Dedicated

the memory of a man who loved and who was loved by this college. For fifteen years, as its president, he dreamed and labored for a "Greater Western Maryland"—a Western Maryland that would be distinguished among American Liberal Arts Colleges. He has left with us enduring monuments to his endeavors and accomplishments—a beautiful campus, a desirable type of student, and feelings of high regard for the college. With sincere admiration and appreciation the Class of 1936 dedicates this Aloha to the memory of President Albert Norman Ward.

With sincere admiration and appreciation the Class of 1936 dedicates this Aloha to the memory of President Albert Norman Ward.

Foreword

An attempt has been made to assemble and preserve in this, the 1936 Aloha, a few reminders of those countless, indescribable events, large and small which, when fitted one into the other, reveal a year of living on the campus of Western Maryland College. If, when time has dulled the memories of those of us who were a part of that life, these pages can recreate that year, this book will have served its purpose. It is with this hope that the 1936 Aloha has been inspired.

Contents

The contents of the 1936 Aloha have been arranged to present the sequence of activities on "The Hill" during a typical day. This sequence is explained by a series of clock faces which reveal the hours of the day during which a certain activity predominates. As the campus and the administration are with us always, those sections have been placed in the front of the book. Follow the clocks!

Administration

AS Western Maryland enters upon a new administration, we are reminded that though men come and go, man-made institutions go on and on. With heads bowed in humble admiration, those of us who lived and studied under President Albert Norman Ward, regretted his passing. With heads uplifted again, hopeful and expectant, we acclaimed a new president, Dr. Fred Garrigus Holloway. The administration of Western Maryland goes on.

FRED GARRIGUS HOLLOWAY, A.B., B.D., D.D.
President

It gives me pleasure to extend to the Class of 1936 my heartiest wishes for achievement in everything worthwhile and to assure them of my personal interest in their every attainment.

President Fred G. Holloway

Officers of Administration

Class of 1936: Four years have passed since you came to Western Maryland filled with sincere desires to find the best it had to offer. You have had some disappointments, but the joy of having reached the goal carries with it a great compensation. During these years you have learned to choose values, to form enduring friendships, to acquire knowledge, to prepare yourself to work and to live in a larger field. I wish for you success in all you do.

Fannie May Stover, Dean of Women

What Western Maryland has done for the Class of 1936 remains to be demonstrated by the future, but I would like to express my gratification for what this class has done for Western Maryland. It has helped materially in raising the standard for serious scholastic work, and it has set a standard for general civic and moral conditions on the campus which should serve as a foundation upon which future classes can build commendable permanent traditions.

Class of 1936: You are going out into a changing world. For you, co-operation, not competition, will speak real success; the resulting fellowships and loyalties in business and in life will bring you enduring pleasure. Your happiness depends largely upon your ability and willingness to work with and for others.

A. M. Isanogle
Dean, School of Education

It is a pleasure to add my word of farewell and goodwill to the Class of 1936. I think of you sometimes as a class, but more often as individuals who have made contributions in honors work, in societies and clubs, in dramatics, forensics, music, religion, and athletics. My life is richer for having known you, and I am deeply grateful.

Lloyd M. Bertholf
Dean of Freshmen

Class of 1936: Before the young people of your generation lies the opportunity to take part creatively in one of the most significant periods in human history. Western Maryland expects every member of your class to make a constructive contribution to the building of a better world. You will not fail us! May God speed you in your efforts!

Student Governments

The Council of the Men's Student League for Self-Government aims to carry out the wishes of the male student body and at all times to preserve high ideals and gentlemanly conduct among the men of Western Maryland. The activities of the Council this year have consisted of the studying and solving of campus problems, the preserving of gentlemanly conduct on "The Hill," and the maintaining and operating of the men's lounges and game room.

The Women's Student Government Association aims to promote the general moral and physical welfare of the women of Western Maryland. It studies, scientifically, campus problems and suggests means of solving them. It directs the conduct of the women students, in so far as it has power, and strives for a standard of honor and integrity in all phases of college life. Each year it sponsors the traditional May Day program on Hoffa Field.

Classes

The one activity that is common to every person on "The Hill" is classes. The "freshest" Freshman, the "snootiest" Senior, the "punchiest" professor, all mingle on the walks of the campus en route to 8:10 classes. For many, classes are a real enjoyment—enjoyment that comes from acquiring or disseminating knowledge; for others, they are the "most important extra-curricular activity" on "The Hill;" and for a few, they are an ordeal to be endured.

