It is with a feeling of pardonable pride and joy that we, the Staff of the 1928 Aloha, present this volume to you. If it may serve you as a record of all that has happened on our campus during the past year, and in years to come aid you in remembering the happy days of your collegiate career at Western Maryland College, our aims will have been accomplished.
To
Dr. Herbert Taylor Stephens

whose loyalty to Western Maryland College and whose services in her behalf are a constant inspiration to all those who have known him, we respectfully dedicate the Aloha of 1928.

"In Cupid's school who'er would take degree.

A L is well-known for his friendliness and good humor. Even during the "trials" of his freshman year his predominant facial expression was his famous smile. This smile soon broadened into a grin in his sophomore year, when he met the "girl of his dreams." So efficient and persistent was he in the "conquest" of his "idol" that his Alma Mater by an overwhelming vote elected him most ardent lover in 1926.

In the battle of life, Al. through his perseverance and his pleasing personality, will ally himself with other deities than Venus, and will win for himself happiness and success.

URING the four years Helen has been on the Hill, she has won a host of friends through the loving, true, and noble spirit she has manifested.

But this is not all. Helen is always ready to make a good time possible. She is full of pep, is a good sport, and is a sincere friend and a loyal "pal."

We know Helen has been taking courses in education, and is a good speech student. We know, too, that she says she is going to be an old-maid school teacher. Now we do not like to doubt her word, but from the number of letters she receives each week, all post-marked the same, we infer that she may not long endure that monotonous oblivion usually termed "school teaching."

Since we cannot predict the future, though, here's wishing Helen the greatest joy and success in life.

"She's learned the secret that for many a day
Has worried great sage
And troubled young pages,
When to be solemn and when to be gay."

THE life of every party—that is Mabel. For she is always ready with some witty remark drawn from her seemingly inexhaustible store of humor.

But cleverness and wit are not the only elements in her character. Mabel is a capable little Miss, a born leader, as is demonstrated by her schoolmates' confidence in her. She has been chosen to fill the most important office held by any girl on the Hill, the President of the Women's Student Government. And she has discharged her duties as few others could. Her sympathy and understanding have won for her a spirit of cooperation and loyalty among the girls.

Mabel will be remembered as a girl of exceptional ability. We know that she will win the respect and love of those she meets in future life, just as she has on College Hill.

“Wit and humor belong to genius alone.”

If it is a discussion of any kind, whether it be religion, philosophy, politics, or what not, Wilson will be leading that discussion. If there is no discussion, his melodious guitar, together with an inexhaustible flow of song will furnish amusement. His daring wit is often the cause of much laughter and much jollity.

But Wilson is not entirely care-free and jovial. He is a good student; his dramatic ability is much appreciated by the college audiences; and his poetry, although not depending on “springtime and a hank of hair” for inspiration, is worth while.

In closing we wish him the best that life has to offer; and, whatever his profession may be, we know that he will succeed.

Thirty-five
AUSIE is the youngest girl in the class, and as such, exercises the proverbial right of the baby to cry for the moon. But we remember that this is a precocious child—that's why we aren't surprised when she suddenly stops crying, laughs her little-girl laugh, stands on her tip-toes, and takes the moon from the sky. It goes without saying that getting the moon one cries for requires originality, ingenuity, determination, a sense of humor, and tact—and a lot of other fine things that are going to make us proud of Bausie when she outgrows her freckles.

“Whatsoever record leaps to light
He never shall be shamed.”

ATS,” as he is called by everyone, has been in prominence since his arrival on the Hill. Rapidly becoming a typical college man, he has attempted to further his education by participating in all activities. He has assumed responsibilities in every phase of college life. His work as football manager and as sports editor of the “Gold Bug” and the “Aloha” bears mute testimony to his capability and to his versatility. Combining unusual wit and humor with striking originality, “Rats” can always enliven any audience. Possessing such natural aptitude for good fellowship, he has won many friends who will remember him, not only as one of the best representatives of the Class of ’28, but also as one of Western Maryland’s best. His remarkable command of English in addition to his many other favorable assets assures us that he will reflect credit on his Alma Mater as he rises high in his chosen profession, the law.

"M. A." is determined, resolute, and bound to carry out a duty and to live up to a trust. "M. A." regardless of what her friends or anyone else thinks, does her own thinking, then acts accordingly.

We cannot classify her as a "master musician," yet, but she will show us all someday! Someone asks, "Where's M. A.?" There are but two possible answers—she's either practicing piano, organ or voice, or she is spending an hour in Room N, Lewis Hall, learning the ways and means of becoming a lawyer.

She will win, we know she will, because we have found the key to her character—"'Be true!'" We therefore prophesy great things for our Mary Alee.

"Attempt the end, and never stand to doubt;
Nothing's so hard, but search will find it out"

Kate spent her first year of college life at Blue Ridge, but she could not resist the temptation of Western Maryland, and when the Class of '28 returned to the Hill in the fall of '26, Miss Katherine Bowersox was enrolled as a student.

Kate is a good-natured, likable girl, always ready to help a friend. When the time for serious work arrives, we know that she will do her part. She, like the majority of the Senior girls, is preparing for service under the royal banner of education. Her pupils will find in her a competent instructor, we are sure. She goes forth with the best wishes of her classmates for a successful career.

"And ne'er did Grecian chisel trace
A nymph, naiad, or a Grace
Of finer form or lovelier face!"

To most of her friends, "Kitty" has been a "surprise-packet." Not that we are so unscientific as to be astonished that beauty and brains go together so perfectly, but one just doesn't expect "a tiny French doll," no matter how clever-looking, to be brilliant, practical, talented with a host of virtues in the train. And she has most of them: dignity, a sense of humor, tact, taste, grace, poise, initiative and originality.

Artistically inclined, of which her musical accomplishments are only part evidence, her tendency toward the temperamentally is balanced by that rare attribute known as common sense.

Most outstanding of all, this little lady has the faculty for clear-thinking and that complete self-possession which is its natural result. "Kitty" is the "Captain" of her small ship and she will steer it into safe harbors.

GENTLEMAN among ladies and a worker among men is Sam—a man of principle, but primarily a man of action.

Throughout his four years on the Hill, everyone has respected in him what on first observation seemed a well-ordered reticence, but which through acquaintance-ship may be appraised only in positive, unselfish elements.

Sam has expressed himself in various activities, mainly in parlor and as a member of the Varsity Tennis Team, being chosen captain and manager of the latter sport this year.

In medicine, in chemistry, or what not.—Sam, continue to use your head and make your opportunities.

"Fain would I be of service—say something that would be comforting."

Those few words typify Helen. Whenever there is anything to be done, Helen is always on the spot. Her unfailing energy and her unending patience have often astonished those with whom she has worked. Original ideas abound in her head, and once originated, you may rest assured that she will see them completed with a flourish. When Helen heads a committee, the work is always done—yes, dependable is the word.

Helen, with her light hair and blue eyes, proves that beauty, intelligence, and human understanding can all be found together. She is conscientious and works hard for all her classes. This trait, however, does not interfere with a good time, for she is always ready for some fun. She can appreciate the moods of others, enter wholeheartedly into sport, or offer her ready sympathy when it is needed.

Above all, Helen is loyal! When you have her for a friend, you have a friend indeed. May joy and success be with you, Helen, through life.

“The social smile, the sympathetic tear.”

“Mil” is an unselfish friend. She is generous in her time, in her sympathy, and in her understanding. Coming to the “Prep” school for two years, she early “learned the ropes,” and just how homesick one can be for the first year. So “Mil” took the girls of her class under her wing and kept them from being too lonesome and blue. The Class of ’28 profited by her earlier start, and in ‘26 made her vice-president. “Mil,” we wish you the best of success and happiness.
"Cecil"—a man who once known is not easily forgotten. What causes this lasting impression? It is this—Cecil has the high standards of honor, and the capacity for true and loyal friendship that is always the mark of a real man. These traits of a high type of character have won for Cecil many friends who wish for him great success on the journey of life.

“A creature not too bright nor good,
For human nature’s daily food
For transient sorrows, simple woes,
Praise, blame, love’s kisses, tears, and smiles.”

“Betty” is just that—a creature of moods; sad, furious, gay—each more amusing than the other. For when “Betty” storms and tears her hair over some person or condition one hour, she is found helping the person write an editorial, or repairing the “condition” the next. Though she is exceedingly clever in conversation, her naturally sympathetic disposition always governs her quick tongue. Of course, “Betty” is the “procrastinates procrastinator” and was never known to remember a committee meeting any longer than she was told about it—but if she finally arrives, what she contributes is well worth waiting for.
MARY ESTELLE DRYDEN

“Mary”
Buckeystown, Maryland

Sometimes gentle, sometimes capricious.

MARY has a personality that is irresistible. It is her laughing eyes that first attract your attention. Witty and vivacious, serious and dignified, now tantalizing, now sympathetic—Mary Estelle is as capricious as an April day. It takes scarcely one minute for her to set a serious crowd to laughing. Just try to be solemn when she is in a rollicking good humor!

But the most lovable thing about Mary is her sympathy, coupled with good common sense. Many a hard knot has been untied by her unfailing appreciation of what is right or wrong. Her frankness and sincerity have made for her true friends—friends who will never forget her.

Western Maryland Preparatory School

Science Club; Philomathian Literary Society; W. W. Sunshine Messenger ’25, Secretary ’26, Treasurer ’28; J. G. C.; Varsity Basketball ’26, ’27, ’28; Class Field Ball ’28.

“Nature alone knows what she wants.”

“Pat” is a familiar name to the Class of ’28. She is one of the survivors of “Prep” School Days,” and has helped to initiate her class into the fun and frolics of W. M. C. Everywhere she is greeted with a smile and a cheery “how-de-do.” Fun? She’s chuck full of it. She keeps the whole place in a continual uproar. Her keen sense of humor would dispel the gloom from any situation.

