hills, Michigan. She has studied at Johns Hopkins University and learned weaving techniques from Mary Atwater in Toronto, Canada.

Her display will have free lace designing in weaving and printing of place mats, glassware, gifts, wearing apparel, drapery and upholstery fabrics.

Miss Dutterer has exhibited in national competitions such as Designer-Craftsman USA 1953. She was chosen as one of the young designers featured in "Living for Young Homemakers" magazine and has exhibited her work in the Akron Art Institute, Akron, Ohio. One of her fabrics was selected by the American Institute of Decorators Traveling Exhibition last year. Also on a nation-wide level, her work has been seen at the Wichita Decorative Arts Exhibit, the International Textile Exhibit at Woman's College, Greensboro, North Carolina and Florida State University, Tallahassee, Florida.

MODERN ART EXHIBIT—Lowell Nesbitt, on the left, talks to an interested visitor to Western Maryland's first art show of the season. Mr. Nesbitt, one of the most promising of the younger artists showed a collection of modern paintings.

the fetish of the 'whole child' which so often subverts subject matter. Finally, it means restoring intellectual integrity . . ."

In spite of their many differences the Kent group ended with a basic agreement. Education as it stands, they concluded, "can never be whole until it finds the proper balance between two great traditions (Greco-Roman, Judaeo-Christian), two kinds of knowledge and two ways of apprehension."

To get back to the basic differences that Dean Howerly noted in the end product of English and American schools—her next step was to visit teacher training classes. At the University of London she found that education courses were very similar to those taught at Western Maryland. She was surprised to find the amount of methods and theory being taught at teacher colleges in spite of the traditional attitude toward education.

All three of the opinions emphasize a concern with intellectual excitement. The intent of teaching rather than the method seems to be the difference.

Two Of Faculty Participate In Television Show

On November 17 and 24 two members of the Western Maryland faculty appeared on WBAL-TV in Baltimore as part of a series called "American Campus."

Dr. Jean Kerschner, associate professor of biology, and Dr. John D. Makosky, professor of English and Dean of the Faculty, were chosen by a board of students to appear. The selection was made with regard to effectiveness in teaching as well as professional stature, personality and numerous other qualities.

The half-hour program was devised to show the professors as they appear in the classroom and to bring out just what makes them dynamic educators. Dr. Kerschner took communication among bees as her topic and Dr. Makosky talked of the role played by certain women in the life of George Bernard Shaw.

Preceding the Western Maryland professors were members of the faculty of the Naval Academy and the University of Maryland. Immediately following them were members of the Princeton faculty.

Winter Sports Schedule Goes In High Gear

The winter sports program is underway on the Hill with the basketball, wrestling, and the rifle teams taking over from football and soccer.

Coach Dick Clower, back for his second year as leader of the Terror basketball squad, stuck his neck way out and said he definitely expects the team to turn in a better record than last year. In the 1956-57 season the Terrors dropped 13 and won 6.

Practice started on October 24 with 30 out for the team. Seven were members of last year's squad, three from the first string: Bill Spaar, Tom Riffin and Dick Holbrunner. 17 Freshmen also turned up this fall for practice. Among the most promising of those out for the team, according to Clower, are Bill Bruce, Irwin Stewart, E. C. Chandler, Jimmy Deremer, Tony Sarbanes, John Long and Sloan Stewart. The average height is about six feet.

The wrestling team is out to top its record of three and three. Returning lettermen are Brooks Euler, medalist in the Mason-Dixon Tournament in March, Charlie Cock, John Gunderson, Fred Stoever, Dick Gardiner and George Wellings.

One of the perennially strong teams on the Hill is the rifle squad. They have plenty of returning members and expect to turn in their usual good season. Coach is M/Sgt. Charles Coyner.

Terror Soccer, Football Teams Need Seasoning

Terror soccer and football teams this fall have had their full share of troubles but both teams maintained an amazing spirit all season.

The two teams started out with very few returning lettermen and then were crippled in mid-season by flu and injuries. At one point, Coach Waldorf reported thirteen men on the sick and injured list. Soccer Coach Uhrig faced one of the toughest games on the soccer schedule with barely enough men to field a team.

At the time this is written the full score isn't in on the two teams. Both have had a needed period of seasoning and expect to come back with winning records in 1958.

Bright spots for the two coaches is the fact that many of this year's squad members will be on hand again in the fall. The Terror football team had an unusual number of promising freshmen this season and Waldorf expects them to be even better in the fall as sophomores.

The soccer team is still in a period of regrowth after losing most of last year's team in graduation. Mr. Uhrig says it will take a while to equal the great teams of the last few years but already some of the players are showing promise. Among the brightest spots in the returning group is the Hungarian player, George Varga, who showed a sparkling brand of soccer to the H'll this fall.

definite on Western Maryland's role in education. But we hope they won't be lacking for too long. A project is getting underway to find out just what part graduates of this school are playing in many phases of life in addition to education. A lot of former Hill dwellers will probably be surprised to learn what their associates are doing now.

We Goofed! WM Is Really 91 Years Old

You may have noticed that the last Bulletin loudly proclaimed this as the 90th year for Western Maryland—we really thought it was.

However, there were those on campus who insisted that it is the 91st year. This department merely referred such people to the catalogue which also stated on the first page that this is Western Maryland's 90th year. It did seem, though, that the matter should be resolved once and for all because in either 9 or ten years there will be a 100th anniversary and it would be very nice for that date to be correct.

The other day the Registrar called up and now the whole matter is settled. This is the 91st year, and, that treasure of information, the catalogue, is wrong. Out of curiosity Miss Cora Virginia Perry and Miss Martha Manahan began checking and found that several years ago when the catalogue was printed the age of the school was not stepped up a year. The next year the change was made but only one year was added. So for the past twenty years the catalogue has been wrong.

The catalogue will be corrected in the next printing, the Bulletin readers are now informed and the 100th anniversary will come off in 9 years on schedule.

President's Message Discussed

By Dr. R. D. Summers

President Eisenhower's State of the Union message supported recommendations from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to stimulate science and math education by improvement in the quality of instruction and by encouraging more students and teachers to enter these fields.

The plan involves expenditure of a billion dollars in four years, largely in grants to be matched by states and institutions. The government would provide aid to states in testing programs to find outstanding students at an early age, and in training more student counselors. It would establish 10,000 scholarships, and assist the states in recruiting more teachers by increased pay and other inducements. It would help colleges and universities by setting up graduate fellowships, and by funds for increased salaries and for equipment. The National Science Foundation would receive a large grant to further its existing programs.

Plan Is Conservative

These proposals are a very conservative approach to the problem, so conservative that one wonders if there is full realization of our dangerous situation. Unless we make immediate and drastic changes in our educational system, we shall inevitably lose the cold war by becoming a backward nation, for we shall not be able to match the discoveries and inventions made by the more numerous and better trained Russian scientists and engineers.

The proposals are excellent and necessary, but fall far short of the essential all-out effort. A quarter of a billion dollars a year will be spread very thinly. For example, 10,000 scholarships, distributed among all colleges and universities in proportion to enrollment, would give Western Maryland two scholarships.

The federal proposals, perhaps properly, do not explicitly touch upon a basic defect of our present school system. The deficiency is one which can be corrected by local effort which costs little. It has long been evident that the greatest fault in the public school preparation of our college students is that they have not been accustomed to hard work in their studies.

Math Emphasized

In a system where immature boys and girls can elect their own courses, enrollments will diminish to the vanishing point if a teacher demands that degree of precision and rigor which is essential for the best instruction.

Strict emphasis on mathematics from the very beginning of a child's schooling is necessary if we are to produce first class scientists. Just what other subject matter is taught in pre-college years is of secondary importance. The vital need is for the pupil to develop the habit of sustained mental effort.

The exact sciences are well suited for such training, but so also are history, foreign languages, literature, grammar. It would be a grave error to concentrate on science to the detriment of the other subjects which are essential to the development of a well rounded individual. Many present educational frills might be jettisoned. We need a general lift in academic standards.

It is obvious that my recommendations are directed toward better preparation of students for colleges, and cannot be pushed too far in the case of pupils who lack the ability for higher education.

Library Gets $500 Sub-Grant

Western Maryland's library has been awarded $500 in a sub-grant from the Association of College and Research Libraries.

The funds were granted by the Remington Rand Corporation. Announcement of the grant was made in early January by Miss Eileen Thornton, Librarian of the Oberlin College Library and President of the ACRL, a division of the American Library Association.

Miss Elizabeth Simkins, Western Maryland librarian, states that the grant will be used to purchase an additional card catalog case.

Western Maryland was one of 87 libraries to receive sub-grants in this year's program of awards. "These grants," states Miss Thornton, "are evidence of the real concern of American business for the great necessity of strengthening library resources as a vital part of collegiate education."

WESTERN MARYLAND COLLEGE BULLETIN

Volume XXXIX

February, 1958

No. 3

Western Maryland College Bulletin, Westminster, Maryland, published eight times a year, once in the months of December, March, April, June, August and October, and twice in February, by the College.

Entered as second class matter, May 19, 1921, at the Postoffice at Westminster, Md., under the act of August 24, 1912. Accepted for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, act of October 3, 1917.

MAIL RETURN FROM GRADS TOO HIGH

As the front cover indicates, the Alumni Office is having a bit of trouble keeping up with some of Western Maryland's finest.

From August, when we tried to tell everyone what the coming fall sports schedule would be, up to the December issue of the Bulletin, about 500 pieces of mail have been returned to us by the Post Office. In most cases the piece of mail has been returned because the addressee didn't let us know where he was headed. It seems a failing of even the most efficient to forget to notify the Post Office Department of a change of address. If you don't get around to telling the government, at least drop us a note of your whereabouts.

When the Post Office sends back a Bulletin marked "Address Unknown" it means that no further mail is sent to these alumni until their new address can be traced through a source other than the Post Office.

Compton Set For Several Student, Faculty Talks

But, it isn't only a matter of mail from Western Maryland that makes us want to keep up with you. Quite often your friends or a business contact will ask the Alumni Office where you are. When we have the information we are glad to aid these people—at the same time helping you. But if we don't know where you went after 1953 it is hard to be of service.

So, please try and keep us informed when you move about. We'd like to cut that 500 figure way down.

DR. A. H. COMPTON

Nobel Prize winner, Dr. Arthur H. Compton, will visit Western Maryland on March 16-19. Under the general theme of Science and Freedom the physicist will give a series of talks and will meet with faculty and student groups for informal discussions.

Dr. Compton has been a teacher for about thirty years, was a research engineer for Westinghouse Lamp Company for two years and served as chancellor of Washington University in St. Louis. He was recently awarded the Roentgen Plaque of the German Society of Friends of the Roentgen Museum. His early studies of the properties of X-rays led to his discovery of their change in wave length when scattered.

The road to the atomic age, says Dr. Compton, began with Roentgen's work. From 1942 to 1945, Dr. Compton directed the Metallurgical Laboratory of the Manhattan Project. In "Atomic Quest" he gives a first hand account of the atomic bomb's birth.

LONG JOURNEY—This envelope traveled around the world at least once in its attempt to find a peripatetic alumnus.

EARLY CONCEPTION—An early drawing by the architect had the student union building looking like this. Plans have been modified somewhat since then. The brick structure will be a two-level split level affair housing many activities.

Union Plans Begin To Jell

Plans are beginning to shape up for the student union building. It will be located below Lewis Hall on the hill overlooking Hoffa Field.

The building will be a split level brick structure in two levels. It will contain the student functions now located in Old Main and include some other needed facilities.

As tentatively planned, the final drawings are not complete, the student will enter and go either a  $\frac{1}{2}$  flight up or down. If he goes up he will enter a large student lounge. On the left will be a game room with several ping pong and pool tables. On the left side of the building with the game room there will be a student meeting room and the student government office. The meeting room will be controlled by the SGA which will handle the calendar for the room. On the other side off the lounge will be the Aloha, Contrast and Gold Bug offices.

On this same side there will be a faculty lounge with its own rest room and kitchen facilities. The faculty will be able to enter by way of the student entrance or

Baker Chapel Dedication Set For Sunday April 20

Baker Memorial Chapel will be dedicated on Sunday, April 20, 1958 with a special ceremony at 3 p.m. to mark the occasion.

At a recent meeting of a faculty-trustee committee to plan the dedication there was definite word that the chapel will be completed from a private outside stairway.

A  $\frac{1}{2}$  flight down on the lower level will be the dining area and fountain facilities. The dining area will be almost constantly open and here will be located the post office boxes. On the right side the book store will be placed.

The President and Board of Trustees are hoping to get started on construction just as soon as the winter weather is over.

Until the student union building is completed it will be necessary to retain Old Main. There is no other place for the facilities presently housed there to be placed. As soon as there is a place for these functions to go, the present Old Main will be torn down from in front of new Baker Memorial Chapel.

by that time. Mrs. Dorothy S. Herr is chairman of the committee.

The organ will be dedicated at a special service on May 4 at 7:30 p.m. D.S.T. The dedication will be followed by an organ recital given by Virgil Fox.

Principal speaker on April 20 will be Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, resident Bishop of Washington area who will deliver the sermon. Tentative plans as proposed by the committee include asking Bishop James H. Straughn, retired Bishop, to lead the service. Chairman of the Board of Trustees, F. Murray Benson, will present the building for dedication. Former President of Western Maryland, Dr. Fred G. Holloway, now president of Drew University, will be invited back to the Hill to take part in the ceremony. President Ensor suggested this to the committee since the whole movement toward building a new chapel started in Dr. Holloway's administration.