FRONT seats in Alumni Hall . . . senior breakfast . . . practice-teaching . . . caps and gowns . . . We do not have to fill in the dots now. Our memories will do that . . . later.

We are beginning to brush the flecks off those memories now. Perhaps they will keep better if we do.

We look at the picture of our class as it was in 1933. We are surprised to see how many of those faces are not with us now. We wonder . . . what if we had been among those who are missing . . . ?

Freshmen . . . sophomores . . . then juniors . . . We felt that we were getting somewhere when we reached advance courses . . . when we starting thinking ahead. We grew in associations . . . with classmates . . . with teachers . . . with things on "The Hill."

Seniors . . . trying to absorb in a few months things we may have missed. And now . . . where do we go from here . . . ?

A WORLD of knowledge is in store for us. At last our high school dreams are a realization and we are enrolled in college! But after "rat" rules only rags and tags—with our names printed on them—are left of our past dreams.

But soon we begin to toot our horn so that it can be heard above the "Taps" of our upper classmen. We join the gay night life of Western Maryland College as we make our appearance at the Sophomore Hallowe'en Party and then the Junior Turkey Hop in our honor. We are given "food for thought" at the Women's Athletic Association and "Y" supper hikes, and we begin to think that the upper-classmen aren't so bad after all. Whoops of joy accompany the Tin Pan Parade—Christmas Vacation is here! We return in a like spirit and compare notes once again.

Semester Grades . . . most of us passed with "ease" . . . mood Indigo for some . . . happy faces for others . . . anyhow a new experience.

Balmy days are here again . . . The freshmen breeze into the hearts of the upper classmen . . . long walks . . . tennis every afternoon . . . swims at Cascade. We are an established part of "The Hill."

The gay young sophomores return, and, old owls now, our sophisticated conversation is far above the heads of the freshmen. After they have sufficiently recognized our superior status, we initiate them into the "gay White Way" at the Hallowe'en dance. Christmas approaches and the sophomores turn "magician" at the formal Christmas Banquet. Then, along in May, the Comprehensives show us that we comprehend little. We carry on the traditional "ivy planting" in honor of the seniors. Aloha Oe—Vacation.

Jolly juniors with a carefree air, but thinking seriously of our "careers." Burdens on our shoulders . . . "little sisters" . . . education courses.

The Christmas Banquet climaxed by our dance for the freshmen . . . the new gym echoes and re-echoes the holiday spirit—the fighting spirit persists, and we continue the traditional Senior Breakfast. The eve of vacation "doth murder sleep" and the senior class doth murder food.

Plans for the Junior Prom. "Be Different" is our motto . . . the prom is our fulfillment. The Prom Queen, selected by Jack Benny, leads the grand march as "Hotcha" Gardner and his band play "Dear Western Maryland." The floor is crowded . . . electrically lighted balloons and blue and silver lattices everywhere . . . a gala affair . . . the juniors at their best.

Senior Farewell in Robinson Garden. We find it hard to relinquish our claims on the steadfast seniors. Visions of senior days for us float through our minds!

The Class of '37 can rank with the best of them. Our All-Maryland football players, our walking sports encyclopedia are more than class.

Soon to be seniors! With a world of knowledge still in store for us.

AS the last class to pass down the receiving line to shake the hand of Dr. Ward at the President's Reception for the freshmen, the last class to be enrolled under his administration, we, the members of the Class of '38, feel that we should make a special effort to carry on those influences which Dr. Ward transmitted to us in our one year with him. A trifle sobered by such a responsibility, we have tried to do our part in co-operation with our new President, Dr. Holloway, in carrying on the traditions of Western Maryland College.

The Class of '38 as a freshman class was much like other freshman classes. We were somewhat "green," of course. That greenness became very conspicuous when the sophomores bore down upon us with their "rat" rules. But in time we became accustomed to our new environment. In time, also, we even developed a class personality. In extra-curricular activities we, as freshmen, were not only seen and heard, but were respected as willing and able workers. The inter-class athletic championships in men's tennis singles and in women's basketball and volleyball were won by members of the freshmen class. Men of the Class of '38 played varsity soccer and basketball, and they acquitted themselves favorably on rifle and baseball teams. In addition to those activities, the freshmen had a debating squad and a large membership in the choir and Sunday School. The Class of '38 has also distinguished itself both socially and scholastically. It has followed Western Maryland's traditions even to the paying of its Lantern Chain tribute to the seniors in spite of the rain. We as members of the Class of '38 were sorry when our first year closed.