Only those who know “Pat” can appreciate the depth of her nature. She is a biological student; each little creeping insect receives her praise and protection. Can she stick to the science of insects? We wonder, because there are some human beings who need protection, too, and only “Pat” will do.
Alice has gone with her classmates through four happy years of college. And during all four years she has been bubbling over with contagious laughter, occupied with truly serious thought, and surrounded by a host of sincere friends.

She arrived on the Hill a timid, shy little girl following in her parents' footsteps. Now, whether it was Alice, herself, or the fact that she was living up to a previously established reputation that has brought her to the goal, we can not say. But she has reached the goal: the timid, shy little girl has become an independent, dignified college graduate. But her laughter is none diminished; her thoughts are even more serious, and her friends are consistently sincere and loyal.

Now, at the end of her sojourn on College Hill, everyone can say that Alice has lived up to the established reputation,—and even more. She has supplemented this with her own fineness of character and versatility of action. Alice may be assured of a life of laughter, thought, and friends.

"Her gesture, motion, and her smile,
Her wit, her voice, my heart beguile."

He is beguiling. Her gesture, motion, smile, voice, and a host of other characteristics have brought "Frenchie" to the fore, despite her unassuming nature. But more charming than all of these is her vocabulary. The way she uses and purposely misuses words, the nonchalant air with which she plays with enormous words, and the remarkable facility with which just the right words tumble out to form just the right thoughts are fascinating. This is just one of the evidences of Frenchie's brilliant mind and of her keen sense of humor. Her ingenious and spontaneous wit, equal to every occasion, have won for her an enviable popularity. These qualities together with an unselfish and fun-loving disposition create a human combination difficult to equal. And that's "Frenchie."

"Born for success she seemed,
With grace to win, with heart to hold,
And shining gifts that took all eyes."

ORN for success? There isn't a doubt about it. Ever since she came to college Dot has been succeeding in the things she has undertaken. Her classmates marvel at her ability. Nothing "stumps" her, not even being thrown off the same horse twice in one hour. Unusually heavy schedules have no terrors for her. She makes "A's" in spite of them, and of the many extra-curricular activities in which she engages. A glance at her record will show her versatility, her popularity, and the confidence that people have in her.

And is this all Irish luck? She may be Irish (she says she is), but those who know her best know, too, that she works for and deserves everything which comes her way. We wish for her the best things of life, and feel sure that she will get them.

“GOODIE,” as Charles is known among his intimates, is a man of excellent character. He is not one who shines like an early morning sun, but in his sober way, he is greatness itself. Many have said that the greatest men are the most modest. That is indeed true with “Goodie.” He does everything he tackles with determination and vim. On the football field he did not make any touchdowns in the last minutes to play, but he always played the game hard and fair.

In the vice-president of the Y. M. C. A., in the Jesters’ president, and in the honor chairman, we find the same Charles—honorable, respectful and determined, a great man and a better friend.

The Latin and Mathematics shark — that’s Gladys! Never before has a girl been found who is willing to spend so much time on her translations and her problem-solving. She is a leader in scholastic ability, —and yet is not a bookworm. So much for Gladys, the student.

Gladys, the fun-lover, is an entirely different type of person. She is always ready and willing to join in on any kind of fun. Gladys is one of the most generous souls on earth; she will do anything for anybody; she will give away anything she has, in the most nonchalant way.

Gladys usually has her own idea about any topic or person, and although she has been known to change, she usually remains faithful to her original idea, unless thoroughly convinced that she is wrong. “It was her heart that beat so warm

One of Elsie’s best traits is her unselfishness. When anyone is in trouble it is Elsie who is always sought for and who always cheerfully gives sympathy and advice. She possesses a keen sense of appreciation for the beautiful in life. She enjoys hikes, reading, and enters wholeheartedly into all college activities.

Browning Literary Society found a loyal friend in her. She has been a contestant, a debater, and an energetic President. The humorous side of life has not been missed by her. She enjoys fun to the fullest extent.

We shall always remember Elsie as a sincere, wise, and sympathetic “pal.”
The one word that characterizes "Bloom" is individuality. Her Virginia drawl and unique expressions, combined with her abundance of good common sense, make her a most enjoyable conversationalist.

Who would ever dare to persuade Bloom that the sun did not rise and set in Virginia? Yet, Bloom's love for Virginia has not prevented her from entering wholeheartedly into activities of the Hill.

This golden-haired maiden is a good student and is full of pep. She is always ready for a bridge game or a dance. During her one year with us, she has won a warm spot in our hearts, and we wish her every happiness and success.

To doubt her pureness were to want a heart.”

MARY’S face is an index to her character; there is no sham—genuineness is the mark of beauty. Sincerity, with all that the word connotes, characterizes our classmate. The same sincerity that takes her to the depths of Latin translation, leads her to the height of jollification and entertainment. The impersonation of the negro characters in “The Rider of Dreams,” which kept the audience roaring, is an evidence of Mary’s ability to amuse.

Mary is a real friend! “To be a friend, one must be firm and staunch, untiring in one’s efforts to serve; a true friend must be a true comrade, loyal and sympathetic.” These qualities of friendship will indeed insure Mary’s success in teaching.

"I live to talk, and talk, good friend,
In part, I know, for you;
Tho’ while I do so, in the end
Myself it pleases too."

PEOPLE who are different are always interesting—and "Kay" is interesting, in her own peculiarly attractive way. A keen sense of humor, which is ever expressing itself in unexpected, delightfully witty remarks, predominates Kay's enigmatic personality. Her humorous sayings furnish a complete antidote for an acute case of "blues," and on numerous occasions supply an inexhaustible source of hilarity.

Whenever "Kay" is not visiting and talking, which rarely happens, she is either reading or eating—oh, yes, or studying, incidentally. As bookworms go, "Kay" goes the other way; and yet there is scarcely a bit of literature, classical or popular, with which she is not well acquainted.

Above all, she is a loyal and understanding pal, a real, human friend.

Fifty-nine
ET'S get Grace to imitate her! How often are these words uttered by all her friends—for the art of successful mimicry belongs to Henry. She can imitate everyone and anyone so well and in such a good-humored way that even the person being imitated enjoys the whole thing hugely. Henry's mimicry and clever imitations have saved more than one of her friends from a severe case of blues. Needless to say, this art of Henry's is much in demand, and she is an adept through much hilarious practice.

Henry's chief diversions are reading and playing the piano. She has a nicety of taste in her reading which shows her innate fineness, and her discriminatory character. As to piano playing, she says she "just can't do it." But let her hear anything sung or played once or twice and she can reproduce it accurately, and adorned with her own individualistic touch.

With such a modest, yet determined character, with her scholastic brilliance, and her saving sense of humor, success is assured Grace in whatever she may undertake.
DIFFERENT — that's the word that describes Leota. No one else has just the same ideas or expresses them in just the same way that she does. We might not agree with her at first, but after she explains more fully, we see the sound logic behind her reasoning.

Scholastically, she ranks high, especially in history. Leota can be content for hours — just reading history: the world about her and the people in it are forgotten for the time.

Her qualities are varied. Besides being intellectually inclined, she's a good sport. Her originality and subtle wit always enliven the party.

Those who do not know Leota intimately cannot appreciate her. Fortune indeed has smiled on those she chooses for friends, for Leota is the embodiment of the characteristics that go to make up a sympathetic pal and loyal friend.

“Kylie” entered the ranks in ’25 and within a short time penetrated a good many hearts with her jovial disposition and fun-loving qualities. Her room has always been the scene of live-wire discussions set going by her wit. If a “wise crack” is to be made, “Kylie” makes it. A chief pastime and occupation of hers is analysis of personalities. “Mom” is a regular clairvoyant when it comes to reading character.

“Kylie” was not on “The Hill” very long until she proved herself a capable and efficient young lady. Consequently in her Junior year she was chosen to lead and guide the “flock in the Main Building” in the capacity of House President. The “Y” in 1928 has passed through a profitable and successful year under her leadership.

“And if I will, I will; you may depend on’t.
And if I won’t, I won’t, and there’s an end on’t.”

FUND of good common sense, a keen insight into human nature, a quantity of dry wit and unfailing good humor—that’s “Benny.” She isn’t a boisterous person at all, and often, when there is hilarity and fun “on the wing,” she seems to be a quiet spectator. Then everyone is surprised when she decides to join the conversation, and caps the climax in her own dry way.

“Benny” has one vanity, not uncommon to women—the love of dress. Outside of reading her text books, “Benny’s” chief diversion is reading the fashion magazines. She derives great pleasure from examining all the clothes, and offering her usual witty comments on them. This love of pretty clothes is really worth while, for “Benny” is one of the best-dressed girls on the Hill. Praise of a dress from “Benny” is praise indeed!
HOW well we remember Eva four years ago when she started her career at Westminster Maryland as a timid freshman. As she moved among us in her quiet and charming way, we soon saw the Eva as we know her now — an understanding and sympathetic friend. In spite of the engaging activities of the Home Economics and Speech Departments, Eva always is ready for mirth and merriment. How true it is that willing hearts have to do more than their share of the world’s work. “It is not until our willingness overflows our obligations that our lives become really profitable, anyway.” It is this unselfish, spontaneous quality of life that characterizes Eva. To observe what her life’s work is to be, one needs only to observe the light in her eyes and hear the ringing in her voice as she says—“and then India.”

We predict a happy and useful future for you, Eva— one overflowing with joy and service.

No doubt that most accurate of marksmen, Cupid, taught "Jimmy" to hit the bull's eye on the rifle range: for he was one of Western Maryland's star sharpshooters, having been captain of the team which represented Camp Meade in the national R. O. T. C. rifle finals.

Evelyn is not appalled by many outside activities, as is evidenced by her superior work on the Gold Bug and Aloha Staffs.

Despite all these achievements which ordinarily make us breathe sighs of envy, no one could take the place "Ev" has found among us. There is, however, one sport in which Lyle's assets are negligible. We wonder, too, because it is where all others have made various attempts. Lyle is noted as being a "non-parlorite." We suspect that this trait has vexed more than one of the fairer of our group, but we won't tell Lyle's characteristic answer to information along this line. “Anything worth doing is worth doing well.”