Hovey Writes Book

In the December 9th issue of "New Republic" Dr. Richard B. Hovey, associate professor of English at Western Maryland took issue with the review of a book about John Jay Chapman.

The book is an anthology of Chapman's work written by Jacques Barzun of Columbia University and Dr. Hovey disagreed with a review written by Alfred Kazin. If anyone is qualified to speak on the subject of Chapman it is Western Maryland's Professor of American Literature. He probably knows as much about the critic as anyone in the United States today. Just two weeks before the Barzun book was published Dr. Hovey completed a critical study of Chapman which he terms a "mental" biography. The Hovey book will probably be printed by the Columbia University Press.

Concentrates On Mind

"The Broken Lance, A Critical Study of John Jay Chapman" concentrates on the mind and ideas of the man bringing in his writings rather than merely enumerating events in his life. Chapman, who lived between 1862 and 1933, was known as a critic of American culture. He was passionately committed to things of the mind in a time when the intellect seems to be at a discount. Dr. Hovey comments in his book. Chapman, according to Hovey, personified the critical spirit so necessary yet so unpopular in a democracy.

Dr. Hovey received his doctorate at Harvard University where he was holder of a Ford Fellowship in 1951-52. He did his undergraduate work at the University of Cincinnati. For about ten years off and on he has been working on the book but calculates that it took 45 months to complete.

Read Wilson's Book

He got interested in Chapman while working for the War Department in 1943 under a major who recommended that he read

DR. R. B. HOVEY

Edmund Wilson's book "The Triple Thinkers." Included was an essay on Chapman and Dr. Hovey became fascinated by the man. At Harvard he met DeWolfe Howe who encouraged him to develop his interest. Dr. Hovey arranged with the Chapman family to read unpublished material and manuscripts. At Harvard's Houghton Library he studied the collection of papers and articles written by the New Englander. Not until he had completed a year and a half of research was one word written of the book.

Starts On Another

Now that he has finished the Chapman book Dr. Hovey is thinking in terms of his next work. He is particularly interested in writing on education, pointing up the relationship between psychology and literature.

Dr. Hovey's chief critic, editor and typist has been his wife who is a special instructor of English at Western Maryland. Mrs. Hovey is a graduate of Allegheny College and has a M.A. in English from the University of Pennsylvania.

Art Shows Have Rough Sledding

On February 5, James F. Snodgrass, ex '43, opened a one man show in the college art gallery.

Jim, as many of you will remember, took part in several NBC television shows last spring. At the time, Miss Louise Shipley of the college art department, started plans for a Snodgrass show at the college this year. There have been a lot of complications involved in getting the paintings from New York to Westminster without shipping them by freight. The college gallery doesn't have a budget that includes that sort of an endeavor.

Snow Hampers

As a matter of fact, the whole process of shows this year has had its frustrating moments. The first show with Lowell Nesbitt went off fairly well despite the fact that the artist just managed to get off from work with the Army in Washington in time to reach the opening and had no idea how the show had been set up.

The next opening was in the midst of a blizzard and the artist, Miss Pauline Dutterer, couldn't get near the school—neither could anyone else. Once again Miss Shipley and her assistant, Marlin Roser, had put up the show without benefit of counsel from the artist. A second opening was scheduled and on that night we had an ice storm. Miss Dutterer finally managed to see her own show the Sunday afternoon before it was taken down.

Professor Ill

The next show, contemporary prints from the Baltimore Museum, opened without Miss Shipley herself. She became ill during the Christmas holiday and was unable to be back for the opening.

So now the art department is in the midst of its fourth show. Anything can happen.

Clower To Coach WM Track Team

One of the stronger teams on the Hill in recent years has been the track team. This year the group will be under the direction of Dick Clower.

Clower will inherit a good portion of last year's team including team captain, John Hort who runs the high and low hurdles, the 440, 880 and takes on the high jump. Also coming back will be Vaughn Smith, George Wellings, Karl Silex, Bill Spaar and Dick Holbruner. Ray Kennedy, one of the best dash men on campus according to Coach Clower, is expected to be in good shape this year after being out last season with a pulled muscle.

There are a number of promising freshmen on campus this year too. Clower hopes for fine things from Fred Roop, Malcolm Brown, Otto Willen, Ron Phillips and transfer, Ted Farrow.

The track team has a schedule of 7 dual meets, the Mason-Dixon meet and the Mason-Dixon relays. Last year the team was undefeated in dual meets but lost out in the Mason-Dixon affairs.

Dick Clower has been back on campus for a year. Dick graduated from Western Maryland in 1950. He received his M.S. in Physical Education from Springfield College and taught in the Carroll County Public Schools before coming here as assistant professor of physical education.

Basketball Squad Takes Bad Breaks

The Western Maryland basketball team is now about half way through its winter season.

Coach Dick Clower says he hopes that the second half of the schedule will go a little better than the first. He thinks the situation has promise. The squad has had some pretty tough breaks, losing three of its games by a total of six points. In the second half of the season it will be meeting some of the same teams again and the hope is that this time some of the breaks will be in Western Maryland's favor.

WM Wrestlers Improving With Every Match

The wrestling team under Coach Ken Mohlenrich comes up to the halfway mark with a record of one win and two defeats. The team defeated Elizabethtown by 21-13 and lost to Towson State and American University.

Captain Brooks Euler and freshman Lou Price lead the team in total matches with three wins against no losses. Wesley Pang, Charles Cock and Coach Mohlenrich have two wins against one loss each.

The team loss to American University was hardest to take. The Terrors were unable to field a man in the 147 pound class which cost them five points. They lost the match 14 to 16. In that one Euler pinned Jack Jones in 5:50. Pang, Price and Cock all got decisions.

The Towson loss was another close one—18-12. Price, Gene Nicholson, Euler and Mohlenrich all gained decisions in this one. The Terrors had no pins.

However, against Elizabethtown, Pang, Mohlenrich and Cock all gained pins and Euler and Price came through with impressive decisions.

Mohlenrich, who is coaching the squad, deserves a lot of credit. He is taking a full schedule, keeps a dairy farm in operation and supports a wife and three children. Wrestling has long been a hobby with him and he agreed to coach the team this year.

FRANK B. HURT

HURT LEADS TENNIS TEAM 23 YEARS

Coach Frank B. Hurt goes into his 23rd year with the tennis team with the makings of a good season. He has lost only one man from last year's fine squad—Sam Reed.

Freshmen Promise

Mr. Hurt thinks that freshmen Jon Myers and Jim Worden will be helpful additions to the team this spring. The squad generally has a 16 game schedule but weather often prevents playing of all the games.

The coach hasn't made definite assignments yet but he is thinking of combining Wray Mowbray and Bob Passerello as the number one doubles combination this year. John Gunderson and Bob Anderson would be number two and number three will likely be Bruce Lee and one of the newer players. Last year the team only had five players and trained Bruce Lee from scratch. This year Mr. Hurt is hoping for a little depth.

Record Is Good

The team will have to go far to equal last year's record of 15 consecutive wins and one loss. They won in the upper division of the Mason Dixon conference and lost in the Mason Dixon playoffs to Randolph Macon, 6-3.

Since he started coaching tennis in 1935, Mr. Hurt has piled up an impressive record. In only two playing seasons since then have his teams lost more games than they won. They had only two seasons where they won and lost the same number of games. In 1944 and '45 there were no tennis matches.

Annual Alumni Fund Gets Started

By Philip E. Uhrig

In these times of an inflationary economy, independent colleges are finding it increasingly difficult to maintain standards of education to which they are dedicated while continuing to hold down the cost of this kind of education. Western Maryland is no exception.

For years the college has held the line against this spiralling economic dilemma. We have tried desperately hard to keep from raising tuition, room and board and other fees even though some increases have had to come in the past few years. Furthermore, it would be bold to predict no further increases unless we could be sure that operating costs would soon reach a peak and hold steady.

At the present time, what it actually costs the college student at Western Maryland is about $300 a year less than it costs the college to educate him. Yet we can pride ourselves on being one of the few independent coeducational colleges in the nation whose tuition has not soared above $700 a year.

To maintain a strong faculty is becoming more and more difficult. Some are being lured away by offers of higher salaries in tax supported public institutions and by other private colleges and universities with large endowment funds. Others are leaving the teaching field to find jobs in business and industry.

Not only must we continue to increase faculty salaries. We must anticipate greater costs of plant maintenance at the same time providing reserve funds for new buildings and equipment.

As the cost of operating and maintaining the college continues to rise, we have sought new sources of income. In recent years there has been an approach made to business and industry in Maryland through the Association of Independent Colleges. In five years this program has realized about $160,000 for the six colleges now associated with it.

FUND CHAIRMAN — George F. Meyls, who will once again head the Living Endowment campaign, and his grandson celebrate Christmas.

Two years ago we announced the magnificent gift from the Ford Foundation. To 630 regionally accredited, degree granting private colleges and universities a $210,000,000 endowment grant was given for the purpose of helping these institutions raise the level of faculty salaries. Of the total, Western Maryland received $214,000.

In seeking help from others one question always asked is, "What are your alumni doing to help?" In a very real way we can answer, "They are doing a good deal about it."

Annual Alumni Fund

Through our annual alumni fund known to most of you as The Living Endowment Fund (but henceforth to be called The Annual Alumni Fund), alumni have shown a tremendous interest in the College. Last year, $17,000 was contributed toward current operating expenses. This figure actually kept the college out of the "red", a position many of our colleges and universities cannot boast.

In the past four years Western Maryland has noticed quite an upsurge in annual alumni giving. During the Mid-Century Advance Program, annual giving was curtailed to make way for capital gifts. Since we resumed four years ago participation has increased and total income has moved from $4,000 to $17,000.

Not only are more alumni contributing larger amounts but within the organization of the fund program, more are working for it. Last year under the splendid leadership of Fund Chairman, George A. Meyls, Jr., '22, nearly 200 class agents participated. Again this year Mr. Meyls will lead the fund program and we are confident of having an even larger group of class agents within the framework of the organization. This kind of cooperation is indeed an encouraging note.

The Class Agent Dinner will be held on February 20, at The Marylander in Baltimore at 6:30 p.m. With the growing interest of alumni for their college exhibited so definitely in the past, we feel confident that we will reach the $20,000 mark in 1958.

Alumni and friends contributing this year will have an opportunity to designate gifts in a wider range than ever before. Formerly, annual alumni fund giving was restricted to current operating expenses. The fund will still include this but, in addition, funds may be directed to specific areas within the plant fund and general endowment.

Gift Matching Programs

Working hand in hand with colleges and universities across the nation a number of national corporations are currently supporting alumni gift-matching programs. In 1954, The General Electric Company established a corporate alumnus program. Under the provisions of this program The General

Crew Wrecks Old Ward

A familiar landmark on the Hill is down. Old Ward Hall, used as a men's dormitory since the 1890's has joined McKinstry Hall as just a building in old pictures of the campus. Completing the gutting of the building was the Western Maryland maintenance crew, many of whom had for two years done repair work on the old building. A large crane, similar to the one which lifted the Chapel steeple in place, was used in the operation. Attached was a large clam shovel which completed the destruction.

But, building demolition is just one phase of the operation of this crew. Their activities include everything from putting up snow fences, mending leaky faucets in Vetville or digging a pond for the biology department. They have even been known to pull faculty members out of snowdrifts that snagged their cars.

It isn't the easiest thing in the world to keep a campus in repair—people are the biggest factor. The maintenance department copes with everything from rambunctious freshmen who try chemistry experiments in the dorms to die-hard traditionalists who get up in arms when even a tree is cut down. Catering to such a diverse community puts mere painting and papering to shame. They can never manage to satisfy everybody.

It takes a variety of skills as well as patience to keep the college in running order. From fixing one of the space heaters in a Vetville apartment to dredging out the spring house pond so the biology department can grow various weeds is a long way. But the crew under the direction of Mr. Black is up to meeting most needs that are created around the Hill.

Many of these men are so much a part of the college that you have to have graduated pretty far back not to know at least a few of them.

WRECKING CREW—The W. M. maintenance crew is shown here at Old Ward Hall just before it was torn down. Mr. Black's crew did the inside demolition work.

Alumni Fund

Electric Educational and Charitable Fund joined the employees of the General Electric Company and their subsidiaries in the support of colleges and universities at which their employees received their higher education. In substance, they supported a gift-matching program on behalf of institutions of higher learning. Pioneered by General Electric, many other corporations (listed below) have followed similar plans. Up to a limit, specified by each company (usually $1,000 to $2,000) these concerns will match a gift by one of its employees to his or her alma mater. Already Western Maryland has benefited where our alumni are employed by General Electric, Lehigh Portland Cement and The Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation (or their subsidiaries). Over $700 have come to us through such channels. The corporations are listed here with the feeling that some of you may want to take advantage of the gift-matching program this year.

McCALL STUDENT STUDIES CANCER

Ken McCall, who graduated in 1951, is making the Western Maryland biology department proud these days.

The national science talent search conducted by Westinghouse has indirectly led one of his students on a roundabout path to the Rutgers Institute of Microbiology for help in her investigations of cancer in fowl.

Young Diane Davis, 17 year old student at Hanover Park Regional High School, went to Rutgers as the result of a conversation Ken, her high school science coordinator, had with Dr. W. R. Bryan of the National Institute at Bethesda, Maryland.