Now we are sophomores! The sophomore class is a transitional stage through which a freshman must pass before he can become a junior. What he is during this transformation depends upon ability and opportunity. Whenever, during this year, the opportunity has offered itself, the ability of the Class of '38 has always been apparent. Whatever the activity, we have participated and have achieved success. Athletically, we point with pride to a sophomore football team, to sophomore soccer stars, and to sophomore boxers. Co-operatively, we supported the Field House Campaign. Socially, we were hosts at a Hallowe'en party and dance for the freshmen. Intellectually, we survived the Sophomore Comprehensives. But we hope that our best chance of being remembered as sophomores lies in the fact that we are good followers as well as present and potential leaders.

Freshman Class

IT is not that we consider the Class of 1939 to be any better than the freshman classes of previous years, not that it is any larger than usual, nor that it has excelled in its activities on "The Hill;" but it is because we feel that freshmen really ought to be given the opportunity to speak for themselves in the Aloha, that we have changed the usual procedure and are printing here an edited account of the freshman class that has come to us from one of its members.

Amidst the tumultuous acclaim of a wildly cheering throng of upper classmen, the Class of '39 triumphantly entered the portals of Western Maryland College. This unexpected reception somewhat dazzled us, but deep down in our hearts we knew that it was merited. We had arrived on "The Hill" filled with youthful zeal and ambitions, and determined to make a record that would be unequaled in the annals of our college. (Editorial comment: Doesn't this sound like a freshman?)

Soon we absorbed the atmosphere and spirit necessary to become true sons and loyal daughters of Western Maryland. Our mettle was tested by the superior (yeah?) sophomores who only too gladly supervised our obedience to "rat" rules. Needless to say we came through the ordeal, as our presence upon the campus this spring reveals.

Our terpsichorean (tsk! tsk! a freshman) ability was displayed at the dances given for us by the sophomores and juniors. "Sarge" taught the men to differentiate between right and left, and soon an entire squad was able to turn in the same direction at the command of "squads right" or "squads left," executing those movements with a smartness and precision that astounded our "kaydet" officers. Athletic rivals learned to fear and respect the devastating attacks of the "Baby Terrors." The women commanded the same respect in inter-class competition. We showed a spirit second only to the seniors in the Field House Campaign.

And last, but certainly not least, the depth of our intellectual powers has become known. (Pardon an editorial chuckle—the truth will out.) Success at last! Never shall we forget the Sunday night when, during the evening services, the statement was made in a sermon that "even the sophomores can see some value in the freshman class."

To the school we have said "Hail." To you, members of the graduating class, we say: "Farewell, and the best of luck . . . When college ties bring you back to The Hill let us renew our friendships."

Military

The military training provided by a battalion of the Reserve Officers Training Corps here at Western Maryland is a vital and integral part of the college's preparation of its men for life and the duties of citizenship. It develops them physically, and promotes the virtues of discipline, self-control, resourcefulness in emergencies, patriotism, and respect for their fellow men and for legal authority. It helps to create gentlemen who will succeed in life and make good citizens.

SEVERNE SPENCE MacLAUGHLIN
Major, Infantry

The Reserve Officers Training Corps

LIKE former graduates who were members of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps here at Western Maryland, those men who receive their commissions in June can look back upon four years of strenuous activity.

A comprehensive physical examination served as an initiation into the unit. When classes began, courses in Military Policy of the United States, Military Organization, discipline, courtesies, military customs, map reading, and rifle marksmanship were encountered in rapid succession. Training on the drill field began under the "hard-boiled" commands of "Sarge" Lavin with a series of facings—"right," "left," and "about." Then came squad movements. In due time whole squads were able to go in the same direction when a command such as "squads right!" or "squads left!" was given. At last, the unit was sufficiently advanced for a review. This was something new. The freshmen forgot they were at attention and looked on as the band "sounded-off," following with wondering gazes the strutting drum major and the beating of the drummer. But as the year progressed many of those faults were eliminated.