'TRUDIE'' became one of our classmates in September, 1926. Although her stay on the Hill has been short, she has proved herself a capable worker in many phases of college life. Her list of activities serves to affirm this statement. Her dramatic attainments reached their climax in “Neighbors,” when she interpreted the role of Grand- ma so well.

Her literary society has found in her a willing and intelligent member. In managing debates she has shown her business ability. As president she has led the society through a successful term.

The class of 1928 wishes for you, “Trudie,” a happy and profitable future, which will inevitably be yours.
HO is this majestic, militaristic figure who stalks grandly across the campus? Atten-shun! Present arms! The Major. On the military field the Freshies quail beneath his stern glance. A co-ed, however, was once heard to remark, 'I think that that Reed boy, in his uniform, is just the nicest thing.' Beneath the sternness of his appearance the Major has a heart of gold. That person is fortunate who is a friend of Tom, for when his dignified reserve is penetrated, the Major shows a wealth of friendliness.

As can be seen by his list of activities Tom has been a busy man during his sojourn on the Hill. Soccer, rifle, tennis, debate manager, parl—whaia! he told us not to say anything about that. That's another of his characteristics—people generally obey him when he speaks. The Major often talks of retiring, after his education is complete, to the farm, and of spending there the rest of his days in peaceful activity, (with an appropriate help-mate, of course). But, if we may be allowed to prophesy, such an uneventful existence is not for Tom. Confidentially, we shouldn't be surprised to find that our Major has developed into "Senator Reed, suh, of Maryland."

“Of soul, sincere; in action, faithful; in honor, clear.”

John has made many friends during his four years on the “Hill.” His cheerful disposition, his sparkling wit, his generosity, and his dependability have endeared him to those who know him well.

Many of John’s acquaintances are among the co-eds of the Class of ’28. It may be safely said that he is very popular among the fair sex. Because of his many sterling qualities all of his friends “bet he” will be a big success when he enters his life work.

"Much mirth and no madness
All good and no badness."

MARIE came from Potomac State College to join the Class of '28 in the Junior year. We have always been glad of this addition to our ranks, for this charming lass earns a warm welcome wherever she goes. Jolly and full of fun, she is always ready for a "lark." To this quality she owes many of her large group of friends, but still more to her ever ready helpfulness. "Ask Marie, she'll help you," is a statement often heard. Never moody, never changing in her loyalty, she can always be depended upon. Add to all this, conscientious work as a student. What more can be desired? Marie is a Home Economics "major" and dearly loves to cook and "sew a fine seam." She is going to teach next year, but how long that will last we do not know for she has been heard to say that she would like to keep house. Our best wishes for your success, classmate, in whatever you do.
MAYBELLE is a little bundle of lovable femininity, which probably accounts for love being the dominant theme in her life. During the daytime she diligently attends to her college duties, but the twilight of evening finds her waiting patiently and sometimes impatiently for the very familiar bright lights from a nearby town.

Fun is the spice of life and Maybelle has her share of it. When she is in the crowd one is always sure of a frolic. Her sense of humor carries her over many rough places.

Love and fun are not the only characteristics of Maybelle’s nature, for seriousness has its place. You could never doubt this if you saw her rushing to get to chapel, classes, and meals on time, and studying faithfully at the library.

We predict that the same spirit which has won Maybelle many friends in college will bring her future happiness.

“Blessed with each talent and each art to please.”

CAPABLE and true blue—that’s Ruth. Ruth’s college career has been varied. Her musical and dramatic talents have enabled her to furnish much enjoyment to everyone. In scholarship she has stood high among her classmates, having won Honorable Mention in ’26.

Sincerity is the keynote to Ruth’s friendships. Her winning smile and her sympathetic understanding have endeared her to her classmates.

Ruth has not devoted all of her time to work, but has entered whole-heartedly into the fun on College Hill. Her love for the out-of-doors has taken her on many “noteworthy” hiking trips.

Ruth is the embodiment of virtues that are sure to win happiness and success. She has personal charm which, combined with physical attractiveness, honor, a keen sense of right and wrong, and a bit of sunshine, makes her an invaluable friend.

Bob surveys people and things around her, says little, and forms her own opinions. Needless to say, she is a good listener. Probably no soul on earth ever listened more patiently to the good advice of well-meaning friends—and certainly no soul on earth ever more calmly disregarded that advice. Regardless of opinion, "Bob" calmly pursues her course. The course is generally a happy one, however, because "Bob" possesses two great gifts that make life a joyous thing—tolerance and a penetrating sense of humor.

"Now the fair goddess, Fortune,
Fall deep in love with thee.
Prosperity be thy page."

Virginia is one of the level-headed, capable members of the Class of '28. Her work in debating is especially commendable. She has the honor of being a member of the first Women's inter-collegiate debating team of W. M. C.

Virginia has a dreamy side which only her immediate friends have seen. Oh, those wonderful air castles built in a world of beautiful music and art.

Ginnie is not all seriousness and matter-of-factness. When you see that twinkle in her eye you know that he is ready to participate in any fun that comes along. When the alarm is signaled for a "barnyard," Ginnie sure does her part in raising the roof.

Virginia is sure to get the most out of life. She is competent enough to attain success, dreamy enough to obtain joy from the finer things, and lovable enough to attract hosts of friends.

C.; Sunday School; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet '28; College Players; Delegate to Annual Convention of Maryland Sunday School Association.

"The root of loving friendship
Grows not in selfishness
Then water well with grace
The plant which love would bless."

ALTHOUGH "Semi" is an English "major" she has only mastered two English words—give and do. She will give anything she has to a friend in need, even though she has to do without. She will do anything for anybody. She does for others until she is too tired to do for herself. Her unselfishness has developed in her a worth while habit. It is the habit of being happy. She believes that the source of real happiness is in making others happy.

We have found her indispensable in literary fields. She has excelled in inter-society debating. She has also tried her skill as a debater against other colleges. Aside from debating, her society has found her an ever-willing officer and worker.

That she has excelled as a college player needs no affirmation, if you will just recall "Neighbors" and other plays in which she has taken part.

For such a combination of unselfishness, loyalty, sincerity, friendliness, and ability, we can only prophesy success.

It would be impossible in this short space to list the "unofficial positions" which Briscoe has held in this college during the past four years. Although he makes no outward show of his influence and his works, we venture to say that he has been the "power behind the throne" in a great many incidents.

Briscoe's clear head and level thinking have always placed him on the "common sense" side of any discussion.

“Happy the man, in busy schemes unskilled,
Who living simply, like our sires of old,
Tills the few acres which his father tilled,
Vexed by no thoughts of usury or gold.”

WINGS entered our class in '24, having graduated from the well-known Western Maryland Preparatory School. The friendship and confidence of the class were his from the first. Due to his roving nature and his desire for greater knowledge, he left us at the end of his Sophomore year to attend the University of Virginia. From “Virginia” he went to Trinity College. After spending one year there he returned to Western Maryland and to his old friends among the Class of '28.

Owings’ aim in life is to settle down in a little parish, and there to strive to enlighten his fellow-men. Aside from his work, he delights in collecting books on Psycho-Analysis, Philosophy, Literature, as well as the reviews of the best modern dramas. His friends wish him every success in his life work.

His unusual record as a student deserves special praise. For rarely has any other grade than “A” appeared on his reports,—a remarkable achievement in view of the fact that he has done most of his work in that most difficult subject, mathematics. The work which “Charlie” has done in athletics also is worthy of commendation. He has played on the baseball team and has added strength to the rifle team. Most noteworthy, however, is his record for capability and thoroughness as manager of the varsity basketball squad this year.

Her charms are summed up
In the one word, "poise."

NN is the fortunate possessor of one of the most desirable feminine attributes, an abundance of poise. No matter what situation Ann may find herself in, she is always self-contained and cool.

Ann boasts a mannish hair cut, but she is one of the most feminine of girls. Her voice, her walk, her very gestures belie the effect of her masculine-looking head.

We wonder what Ann will do after graduation. Her coolness and level thinking should win her an enviable place in the business world, and yet we seldom hear Ann speak of business. Could her choice of a major possibly shed any light on the subject?

Ann hails from Southern Maryland, where they indulge in such novel and delightful pastimes as 'possum-huntin'! Oh, yes, and while we are talking about Ann, we would like to ask her the answer to the old question, "Where was Moses when the lights went out?"

Good luck, Ann! We know you'll meet life calmly and with your customary composure.

"Versatile, lovable, happy and gay."

N answer to the question "Who's Rose Todd?" some people would say, "One of the Seniors.—very quiet and dignified"; others would say, "Oh, she's that little girl with the short hair—just a kid"; and still others would say, "Rose Todd? Why, she's the captain of the basketball team. She's a peach!" And they would all be right!

Probably the emphasis should be on the last opinion, however, for it is on the basketball court that we see the real Rose—a combination of the three. As a kid she loves to play, as captain she plays the game hard and fairly, and as a quiet and dignified young lady, she is a good loser:—and Rose lives the same way she plays basketball.

"A lucky chance oft decides the fate."

Mabel happily typifies the care-free student. She is one person we never hear moaning about her lessons—because so often she has them done a week ahead of time. Such "trifles" she keeps to herself. In the line of recreations, Mabel is ever eager. This quality is carried over in the Sympathy Orchestra. Amid the lively strains of this gay group, Mabel is in her element.

An entirely different line of activity in which Mabel takes an excited part is basketball. During the season, her whole interest is centered in this form of athletics. This quality of concentration is certainly a requisite for success.

It is in the dramatic line that Mabel has endeared herself to her friends. She has created a distinct type for herself in so admirably catching childlike characteristics. As the "little human child" in "Paddy Pools" and as the fleet-footed chance in "Two Slatterns and a King," Mabel scored her chief successes. Mabel has so remarkably succeeded in carrying out her interests that we are sure that life will not grow dull for her.
When Karl came to us from the seminary in his sophomore year, Old Man Gloom took his departure, for Karl is a firm believer in: "A face that cannot smile is never good." Karl has every reason to be happy as all can see when they meet his wife and daughter.