Dr. Bryan, an honorary professor at the Institute told Ken of Dr. Vincent Groupe's work in this field. So in January, Miss Davis and Ken called on Groupe, Rutgers professor of Biology, for information concerning the rous sarcoma virus in the study of cancer in chickens and turkeys. She plans to incorporate this new research system in her project for Westinghouse. Dr. Groupe is currently using this research system under a grant from the National Institute of Health.

At Western Maryland Ken was head writer in the dining hall, a member of Tri-Beta and president of Pi Alpha Alpha. From the picture it looks like Ken has lost some hair and added some pounds.

Sloan Stewart is high scorer on the team with 149 points. Stewart was also high man last year. Following close behind him is Bill Spaar with 144 and then there is a gap until freshman E. C. Chandler with 84 points.

Stewart is high man also in the rebound department. He is consistently about 10th in the nation among small colleges. Trailing Stewart is Bill Bruce with 61 points. However, Bruce has not been in all games played.

Compton Visits

Dr. Compton lectured at universities in the Far East and in Europe. Currently he is Distinguished Service Professor of Natural Philosophy at Washington University. In this role he has undertaken an intensive study of the relation of science to human affairs.

On the Western Maryland campus Dr. Compton faces a full schedule beginning with chapel service Sunday evening, March 16. On Monday he will attend several classes before speaking at the assembly for the student body. He will have lunch with members of the student body and then hold more informal discussions with students. There will be a formal dinner in the dining hall that evening and Dr. Compton will give another address followed by an informal meeting with the faculty. The physicist will attend more classes on Tuesday and address the faculty club in the evening. On Wednesday he leaves for Hood College. His talks will be on such topics as "Science and Man's View of Himself," "Human Values in a Technological Society," "Goals for Governor Theodore R. McKeldin will be invited to join the dignitaries taking part in the academic procession which will open the ceremony. Representatives of Maryland colleges and Methodist colleges in surrounding states will also take part with the Western Maryland faculty, the local clergy of Westminster and the six superintendents of the Baltimore conference.

Invitations to the dedication of Baker Memorial Chapel will be sent to the entire alumni mailing list, members of the Westminster churches and to the Methodist churches in the Baltimore conference.

COVERSTORY

The picture on the front cover may look like a heating unit. However, it is the section of the new organ that few people will ever see. The pipes are all part of the instrument's inner workings and will be hidden behind panelling. We thought you might be interested in this aspect of the organ.

WESTERN MARYLAND COLLEGE BULLETIN

Volume XXXIX

April, 1958

No. 5

Western Maryland College Bulletin, Westminster, Maryland, published eight times a year, once in the months of December, March, April, June, August and October, and twice in February, by the College.

Entered as second class matter, May 19, 1921, at the Postoffice at Westminster, Md., under the act of August 24, 1912. Accepted for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, act of October 3, 1917.

Professor Gives Reasons For Classical Study

In the last issue of the Bulletin an article by Dr. R. D. Summers, Professor of Physics, included this statement—"... The vital need is for the pupil to develop the habit of sustained mental effort. The exact sciences are well suited for such training, but so also are history, foreign languages, literature and grammar. It would be a grave error to concentrate on science to the detriment of the other subjects which are essential to the development of a well rounded individual..."

At the same time Dr. Summers was formulating his opinions, another Western Maryland professor was looking into the same theory. This past summer, Dr. William R. Ridington, Professor of Classics, made a study of The Status of Latin in Maryland that has attracted wide attention and been considerably quoted. As a result of the study Dr. Ridington, with the cooperation of the Classical Association of the Atlantic States, has developed a Latin Workshop to be held this summer on the Hill. The Workshop is designed to make more effective teachers of persons already in the field.

During the past fall an interest in the study of classics has been noticeable in Maryland. Dr. Ridington mentions below the discussion which took place in The Forum of the Sunpapers. "The Maryland Teacher" magazine also asked the professor to develop his thoughts on the subject. The following material is a portion of an article he wrote for the magazine:

"One important reason for studying Latin is that it is both interesting and useful, although not all pupils can testify that this has been their personal experience. One example of current interest in the question of the value of Latin can be found in a series of Letters to the Editor run in The Baltimore Sun. On Dec. 4, 1957, the Sun published a long letter written by Dr. Gardiner B. Moment, professor of biology at Goucher College, suggesting that 'What the times call for is an intensive and dramatic... three-year course in the history and culture of Greece and Rome.' Interest in the question was high enough for the Sun to publish a dozen and a half other letters during the next two weeks, each dealing with the question of the values of Latin study in the curriculum.

"A statistical survey of the status of Latin in Maryland, made last summer, showed that in Maryland,

Attention! Math Whizzes Challenged

If any alumni are wondering how they might do on the Pyne test, here are the five sample questions that the colonel sent to Dr. Spicer. If you have the courage to try the test, let us know how you make out. (Your editor admits that the questions are completely beyond her English-French major capabilities.)

1. If the roots of the equation  $ax^2+2bx+c=0$  are equal, prove that  $a$ ,  $b$  and  $c$  are in geometric progression, and that  $\log a$ ,  $\log b$ , and  $\log c$  are in arithmetic progression.
2. Find, and prove correct, the locus of all points, the sum of the squares of the distances of any one of which from two fixed points is equal to a given square.
3. From a certain station the angular elevation of a mountain peak in the northeast is observed to be  $A$ . A hill  $22\frac{1}{2}^\circ$  south of east whose height above the station is known to be " $h$ " is then ascended, and the mountain peak is now seen in the north at an elevation  $B$ . Prove that the height of the summit of the mountain peak above the first

PYNE OFFERS MATH PRIZE TO SCHOOL

A new prize is being offered students on campus this year—a $100 bond for mathematical proficiency called the Lt. Colonel F. C. Pyne Mathematical Award.

The prize was suggested to the school by Colonel Pyne through correspondence with Dr. Spicer of the mathematics department. Colonel Pyne said in his letter that he believes the present state of mathematical and basic scientific education is deplorable.

He adds, "Brushing aside all the fuss brought about by the 'sputniks', and Russian technological advances in general, it should be obvious to any thinking person that we have failed to inspire our younger people with a real desire to understand the basic facts of mathematics, science and engineering..."

Colonel Pyne graduated from West Point in 1924 and taught mathematics there during World War II. He noted that from the time of his graduation to the time when he began teaching "that both the entrance requirements and the course of instruction at the Academy had softened considerably..."

The colonel says that some people may figure that there is no importance to a theoretical background but he points out "it is the basis for any real further progress in science or engineering. Without such a base of fundamental thinking the average youngster would be hopelessly lost when he got to such subjects as mechanics, thermodynamics or engineering in general."

Therefore, he wrote to Dr. Spicer, "in order to stimulate interest and thought at Western Maryland College, I would be pleased to offer a prize of a $100 government bond..."

The first year Colonel Pyne is going to make up and mark the test himself just to see how many Western Maryland math students can cope with questions he was used to 30 or 40 years ago.

College Dorm Directors Do Some Reminiscing

If residents of Blanche Ward and McDaniel dorms for the past sixteen years have found it a bit difficult to put anything over on the house directors it's just because the pair probably tried the same trick when they were Western Maryland students fifty years ago.

This Spring Mrs. Nina Veale's class of 1908 will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary. Mrs. Virgie Jefferson's class of 1909 will do the same next Alumni Weekend.

As housemother for the girls in Blanche Ward, Mrs. Veale looks on the world from the benefit of her Eastern Shore background and association with a roommate she refers to as "wild". She claims that the wild influence has been her major difficulty since. Mrs. J., who keeps watch over McDaniel's halls, doesn't suggest that her roommate had any great influence. She just remarks that they both had red hair—must have been quite a combination.

Little Escapes Them

Knowing this background makes it easier to see why little escapes the two housemothers. Mrs. J. gets considerable enjoyment out of the various attempts of the girls to fool her. They think they are being so funny and clever, she says, when all the time "I did the same thing fifty years ago". (Readers note: Students don't as a rule read the Alumni Bulletin so we are safe in exposing secrets!).

When the two get together for an afternoon chat, a third party can just sit back and take it all in. Just a casual question about unusual happenings or changes got them talking for an hour.

Both decided immediately that the most unnatural situation came during World War II. Mrs. Veale was emphatic in her opinion that the "blackouts were a perfect nuisance". Invariably, she recalled, where there was an air raid alert most of the male student body would be in or around the girls' dorms. Of course, they had to take cover in the nearest shelter which meant that the boys huddled in the dark lounge and the girls sat behind doors in the dark halls. To amuse themselves, she remembers, they spent the time singing back and forth to each other.

Both housemothers agree that they wouldn't want to go through such an experience again. Everything was in confusion, tense and emotional. One major problem was that they were new to the work and it takes a while to acquire the right approach to the job. That made a difficult situation just a little harder to cope with, they agreed.

100 Candles Hidden

Mrs. Veale says one remarkable thing she will never forget concerns a store of 100 candles Mrs. J. had hidden away in McDaniel. Mrs. Jefferson declares the remarkable part of the story was that she could remember where the candles were when she needed them. All of this had to do with Hurricane Hazel which knocked out the Hill's electricity. The lights first gave out just as everyone was going to the dining hall. Then as dinner was going along they went off for the second time and stayed off. Mrs. Jefferson, who says she never throws anything away, had collected the candles after some SCA affair. One candle was placed at the end of each hall and she spent the evening going around putting up a fresh supply.

Mrs. Veale tells another story on Mrs. Jefferson concerning summer school. (According to the McDaniel housemother, Mrs. Veale slightly embroiders the tale.) At any rate one of the summer school students managed to break her nose. It was squashed flat and for the first few minutes the two housemothers couldn't find a nurse. Mrs. J. says it was a time to feel completely helpless and she made the most inane remark of her career. According to Mrs. Veale, she looked at the injured girl and seriously inquired, "Honey, does your nose always look like that?"

50 Year President Retires

"Indispensable man" the headline says in big black letters and then there is this final paragraph: "It's corny to say the little fellow will be missed. More pertinent, and with due respect to Mansfield and future leaders, they're just not going to be able to replace him."

Nobody would mind at all having such a statement printed about himself. But, the man this article praises is Walter E. Short, president of the Class of 1908 of Western Maryland College. The quotes are from a featured article in the Newark, New Jersey "Star-Ledger". Another New Jersey paper, "The Leader" of Wildwood honored Mr. Short on the editorial page.

It seems best to quote the article by Sid Dorfman in the Newark paper which added up Mr. Short's accomplishments:

"Walter E. Short, 76, the 'indispensable man', retires officially December 31 (1957) as Executive Secretary of the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic Association. In terms of schoolboy sports in New Jersey, there couldn't be a more monumental milestone. The state association, which brought administrative order, reputation and athletic wealth out of chaos in New Jersey High School sports, owes its origin, growth and present stature to the only boss it has ever known.

"The history of the Association is virtually the history of schoolboy sports as they are known today. Synonymously, in that 39-year era, Walter E. Short has been the Association's only secretary.

Then Dorfman continues: "Quick-witted, gentle, diplomatic Walter E. Short was born in Georgetown, Delaware, went to high school there, then to North Carolina Military Academy and finally to Western Maryland, where he was class president in his soph, junior and senior years".

LOOKING OVER THE CONSOLE—One of the workmen who installed the Whiteford organ checks the console. It was brought to Western Maryland from Bruton Parish Church in Williamsburg, Virginia.

Organ Ready For Recital On May 4

When the Whiteford organ was being installed in Baker Memorial Chapel it looked for a while more like a heating unit than a musical instrument.

The large pipes or ducts that work the bellows gave the impression of something very practical but not very beautiful. An entirely different idea of the new organ will be received by the congregation that hears Virgil Fox play on May 4 at the dedication.

It took three men over a month to get the organ put together for the tuner who then readied the instrument for the recital. Members of the faculty and student body, few of whom had ever seen the assembling of an organ before, were interested over-the-shoulder spectators of the entire operation. If there is any part the workmen weren't asked to explain, they must have put it into place in the dark.

There are all kinds of technical facts that could be placed in this Bulletin but few alumni, including the editor of the Bulletin, are going to understand such information. So we will leave it at this—there are 2,310 pipes attached to the organ. Some of the pipes are pure tin, containing no alloy, and were removed from the organ in Mr. Whiteford's home to be placed in the Western Maryland instrument.

Dedication of the Whiteford Organ and Carillon
Recital, Virgil Fox

Dedication Plans Are Complete

As the Bulletin goes to press Baker Memorial Chapel stands just about ready for dedication on April 20.

The walls are painted, tile is down, the organ is going into place, furniture is ordered and excitement is mounting.

Few of the plans for dedication as outlined in the February Bulletin have changed. There will be an academic procession and numerous special guests. Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, resident Bishop of Washington will deliver the sermon at the 3 p.m. ceremony.

The chapel is planned to be a living, working part of the college community. In the lower level there is room for classrooms, the choir will have a place to rehearse and Professor Alfred de Long will have his office there. There is also a very nice room looking out over Hoffa Field. However, President Ensor says that a lounge is more of a luxury than the college can afford so the room will do double duty for seminars and small classes.

As for the rest of the building program—most plans depend on the new seminary in Washington. Wesley Seminary still expects to be off the Hill and in its new location by fall. During part of the winter there was considerable doubt whether or not they would make it but chances seem better now. After the Seminary moves the college must make necessary renovations and remodeling. President Ensor says that at best the college won't be able to use the buildings until the beginning of second semester.

Old Main will remain, of course, until the Seminary renovations are completed and the new student union building is constructed. When the tower and remaining structures are removed, landscaping for the front of the chapel can begin.