Many were the feet that stumbled when these same men in their sophomore year, took up their duties as pivot men and corporals. Instead of following front rank men it was necessary to steer the new members of the unit into their proper places in line. In the classroom the members of this year's graduating class, as sophomores, studied the automatic rifle, musketry, scouting and patrolling, and combat principles of the rifle squad and section.

GEORGE J. JUNIOR, Sgt.

Juniors! New outfits. New responsibilities—checking rifle positions, coaching privates in the manual of arms, and guiding the lines as they swept across Hoffa Field on parade. There was the added impetus of an occasional pay check to encourage study and to compensate for the task of mapping the campus. The machine gun seemed a rather harmless but interesting plaything until the perplexing problems of fire distribution, fire orders, direct and indirect laying were confronted. These problems were duplicated in the study of the howitzer weapons.

Summer Camp—awakening to the sound of a bugle . . . marching to the rifle pits at 6.00 A.M. . . . standing in the sun at parade rest while ceremonies were being performed . . . shrinking from pursuit planes as they swept close to the ground at night. At the end—honors bars and rifle and pistol medals.

Then Seniors—members of the Class of 1936 in full authority over a battalion, a company, or a platoon, with opportunities for giving commands, the hope of every soldier. Classroom work consisted of the study of military law, historical battles, and more combat principles. In the spring the inspector from Corps Headquarters made his annual inspection. Sponsors were presented to their respective units and the military Field Day was held. Then, Commencement—spotless uniforms under academic robes—and a well-earned commission.

THE Adjutant's Call . . . a battalion snaps to attention . . . march! . . . hundreds of feet "step off" in the cadence of march music . . . down Hoffa Field . . . up the other side . . . squads left! . . . into battalion front . . . halt! . . . guides post! . . . parade rest! . . . the band "sounds off" . . . officers, front and center! . . . post! . . . squads right, march! . . . the band leads . . . the "colors" and guidons wave in the breeze . . . sabres flash . . . feet beat a muffled, rhythmic cadence on the soft turf . . . column of platoons, leading platoon, squads left! . . . platoon after platoon swings into line and passes before the reviewing officers with line straight and eyes right . . . the battalion at Western Maryland is "on parade."

The ability to execute a parade with precision was not acquired over night, nor in a week. That parade was the culmination of a year of work—work which began even before regular classes were scheduled. Freshmen were given a physical examination. Both freshmen and sophomores were outfitted. Rifles were issued. Juniors were given their new uniforms and the seniors their Sam Browns, breeches, "putts," and sabers.

Then classes began. During October the freshmen were taught the first principles of close order drill. The sophomores attempted to display what they had learned last year. The upper-classmen, burdened with added responsibilities endeavored to acclimate themselves to their new positions.

As soon as the freshmen had been given sufficient instruction, the battalion was formed on Hoffa Field. Commands were given by the new officers, rifles were shouldered, the band formed outside for the first time, and a parade was held. Rifles wobbled, feet stumbled, lines wavered. Mistakes were common—mistakes that could be eliminated only by much drill.

"In the gym, today?" That was a frequently asked question as soon as evidences of winter appeared. For Hoffa Field is no place to drill when the thermometer starts to dive. Friendly competition, created by company ratings for drill precedence, stimulated each drill period. So did the green and gold honor bars presented to the freshmen and sophomores whose records were above the average in class work and drill. Inter-company basketball—won this year by Company "A"—added interest to the indoor activities.

Then came the spring. The effects of long months of work could be seen. The men were more familiar with their duties, the battalion functioned with greater co-ordination, and a parade such as that described previously was possible. With spring also came increased activities for the battalion. The social and military functions of the unit were so numerous and occurred so frequently that it was hard to keep up with them. The annual Military Ball was no sooner over than preparation began for spring inspection and presentation of sponsors. Then followed the competitive drill among the companies for the silver cup. The annual Military Track Meet concluded the activities for the year.

Rifle Team

THE R. O. T. C. rifle team, coached by Sergeant Thomas J. Lavin and captained by "Tom" Eveland, can look back upon the 1935-1936 season as a successful one. In the William Randolph Hearst Trophies competition with approximately thirty teams from all of the colleges in the Third Corps Area having R. O. T. C. units, the Western Maryland riflemen placed eighth. And in the Third Corps Area Inter-Collegiate Matches they were sixth. As a result the Green and Gold team was one of those which represented the Third Corps Area in the National Inter-Collegiate Matches. The Terror riflemen did even better in the Postal Rifle Matches. Competing against a large number of schools from all parts of the United States they won more than fifty per cent of their matches.