Ever ready with a smile and a cheery word to lighten a friend's burden, to make the pathway of life a little smoother, he has endeared himself forever in the hearts of all who have learned to know him.

Though his ministerial work has kept him from engaging in the usual extra-curricular activities of the school, we know that his breadth of learning and depth of character will win for him a leading place in any community in which he resides.

"Silent and happy she steals along
Far from the world's gay, busy throng."

"Josie" is a modest little auburn-haired lass who, carefree and unassuming, goes skipping along life's way with childlike simplicity. We say "skipping," for who can ever forget her "Jumping Jack" dance in McDaniel Hall?

And as she skips, "Josie" sings. In fact, she is always rendering some funny ditty with a most unusual tune and still more unusual words. Yet she has a firm will.

She thinks much, but says little, a most commendable trait.

That such a little person should be intensely interested in such a big subject as science is indeed remarkable. "Josie" spends, nevertheless, most of her time either in the laboratory working out problems or in the library reading scientific volumes. We predict a great future for her in the field of research.
ARGARET, the "Columbine" of ’28, lives a seemingly care-free life, though her more intimate friends will say that she does her work conscientiously, too. None other in the class has won the reputation that "Marge" has for dancing. She'll be a fairy, a dignified girl of the eighteenth century, or the modern girl, and do her interpretive dances equally well for each. "Gene" is the only man in our class who can truly say, "Veni, vidi, vici"; for he alone did his major work in that most difficult subject, Latin. Language courses, however, were easy for him; he did not experience the least trouble even when taking Latin, Greek, and German at the same time.

The capacity in which "Gene" appeared most regularly before the public was that of Postmaster General of the college mail station.

His efficient and courteous service in that position won for him many friends, especially among the fair co-eds. With reference to co-eds, it should be added that he began his journeys to the shrine of Aphrodite in his Junior year after chancing upon "that one with the auburn hair and dark brown eyes." Needless to say, he has been an ardent and constant worshipper since that time.

HILDA is one of our peppy girls who always has a supply of energy ready to be used for any worthy purpose. Whether it be basketball, a romp in the dorms, or a serious piece of business, Hilda is right there with the pep.

Hilda is famous for her noise. Ten o’clock bells and study hour quiet are small items in her young life. If Hilda wants to laugh her loud and carefree laugh, all the proctors on the campus can’t keep her from it.

But don’t get the impression that Hilda doesn’t have any serious thoughts. She is a “Home Ec major,” and that in itself is enough to convince anyone that she is cut out for noble things! We always have our suspicions about these “Home Ecers” who say they want to teach.

Hilda’s sunny disposition will certainly bring her rich returns in the way of happiness. Whether she teaches, or whether she doesn’t, Hilda will find life a pretty joyous affair. Best o’ luck to you, Hilda!

One Hundred One
INITIATIVE, co-operation, and diligence are three of the traits which have characterized the Class of '28.

Our crusade of initiating improvements on the Hill began in our Sophomore year. The girls of '28 were the first to introduce and carry out Freshman Rules for girls. Similar rules have been administered by each new Sophomore class. During the same year the college ring was standardized through the co-operative efforts of the Faculty, of the Freshman Class, and of our class. The first Faculty-Student Directory was compiled and published by us in 1925. Since then the Sophomores have continued to publish these useful little books.

The victory which our freshman football team won over the "sophs" was significant in that it was the first time in six years that a Sophomore team had bowed in defeat. Our team, playing in the sea of mud which is characteristic of the "Post Season Classic," made the only touchdown of the game. During the same year the men's basketball team won second place in the class tournament. When the Class of '28 departs, the girls' varsity basketball squad will lose four of its best players, and the R. O. T. C. Rifle Team will be deprived of two expert marksmen. In tournaments of field ball, volley ball, and basketball, our girls fought spiritedly, but unfortunately did not carry off the laurels many times.

Many members of the Class of '28 are especially noted for their literary, oratorical, and dramatic ability. We were well represented on all of the inter-collegiate and inter-society debating teams of both men and women. Four members of the class were on the first Women's Inter-collegiate Debating Team, which was organized this year. Paul Lambertson, our able orator, was Western Maryland's winning representative in the State Inter-collegiate Oratorical Contest in '28. During our four years on the Hill an unusually large number of our classmates worked on the "Gold Bug" Staff and contributed to the advancement of that publication. Dorothy Gilligan was the first president of the Shakespeare Club, a literary organization formed in our Junior year. The French Club had as its first president, Elizabeth Norman, a member of our class.

The spirit of our class has also been one of congeniality. Each year, on our class picnics, we have had "heaps of fun." The same spirit of initiative that has pervaded our academic activities has not been lacking in our social life. Before our Senior year, the May Day Celebration was given under the direction of the Physical Education Department. This year the May Fête was initiated and carried through by the students themselves through the Girls' Student Government Board.

These traits of initiative, co-operation, diligence, and congeniality that have bound us together during our four years on the Hill have enabled us to contribute to the advancement of the college which we love. As we leave we say with all sincerity: May such traits dominate our whole lives in order that we may be more worthy of "Dear Western Maryland."
Said the Raggedy Man to his raggedy wife,
"My!
Sakes!
What a lot o' mistakes.
Some little boys make 'bout the folks of this life!
But people that's been to see them like me,
And calls on them frequent and intimutly,
Might drop a few hints that would interest you
Clean!
Through!
If you wanted 'em to——
Some actual facts that might interest you!
"O Tozzi the Wrestler has a crick in his hand;
Whee!
Whim!
Ain't you sorry for him?
But he's a good wrestler—the champ of the land!
And speaking of champions there's Langley the Maître.
Who won from th' Acadamie Française his lettre:
An A F he wears, and feasts on French pies——
Mon!
Dieu!
But isn't he wise——
To parler français and feast on French pies!
"And there's Mr. Stouffer—now dry your salt tears:
Whee!
Whing!
What a singular thing!

The Raggedy Man
I know, but these facts are authentic, my dears. He left Carroll County in England to stay, A radical news daily he founded, they say: Lyle Quinn is the editor—politics, you know! Whang! Ho!

Why certainly so! A radical, political editor, you know! "C. H. Bennett, the lawyer, with a curly white wig, Gee! Whiz!

What a beauty it is! And a long black gown—a quite dignified rig—Sits on the bench of the Court Supreme, The world-famed judge of his childhood dream; Attorney Mears orates with eloquence bland—— Whing! Whann!

What a marvelous man! What a very remarkably marvelous man! "'Folks of this world,' sighed the Raggedy Man, "Gits! So!

Quiet-like you know! Amblin' around since their lives began; But people that's been to see them like me, And calls on them frequent and intimituly, Can drop a few hints that would interest you—— That's!

True! If you wanted 'em to—— Some actual facts that might interest you!"
For little Miss Josie's life is all rosy,
A chemist now is she:
She measures and mixes,
Arranges and fixes,
And all quite merrily.

The General Conference of Maryland,
Of the sect that's called M. P.,
Has Dr. Woodward as its president,
No other one than she!

Kay Johnston, Kay Johnston,
Where have you been?
"I've been to London
To visit the Queen.
While I was in London
I got in a fix,
They made me poet-laureate
To write limericks!"

Frenchie is certainly sagacious,
When it comes to books—good gracious!
She'll be congressional librarian,
Till she's an octogenarian—
This prophecy isn't fallacious.

Here is the bishop all shaven and shorn,
Who wonderfully well does his office adorn:
Stone is his name—
Of Episcopal fame,
The robes of the bishop by him are well worn.

Oh, Maybelle went to market,
And Maybelle stayed at home;
And Maybelle cooked roast beef,
And Maybelle cooked seafoam;
Her name's no longer Rinehart—
She's another in its place;
For she gave away her heart,
And entered the marriage race.

I saw a ship a-sailing,
A-sailing on the sea;
And on it was an actress,
The well-known Ruth Schlincke.
She was on her way to Europe,
To win some more acclaim;
An actress of the highest type,
Who well deserved her fame.
Kylie's ascending the ladder of fame;
She's Baltimore City's mayor.
The White House is her final goal,
And nothing now can stay her.

Arthur Cecil, the chemist's son,
Learned to mix when he was young;
An industrial chemist now is he.
Who does his mixing in industry.

Sing a song of triumph
For Small, the great musician;
She sings and plays—
She has always.
A sunny disposition.

Doctor Albright, fly from your home,
Poor Miss Smith has a pain in her dome,
Mr. Jones is doing poorly—
Your expert advice will relieve them surely.

Lynch, be nimble! Lynch, be quick!
A fire has started from a candlestick;
Homes are burning—rich and poor—
Step fast, Fire Chief of the Eastern Shore!

Oh, heave a sigh and wipe your eye,
For Anne Swann is no more;
This gifted maiden, with talents laden,
Is a Mrs. for evermore.

George Sullivan's gone to sea,
A gay, young admiral now is he;
He's as brave as brave can be—
Daring Georgie Sullivan!

Ride a cock horse to Pimlico Track
To see Briscoe Sites on a white filly's back:
A jockey complete from his head to his toes,
He shall be lauded wherever he goes.
There is a little girl who has a little curl
Right in the middle of her forehead:
And when she is good she is very, very good,
But when she is bad she is horrid.
What is the name of this tot of fame?
Why 'tis little Miss Mabel Warde:
She's the Queen of Hearts when it comes to child parts—
By all of her audiences adored.

Gladys Hamme sits on the stage,
Gladys Hamme is now quite the rage;
She plays for her sister—
Musicians list her
As an accompanist clever and sage.

Pat-a-cake, pat-a-cake, baker man,
Find Mr. Ports as fast as you can:
He's the rich baker, you know what they said—
He made his huge fortune by just baking bread.

Little Miss Willinger,
With happiness filling her,
Dances with greatest of glee;
First she's here, then she's there,
At times everywhere,
A great little dancer is she.