Spring Sports Schedule Under Way

Now that the weather is a little less violent, the track and baseball teams are hard at work on the back campus. Golfers are beginning to make the rounds of the course and Coach Hurt's tennis team was on the courts almost before the snow melted away.

Baseball coach Dick Pugh, in his first year on the Hill, hasn't any idea as yet just what the Terror nine will do. He is working with a nucleus of players from last year's squad which had a five and eight win-loss record. Among the promising holdovers are: Buzz Lambert, Sloan Stewart, Bob Cole, Fred Stoever, Joel Bailey, John Coolahan, Clark Kirkman, Paul Zimmerman and Gene Michaels.

Dick Pugh came to the Hill from Lothian, Maryland, where he was head football and baseball coach and assistant principal. He is a graduate of Wilson Teachers College in Washington, D. C. Pugh assisted with football in the fall, directed the successful junior varsity basketball team this winter and now takes over as head coach in baseball.

'57 Graduate Now Teaches In Japan

According to Pat Patterson, '57, the day may soon arrive when Western Maryland College will have an Alumni Club in Japan.

Pat is in Tokyo teaching at the same University as Taeko Kamiyama, '52. The two often get together for talks about the Hill. There are a lot of others in Japan who have studied here at Western Maryland — enough, probably to form an Alumni Club.

Describes Activities

Pat recently sent The Bulletin a letter describing her activities in Japan. "I arrived in Japan," she writes, "on September 11 after a lovely train trip across the United States and a never-to-be-forgotten voyage over the 'calm' Pacific. My new home is a rather large Japanese-style house, located in a good neighborhood. I live with three other young missionaries who have welcomed me and given me a fundamental education in Japanese culture."

The Western Marylander had expected to teach in the high school but she says "I was very surprised to learn that I would teach English Conversation in the Aoyama University and Junior College. Aoyama Gakuin is one of the finest and largest mission schools in Japan. It has over 10,000 students, ranging from primary through graduate school. The more than 30 acres of campus are dotted with staunch gray buildings, brown playing fields . . . The students are eager to learn, and we have a wonderful time sharing our experiences. I love these students and this teaching."

Teaches Sunday School

On Sunday mornings Pat teaches a high school Bible Class. Since their knowledge of English is limited, she says, they go slowly. Pat also attends the Japanese service at the Aoyama Church. "Although I do not understand the Japanese language," she writes, "I have found that there is a universal Christian fellowship that transcends language and nationality. It is thrilling to feel a part of it.

"Tokyo itself is large—the largest city on earth according to the latest population figures. It is a city of contrasts—from the wide, neon-lit wonderland of the Ginza, its main street, to the narrow winding back streets with their gay paper lanterns; from towering 8 or 10 story department stores to the tiny shops where only the owner and one or two customers can comfortably stand; from the modern efficient trains to the few rarely remaining rickshas; from trucks to hand-pulled carts. These, however, are not the real Japan, nor is Japan the rice paddies in golden harvest garb or even snow crowned Mount Fuji, rising in symbolic as well as concrete grandeur above the horizon.

"The real Japan is found in the eyes of a child tied on the back of its mother, in the self-conscious smile of a uniformed student on his way to school, in the tenderness awkwardly disguised by a young married couple, and in the tired form of an old woman bent beneath the heavy load on her back. The real Japan is its 90 million people—and we believe that the only true religion for them is the Christianity we preach. God grant an adequacy to our smallness . . ."

Whiteford Organ Ready

Also, the Whiteford organ is the largest in this area.

The instrument was constructed and installed by the Aeolian-Skinner Organ Company of Boston of which Joseph S. Whiteford, '43, is president. He and his father, Roger J. Whiteford, '06, are presenting the organ to the College. The carillon, which they are also giving, is being made by the Schulmerich Carillon Inc. of Sellersville, Pennsylvania. Dr. Ensor says he isn't sure yet just when and what the carillon will play aside from the Alma Mater. It will be possible to play the carillon from the organ.

The console case for the organ was originally in the Bruton Parish Church in historic Williamsburg, Virginia. The Skinner company placed a new organ in the church and the antique console didn't quite fit so the company removed it. It is now being placed in the Western Maryland chapel. When the architect learned this, he designed the panelling of the chancel to match the panelling in the console case which gives the chapel a very authentic Colonial air.

Classical Study

as in other sections of the country, there has been increased enrollment in Latin courses, a shortage of qualified Latin teachers, and indications that Latin would be offered in more schools were qualified teachers available, and if school enrollment were large enough to justify the offering in smaller schools.

"A student's interest in a subject, however, is not proof of a subject's educational value," Professor Ridington continued. "Modern Latin textbooks give students a broad introduction to various phases of Graeco-Roman civilization, with glances at the fields of art, history, mythology, English vocabulary, and Graeco-Roman influences in various aspects of our Western culture. It is this wide range of introductions to aspects of the Humanities that is one important contribution to the educational values of the study of Latin . . ."

"Next to an interest in words and their meanings," the professor pointed out, "many students find their most enjoyable side benefit from the study of Latin their introduction to classical mythology. Students can develop an awareness of mythological allusions and symbols which they perhaps never noticed before at all, and certainly did not appreciate. This is of course significant for students who will deal with literature and need to know the countless mythological allusions in Western writers. For example, the familiar 'Niobe all tears', or 'What's Hecuba to him or he to Hecuba' from Hamlet."

Further along the article says—"It is not only the student interested in literature who benefits, however, for mythological allusions appear in quantity in our ads, cartoons, magazines, art, and one student of mine even reported an allusion in the U. S. Infantry Manual. Life can be more interesting if these allusions can add their color to one's appreciation of what he sees and reads.

"There were enough cartoons published in papers and magazines which I personally read so that I am able to give students a history of the recent war from the time of the Rome-Berlin axis to its end by showing them cartoons which pictured political figures in familiar mythological situations.

"For many students a course in Latin has been an introduction to regular, persistent, and painstaking study. The habit of thorough daily preparation in a subject where cumulative learning does not allow for lapses from the habit of study is often learned from such a subject as Latin," which points up Dr. Summers' theory.

"There are many aspects of the values to be derived from a study of Latin which I have not touched upon," Dr. Ridington writes. "Latin is an excellent base for the learning of the various Romance languages, where vocabularies are even more largely derived from Latin than in English. Latin is a 'must' for teachers of languages such as French, and contributes to the understanding of those who would study the development of our western culture, whether it be in philosophy, religion, literature, or art. The Latin language assists people who deal with language and words as a significant part of their daily lives, and is particularly helpful to people using technical vocabularies, such as law, medicine, the ministry, and journalism . . ."

"Perhaps I myself think of Latin most as an introduction to broader understandings and skills, and therefore to more enjoyable living. I think life can be happier, have more meaning, and represent more cultured living when those of us who are in the tradition of Western culture study Latin. It is true that this inoculation has not been successful in all students and that not all students are willing to make the necessary contributions for success. For those who can, want to, and do study Latin I have always felt that a significant value has been added to life."

Dr. Ridington has been selected to participate in a panel discussion at the three day meeting of the American Classical League to be held at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio during June. The panel will study the work of the joint committee of American Classical Organizations which deals with placement and preparation of teachers. Western Maryland's professor has also been asked to prepare and administer a one-hour test to the Pennsylvania Junior Classical League Convention at Susquehannock High School in Glen Rock, Pennsylvania on May 10. The report and a discussion of "The Status of Latin in Maryland" discussed above will be published in the national publication "Classical World".

DIRECTORS

"The girls are more self-sufficient now", the two agree—more so than when they came 16 years ago and much more than when they were students. Of course students now on campus, points out Mrs. Veale, were raised during the war and got used to taking care of things. It is unusual now, the directors say, to be bothered at night. The girls take care of their own problems and each other. One reason for less difficulty, Mrs. Veale declares, is that there are fewer rules. Rules are generally a temptation to be broken. Mrs. Veale also said that the student government relieves the housemothers and the deans of a lot of problems. It is all a part of the student being willing to take on responsibility.

In the midst of all this serious talk about students, Mrs. Jefferson was reminded of the time she was awakened in the middle of the night by a tremendous noise. By the time she got up and oriented, the commotion was coming from the second floor. When she arrived on the scene three girls were found chasing one lone mouse.

The major problem in trying to write about these two ladies is that they both object to such publicity. Neither one really feels that being a successful housemother is the extraordinary accomplishment that the rest of the faculty knows it is. They point out, "If we couldn't get continual amusement from the situations the girls get themselves into, we couldn't bear to live with them."

Remember Spring On The Hill?

This picture wasn't taken this spring as Joan Durno, '57 and Eddie Smith '55 could tell you but the season doesn't change much on the Hill. We still have the stone bench, the daffodils and hyacinths always bloom and in spring a young man's fancy invariably turns to thoughts of coeds. A Washington newspaper columnist advised his readers recently "if you've never visited the campus at Westminster, it's a most attractive setting . . .". We add if you haven't been back lately, you should pay us a visit.

WILLS FUND TOTAL GIVEN

by Dr. John D. Makosky

As many alumni know, Dr. Wills' old classroom on the top floor of Science Hall has been transformed into a seminar room. The idea was to change the formal and conventional classroom into an attractive, comfortable library-type room with pictures on the walls, draperies at the windows, book-filled cases, work tables and movable chairs.

The changes essential to use have been made and the room is in service as planned. The college removed the blackboards, replastered and painted the walls, provided a tile flooring, installed six large bookcases which house Dr. Wills' library, much of which was given to the college. Contributions from the Black and White Fraternity, sponsored for many years by Dr. Wills, and from the Delta Sigma Kappa Sorority, sponsored by Mrs. Wills, purchased three conference tables and twenty matching chairs. The Lloyd Embry portrait of Dr. Wills, painted in 1940 by an outstanding American artist, hangs on the front wall of the room.

In order to complete the room, alumni who had majored in English were asked to contribute. Letters were posted on February to more than 1,000 graduates in classes from 1923 to the present time. As this report is written (on March 7) replies have been received from about 100 alumni, and nearly $400.00 has been contributed. This amount will purchase many of the items planned for the room, though it is not yet sufficient for all. A small desk matching the conference tables, several incidental tables, lamps, and comfortable chairs to encourage browsing, as well as draperies, are needed to give the dignity appropriate to a memorial for Dr. Wills. Money is still coming in, however, and perhaps in time the room will be complete as planned.

Though letters were sent only to alumni who had majored in English, other former students may wish to contribute to the completion of the Wills room. Any who do so should communicate with me.

A feature of this project especially gratifying to the English Department is the advice and information furnished by alumni about vocations they have entered and the preparation they would recommend to students considering

400 Alumni Return For Annual Day

Over 400 alumni returned to Western Maryland for Annual Alumni Day on May 31.

Registration, class meetings, luncheons and casual chats kept them busy most of the day. At 4:30 in the afternoon there was a reception in McDaniel Lounge for all alumni. Dr. Helen G. Howerly, dean of women, was college hostess for the affair.

At 6 p.m. the alumni lined up by classes and paraded into the college dining hall for their annual banquet. Over 350 attended the dinner with the class of 1948, celebrating its tenth anniversary, accounting for the largest group. The '48 class had 60 members at the banquet. Master of ceremonies was William E. Pennington, class of '47.

Guests of honor for the weekend were members of the 50 year class whose president, Walter E. Short, received one of three Alumni citations presented at the banquet.

COVERSTORY

The young man and woman on the front are winners of the Alumni Citizenship Award. See the story on page 3.

Three Honored By College

Three graduates were honored by the college at the Annual Alumni Banquet on May 31 as part of the celebration of Alumni Day.

Dr. Ensor presented citations to Walter E. Short, '08 and G. Frank Thomas, '08. George A. Meyls, Jr. received his citation by proxy in Standard, California.

Mr. Short's citation was in the field of Public Education. The 50-year president is former executive secretary of the New Jersey Athletic Association which he originated and administered for 39 years. He was Director of Health and Physical Education for the Trenton, New Jersey High Schools from 1917 to 1947. Mr. Short has long been active in the metropolitan New York area alumni association.

Mr. Thomas' citation was in the field of Business and Public Service. An agricultural enthusiast, he is former president of the Tri-State Cannery Association and of Thomas and Company, a Director of the Potomac-Edison Company and Trustee of the Home for the Aged at Williamsport, Maryland and Carlisle, Pennsylvania. Mr. Thomas has been a trustee of the college since 1951.

A citation for outstanding Alumni Service went to Mr. Meyls. It was presented to him in California by Frank F. Momyer, President and General Manager of the Pickering Lumber Corporation. Mr. Meyls has been associated with the West Coast Lumber industry for the past 30 years. He has been chairman of the Annual Alumni fund for the past two years during which the fund has tripled. Under his chairmanship, the class of 1922 has for 3 years led all others in total contributions.

WESTERN MARYLAND COLLEGE BULLETIN

Volume XXXIX

June, 1958

No. 6

Western Maryland College Bulletin, Westminster, Maryland, published eight times a year, once in the months of December, March, April, June, August and October, and twice in February, by the College.

Entered as second class matter, May 19, 1921, at the Postoffice at Westminster, Md., under the act of August 24, 1912. Accepted for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in section 1103, act of October 3, 1917.

MATHIAS TO HEAD ALUMNI

F. Kale Mathias, '35, of Westminster was elected president of the Alumni Association at the Annual Banquet on May 31. The election was part of Alumni Day activities.

Mr. Mathias, a Westminster businessman, pledged the support of the Association to Dr. Ensor in his acceptance speech. Others elected included: vice president, C. Lease Bussard, '34, Frederick; treasurer, Carl L. Schaeffer, '14, Westminster; secretary, Philip E. Uhrig, '52, Westminster.