The Western Marylanders lost a shoulder to shoulder match with the University of Maryland but easily defeated Johns Hopkins and Gettysburg in a three-way match that was fired at Johns Hopkins.

The success of the team depended largely upon the capable coaching of Sergeant Lavin, the assistance of Major MacLaughlin, and the steady shooting of Eveland and P. Shipley. Captain Eveland was high scorer for the season, and Shipley was only seven points behind him for second place. As only three men will be lost to the squad by graduation, there are prospects for an even better team next year.

FORT WASHINGTON 1935

FALL in! . . . fall out! . . . roll 'em up! . . . roll 'em down! . . . clean 'em up! . . . oil 'em up! . . . police, shine and scrub 'em up! . . . forward, march! . . . ready, aim, fire! . . . lights out! For six weeks we heard it. Colonel Ord and his staff ordered it; majors, captains, and lieutenants commanded it; student officers shouted it—R. O. T. C. camp at Fort Washington. Remember?

As the General Rucker plowed back up the Potomac to Washington, we were introduced to Colonel Ord's special toilet soap and to the army's "form fitting" clothes. Then came the delightful task of learning how to wrap ten yards of wool around a leg without concealing the identity of that extremity. Incidentally, a few of us accomplished that feat before camp was over. Remember?

When we think of Fort Washington we like to recall the over-night camp at Chapel Point. A ten-mile hike under a hot sun with heavy packs, blisters on tender feet, a swim in the Potomac, hard ground for a bed, a good breakfast, all blended strangely to make an enjoyable experience. Remember?

Those weeks spent on the range will not be forgotten soon. We had fun punching holes in the little black dots on the targets from distances of two to three hundred yards. Didn't we?

Many of us won medals for this, too. Ready on the right! . . . ready on the left! . . . ready on the firing line! . . . mark five . . . redisc four! . . . Remember?

Up early, a march to the wharf, a ride down the Potomac past Mount Vernon to Fort Belvoir—that was the musketry problem. Remember?

Work done for the day . . . a cold shower . . . a cold shave . . . dinner . . . volleyball . . . baseball . . . a Western Maryland "million dollar outfield" . . . a show . . . a walk to the "P.X." . . . ice cream and a magazine . . . envelopes and paper . . . scratching pens and mingled voices . . . Remember?

Visitors' Day . . . women in camp . . . a parade . . . a swimming meet . . . a baseball game . . . a dance . . . a night in Washington . . . "Pudge lost his hat" . . . Remember?

Yes! bit by bit they come back to us—those six weeks spent along the Potomac—six weeks of work and play, so closely intermingled that it is difficult now to say which was which. But one thing we can say and say truthfully: We shall never forget R. O. T. C. camp at Fort Washington.

The Officers Club

The Officers' Club, an organization of the senior cadet officers of the R. O. T. C. unit at Western Maryland, was constituted in 1926. It aims to bring the cadet officers into closer fellowship. It strives to coordinate the activities of military students with the activities of other persons on the campus. It promotes interest in further study of military science and tactics. It attempts to enrich the social life of the college by sponsoring an annual military ball.

Athletics

Hundreds of voices fill the air with the Maryland Yell . . . a shining baton, spinning and whirling, precedes the band as it plays "Dear Western Maryland" . . . enthusiastic old grads slap each other on the back . . . husky athletes trot upon the gridiron . . . that is football. But whether the event take place upon the gridiron, in the ring, on a clay court, under the roof of a gymnasium, or on a diamond, the heart of every true Western Marylander beats a bit faster whenever a Terror team goes into action. There is nothing that arouses more school spirit or greater pride in our Alma Mater than her athletic accomplishments. Athletics and all the benefits that are derived from them are a vital part of college life on "The Hill."

Football

At the beginning of the 1935 football season many eyes turned to Western Maryland College, for the football set-up here was enigmatic, to say the least. The previous season Dick Harlow had given the press plenty to write about by turning out an undefeated team and by supplying the nation's leading college scorer of the season in Bill Shepherd. But this year the layout was much different, and fans began to wonder how the 1935 Terrors would compare to the magnificent eleven of the 1934 campaign.