Four and twenty soldiers standing in a row;
Before them stands their leader, complete from head to toe;
Every inch a soldier is leader J. Lusby,
The general of the army at dear old W. M. C.

There was a girl named Leota,
Historical novels she wrote-a;
Her style was eccentric,
Her facts all authentic,
A writer of remarkable note-a!
Oh, Dr. Wareheim, what shall we do?
The church is filled to capacity!
You're such a fine preacher that everyone comes
To enjoy your perspicacity!

Virginia Shockley knows all about stock-ly,
A broker now she is;
She has made her mark.
As a financial shark—
As a broker she is a whizz!

How do you get to headquarters?
Any one can tell:
Up one flight,
To your right;
Please to ring the bell.
There you'll find Miss Wilson,
International secretary;
In the work of the Y,
She stands very high:
An authority surely is she!

Lovie's the same woman—now this story's true—
Who has so many children she doesn't know what to do:
She opened an orphanage of her own volition,
And now she has children of every description!

Wilson K. is a judge
Of a very rare sort,
Anti-Volsteads and Anglicans
Flock to his court.
For there he awaits them
With a good joke or so,
And promptly he lets all
The dear sinners go.

Oh, M. A. Bennett held a tenet
That women all are free:
She was the ignition,
Of a female sedition—
A great liberator is she!

Hey diddle diddle,
Dot and her fiddle
Have risen up high, don't you know—
They play in a movie,
A very nice movie,
That costs just a quarter or so!
How doth this busy little miss
Improve each shining hour?
She's Mabel Barnes of Business fame.
In politics a power!

Oh Maggie Mae Mills, the preacher's wife.
Leads a most charming and enviable life.
With a beautiful home and a garden, too:
She's a model housekeeper, for nothing's askew.

Eve Logue, the daring,
Went to the Straits of Bering:
When they said, "Are you friz?"
She replied, "Yes I is.
A missionary's life is wearing!"

There is a man in our town.
John Reinicke is his name
He's English prof. at W. M. C.
Yes, John!—the very same!

Little hunks of protoplasm,
Bigger bits of cranium.
Make of John Paul Lambertson
A man with a mighty brainium
Thus the little hunks and bits,
Humble though they be.
The president of the conference
Have made of our J. P.

Have Grace Henry Jones
For all of your groans.
A very good nurse is she;
She cheers up the blue,
And helps the sick, too;
As remarkable as she can be!
If all the world were apple pie,
And all the sea were ink,
And all the trees were bread and cheese,
What should we have for drink?
But Alice Freeny solved this problem,
Of drinking there's no stop
Since the day that she invented
A new synthetic pop!

Sing a song of cutlery.
The surgeon now we meet;
The famous Dr. Goodhand.
Skilful and discreet.

Twinkle, twinkle, little star,
At last I've found out who you are:
Kitty Bryan is your name,
And you've attained dramatic fame.

Helen Butler and Dot Mellott,
So the story books read,
Opened the Green and Gold Parrott Inn:
'Tis a wonderful success, indeed!

My dears, do you know
How a long time ago
Two girls left their college, their heads full of knowledge.
To climb the steep ladder of fame?
They got to the top,
With nary a stop—
The Gold Dust Twins is their name.
For pictures they pose,
And more we'll disclose—
At art exhibitions we see these two Titians,
The models of portrait fame;
Take off your hat,
To Laura and Pat—
The Gold Dust Twins is their name.
Helen Baker met a Quaker
Going to the fair:
Said Helen Baker to the Quaker,
"Won't you read my ware?
"I write fiction—Oh, what diction:
Just you read this book!"
Said the Quaker to Helen Baker.
"It has a risqué look!"

"Walk into my parlor," said Bloom to Elsie Held,
"It is the finest beauty parlor ever you beheld;
I am the owner, manager, and director, too—
My patronage is very large—but what can I do for you?"
"I've just been made the manager of Hutzler's," Elsie said.
"And I want to look my very best, from my feet up to my head."
When the task was finished, Elsie started on her way
With a "Good-bye, Miss Bloom Hildebrand, I'll call another day."

Merry, merry Meridith,
Have you any cash?
"Yes, sir, indeed, sir—
But I'm not rash:
Some's for my very self
The rest for my wife.
I've not been a millionaire
All of my life!"

"What is your name, my pretty maid?"
"My name's Louise Baus, kind sir," she said.
"What do you do, my pretty maid?"
"I'm an aviatrix, kind sir," she said.
"Where are you going, my pretty maid?"
"I'm going a-flying, kind sir," she said.
"May I go with you, my pretty maid?"
"If your life is insured, kind sir," she said.

Thomas Reed, Thomas Reed,
Where are you resident?
"My home is in Washington,
Where I help the President."
Thomas Reed, Thomas Reed,
What is your function?
"I am a senator,
Famed for my unction."

One Hundred Seventeen
History of the Class of '29

The Class of '29 will go down in the annals of Western Maryland College as the class of new traditions. Its reputation began to grow as soon as its members first arrived on the Hill. Freshman Week, an entirely new experiment in the history of the college, was first tried out on the Class of '29. Since then the class has been the center of new and progressive experiments and ideas.

Being Freshmen was a humiliating task, especially for the boys. The girls, too, shared in the "paddling," for the Class of '29 was the first class in the history of the college whose girls suffered under Soph administration. But intelligence tests, "rat" rules, and other trials were soon forgotten in the general good time provided by the Junior picnic.

The girls of '29 established a new tradition, the lantern chain, at the end of their Freshman year. Carrying lighted lanterns, singing farewell songs to the Seniors, they introduced a custom which will be followed by all their Freshman successors.

The "Soph" year was a huge success. The Class of '29, like all its predecessors, gave a HalloWe'en party; but this party was a masque, the first one ever given on the Hill. Carrying on the splendid work of the Class of '28, the Class of '29 continued the publication of the student-faculty directory.

The Class of '29 has made a splendid record for itself in the field of athletics. Both boys and girls won the class basketball championships during the Freshman and Sophomore years. The boys of the class also won the Freshman-Sophomore football game for both years. The Junior year was not such a success athletically speaking, but the teams did very creditable work.

At the end of the Sophomore year the Class of '29 took the first comprehensive examinations to be given on the Hill. The class also originated the tree-planting ceremony at this time. A young evergreen tree was planted in front of McDaniel Hall in honor of the Class of '27.

Now, at the end of its Junior year, the Class of '29 has become a very vital part of the life on College Hill. From its members all of next year's leaders will be chosen. The Class of '29, with a praiseworthy record behind it, is ready to embark upon its Senior year and do all in its power to aid and develop its Alma Mater.

The Class of ‘30 returned to the Hill this year determined to keep up the fine record it had set during its freshman year. As soon as the “Rat Rules” were initiated, class teams were organized to participate in athletic tournaments. The sophomore girls made a splendid record in every sport. The honors of winning the inter-class basketball match and of ranking second in both field ball and volley ball were added to the coed’s list of achievements. The sophomore men had the pleasure of bringing down the undefeated junior basketball team. The class contributed just as many to the varsity football squad this year as it did last year.

Although the sophomores have taken great interest in the athletic activities, they have displayed an even greater desire to excel in things intellectual. Maintaining a high scholastic standard and participating in extra-curricular activities of a literary nature are among the class’ prime interests. Sophomores entirely composed the Webster debating team and two men represented the class on the Irving team. One of the Philomathean essayists for this year comes from among our group.

The sophomores have been called upon several times to help the upperclassmen in their dramatic productions. If the success that some of our actors have achieved this year continues, they may become famous. The colorful “Rose Chain” procession in the May Day celebration was formed entirely by sophomore girls. In every phase of the entertainment our members were found.

Our class has tried to adhere to Western Maryland’s traditions by having the “Lantern Chain,” by making the “rats” know their place, by participating in class color fights, and by entertaining the school at Hallowe’en time.

Now, we are all looking forward to next year when we shall be “Jolly Juniors” and are hoping to continue the good spirit and friendship which we have cherished during our first two years on College Hill.

One Hundred Thirty-two
HE CLASS OF '31 began writing its history on September 13, 1927, but that supposedly unlucky date certainly marked a very happy beginning. Freshman Week with its receptions, suppers, and teas gave us a feeling of welcome that even "Rat Rules" could not mar.

The sophomores were certainly firm taskmasters, but we "frosh" learned quickly. Though for six days we had "owned" the college, the sophs soon taught us the gentle art of co-operation. The girls' rules were lifted after three weeks of bowing and twirling, but the boys' rules were continued much longer. On December the first, however, the football team partly relieved its classmates by defeating the sophomores 24-0.

The beginning of the one-year rule brought to our class many fine football players, so that the "Baby Terrors" presented a very formidable line-up. They will certainly provide invaluable material for the varsity next year. With Ed Brown and Doug Crosby cheering our teams, almost all of them have been very successful. Freshmen have been very active participants in all sports on the Hill. In basketball, soccer and baseball our men have always been prominent. The Freshmen have been especially prominent in boxing. Ekaitis, especially, won renown by defeating the South Atlantic champion in a bout at the Armory.

The coeds, however, are not letting the boys carry away all the honors. The freshmen girls first won the interclass field ball and volley ball championships. Our basketball team defeated the Junior and Senior teams besides contributing several valuable players to the varsity squad.

We are taking a very active part in athletics, but we are also engaging in all extra curricular activities. The Jesters would undoubtedly have missed our "ladies" Rein, Lyons, and McGowan. Besides this, that famous team, Bush and Boroski made a decided hit with their crazy songs. Several other boys displayed their talents as musicians or as actors.

Only one accident has marred our happy history, but we are all hoping that Joe Mills will soon be back on the Hill again.

The Class of '31 has begun its history with many victories. We are all hoping that the rest of its career will be even more successful, so that we may bring added honor to Western Maryland.
The Class of Twenty-eight we praise
And lift our voices clear.
We shall be loyal through our days
To all our classmates dear.
A group of true and faithful friends,
Our love does not abate.
Whose loyal friendship never ends,
That's nineteen twenty-eight.