Elected to the Board of Governors were: Mrs. Sara Lee Larmore Brohawn, '50, Baltimore and Mrs. Anna Lee Park Makovitch, '52, Westminster. Alumni Visitors to the Board of Governors are Mrs. Mindelle Seltzer Gober, '46, Baltimore and Robert Y. Dubel, '48, Pikesville. The immediate past president is Alleck A. Resnick, '47, of Baltimore.

Seniors Get Awards At Banquet

WRAY MOWBRAY

The Alumni Citizenship Awards went this year to Calvin Wray Mowbray, Jr. of Cambridge, Maryland and Miss Judith Amelia Corby of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

The awards, two silver trays, were presented at the Senior Banquet on May 28. Mrs. William Ensinger, class of '49, was chairman of the committee which made the selection.

The Alumni Citizenship award goes to the two students who have shown themselves of service to the campus during their senior year. Miss Corby and Mr. Mowbray led the Student Government Association. Both were named to Who's Who.

MISS JUDY CORBY

Mr. Mowbray, a history-education major, was a star on the tennis team and captain in his junior year. He was also active in the Freshman Advisory Council and the Interfraternity Council. Wray is a member of Gamma Beta Chi.

Miss Corby, president of the Women's Council, was an art-education major. She was active in the Freshman Advisory Council and served as vice president of the Future Teachers of America. She was a Pom Pom girl, took part in intramural sports and was tapped a Trumpeter. Judy is a member of Phi Alpha Mu.

The award says that the persons selected "should be universally respected". Also, "they should have maturity of judgment to determine what is best for Western Maryland. . ."

The citation continues, "Recipients of these awards should be students who have given dignity and stability to the role of the undergraduate. Reliability, responsibility, and unobtrusive genuineness are qualities these students should possess."

CITATIONS PRESENTED—Dr. Ensor gives Alumni citations to Walter Short and Frank Thomas at the Alumni Banquet.

Four Honored By College At Commencement

Four honorary degrees were presented at the 88th commencement exercises held in Alumni Hall on June 2. There were 126 members of the graduating class receiving bachelor degrees and 14 Master of Education degrees were awarded.

Honorary degrees were presented to: Leon E. Hickman, vice president and general counsel of the Aluminum Company of America; the Rev. John Paul Lambertson, Pittsburgh; the Rev. Elmer N. Hassell, Lexington, Virginia; the Rev. John B. Jones, Washington, D. C.

Mr. Hickman, who was the commencement speaker, received the degree of Doctor of Laws. He is a graduate of Morningside College and received his Bachelor of Laws degree at Harvard University in 1925. Mr. Hickman, a distinguished lawyer, is also active in the work of his church in the Pittsburgh area.

Rev. Lambertson, superintendent of the Pittsburgh District of the

SPEAKER HONORED—Leon E. Hickman, speaker at the 88th Commencement, received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree.

Pittsburgh Conference of the Methodist Church, received his Bachelor of Arts, summa cum laude, in 1928 from Western Maryland. He received the degree of Bachelor of Sacred Theology from Westminster Theological Seminary in 1931.

A graduate of Western Maryland in 1933, Rev. Hassell is pastor of Trinity Methodist Church in Lexington. He has spent all of his ministry in the Virginia Conference. Rev. Hassell also writes and his contributions are frequently found in church publications.

Minister of Calvary Methodist Church in Washington, Rev. Jones is a graduate of the college in the class of 1941. For four years he served as an instructor and Director of Public Relations for the college. Rev. Jones received the Bachelor of Sacred Theology and Master of Sacred Theology from Westminster Theological Seminary.

Crist Receives Fellowship At Princeton

Larry S. Crist, graduate in the class of 1955, has received a second fellowship at Princeton University.

Larry just completed a year of graduate work under the Boudinot Fellowship. He also taught three hours of beginning French during the first semester. Next year Larry will be working under the Franklin Murphy, Jr. Fellowship. He is aiming for a Ph.D. in French.

Larry has finished his qualifying work and has passed the German exam. An honor graduate in French and Classics, he will be one of the first PhDs from Western Maryland's language department.

Dr. Wenner Plans Book On Steevens

Dr. Evelyn W. Wenner, associate professor of English, will have a leave of absence for the next academic year to complete some research. She has received a grant-in-aid from the Modern Language Association (through the Committee on Research Activities).

Dr. Wenner plans to complete research on George Steevens, Shakespearean scholar (1736-1800). Terms of the award specify that needs for bringing to completion a project well advanced are considered first. Attention is given, the Association says, "both to the applicant (his qualifications for research, past accomplishments, recommendation by reputable sponsors) and to the project (soundness as judged by scholars knowledgeable in the field)".

Dr. Wenner has done research on Steevens in the Folger Shakespeare Library and has canvassed by letter many libraries in this country and abroad. She plans to go back to the Folger to search for materials that she may have missed in earlier study. At the end of the summer she will go to England where her unused resources are to be found. There are unpublished writings by Steevens in the Bodleian, the John Rylands Library and the British Museum. Important for the personal side of the biography are documents in Somerset House and the Public Record Office, London, parish records in Middlesex and Essex and manuscripts in the possession of Miss Philippa and Norma Steevens of Iwerne Minster.

"My purpose," Dr. Wenner says, "is to complete a critical biography of Steevens, whose abilities brought high praise from his contemporaries and the signal honors of an editorial alliance with Dr. Samuel Johnson." Almost no one, the professor indicates, has done anything on Steevens.

GAYLON S. ROSS

ROSS WORKS IN STANDARDS BUREAU LAB

A 1942 graduate, Gaylon S. Ross, is engaged in some important research according to information from the National Bureau of Standards in Washington, D. C. He and an associate have developed a purification process for substances that are difficult to purify under standard conditions. The process is called "fractional melting".

Ross is taking part in a broad program of the Bureau in research on determination of the basic properties of materials. He works in the pure substances laboratory of the Chemistry Division of the National Bureau of Standards. He is engaged in the separation and purification of chemicals, using physical and chemical techniques.

After graduation from the Hill in 1942, Ross went on to further study at the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the National Bureau of Standards Graduate School, the University of Maryland and the University of Chicago. He joined the staff of the National Bureau of Standards in 1950.

The author of a number of technical papers in his field, Mr. Ross is a member of the American Chemical Society and Alpha Chi Sigma. He and his wife and their six children reside at 11814 Timber Lane in Rockville, Maryland.

PYNE AWARD WON BY SENIOR GIRL

A senior student, Miss Ethel Vonderheide, won the Col. Pyne Mathematics award with a score of 100%.

Second in the exam was Miss Carol Lee Petterson, a junior. Behind the two women came James May and Erich Willen, seniors, and Jay W. Francis, a sophomore. Dr. Clyde A. Spicer presented the $100 bond at the final student assembly.

Colonel Pyne marked the papers himself in order to get some idea how Western Maryland students would cope with questions dealing in mathematical theory. In a letter to Dr. Spicer concerning the results, the Colonel said he found the tests interesting. "All of these youngsters", Col. Pyne wrote, "are well grounded in fundamental mathematics. . . The fact that two girls led the parade is most interesting."

In commenting on the test and award he added, "From here on I think I will take advantage of the Princeton testing service, but I assure you that this has been a most stimulating experience. This particular group of youngsters shows evidence of good mathematical basic training and are off to a good start if they want to go further. I believe you are to be personally congratulated on the job you have done on these young people."

The editor in the last issue of the Bulletin challenged alumni to try their hand at some sample questions. The response was not overwhelming. Probably most alumni thought it was the better part of valor not to expose themselves to such an ordeal.

SENIORS PROCESS—As part of the Dedication Services for Baker Memorial Chapel, the Senior Class put on their academic robes for the first time and joined the opening procession.

Busy Spring Kept Campus Hopping

It was a busy spring on the Hill this year. To a calendar already crowded with the usual events, we added a few special occasions making the round of activity more hectic than ever.

Highlight of Spring was dedication of Baker Memorial Chapel and the Whiteford Organ. Overflow crowds turned up on campus for both occasions surpassing the most optimistic estimates that had been made. Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, resident Bishop of Washington, addressed the chapel dedication audience on April 20. On May 4, Virgil Fox presented a concert as dedication of the Whiteford Organ.

It is interesting to note in passing that the chapel was constructed for less than the original estimate. Many people have looked at the building that now dominates the Hill and concluded that it must have cost several hundred thousand dollars more than the estimate. But the final cost, as released by President Ensor's office was $587,748 including the organ.

May Day came along as part of the Organ Dedication weekend. Miss Carol Burton of Baltimore had to be crowned in Alumni Hall because of rain but the affair lost none of its festiveness. The ROTC scheduled its usual year-end parades and held a mock war back campus one spring evening. Rose Cup and Lantern Chain were duly celebrated by the women.

A special event this spring was a housecleaning campaign put on by the freshmen women and Dean Howery. Accepting bids from both men and women this crew cleaned rooms all over campus to earn money for a school in Japan. Some of the men's rooms will never be quite the same after the thorough cleaning they got on that Saturday afternoon. And Dean David's office, which was Dean Howery's allotted job, has not yet recovered.

As the year came to a close the seniors dedicated the 1958 Aloha to Dr. Jean Kerschner of the Biology department at the final Student Government Assembly. On a very hot May Sunday several members of the Art Department set up a display at the annual Baltimore Art Festival in Druid Hill Park. There was the final art show, the commencement play, Baccalaureate Sunday and finally, Commencement.

OXNAM SPEAKS—Delivering the sermon of dedication was Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, resident Bishop of Washington.

HOVEY ELECTED ENGLISH GROUP PRESIDENT

Dr. Richard B. Hovey, associate professor of English, has been elected president of the Middle Atlantic Group of the College English Association.

The nation-wide organization, of which Dr. Hovey heads the Maryland-District of Columbia group, is concerned with the teaching of writing and English and American Literature in universities, colleges and junior colleges.

The Mid-Atlantic group holds yearly meetings at which time addresses and papers are presented. Last year Dr. Hovey gave the opening address, a treatment of the problems involved in motivating students to write. This summer the speech is being published in The Bulletin of the American Association of University Professors.

Dr. Hovey, who recently completed a biography of the American critic, John Jay Chapman, is a graduate of the University of Cincinnati. He received his Masters and PhD. degrees from Harvard University.

Miss Fannie Merrick Retires

MISS FRANCES B. MERRICK

Miss Frances B. Merrick, a member of the class of 1908, will retire this year after teaching in Maryland schools for 50 years.

A number of Miss Merrick's friends and classmates sent information to The Bulletin about her including a testimonial from the former minister of her church.

Following graduation from Western Maryland in 1908, Miss

Merrick taught for a while at Union Mills and then returned to her home in Sudlersville. For three years she taught at a rural school called Unicorn and then went to Centreville where she had charge of the second grade until 1918. Miss Merrick returned to Sudlersville that year and has taught history and foreign languages there until now.

According to close friends Miss Merrick has always taken a deep personal interest in all of her students. She is an active member of the Sudlersville Community Club.

For many years Miss Merrick taught Sunday School and later was chosen to be superintendent of the Sunday School at Calvary-Asbury Methodist Church. She still holds that position and is a faithful member of the church choir. The Rev. J. C. Hanby, former pastor of the church calls her "one of the ablest and most efficient superintendents during my long service as a minister." He adds, "Miss Fannie was also outstanding in the high school where she taught, she was one of the best and highly respected by her students, always firm yet always willing to give unstintingly of her time to any pupil in the subjects in which they needed help during the periods or after school hours."

Rev. Hanby concludes that "her life, with its many activities in church, in school and her community, speaks well of the training she received at Western Maryland College . . ."

Miss Merrick came to Western Maryland from Crumpton, Queen Anne's County where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. John Merrick lived. Her family includes a long line of Western Maryland people. Her maternal grandfather was vice-president of the college under Dr. J. T. Ward and also a teacher in the seminary. Her mother and two uncles attended the college, also a sister and nine cousins. One cousin, F. Murray Benson, is chairman of the Board of Trustees.

ALUMNI RETURN—Among the many guests at Dedication were Miss Nannie Lease, left, and Miss Corinne Ford, both of the class of 1895. They were seniors at the college when the original Baker Chapel was being constructed. In fact, Miss Ford dug the very first spadeful of earth to start construction. Now residents of Gaithersburg, they both thoroughly enjoyed the services.

Seven Faculty Members Celebrate Twentieth Year

Twenty years ago a rather large group of new faculty and staff members appeared at Western Maryland. Today seven of those people are still on the Hill.

Finishing 20 years on campus are: Dr. James Earp, Dr. William R. Ridington, Miss Daisy Smith, Miss Helen Gray, Mr. Oliver Spangler, Miss Louise Shipley and Miss Martha Manahan.

In 1938, Mr. Spangler remembers, the first faculty meeting of the year was held in the second floor of the library building. He himself lived in the end room of McKinstry Hall overlooking Science Hall. There was a faculty lounge in what is now the art classroom and his piano studio was in the ceramics room.

Men Protested

Mr. Spangler recalls that right over his studio was the men's infirmary and often he got protests from the patients during practice and lesson sessions. The whole area now devoted to art and Public Relations was then the music department. This was before it was moved to Levine Hall.

Miss Smith and Miss Gray entered the Home Economics Department at the same time. Since then about 200 women have graduated as majors in the department. This spring the graduates were queried as to positions, marriage and children. Almost without exception, the women added a special note to the two professors thanking them for such excellent preparation. Right now the Home Economics department is still located in Hering Hall but fairly soon the department will have new quarters. It is expected that part of the present seminary building will be devoted to the Home Ec. department.