Harlow had accepted the post of head coach at Harvard University, and in his stead, "Charley" Havens, former Terror All-Maryland center, held the coaching reins. To assist him in his first year at this institution Havens selected "Goose" Doughty, a former Western Maryland backfield star, and Bruce Ferguson, ace blocking back of the 1934 team, as his immediate aids. Another member of the undefeated eleven, "Joe" Lipsky, was appointed coach of the frosh team.

The new staff had a man-sized job before it. Most of the football regulars had been graduated. Gone were "Bill" Shepherd, an All-American halfback, and his running mates, McNally, Schwieker, and Mergo. Gone was Ferguson, a most important cog in that famous backfield. "Charley" had no men like "Bernie" Kaplan and "Horse" Kaplan to plug the holes in the forward wall. "Andy" Gorski, Webster Lucas, "Clem" Marks, "Joe" Lipsky, and "Johnny" Blissman had played their last games for the Green and Gold. Havens was faced with the task of building a sophomore eleven with only a sprinkling of veterans to use as a nucleus.

Although the outlook was dark, there were some bright spots in it. Captain "Nick" Campofreda, who had played guard the previous season and had been one of the seven towers of the "Iron Man" eleven, was slated to play tackle this year. Louis Lassahn, sophomore end of 1934, was counted on to hold down one flank. In the backfield were "Jim" Woodbury, "Bull" Draper, and "Cliff" Latrop, all of whom had seen some service the preceeding season. "Pudge" Graham, "Tom" Pontecorvo, "Augie" Roberts, and "Hinkie" Haynes, seniors, might develop in their last year. And to top it off, the sophomore material which Havens had at his command was very promising.

This year the Terrors were forced to play the most difficult schedule any Western Maryland team has ever faced. Only two "breathers" had been booked, while the other nine opponents loomed formidable indeed. When the season opened against Shenandoah, the sophomores showing unusual promise were "Stan" Benjamin, end; "Puffy" Forthman, tackle; "Tony" Ortenzi and "Ed" McPherson, guards; "Bill" Rieth, center; and "Jim" Brennan, Leroy Campbell, Frank Sadowski, and "Ken" Adriance, backs.

The first game was with Shenandoah, the teams meeting on Hoffa Field. The Virginians had been reported to be a weak team, but they brought a likely looking squad to Westminster. Soon after the game started it was evident that Shenandoah had been badly overmatched. Coach Havens used the opportunity to play his entire squad as the Terrors smothered their opponents 47 to 0. "Cliff" Lathrop scored three touchdowns against the Virginians and Adriance rang up a pair. Long runs were common, as Lathrop, Campbell, and "Butch" Moore ran through the visitors, the latter making an 80 yard sprint for a touchdown in the second half.

The following week the Terrors travelled to Philadelphia to encounter a strong Villanova squad. The Wildcats had two early season victories over Ursinus and P. M. C. and were out for their third consecutive triumph. They got it, defeating the Terrors 20 to 0, but only after the determined Terrors had outplayed them for most of the game. Two long runs, one by "Nick" Kotys and the other by "Dave" Stopper, led to the Terrors' downfall. Kotys added another tally in the last quarter to end the scoring. The Terrors constantly threatened, with

Touchdown pass—Campbell to Adriance
 Georgetown Game

Lathrop's running and Campbell's tossing keeping the hosts on their toes, but they lacked that vital punch within the five yard line.

Undismayed, the Green and Gold again invaded Pennsylvania to play Penn State on the latter's field. The Nittany Lions had a fairly powerful team but the Terrors were expected to beat them. An unfortunate safety was the cause of the Terror defeat. The Lions stalked off the gridiron with a 2 to 0 victory.

On October 19 the Terrors were host to Bucknell University at the Baltimore Stadium. The Bisons, always strong, had fought stubbornly in the 1934 contest before succumbing to Western Maryland by a 6 to 0 score. This year they brought to Baltimore three members of their 1934 starting backfield, Sitarsky, Miller, and Smith. All three were large, fast, hard-running backs. Both teams were afflicted with minor injuries but none of them were sufficient to keep any regulars out of the lineup. The game was disappointingly slow. The Green and Gold played sloppily, and the vaunted Bison attack was missing. Finally in the second half the Bisons worked the ball down to the ten yard stripe from which "Gil" Dobie, guard, calmly booted a field goal that defeated the Terrors. In this game Bill Rieth injured his back and had to be carried from the field.