CHORUS
Thy blessing receiving,
Sadly we're leaving,
Weary the way,
Alma Mater, We love thee:
May the blue skies above thee
Never turn gray.
BOOK EIGHT

ATHLETICS
Dear Western Maryland

Dear Western Maryland, Fearless and bold:

We're here to cheer to victory, the green and the gold

And we will always be loyal to thee.

We'll love thee ever, dear old
Resume of the Football Season

While the football season of the year of 1927 culminated in an unexpected reverse at the hands of the Muhlenberg College eleven, it was by no means a failure. In winning six out of the eight games scheduled, Western Maryland achieved a record it may well be proud of. The loss of six members of last year's squad, in addition to the fact that the one year rule took effect at the beginning of the school year, made the work of the coach an arduous one. The fine spirit of the squad, combined with excellent backing by the student body, was a great incentive for a successful season.

Western Maryland opened the season at Washington, Pa., with the formidable team of Washington and Jefferson College. Played under a hot, relentless sun, which took its toll of players on both sides, the game was marked by the stubborn defense of the Terrors against the onslaughts of the crack Presidents' backs. At the end of the third quarter the score was deadlocked at 6-6, one of the few continued drives of W. M. having resulted in Captain Neal getting a touchdown. In the waning minutes of the last quarter W. and J. scored another touchdown and field goal making the final score 15-6. Despite the adverse score the followers of the Green and Gold can recall that game with pride, for every man gave his best. From that game, the team and the student body emerged with a loyalty, a spirit, and a determination to amplify the traditions of Western Maryland.

The following Saturday, the team journeyed to Reading, Pa., where Schuylkill was defeated, 13-0. The strain of the previous game was still upon the Terrors so that it was difficult for them to time precisely their plays. Schuylkill offered powerful opposition and it was only after a hard battle that our team was able to emerge victorious by the margin of two touchdowns.

Dickinson was the next opponent to be played and in this game the Terrors hit their stride. The plays were executed in a manner befitting a Harlow coached team. The final score was 45-0 in favor of Western Maryland. Neal, Miller, and Gomsak led in the attack on the Dickinson goal, with Machtamer, Weinstock and Pelton leading the defense.

The first home game of the year was played with Albright furnishing the opposition. The visitors came to Westminster with a fast, heavy team that had earned an enviable reputation. The students and followers of our team witnessed a great exhibition of football that day, for they saw their team trample the representatives of Albright for a total of 33 points and still hold the visitors scoreless. The scoring was about evenly distributed among the backfield men, all of them doing their work to perfection. The line men, though doing their work was not as conspicuous to the average onlooker, displayed a great defensive ability and usually found a way to open holes in the opposite line.
One of Western Maryland's traditional rivals was encountered the next Saturday at Gettysburg. In this game the Green and Gold eleven reached its peak. Rushing across a touchdown within three minutes after the initial kickoff, the Terrors' offense could not be stopped until 41 points had been rolled up. The size of the score does not mean that Gettysburg had a weak team, for our hosts had a much heavier and physically stronger team than ours. Taking advantage of every opportunity to use speed and deception, Western Maryland had possession of the ball so much of the time that Gettysburg never threatened our goal. Neal, Long, Miller, and Gomsak led in offensive work while the play of Clark and VanBuren was exceptionally good in the line. Every member of the squad that took part in the game acquitted himself well.

Loyola College of Baltimore was the only State team met last season. Western Maryland's 26-0 victory over Loyola was an indication that the Terrors ranked high in Maryland football. In the absence of Captain Neal from the game, the attack was carried by Gomsak, Long, and Miller. Weinstock and O'Lear played important parts on the defense by checking Loyola's Notre Dame shifts.

Armistice Day the Green and Gold eleven met a team that was composed of the pick of the United States Army. This team contained many former college stars and players who had attained stardom on the various army post teams all over the country. With the incentive of seeing a great game, coupled with the fact that the game was run under the auspices of the Disabled Foreign Veterans, a large crowd was present in the stadium in Baltimore. In comparing the physical appearance of the two teams it looked as if Armistice was to be an all-Army day. But, led by Captain Neal, the Terrors displayed one of the greatest, most diversified attacks ever shown in one afternoon on a football field. Miller interspersed off-tackle runs and reverses with an overhead attack, often coming back with a series of double passing in the backfield to bewilder completely the older, more experienced opponents. But it is difficult to name outstanding stars, for every man played his best and every man played harder and fought better than he knew how. The final score was 48-0 in our favor and it was a fitting tribute to Captain Orville Neal to be the one to accept the General McArthur Cup, on behalf of Western Maryland, as a token of victory over the best the Army could muster on the football field.

Thanksgiving Day was an unfortunate one in the history of the college. Muhlenburg played host to our eleven and after a hard, yet ragged game of football, they emerged on the long end of a 6-2 score over the Terrors. Perhaps it was the condition of the field; it might have been that our fellows were overconfident, nevertheless, they would not alibi and accepted the bitter pill of defeat with the true spirit of gentlemen, yet resolving to reverse the tables next year and make the dose many times more bitter.

Thus the football season ended. There are many names of our men that have not appeared among the roll of stars, possibly not even in the line-up, but they deserve special mention. Certainly without their efforts, Western Maryland would not have the high grade team that it has today.
Dick Harlow

Athletic Coach

To get a view of Dick Harlow's work during the past two years requires perhaps greater perspective than even we who have seen his teams win practically all of their games can have. That we have a man of national reputation who is able to develop new material, moral character, and conceive one of the greatest attacks in the country is hard to grasp at close range.

In the amazing development that our athletics have undergone during his regime it has been Dick's purpose to build on a firm foundation of honesty and fair play. The greater recognition that all of our teams are receiving is due entirely to his teachings. This has been reflected in the conduct of the boys in the game.
NEAL

A great captain of a worthy team. A real All-American in football ability and in heart. He lived up to the finest traditions of the great American game, both on and off the field. Greasy has spread fear to the hearts of all Western Maryland's opponents and has brought respect and honor to the name of the college which he represents.

HAVENS

One of the greatest fighting centers in the country. His passing is marvelously accurate and his tackling is deadly. He is always in the thickest of the fight—thinking always. Very intelligent, always honorable, the coaches rate him as one of the best two centers they have seen in twenty years.

SPEIR

Barney has been one of the bulwarks of Western Maryland athletics for years. He has handled a difficult job well and unselfishly. Painstaking and honest, loyal and courageous, Barney is one whom Western Maryland is proud to call a son.
PELTON

Bill fulfilled the expectations of the followers of the Terrors last fall by turning in an even better grade of football than he displayed during his first year. With plenty of competition to spur him on, Bill should show almost perfect form next fall.

CLARK—All Maryland End

For the second consecutive time Lyal was picked as a member of the "Sun's" All Maryland Eleven. This, in itself, is a clear indication of his ability. Next year is his last as a member of the squad, and we feel sure that he will end his college career with another successful season on the gridiron.

CECIL

During his four years in college, Duke was always present at football drill. Of such men the college must say, "Without their help, the team could never be what it is."

One Hundred Forty-three
MACHAMER

Mose really "came through" last year. Since he played but average football the year before, his success this year was pleasing to all. In the Gettysburg and Loyola games Mose reached his greatest heights.

MILLER

Though placed in the quarterback position with its taxing responsibilities, Bud handled the team with great efficiency. Gaining experience from each game, Bud was rated, at the close of the season, with the best of the field generals of the smaller colleges.

TOZZI

Abe, by his unselfish spirit and his indomitable will, surely gained the right to wear the varsity insignia.

One Hundred Forty-four
Nate was regarded as one of the best tackles in the country. His playing contributed immeasurably to the success of the Terror line this fall. Eastern coaches gave recognition of his unusual ability by selecting him to play on the Eastern Team which met the Western Team in California.

The steady, reliable playing of Alex was lost to many of the football fans who looked only for spectacular, open field work. Alex's offensive and defensive ability, however, was appreciated by every man on the team. Next year we expect him to be one of the mainstays of the line.

Bill, though he played in but few games, was invaluable to the team on account of his work on the practice field.
McMAINS

"Mac" possessed all the qualities of a real field general, and deserves great praise for the running of the team.

CHAMBERS

"Hoot" was an invaluable man to the team. He has improved each year, until he is now one of our best. The playing of the team was characterized by an indomitable

ROACH

"Pod" was one of the best, and a tower of strength to the line, and inspired it to greater effort in the pinches.

GOMSAC

Since Pete was late in returning to college, he was sorely missed in the W. and J. game. That he was soon in shape, however, was evidenced by his work in the rest of the games. Pete's greatest improvement over last year was in his defensive work.

One Hundred Forty-six
LONG

"Shorty" proved one of the best ball "toters" on the squad. No one can question his value to the team.

NORRIS

"Dick" developed into a player of no mean ability. He was a hard worker and always gave his best.

VAN BUREN

Injuries kept Bob from participating in the earlier games, but, after he recovered, he performed his work as guard as well as could be desired. Big, fast, and having plenty of stamina, Bob was a real asset to the Terrors.
Resume of the Basketball Season

The basketball season closed with the Terrors ranking among the leading teams in collegiate circles. Playing one of the hardest schedules ever arranged for a Western Maryland team, Coach Speir’s quintet won twelve games and lost nine. After a bad start, the quintet, led by Machamer and Broll, reversed their form and began winning consistently. Broll, who led the state with 259 points scored, was selected on the All-Maryland team, while Machamer was chosen center on the second team. The playing of the team was characterized by an indomitable fighting spirit which frequently changed defeat into victory and caused Western Maryland to enjoy a most successful season on the court. During the early part of the season, trouble in filling vacancies left by graduation was encountered, but fortunately several new men were able to meet the situation, and the team improved as these new men gained experience. Fortunately the team is intact for next year so that this difficulty will not be again encountered.