Art Has Grown

Miss Shipley's department has grown too. The Art workrooms now spread all over the first floor of Old Main. There are workrooms for ceramics and sculpture and a well equipped craft room. The most recent addition to the department is the college gallery which during the school season attracts many outstanding artists and visitors.

With the increased numbers of applications that yearly come to the college, Miss Manahan keeps busy all year long in the Registrar's office. Since the end of World War II that office, located in the former Carroll Inn, has grown in complexity. As part of the rearrangement of the campus after the seminary buildings are acquired, Miss Manahan's office will be among those moved across the road and into the seminary.

Curriculum Changed

When Dr. Earp arrived on campus he taught psychology before starting the department of sociology here on the Hill. And, while he has always been located in Lewis Hall and doesn't see much change in the students, things have changed in the department. In the first place the Sociology department has grown to include several more professors, more and more majors and the curriculum is slowly changing to meet new needs.

Dr. Earp feels that the biggest improvements in his twenty years on campus can be seen in the increase of library facilities—he is also a member of the committee at work on plans for a new library. Living quarters for students have much improved he says, recalling the day a wall in Owings Hall fell in on a boy's bed.

Step Speeded

Commenting on the other members of the 20 year group, he added that he had noticed a considerable speed-up in Mr. Spangler's step since his sojourn in the Army. And, he wondered aloud, who has taken his place in removing the cobwebs from the management house ceilings for Miss Smith and Miss Gray.

Home Ec. Grads Respond To Questionnaire

There is an interesting set of statistics now on file in the Public Relations Office. The information has been accumulating for about a month and concerns Home Economics graduates.

The office has addresses for 167 of the approximately 190 women who have majored in the department in the past 20 years. Cards went out to each one requesting information as part of a tribute to Miss Daisy Smith and Miss Helen Gray who are celebrating their 20th year with Western Maryland. Of those 167, 134 answered.

The statistics are as follows: out of 134, 123 are married; they have between them 245 children; 32 have done some graduate work and 74 have taught or are still teaching. In other categories, dieticians in hospitals, cafeteria managers or home economists for commercial firms were the leading occupations. Among the more recent graduates it was interesting to note the occurrence of jobs in television.

For a comparison among classes; 1941 led all the rest in the number of children with 29; five of the class of 1939 have gone to graduate school which puts them ahead of the field; '39 also leads in the number of teachers with 8.

The variety of jobs that the home economics majors have held is rather remarkable. They range from bank tellers to PhDs. There are chemical analysts, bacteriologists, social workers, nursery school teachers or operators, merchandisers, buyers and 4-H club agents.

Almost all who answered added a comment on the bottom of the card. In addition to congratulating the two professors they stated how valuable the training they received on the Hill has been.

Home economics majors who are going to attend may like to know that Miss Smith has been elected to be one of Maryland Home Eco-

Colonel Gets New Air Force Award

Lt. Col. William C. Robinson, class of '41, is one of the first military personnel at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base to be presented—at least in a token presentation—the new Air Force Commendation medal.

General E. W. Rawlings, Commander of Air Materiel Command, made the presentation last month. The new medal was approved in March, but has not yet been produced and will not be available until December.

The award to Col. Robinson was for his meritorious service as secretary of the Air Materiel Command Council from September, 1956 to November, 1957. In addition, he served as personal executive and aide-de-camp to General Rawlings from August, 1956 to April, 1958. He is now chief of the Aircraft and Missiles Branch of AMC's Weapon Systems Staff Division.

The Colonel entered military service in June, 1941. He participated in 13 B-24 missions as a navigator with the 15th Air Force in Italy during World War II and has been awarded the Air Medal and the Commendation Ribbon in addition to the new award.

Col. Robinson is married to the former Jane Fraley, class of 1942. They have two sons, Neil, 9 and Stephen 7.

PRIZE AWARDED—Dr. C. A. Spicer, professor of mathematics, awarded the Col. F. C. Pyne Award to Miss Ethel Vonderheide, '58.

Education's Importance Cited

Dr. Ralph B. Price, professor of economics, has written an article concerning the value of a college education. While it is directed primarily at prospective students, it is thought provoking for alumni.

It is customary to speak about the "value of a college education" in terms of dollars and cents. Whatever its monetary value this is a superficial way to evaluate an education because its contribution to the enjoyment and enrichment of living in non-monetary ways is so great. But since its monetary value is more tangible, let us consider it for a moment. It is widely agreed that a bachelor's degree is on the average worth $100,000 in future earning power. Is this degree a good investment?

At Western Maryland College it will cost the average student about $1,400 per year for college expenses and incidentals. This is your basic outlay per year; multiply this by four and subtract $400 per year three summers' earnings (nation-wide average earnings of a college student) and you have $4,400. But you have been unable to earn regularly during these four years, so such a missed opportunity should be calculated as implicit cost. At average wages of $65 per week this would amount to about $12,000 (counting out your summer earnings), providing a total cost of your degree of over $16,000.00.

This is truly a staggering figure! Are the four years of college worth the sacrifice? If a bachelor's degree is worth $100,000 over an individual's working lifetime, say 45 years, it would provide an average annual return of $2,222 on an investment of only $16,400—a return of nearly 13% a year! Remember, our intangible returns in happiness and satisfaction cannot be measured. Of course, it is a superb investment.

But we have said nothing about the quality of this investment. Future returns depend upon the quality of the asset. By this time

Wenner Plans Book

At least six editions of the Johnson-Steevens Shakespeare appeared between the years 1773 and 1803. This Shakespeare was long regarded as standard and many editions appeared also in the 19th century. The biography will trace the story of Steevens' several independent editions of Shakespeare, including the Twenty Plays of 1766 (first complete reprint of the quartos) and the Dramatic Works (1791-1802) published by John and Josiah Boydell. This project of the biography as an enlargement of Dr. Wenner's dissertation, which combines a brief sketch of Steevens with an account of his participation in the Boydell Shakespeare.

In the Folger Library, Dr. Wenner points out, "I had access to the proof sheets of the Boydell Shakespeare, filled with Steevens' corrections and annotations. Available too were other materials relevant to my work."

Dr. Wenner is a graduate of Blue Ridge College, received her Master's Degree from Johns Hopkins University and her PhD from George Washington University. She joined the Western Maryland faculty in 1931.

you may have already concluded that you would have to invest less at a state institution where the tuition is lower, thus making the rate of return over a lifetime greater, or you may have concluded that in order for you to attend a private liberal arts college you would have to borrow money in order to meet the higher tuition charges. Many students have found it necessary to borrow in order to complete their college work. Again, would it be worth it?

Suppose that you had a large sum of money today to invest in property or securities; you would take the utmost care in selecting the very best in order to reduce your risk to as near zero as possible—your future security would be at stake. For sure, once you had found a good, riskless investment (Continued on page 12)

PROFESSOR DISCUSSES EDUCATION

ment, albeit somewhat beyond your present funds, you would not hesitate to augment these resources somewhat in order to secure title to this valuable investment whose future returns are to be relatively large and certain. Compare this with investing four years of your life on a college campus. These are four precious years upon which your future happiness—dividends measured in monetary terms as well as the great intangibles—depends. Just as in the investment above, it is the quality of these years which counts. That is what the bachelor's degree (title to the investment) should represent.

Western Maryland College with its relatively small student body, its small classes, informal relationships between students and faculty, and high standards of admission and scholarship does everything within its power to make those four years highly productive. The quality of its graduates attests to its success.

No qualified student who wants a high quality education need go without it. Money representing the differential between tuition at a private, church-related liberal arts college and a state institution can always be borrowed at relatively low rates of interest, especially after the student has demonstrated his ability in his first year of college.

No student should hesitate about making this kind of an investment—an investment in himself. In the long run no investment can provide more valuable returns.

War College Graduates Two Alumni

Two Western Marylanders recently graduated from the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania. They are: Colonel Albert N. Ward, Jr., '35, and Lt. Col. Emil V. B. Edmond, '39.

The War College prepares commissioned officers for the highest command and general staff positions within their respective branch of service. Both of the officers were in the ROTC program on the Hill in addition to numerous other activities listed by their respective yearbooks.

Col. Ward's son, Albert Norman Ward III, is now a sophomore at the college and an officer of his class. "Terp" as he was known on campus entered the Army in 1935 and holds the Silver Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Purple Heart, the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star Medal for Valor and the Combat Infantryman Badge. He was referred to in the '35 yearbook as the "class cut-up in lighter moods" but in those serious moods he was president of the Sunday School, a member of the YMCA cabinet and business editor of the Aloha. Col. Ward was a member and president of Gamma Beta Chi and on the Interfraternity Council. His father was the third president of the college.

Lt. Col. Edmond was member of the varsity basketball and baseball squads on campus. He was apparently known for serenading the Hall and the '39 yearbook calls him "happily realistic". He was an officer of his class and a member of the Student Government Association. Col. Edmond was also president of Delta Pi Alpha and a member of the Interfraternity Council. He has served in the European theatre and holds the Silver Star, the Purple Heart, the Bronze Star Medal for Valor and the Combat Infantryman Badge.

Three From Faculty At Conferences

Three members of the faculty have been attending special institutes this summer—they are Dr. H. P. Sturdivant, head of the biology department; Dr. R. D. Summers, head of the physics department; Miss Daisy Smith, head of the home economics department.

Dr. Summers and Dr. Sturdivant received grants from the National Science Foundation. Dr. Sturdivant's provides for research and seminar work in embryology and cytogenetics at Williams College, Williamstown, Massachusetts. The grant covers work for a six week period during July and this month. Twenty professors who hold the PhD degree and teach embryology in undergraduate colleges are participating in the institute.

Dr. Summers' grant enabled him to attend a conference for professors of astronomy at the University of California, Berkeley, from July 7 to August 1. Twenty members participated in research and projects. Lectures were by the staff of Lick Observatory and the astronomy departments of Berkeley and Los Angeles. The head of the conference was Dr. Cecilia Payne-Gaposchkin of Harvard.

Miss Smith was elected one of the Maryland Home Economics representatives to the International Congress on Home Economics. The Congress was held from July 28 to August 2 at the University of Maryland, College Park.

College Shares Resources With Community

A college has many publics—its student body, the alumni, high school students and their counselors and the general mass of people interested in education. But, there is one more public that is important—the community in which the college is located.

Western Maryland College is very much a part of Westminster and Carroll County life. Unlike the stories often read about some town and gown relationships, this one is based on mutual admiration and understanding. It is recognized that each could probably get along without the other—but neither would be as rich.

Western Maryland is an integral part of the community—it is in many ways the cultural center of the area. This is more than the subtle influence any center of learning will have on an area merely by being there. All Western Maryland plays and concerts are open to the public and the public comes. The offerings range from student productions to imported artists. In the audience of one of these functions it is possible to overhear discussions of what a concert was like last year or how it compares to one five years ago. It isn't necessary to sit behind a permanent resident of The Hill or an alumnus to hear this. It is probably some interested member of the community who takes full advantage of the open-door invitation.

Receives Advantages

Plays and concerts are not the only cultural advantage the community receives from the college. Faculty members devote a lot of their time to the various organizations in town. They appear for coffee chats at the local library, are available as speakers to schools and groups and serve both as officers and members of clubs and church organizations. In a given year most of the English department speaks on one phase or the other of literature, the history department is well represented in the Historical Society, science professors give demonstrations to visiting classes from elementary and secondary schools and the art and music departments are in constant demand and use in the town. The library and its staff also serve a public other than that on campus. Faculty wives, too, contribute. Some help relieve the teacher shortage, others work in charity and welfare organizations, many are active in their church.

The art gallery at the college is a facility of which the community makes great use. Works of artists from Baltimore and even New York are brought in for display. Each artist is on hand for an opening night at which time critics and other artists are also present to meet the public. Even such activities as student assemblies provide opportunities. Experts on Russian affairs, noted historians, performers in the arts—all come for student assemblies and again the public is invited. Sociology students make frequent surveys of everything from low-cost housing to how many cars use a given road. This information is available to town officials and is often found helpful.

Use Facilities

Even college buildings are open to the area. An annual county-wide singing contest is held in Alumni Hall, Gill Gym is the scene of the basketball tournament and the county track meet is held on Hoffa Field. Clubs and organizations often hold their meetings in McDaniel Lounge. Harvey Stone Park is used for picnics and other outdoor affairs.

Perhaps more significant than the fact that the public is invited is the fact that it comes to the college for these programs and makes use of the services and facilities. It has to be for two reasons—first, the definite desire and need for such advantages in any community; second, residents feel that they are truly welcome when they do come to the campus. Westminster and Carroll County obviously feel the strong ties that connect them with the college.

Possibly most significant is a sign the local Chamber of Commerce had erected on the highway leading into town. This was not a college project, simply an act by the residents. And, the sign says "Welcome to Westminster, Home of Western Maryland College".

SIGN ERECTED—The Chamber of Commerce of Westminster erected this sign on the highway leading into town. It represents some of the good relationship which exists between Westminster and the college.

New Staff And Faculty Added

Two Western Maryland graduates will be among seven new faces on the faculty and staff when college opens this September.

They are H. Kenneth Shook, '52, and William L. Tribby, '56. Kenny will be Admissions Counselor and Bill is going to teach English and Dramatic Art.