Co-Ed Varsity Basketball Team

FAITH H. MILLARD
Coach

Even with the loss of seven members from the year 1927, the co-ed basketball team has displayed its usual skill and, due to the untiring efforts of Faith H. Millard as coach, has attained success. To form all new material into a well-rounded team was a task; but Miss Millard was capable. Good spirit and co-operation among the players were present to a remarkable degree.

---

TODD, Captain, Side Center

Rose is a typical athlete. Basketball is her specialty, and as the captain of her team, she displayed that fine sportsmanship which commanded the admiration and respect of each member.

---

ENGLE—Forward

"Pat" has been a faithful standby for four years, making her letters in the last three seasons. Though she has always put all of her spirit into each game, she never forgets to practice teamwork.

---

MILES—Forward

This year "Gladie" changed her position from guard to forward and was quite equal to this task. Her accurate shooting helped to bring several victories to our team.
MURPHY—Forward

Too much cannot be said about “Pat” as a Freshman in rolling up the score for W. M. C. She knows the art of freeing herself from her guard. How do you do it, “Pat?”

JOHNSON—Center

“Do” at center showed how to get a tip-off. Her team-mates placed absolute confidence in her, because she never failed to start the ball rolling for W. M. C.

WHEELER—Guard

For three years Charlotte not only stuck to the team, but also to her forward. This alone qualified her for the position of guard, and as such she has shown her sterling worth.

WILLINGER—Guard

Basketball won Margaret’s heart, and for four years she has backed the team in the position of guard. Her usual skill and ability in this position has often saved the day for Western Maryland.
Baseball Team

This year's schedule is one of the best that has ever been arranged for the college nine. It calls for games with the foremost college nines of the state and with several of the best small college teams in the State of Pennsylvania. With the larger part of last year's squad on hand, with several likely recruits being coached by Sergeant Mashburn and "Barney" Speir, the prospects for a good season are especially bright.

Soccer

The soccer team made an even break of the schedule this year. Playing eight games, they won four and lost one. The season started with the squad somewhat out of form and games were lost successively to Franklin and Marshall, Navy, and Lafayette University. The latter is a new addition to the schedule, but promises to be a permanent one.

The most commendable showing of the year was made when Western Maryland played Navy at Annapolis. A last five-minute rally tied the score, but in the end Maryland was defeated 4-3. Two defeats were handed to the University of Delaware in successive weeks, and the old rival, Maryland State Normal School, was forced to accept two losses.

The prospects are exceedingly bright for 1928-29. A well-balanced schedule has been arranged which calls for meeting Temple University, Navy, Franklin and Marshall, Bucknell, Maryland State Normal, and the University of Delaware. The team is also to meet Army at West Point in the fall, after a year's lapse of soccer relations.
The Rifle Team

The Rifle Team enjoyed one of the most successful seasons since it has been organized. Matched with all of the colleges in the country having Senior R. O. T. C. units, the team showed its ability by winning the majority of its matches after a hard schedule. Several members of the team won individual honors in the Third Corps Area match, in which the team made a good showing.

This season of rifle shooting has seen much general advancement in this sport at Western Maryland. Too much credit cannot be given to the more experienced members of the squad who gave up a large part of their spare time to the coaching of the new men. The R. O. T. C. officials ably assisted the manager in the care of the range and by taking care of a large part of the correspondence.

Letters were awarded to the members of the squad who fired in 75 per cent. of the matches, or those that fired among the five highest in at least two-thirds of the matches.

Next year rifle shooting should expand, and increase its success in every way.
The tennis team was greatly handicapped this year through the loss of several good men, but during mid-season it developed into a strong aggregation. Due to rain, early spring practice had to be abandoned, and the early matches showed lack of practice. This, however, was overcome and the racqueters gave a good account of themselves on the court in the remaining matches. Several new men fulfilled the prediction that they would excel in match plays and added greatly to the strength of the team. Inclement weather prevented the playing of four matches in which indications pointed to some lively plays.

The season opened with a defeat at the hands of Dickinson, 6-0. Matches with George Washington University and Pennsylvania Military College were cancelled. Virginia Polytechnic Institute was entertained at home and the team showed great improvement though being defeated 5-2. University of Baltimore was met on the home courts and defeated by the score of 3-2. The next team played was Gettysburg at home, and was lost 4-2; the game with the strong team of Bucknell was lost 6-0. Rain prevented us playing our rivals, University of Maryland, and another scheduled match with Pennsylvania Military College. The season ended with a tie with Gettysburg 3-3.

HIS was a year of experience for the boxing team. Scheduled with some of the best intercollegiate squads, Western Maryland gained some valuable knowledge about boxing which should next year enable her boxers to surpass the commendable record of 1927-28.

The team defeated Temple University, Georgetown, and Rutgers University. Although evidencing splendid individual ability, the team was forced to accept defeat from Yale University, Penn State, the intercollegiate champions, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and Virginia Military Academy.

Western Maryland had the honor of receiving an invitation to the Intercollegiate Boxing Matches held in the "Palestra" of the University of Pennsylvania on May 13-14. It was accepted by Coach Harlow and needless to say, the team displayed creditable form and skill.

A resume of the season would be incomplete without mentioning the work of George Ekaitis and Hayes Callihan. Both won more than half their bouts and showed promise for an enviable record in 1929.

Two Hundred Nineteen
Statistics

1. If all the pencils used during math were made into a bonfire, the pile would be 9 feet high and burn for 9 days.

2. The number of cribs or ponies (see dictionary for definition) admitted by the students was 0.

3. The number collected by the teachers were 25. The other students (?) used someone else's.

4. Candy consumed during History periods would feed 9,000 Chinese babies for four years.

5. Cigarette butts collected within the boys (?) dormitories, if laid end to end would reach around the world three times.

6. The total number of write-ups submitted to the "Aloha" totaled 67. The number accepted without revision was 2.

7. Out of the 6,464 questions asked at the offices, 6,463 were foolish ones. The other one was, "When is the last day of school?"

8. If the chewing gum left under the desks was stretched, it would reach from New York to Hollywood.
BLACK MAGIC

Father (reading school report)—“‘Conduct. bad; reading. bad; composition, arithmetic, history, bad-bad-bad!’ What is the meaning of this, Jane?”
Jane—‘I can’t understand it, Dad. Do you think it might be forgery?”

SHADOW BOXING

“How do you know Arthur was stewed?”
“He was having an awful fight with the dean.”
“How does that prove he was drunk?”
“The dean wasn’t there at the time.”

THEY BEAT HIM TO IT

Husband—‘I say, if the worst comes to the worst I suppose we can go and live with your parents?”
Wife—‘Not a chance. They’re already living with their parents.”

TRADE-IN

Minister—‘And so you are about to take unto yourself a new wife.”
Grass Widower (wool-gathering)—‘Yes: what will you allow me for my old one?”

“Is he polite?”
“Is he polite! Why, he apologizes to himself when he cuts himself with the razor.”

Angry Prof.—‘Jones, what are you late for today?”
Jones—‘For class, I guess?”

Iris—‘Dear Mary is so economical!”
Mary—‘She is certainly that. Didn’t she even give up her honeymoon so her husband could save up for her alimony?”

Tourist—‘About what is the population of this place?”
Native—‘About the post office, sir.”

Sleepyhead—‘Gee, I hope this rain keeps up all day.”
Eveready—‘You lazy thing, what for?”
Sleepyhead—‘So it won’t come down.”

Two Hundred Twenty-three
MILK IN THE COCOANUT

She: "I hear that your old aunt has a will of her own."

He (tired of waiting): "I know she has. I only wish she'd give us a chance to probate it."

Farmer: "Hi, there! What are you doing up in my cherry tree?"

Willie: "Dere's a notice down dere to keep off de grass."

Angry Customer (tossing a package on the counter): "Makes washing a pleasure, does it? Does the washing while you wait, does it? It's the little flakes of soap that—"

Grocer: "Madam, one moment, please. This is not soap."

"Not soap? Not soap?"

"No, your daughter asked for a half-pound of grated cheese and a half-pound of soap flakes. This is the cheese."

"My stars! And last night I made a pudding!"

BELIEVE IT OR NOT

The conductor on a southbound local was passing through the car when he happened to notice an elderly Scotsman and a young Scotch lad. The old man was holding a watch in his hand and was watching it with intense interest. Suddenly he seemed satisfied and looked up. Seeing the conductor, he beckoned to him to come over.

"What is it?" asked the conductor.

"I want to pay the rest of my grandson's fare," replied the Highlander. He has just become twelve years old."

"So you're from Lapland, eh? Is it cold up there?"

"Cold! Say boy, it's so cold there that "Go to hell" is considered a compliment."

"Zees American football game ees well named."

DRY GOODS

He: "And who made the first cotton gin?"

Young Thing: "Heavens! Are they making it from that, too?"

1st Student: "Books are our best friends."

2nd Student: "They sure are—in a test."
Parent: “My daughter tells me you are a church member. To what church do you belong?”
Suitor: “Why-er-name some of them over.”

THAT’S PECULIAR

Soph: “Freshman, why do you stutter?”
Fresh: “That’s my p-p-peculiarity. Everyone has a p-p-peculiarity.”
Soph: “I have none.”
Fresh: Don’t you st-stir your coffee with your right hand?”
Soph: “Yes.”
Fresh: “W-well, that’s your p-p-peculiarity. M-most folks use a spoon.”—Ex.

“Gee, those hot-dogs smell good,”
“Yeah. I’ll drive a little closer to the stand.”

Jack: Ye gods! I’ve been reading Friday’s paper all this time.
Helen: Well, you poor nut!
Jack (After a long pause): Hey! This IS Friday.

DECREES GUARANTEED

He wanted a divorce and had gone to a lawyer whose experience in the court-rooms had done nothing to lessen his cynicism.

“I want to find out if I have grounds for divorce,” he told the attorney.

“Are you married?”
“Of course I am.”
“You have.”