Other new members of the faculty and staff are: Peter A. Tasch, English department; Capt. Paul G. Adams, PMS&T; Miss Margaret Wappler, music department; Stanley D. Petroulis, music department; and Mrs. Henrietta P. Scott, house director of Blanche Ward dormitory.

Majoring in Math

Kenny, who was a math major on the Hill, is originally from Frederick, Maryland. At graduation he received the Gruber Medal for proficiency in extracurricular activities. Kenny received his MA at Wesleyan University and then taught for a year at Madison High School at Madison, New Jersey. The next two years he spent in the army as a programmer for IBM machines. In '57-'58 he again taught math at Madison High School before coming to Western Maryland on July 1. Kenny will work with prospective students, going to interview them in high schools and talking with them when they visit the campus.

Tribby was editor of the Aloha and feature editor of the Gold Bug. He received the Bates Prize for best all around college man at graduation. He will assist Miss Esther Smith with set design and technical supervision. Bill has completed work for his Master's Degree in Dramatic Art. He has also been working toward a PhD at the State University of Iowa. Bill will teach a course in the history of world theatre and a basic speech course, plus two sections of English. Bill was married in 1957.

H. KENNETH SHOOK

To Teach Novel

Mr. Tasch received his BA degree from Bucknell University. This summer he completes work on a Masters degree at Columbia University. His field is the 18th century novel. Mr. Tasch will teach two sections of freshman English, two sections of sophomore survey and the course in English novel. He is taking the place of Dr. Evelyn W. Wenner, who has a leave of absence to complete some research.

Captain Adams will be assistant professor of Military Science succeeding Captain Francis E. Howard who has been transferred. He will come to the Hill from Fort Benning where he has been taking some special courses. Capt. Adams graduated from Virginia Polytechnic Institute in 1950 and has been in the Army for 7 years. He spent 17 months in Korea. Capt. Adams is married and has one child.

Miss Wappler received her Bachelor of Music degree from the University of Michigan in 1953 and her Master of Music Literature Degree in 1956. She has completed residence requirements for a PhD in Musicology. She has been a Teaching Fellow in the Music Literature Department at Michigan and has taught elementary vocal music in Adams City, Colorado. Miss Wappler comes to Western Maryland from Oklahoma College for Women.

Replaces Mrs. Veale

Replacing Mrs. Veale as house director of Blanche Ward will be Mrs. Henrietta P. Scott of Lancaster, Pennsylvania. She has been housemother of the senior nurses' residence at St. Joseph's hospital in Lancaster. Mrs. Scott was a professional singer in Philadelphia and did concert work for 15 years. She has also had her own ceramic studio and has taught ceramics. Mrs. Scott has five children and six grandchildren.

To direct the bands and teach woodwind instruments, the music department will have Mr. Petroulis who is first bassoonist in the Baltimore Symphony. He has been a member of the Peabody Conservatory faculty, the National Symphony and soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Air Force Band. Mr. Petroulis has his Bachelor of Music degree from the Eastman School of Music and Master of Music degree from Catholic University. He has also attended Curtis Institute, William and Mary College and Oberlin Conservatory. Mr. Petroulis is married and has two children.

Registrars' Work Covers Many Areas

A Registrar once arrived at Western Maryland believing that, like the faculty, she would have the whole summer free.

It wasn't either of the present Registrars, Miss Martha Manahan and Miss Cora Virginia Perry, but they tell the story with amusement and a certain amount of sympathy. It would be difficult to say that one season is busier than another in that office but summer is hardly a slack time.

Miss Manahan once worked for the Dairy Council and when people asked her just what that involved she often said she followed the milkmen around to make sure they didn't bang the bottles and disturb customers. She says that in trying to describe a Registrar's work it would be much easier to have a similar answer to use. To a casual observer it might seem that nothing more pressing happens in the area behind the counter. Both of the women always look unfurried and often they can be seen munching chocolate candy or in season trying out some pineapple sherbet.

But appearances are deceiving. If anyone ever tried running a college without efficient Registrars that would become evident quite quickly. As in most professions, there is even a special lingo they talk.

The Registrars follow a student from high school and right on through a good portion of his life. They get to know students first as people requesting information and they probably hear from them each step of the way in their careers as requests for transcripts come in. In addition, with their memories for names, they keep a clipping service for the Bulletin.

But back to high school students. The registrars answer those first inquiries, sending information and any publications that are requested. Next an application may be sent. When it is returned by the high school an acknowledgment is sent both to the high school and the student. Before each meeting of the Admissions Committee the information on each applicant is prepared. Following the meetings all applicants are advised of the action taken. If the applicant replies and decides to come to Western Maryland, a whole new routine is put in motion. Charge cards, working cards and permanent cards are all made up and filed (we mentioned there was a special lingo). All during the summer more information is sent to the new student and questions are answered. They range from laundry procedures to letting a mother know whether or not bed pads are necessary.

The Registrars also make room assignments and work up lists for local ministers, Big Brothers and Sisters, and campus organizations. On registration day and during Orientation week they swing into high gear getting the incoming classes processed and into the correct niches. At this point, the high school applicant moves to a permanent and working card basis—the permanent one in the fire proof safe, the working card in what they refer to as the “baby carriage.”

As the student continues his college education the Registrars keep his record, get him signed up for the right classes so that he will meet all requirements and have enough hours and points to graduate at the correct time. Then about the time he is getting to be a senior he probably applies to about 50 medical schools or several seminaries or to a number of graduate schools. The registrars say that it seems students apply to more places each year. Of course these applications have to be processed in the registrar's office, transcripts and other information sent to the schools.

Working with the graduate program students is another story in itself. The Registrars are also involved in collecting, writing and processing catalogue copy, they arrange schedules for classes and

1958

When you change a name there should be some taking of stock and thought of the future. Therefore, with the Living Endowment Fund becoming the Annual Alumni Fund this year, a more comprehensive report is advisable. In addition to totaling the success of the 1958 drive, it seemed a good idea to let alumni know that other organizations have joined them in their aid to Western Maryland. So, the Association of Independent Colleges in Maryland report is included as well as one from the Matching Gifts program carried on by several companies. Some special funds have been added to this year's drive and an account is given of each.

Most important is the underlying reason behind all these various funds. For this reason, an indication of the type of problem Western Maryland faces is pointed up in a study of faculty salaries. No college can stand still. People visiting the Hill in the past few months have become aware that Western Maryland is moving ahead and this report also has a brief idea of what comes next in the building program.

The material has been prepared and is presented to give you a better idea of what the Alumni Fund and its complementary programs mean to your college.

Independent School Has Salary Problem

Western Maryland's budget this year showed an increase in one area of $44,200.00. The particular item was salaries for the teaching faculty.

The increase represents an attempt by the college to keep up with competing schools in the area so as to retain the fine faculty now teaching on the Hill. No school of the independent variety can hope to compete with industry.

The salary scale for 1957-58 at Western Maryland was: (showing the increase of the top salary scale for 1956-57)

Full professor—
from $6,000.00 to $7,700.00

Associate professor—
from $5,000.00 to $6,000.00

Assistant professor—
from $4,700.00 to $5,000.00

Instructor—
from $4,000.00 to $4,700.00

The U. S. Office of Education has released a study of nation-wide faculty salaries for 1957-58 to show the average salary in the independent liberal arts college, the public liberal arts college (state supported) and the university and teacher college. The first two figures compared with the Western Maryland scale reveal fully the problem of competing with public institutions.

The average salary across the nation breaks down this way:

Full professor—
public liberal arts college,
$8,520.00
independent liberal arts college,
$6,540.00
Western Maryland, $6,166.00

Associate professor—
public, $6,910.00
independent, $5,440.00
Western Maryland, $5,217.00

PERSONAL HELP—Miss Helen Gray, in the sewing lab, typifies the Western Maryland professor who is always available for individual aid to students.

Assistant professor
public, $6,020.00
independent, $4,760.00
Western Maryland, $4,815.00

Instructor—
public, $4,970.00
independent, $4,110.00
Western Maryland, $4,500.00

Other figures reveal, as they did across the country, that the smallest amount of improvement, up to the past year was in the top brackets. This problem has confronted public education as well.

The Office of Education figures also show that while Western Maryland has been able to hold its own with the independent schools it has not been able to keep up with state supported institutions in its own class. University salary scales are even higher than the liberal arts schools.

Not too long ago a survey by the Council for Financial Aid to Education proved that while the post World War II years have been ones of great prosperity the college faculty members as a group have had less than no share in it. During the period of the study, the real income of the average industrial worker (that is, what his wages would purchase in goods and services) has increased by almost one-half. Among professional groups, physicians have enjoyed an increase of about 80 per cent in real income. Lawyers, less favored, had an increase of about 10 per cent. But, faculty members not only had no increase, their average real income fell by five per cent—this is without taking into account tax increases.

Some faculty members of course did better, some worse but on the average their salaries simply did not keep up with prosperity and the postwar economy.

For several years now magazines, newspapers and discussion groups have been talking about this lack of advancement in salaries in the educational field. As you can see from the figures above the problem is very real and Western Maryland happens to be in the group of schools hardest hit by the situation.

Budget Must Depend On Outside Funds

Faculty salaries, while a major item, are not the only figure in the college budget. There are administrative salaries, kitchen and maintenance salaries, repairs, replacements, equipment, new buildings—in fact all manner of other needs.

Western Maryland's budget is divided into three categories: the endowment—capital for investment, only income from the investment is used; current operating expenses—money to run the college from day to day, includes the business of salaries; plant fund—capital expenditures such as new buildings—the student union building, for example.

Most alumni are primarily concerned with the current operating expense category because that is generally where their contributions to the Alumni Fund are applied. Of course those who designate their gifts, such as this year's pews in Baker Memorial Chapel, may have the money applied to any category they desire while still having the money credited to the Fund. Many alumni, however, want their contributions used for current operating expenses.

The past year the Alumni Fund was particularly significant in the budget. The budget balanced with the college $16,959.00 in the black—almost identical to the amount contributed by alumni. As President Ensor points out, when talking in terms of a current operating budget of $950,000 this is cutting things pretty close. An emergency could have thrown the whole budget into the red.

For this reason the college must include the Fund as a major budget item, just as it does the income from the Maryland Association of Independent Colleges.

College Heads Into Year Of Major Campus Changes

This will probably be known as the Year of the Face Lifting on campus.

As all alumni are by now aware Old Main will soon be torn down from in front of Baker Memorial Chapel. Ground was broken for the student union building on graduation day and the building is progressing. Wesley Seminary is moving to the American University campus freeing its building for the college.

There are going to be other changes connected with this new construction and acquisition. One change, however, which is new to alumni has no connection with the regional development program—Science Hall will no longer exist.

Oh, the building will still be there but the biology department won't and the name will be changed. When Science Hall was constructed in 1929 some state funds were used and the state retained a non-interest bearing second mortgage on the building. This provided that if the building was not used for science it would revert to the state. Last January Senator Frederick C. Malkus, Jr., '34, introduced a bill in the legislature to cancel the mortgage. It was passed, freeing the building for any use, effective July 1, 1958.

There is a little more history involved in this. A few years ago when the faculty-administration committee made a survey of the college it learned that with existing facilities the college could handle an enrollment of 700 students—except in the matter of biology labs. At the time it was thought that the department's expansion would be across the hall up on third floor. With this new legislative act, however, the college will be able to do what it wanted to accomplish all along—consolidate all the sciences and at the same time increase biology space.

Therefore, biology this summer is moving to the second floor of Lewis Hall and all departments but math, physics and chemistry are moving out and into Science Hall. With any luck the remodeling and moving will be completed when school opens in September. At that time the college will then be getting ready to start on some other changes.

A Committee of Trustees will decide on the new name but there is a possibility that one of the names which will be lost in the razing of Old Main will be used.

UNDER CONSTRUCTION—On the back campus just below Lewis Hall the new Student Union building is under construction. It is expected to be complete by the time another May Day rolls around.

Group Unites In Appeal To Business

The Association of Independent Colleges in Maryland is an organization of institutions appealing to industry for aid to education much the way the various alumni appeals are made.

The president of the member colleges must donate a certain amount of time each year to make personal calls on industrial and business leaders to acquaint them with the program and encourage their support. The Maryland group is one of several across the nation which has turned to business for help in maintaining high level colleges. The whole idea is to encourage these corporations to make their contributions regularly so that the members may count on this aid as a steady source of income.

This year the fund has doubled over 1956-57 representing a total contribution as of June 30 of $72,435.73. This support comes from both home and national business and industry. It is interesting to note that the non-Maryland contributions almost equal Maryland support.

In another similarity to Alumni Funds the corporation may designate how its contribution is to be distributed. For example, over the years the Black and Decker Company has designated that $1,000.00 of its contribution was to be earmarked for Western Maryland. The Borden Ice Cream company designates its entire contribution of $500.00 to the college.

The money is apportioned among the member institutions (Hood College, College of Notre Dame, Mount Saint Agnes College, St. John's College, Washington College, and Western Maryland) according to enrollment. This year Western Maryland's share was $11,723.70, a significant amount in the budget.

Matching Gift Program Below Its Potential

One very fine attempt by business to aid education is not yet realizing its full potential. This is the alumni gift-matching program.

In 1954 The General Electric Company established a corporate alumnus program. Through this the General Electric Educational and Charitable Fund joined the employees of GE and its subsidiaries in support of colleges and universities at which their employees received their higher education.

Pioneered by GE many other corporations (listed below) have developed similar plans. Up to a limit specified by each company (usually $1,000 to $2,000) the concerns will match a gift by one of its employees to his or her alma mater. Thus far Western Maryland has benefited from the program through alumni at GE, Lehigh Portland Cement (Tidewater) and The Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation (or their subsidiaries).