“I don’t like this game,” said Ruth, as she bit into the chicken.
“Yes, it’s foul,” agreed Louise.
Getting out a year book is no picnic!
If we print jokes, folks say we are silly.
If we don’t they say we are too serious.
If we publish original matter, they say we lack variety.
If we publish things from other books, we are too lazy to write.
If we are rustling features we are not attending to work in our own department.
If we don’t print contributions, we don’t show proper appreciation.
If we print them, the book is filled with “junk.”
Like as not someone will say we borrowed this from another book.
We did—and we thank him!

RETIRING

Stern Wife: “Ernest, what are you doing with all those messy bits of paper?”
Henpecked Husband: “Making a wish, my love.”
Stern Wife: “Making a wish?”
Henpecked Husband—“Yes, darling. I er wouldn’t presume to call it a will."

THE MELODY LINGERS ON

The towering form of Jerry’s wife loomed before him:
“Drunk again?” she queried caustically.
“Hooray, m’dear,” he replied, “so am I!”—Exchange.

Frosh—Only fools are positive.
Senior—Are you sure?
Frosh—Positive
—Exchange.

It is said that the absent-minded professor once poured syrup down his back and scratched his pancakes.
Selected.

Don’t count the number of your friends by the number of fellows who smoke your cigarettes between lectures.

A DILEMMA

An Australian barrister tells of a native charged in a country town with stealing. His solicitor decided to put him in the box to give evidence on his own behalf. The magistrate, being doubtful if he understood the nature of an oath, undertook to examine him on the point.
“Jacky,” he said, “you know what will happen to you if you tell a lie?”
“My oath, boss,” replied Jacky, “me go down below—burn long time.”
“Quite right,” replied the magistrate. “And now you know what will happen if you tell the truth.”
“Yes, boss. We lose ‘em case.”

NOT ALL THERE

Lawyer: “Was the man you found under the street car a total stranger?”
Witness (who had been told to be careful): “No, sir, his arm and leg were gone; he was only a partial stranger.”

WITNESS SOMEWHAT HANDICAPPED

Counsel: “Don’t tell us what you think: tell us what you know.”
Witness: “Not being a lawyer, I can’t talk without thinking.”

Two Hundred Twenty-six
TELL HIM NOW

If with pleasure you are viewing
Any work a man is doing,
If you like him or you love him, tell him now;
Dont withhold your approbation
Till the parson makes oration
And he lies with snowy lilies o'er his brow,
For no matter how you shout it
He won't really care about it,
He won't know how many teardrops you have shed;
Now's the time to slip it to him
If you think some praise is due him
For he cannot read his tombstone when he's dead.
More than fame and more than money
Is the comment kind and sunny
And the hearty, warm approval of a friend;
For it gives to life a savor,
Makes you happy, strong and braver.
And it gives you heart and courage to the end.
If he earns your praise, bestow it,
If you like him, let him know it,
Let the kind words of encouragement be said:
Do not wait till life is over
And he's underneath the clover,
For he cannot read his tombstone when he's dead!

Two Hundred Twenty-eight
HYSTERICAL TEST

1. What two surveyors is the Mason-Dixon line named after?
2. What was America’s aim in starting the War of Independence?
3. Who was nominated first President of the United States, and did Washington accept this nomination?
4. Who made the first 33½-hour non-stop flight across the Atlantic and how long did it take Lindbergh to do it?
5. In what European city did the “Conference of Geneva” take place?
6. Who is buried in Grant’s tomb? Why?
7. If I am the best professor in school, what causes that?
   (Credit will be given for all answers).

HE’S NO LIAR

“Billy, do you know what happens to little boys who tell lies?”
“Sure, they ride for half-fare.”

TIT FOR TAT

“So Robert married a social nobody, and just think, his ancestors came across in the Mayflower.”
“That’s all right: her folks came across with $150,000.”

ROCKY ROAD TO DUBLIN

Newedd: “I really oughtn’t to speak of it, but my wife’s cooking is terrible.”
Oldwedd: “Cheer up, my boy! The first hundred biscuits are the hardest.”

Wife: “John, I told you to bring home some sandwiches from the drug store. You’ve forgotten again.”
John: “No, I haven’t dear. They’re right here in my vest pocket.”

Professor: “What do you propose doing after graduating?”
Student: “I expect, sir, to take a post mortem course at the University.”

Two Hundred Twenty-nine
We’re all supposed to be up on etiquette, but here’s one that floored even Tom Martin. In case of an automobile wreck, should the man precede the lady through the windshield?

He: "B’lieve me, she’s some girl. I think I’ll go out for football so’s I can keep up with her."
N’other he: "Why not go out for track?"

"The trouble with you is that you’re spoiled."
"No, that’s the perfume you gave me."
"What is the secret of success?" asked the World.
"Push," said the Button.
"Take pains," said the Window.
"Always keep cool," said the Ice.
"Be up to date," said the Calendar.
"Never lose your head," said the Barrel.
"Make it snappy," said the Elastic.
"Do a driving business," said the Hammer.
"Aspire to greater things," said the Nutmeg.
"Find a good thing and stick to it," said the Glue.

Sullivan: "This course is getting so bad now a fellow has to use his brains."
Dr. Shenton: "My! My! What are you going to do now?"

Prof: "Have you read Beowulf?"
Soph: "No, I don’t like animal stories."

Art: "My girl is so little she just comes to my shoulder."
Pudd: "Ha! Mine comes to my arms."
When a dentist lances an abscess the patient generally gets the point!

"The bigger they are, the harder they fall," said the patient as his overextended upper plate dropped out.

"Lo, Brow."
"Hi, Hat."
—Annapolis Log.

Jean: "What's the point in calling your friend 'Hesperus' all the time?"
Marian: "'Cause I always have to ride in that wreck of his."

"Those are hard lines," said the dentist as he attempted to restore the bootlegger's facial contour.

He: "Gave my dogs an airing yesterday."
She: "How come?"
He: "Doc Crider took both my canines out."

"Why don't you advertise?"
"It's no use. It ruins my business."
"Ruins your business? How?"
"I tried it last year and the people nearly bought everything I had."
Ah! Poetry, what crimes are committed in thy name!

'TISN'T FAIR

In the parlor there were three,
The maid, the parlor lamp, and he,
Two was company, without a doubt,
So the little lamp went out.

WITH FIXIN'S

Mary had a little lamb,
You've heard it oft before,
And then she passed her plate again
And had a little more.
The herring is a funny fish
Of that be well assured
In every case it must be killed
Before it can be cured.

IN THE PARLOR

IN THE PARLOR

YE CO-ED FOOTBALLE

Mary was a co-ed;
Mary was a peach.
Ted took Mary to the game—
They sat there side by side each.
When the game was over
Mary turned to Ted:
"Oh, wasn't it a bully game,—
Who pitched for us?" she said.

POTPURRI

"Are you Hungary?"
"Yes, Siam."
"Den Russia to de table and I will Fiji."
"All right—Sweden my coffee and Den mark my bill."

Melin: "Say, Schutte, have you heard the latest Chevrolet joke?"
Schutte: "Hear it? Say, man, I own it!"

STORAGE PROBLEM

Old gentleman (seeing the small colored boy was having some trouble in getting away with the large melon he was trying to eat): "Too much melon, isn't it, Rastus?"

Small Colored Boy: "No sub, boss, not enough niggah."

He: "I had a wonderful time at your party last night."
She: "Why, I had no party last night."
He: "That so? Well, believe me, I was at somebody's party."

Two Hundred Thirty-two
GENTLE BRICKBAT

"Have you heard that Edna is engaged?"
No, who's the plucky man?"

Cooksey: "Just think! Three thousand seals were used to make fur coats last year."
Dorothy: "Isn't it wonderful that they can train animals to do such work?"

"How long you in jail fo', Mose?"
"Two weeks."
"What am de cha'ge?"
"No cha'ge, everything am free."
"Ah mean what has you did?"
"Done shot mah wife."
"You all killed yo' wife and only in jail fo' two weeks?"
"Dat's all—then ah gets hung."

MA A LA MODE

"There's mother's ashes in the jar on the mantelpiece."
"So your mother is with the angels!"
"No, sir: she's just too lazy to look for an ash tray."

Judge: "What is the charge, officer?"
Officer: "Driving while in a state of extreme infatuation."

Herring (having his nails manicured): "Only the right hand, please: I can do the left one myself."

"And how is your wife?"
"Oh, her head is troubling her a lot."
"That's bad. Chronic headaches, eh?"
"No; she wants a new hat."

Soph: "Get down on your knees."
Frosh: "I can't. It's all I can do to get down on my upper lip."

It is a very sad thought, gentle reader, that your children, twenty years from now, will be reading these same jokes.

"I sent my boy to college to acquire a little polish," moaned Farmer Brown, "and now he's drinking it!"

GOOD REASON

"Why have you given up working the cross-word puzzles?"
"Because I was too absent-minded. One day I was 'phoning and caught myself asking Central for horizontal 1228."
Retrospective

The Staff of the "Aloha" feel keenly its indebtedness to those who have encouraged us in the undertaking or who have labored with us in the prosecution of the work. The enterprise would have been impossible without the support and encouragement of Professor Herbert Taylor Stephens, for his inspiring direction and his help in putting the work in proper shape for the printer.

We also take this opportunity to express our appreciation of the hearty co-operation of Mr. J. Munro Henderson of the Dulany-Vernay Company in the production of our Annual. Then, too, the Canton Engraving Company, who furnished our engravings and to the Wilson Studio, the photographers for the "Aloha."

Our task is happily finished. We did the best we could, although we now realize wherein we could have improved our publication. We leave it among our schoolmates as a memory of the Class of 1928. Long will we keep it among ourselves as a memento of our happy school days at Western Hall.

A reporter of the Jayville News recently interviewed J. Jones, who claimed that his tulip seeds came up the day after he planted them. It seems that this phenomenal success may be attributed to a visit paid his garden by his neighbor's chickens.

No: Only one of them

Mr. Prouse: "Is there any difference between a fort and a fortress?"
Bilker: "I should imagine a fortress would be harder to silence."

Two Eastern Shore farmers were conversing in a store after a windstorm had swept their part of the country.