Over $1,400.00 has been given to Western Maryland through this plan. However, there are many of the concerns involved from which the college has not yet received benefits through the program. The corporations are listed below so that you may see whether or not you are eligible.

Wills Fund Concludes With Successful Report

Last year the English Department launched a dual project—the collection of money sufficient to complete the Wills Seminar Room and the collection of advice about the academic program from alumni with experience in the fields to which English majors gravitate.

By reason of the love and respect in which Dr. Wills was held, the first project was successfully concluded. More than 200 former students contributed a sum of approximately $1000, entirely sufficient to complete the transformation of the former classroom into a dignified and useful seminar center.

By reason of the loyalty of former English majors, much valuable information was received which should be of assistance in shaping the curriculum and in guiding the election's of departmental majors in the future. About three hundred graduates responded. Several from Asia, a number from Europe, two from Africa, students spread over all the United States gave testimony. Many wrote extended letters. Scores of vocations were described, though teaching, business, the ministry, homemaking, social work, the law, journalism, and library work predominated.

My principal response as the recipient of these letters was delight in making contact with so many former friends. Many of them I had not heard from in years. Realizing that I knew personally the vast majority of the respondents did not make me feel younger, but the letters did make me more proud of the kind of graduate Western Maryland produces. I should like to thank all of those who did write to us. Letters would be welcome from any others who have advice and comment to offer.

Fund Grows Again In '58 Drive

by Philip E. Uhrig

Several things are significant in reporting results of the 1958 Alumni Fund. For one, we have had a change in name and scope. Receipts from The Living Endowment Fund were used entirely for current operating expenses. With the Annual Alumni Fund, gifts may be designated to that, plus plant funds and general endowment. Now, also, the bulk of our Alumni Fund is being used to supplement the college's program of increasing faculty salaries.

Let's take a closer look at this year's fund effort led again by our competent and enthusiastic chairman, George A. Meyls, Jr., 1922. Of significance is the growth pattern shown in the four-year table below. The first three years are computed as of August 31st; the last as of August 1st.

	$10,722.40
1956—	941 donors contributed
	$14,010.00
1957—	1283 donors contributed
	$16,744.01
1958—	1127 donors contributed
	$17,695.00

The breakdown of our 1958 Alumni Fund was designated as follows:

$14,854.50 for current operating expenses
$1,900.00 for Baker Memorial Chapel Pews
$933.50 for The Wills Room
$7.00 for General Endowment Fund

Results from the younger classes seem to indicate they are taking a more active interest in organizational work. As a result their percentage participation is rising. But the "youngsters" will have to go a long way to catch your former Alumni Secretary, Col. T. K. Harrison, who for the fourth straight year led 1901 in with the highest percentage participation—100 percent. You can equal but

To the Alumni and Friends of Western Maryland College:

The curtain is descending on the last act of the 1958 annual Alumni giving campaign and I wish to take this opportunity of expressing to all class chairmen, and class agents my deep and sincere thanks. While we did not reach our goal, $20,000.00, we did remarkably well and perhaps next year we can attain the goal we set.

To the Class of 1931, I wish to offer my heartiest congratulations for a job well done and I hope they can set the pace in 1959 which will make it most difficult for all the other classes to come within striking distance of them. I do promise, however, that 1922 will be much closer next year than they were this year. So again, 1931, congratulations and keep up the good work.

To everyone who has participated in this 1958 campaign, please accept my deep and heartfelt appreciation and I know you must feel better for having been a participant because of the good work your contributions accomplish at Western Maryland College.

May you all have a pleasant and glorious summer and fall and please remember us in your financial plans for 1959.

Most sincerely,

GEORGE A. MEYLS, JR.
1958 Fund Chairman

never beat a record like that. 1908 was second with 69 percent. Continuing on top was 1953, chaired by Beth Witzke Barnes, which had the greatest number of contributors—61. 1952 was second with 46 contributors. The greatest total contributed by a single class was $1,744.50 gained by 1931 although only 28 percent contributed. Second place goes to last year's leader, 1922, which checked in with $900.00.

As you will note from other parts of the fund report, it has been a good year at Western Maryland. We are continuing to grow. The ceiling has not yet been reached in Alumni Fund work. We have had tremendous cooperation from chairmen, agents and other alumni and friends. There is no substitute for loyalty. Next year we plan to add regional organization in key areas. Along with the growing class organizations this should add impetus to the program.

Memorial Pew Donors Listed

A number of Western Marylanders have donated memorial pews to be placed in Baker Memorial Chapel. A small plate is placed at the end of each pew noting in whose memory it was given.

The list of donors follows:

Charles E. Moylan
Dorothy McDaniel Herr
T. Paul Harris
Dorothy Cox Liebn
Marguerite Shunk
E. McClure Rouzer

1958 Contributors To The Fund

Following our policy of former years, class totals are shown only where there is more than one contributor for a class. The class listing below was prepared for the August Bulletin. A supplementary list will be published in the October Bulletin to include those whose contributions arrived after we went to press but before the fund fiscal year closed August 31st. Percentage participation is based on the number of graduates solicited.

Contributors to the Wills Fund are designated by an asterisk. Shown also is the percent of increased class participation, but only for those classes which increased over 1957.

Some class agents have not been listed. Those names which are missing at this time will be included in the October Bulletin.

WINIFRED WALSH

CARYL JEANNE ENSOR

20 In '58 Class Win Scholarships

About twenty members of the graduating class have definite plans to attend graduate school in the fall, eight of them with fellowships or scholarships.

Miss Winifred Walsh, a French-English major, has been awarded a Fullbright Scholarship to study at the University of Caen in France. Winnie, who lives at 62 Webster Street in Westminster, will study Modern French Literature with an emphasis on de Maupassant. She graduated sum-

SPECIAL NOTICE!

Homecoming this year will be on November 8. Our opponent will be Lycoming College, on the schedule for the first time this year. Be sure to plan to be on hand for the game which starts at 1:30 p.m.

Because of construction on the Student Union building there may be a rearrangement of parking for the home games. Be sure to watch for a notice explaining the situation in detail. It will make your visit to the Hill more pleasant.

ma cum laude. As a French student, she served as president of Le Cercle Francais. Winnie was also president of Sigma Sigma Tau, vice president of the Argonauts, associate editor of the Aloha, a Trumpeter, member of the college choir and the Freshman Advisory Council and elected to Who's Who.

Bryn Mawr College has awarded the Lillian Babbitt Hyde Scholarship in Biology to Caryl Jeanne Ensor of College Hill. Caryl Jeanne graduated summa cum laude and received the Mary Ward Lewis medal for best all around woman. She was editor of the Aloha, president of Tri Beta, class officer, officer in Sigma Sigma Tau, member of the Argonauts, a Trumpeter, elected to Who's Who and on the Homecoming and May Day Courts.

Three English majors received teaching fellowships. Florence Mehl and Robert Christian will work and study at the University of Connecticut. Ray Stevens is going to the University of Pennsylvania.

George Summers has an assistantship in engineering mechanics at Penn State. Also at Penn State will be Fred Stonesifer. Erich Willen has an assistantship at the Johns Hopkins University. Nancy Willis has a government scholarship in rehabilitation at the University of West Virginia.

REGISTRARS

exams and then there are miscellaneous requests such as "How do I get to Gettysburg from here?" At one time they used to show all visitors around the campus. They still do some of this but in these days of multiple applications that job has been turned over to the Public Relations department and to the Admissions Counselor.

In reference to multiple applications it is interesting to note that for every three applications, two are accepted and one attends. This means for an entrance class of 200 at least six hundred applications must be processed. This year the number went well over 900.

Other odd jobs that are handled by the Registrars include ordering, getting printed and even rolling and tying on the bows of the diplomas. They make studies on grade patterns, prepare eligibility lists for Tri Beta and the Argonauts. Grades are recorded and sent to advisers and parents. Of course there is summer school with much the same sort of process and the miscellaneous work shops that are held.

So though Miss Manahan may be looking for a phrase such as making sure milk bottles aren't banged, there is much more involved in keeping a Registrar's office in efficient working order.

Dear Classmates,
Our 10th reunion was a huge success! As many of you know, several of us started chain letters in February to everyone in our class to try to get a big crowd back for the reunion. Several of these letters were completed and returned to us. Many were not. (If you didn't get one, someone on the list before you didn't send it on to the next person.) It was wonderful to hear from those whose chains were completed and so many of you who couldn't come asked for news of the reunion. Below is news of all who were present and signed the notebook and also news of those from whom we heard in the chains.

Betty Armiger Maas has just moved to Severna Park and has one son—Dick 3½ years. Her husband works at Westinghouse . . . Sally Smith Lefell has been teaching math at Dundalk High in Baltimore County while her husband has been working on his PhD in physics at J H U . . . Tom and Gerry Frizzell Croft came down from West Orange, N. J., where Tom is a physicist at McGraw-Edison. They have a 3 year old daughter . . . Pat Patterson Essar has just had her third child—Douglas Nelson, born May 6th. Her other children are Carol, 8 and John, 6 . . . Eleanor (Skip) Collins is teaching at Miss Pine's School in Princeton, N. J. . . . Mary (Ruth) Don Brown is a department manager at a mechanical engineer and they have a son, Robert Bruce, 9 months . . . Janet Brown Hunter is living in Harrisburg and has a son, Michael Daniel, 1½ . . . Dot Scott Atkinson is living in Arlington, Va., and has three children, William, 5; Dale, 3; and Carol Ann, 11 months . . . Anna Hess McLean attended with her husband, a physicist for NRL and her two daughters, Susan, 4 and Sandra, 2. They had driven from Nags Head, North Carolina the day before . . . Mary Todd Parson is a department manager of Woodward and Lothrop's in Arlington, Virginia . . . Jackie Kingsley Griffiths has 4 children, Jimmy, 7; David, 5; Wendy, 4; and Alice, 1 . . . Joe Ward, married to Virginia Voorhees, '46, is a system analyst for IBM. He and Betty Mason Forney have the largest families, each with five children . . . Madeline Franklin Strader is living in Baltimore and has two children, Donald, an infant, 2 . . . Betty Sauter Garlock has 2 sons—Donald, 7 and David, 4 . . . Jean Tull Radtke is living in Wilmington, Delaware and has two children, Edward, 3 and Nancy, six months . . . Gordon Groby came the longest distance, traveling 600 miles from Germantown, Ohio where he is a minister. He has three children, Barbara, 6; Melissa, 4, and Gordon Leslie 1 . . . Dottie Cathell Carstens has two sons, Doug, 4½ and Jimmy, 3 . . . Nancy Haskin Zabel is a vocal music teacher in Prince George's County where her husband is a minister. They have one son, Billy, 6 years . . . Jim Doherty is a chemist for Du-Pont and has three children, Sandra, 7; Jim, 4 and Susan, 6 months . . . Don Brohawn and Sara Lee Larmore Brohawn, '50 have two children, Charles D., 4½ and Kelly, 4½ months . . . Bev Wallis Freund has three children, Terri, 4; Todd, 2 and Kelly, 3 months . . . Chris Royer will be studying for her PhD at Columbia next year . . . Madeline Buhrman Smith is living in Greenacres, Maryland where her husband works for the AEC. They have one son, Randy 1½ years . . . Clara Blake Blane will be teaching in Baltimore county next year . . . Mary Woodfield Tereshinski has one son, Tom, 2½ years . . . Charles Fleming is a social worker for the Richmond area community council and has two children, Steve, 12 and Susan, 10 . . . George Carr is a physics teacher at Milford Mill High School, Baltimore County, and has just been awarded a Shell merit fellowship to Cornell University this summer. He lives in Pikeville and has two children, Cindy, 5 and Larry, 3 . . . Ruth Wentz Rademaker and her husband are both teaching in Baltimore county. She told us that her sister Reba Wentz was recently married and is living in Pennsylvania . . . Binky Dexter Tompkins has three children, Raymond, 7½; Dexter, 5; and John, four months . . . Wally Hale Smyth and Don Smyth have four children . . . George and Ellie Rogers Johnson have two children, Roddy, 6 and Carol, 2. Meales kept the Johnsons from attending the reunion . . . Helen Wymer Goundry has two sons and is living near Washington. She informed that Marcia Koblegard Galt, who lives in Frederick and lives in Clarksburg, W. Va., where her husband is a dentist . . . Pat Brown Bowman lives in Silver Springs, Maryland and has two children, a boy 4 and a girl 2 . . . Lionel and Ruth Anderson Burgess have three children, Don, 6½; Tommy, 4 and Susan, 20 months. Lionel was just appointed principal of Catonsville Junior High School in Baltimore county . . . Mary Ruth O'Kelly Chlad has two daughters . . . Catherine Bishop is teaching in Baltimore.

On the clipboard where we registered was a telegram from Peg Ortenzi Brannan wishing us a wonderful reunion in memory of Carlos. It has been suggested that we make some sort of gift to the college in memory of Carlos. If you have any suggestions, please send them to Mary Todd Parson, 3478 Martha Custis Drive, Alexandria, Va. During the banquet, following the example set by other reunion classes, we took up a collection for the Alumni fund and presented it.

Chain letter items . . . Virginia Walters Rider is a full time housewife now having retired from Asst. Prof. at Teachers College in New Haven. She and her husband live in Fairfield, Conn., and have one daughter . . . Helen Becker Decker writes that she has been living in Frederick since graduation . . .