The Terrors were next slated to meet Mt. St. Mary's at Emmittsburg. This season the Mounts had a much improved team and a new coach, "Jo-Jo" Lawlor. There was talk that the Emmittsburg team would no longer be a setup for the Westminster eleven. Rieth was definitely out, but during the week before the game this handicap was somewhat offset by the Mount's loss of the services of Corning Smyth, backfield ace. The Terrors met a revamped Mount team and broke their losing streak, but only after a stubborn battle. Lathrop scored the only touchdown of the day when he bucked over from the two yard line in the first half. Brennan kicked the point, and the Terrors hung up a 7 to 0 triumph. The pass defense that Havens had stressed was very effective against the Lawlormen.

Then came the second "breather." November 2 was Homecoming Day at Western Maryland, and Ray McRobie's University of Baltimore

Brennan leads Lathrop through a hole in the Boston line

Bees were to be the opposition. The Bees had been rated generally a weak grid outfit. This year's team was no exception. The Terrors galloped off with a 26 to 0 victory although it was evident that they could have run up a higher score without much difficulty. "Jim" Brennan made the longest run of the day when he gathered in a punt and ran eighty-two yards to plant the pigskin across the goal line. Leroy Campbell unloosed his mighty left arm and hurled two touchdown passes, one to "Don" Keyser across the goal line and the other to Frank Sadowski, who trotted the remaining five yards to score. The play of Henry Munder, giant tackle, stood out for the University of Baltimore.

As yet the Terrors had not beaten a major opponent. Consequently they were not "doped" to defeat Boston College. The Eagles had not forgotten the 40 to 0 defeat of 1934 and they intended to get revenge this year when the teams clashed in the Hub City. But the Terrors journeyed to Boston, and when the game was over the Eagles once again had been humbled, this time by a 12 to 6 score. "Jim" Brennan took over the quarterback duties from Lathrop in this game and held them the rest of the season. Lathrop, freed from signal calling, turned in a masterful running game. The touchdowns were scored by Draper and Brennan, each on 2 yard plunges. The Western Maryland defense was stubborn, particularly in the play of "Louie" Lassahn, "Stan" Benjamin, and "Nick" Campofreda.

Encouraged by this win, the Terrors entrained for Washington to combat Catholic University. The Cardinals, always strong, had another powerful team this year. They defeated the Green and Gold aggregation by a 20 to 6 count, but it was the Terror team that sprang the surprises. A crazy play, best described as the "Dipsy-doo," caught the Washingtonians napping. The Terrors scored when Benjamin blocked a punt and fell on it across the line for a touchdown. Catholic U.'s big line and fast backs wreaked havoc on the smaller visitors as Adaimitis and Carroll broke through for scores. One bright feature of the game was the excellent pass attack of the Terrors. Lassahn again turned in a capable, dependable job on the flank.

On November 23 the Sioux came to town. North Dakota, unbeaten this season, travelled to Baltimore to battle Havens' team. The Westerners, resembling the Irish of Notre Dame in appearance and in style of play, had won six games and tied two others prior to this contest. But the Terrors were strengthened by the return of their injured stars to the lineup. They started fast and managed to roll up two touchdowns on the Sioux. "Cliff" Lathrop scored one on a 3 yard line plunge, and Campbell passed 35 yards to Benjamin for the second. The visitors managed to score once and kick the point, but after that they were handcuffed. "Jack" Charbonneau and "Bob" Campbell, backs; "Al" Sowl, guard; and Chumich, tackle, starred for the Nodaks. "Jim" Brennan and "Lou" Lassahn were the defensive stars for the Terrors, while Leroy Campbell and Benjamin scintillated on the offense.

The next game was scheduled with Georgetown University, and this year the Hoyas were plenty tough. They were just fresh from a victory over "Chick" Meehan's N. Y. U. warriors, which was no mean achievement. The game was played in the Baltimore Stadium. The Hoyas started off like whirlwinds and ran up a score before the Terrors knew what happened. Then the Green and Gold settled down to work. Campbell once more proved his ability to throw "strikes" down the alley. He passed the oval 45 yards to the competent "Louie" Lassahn who dashed six yards to score. A bit later he tossed another pass to "Ken" Adriance, and the latter also tallied. Both points were good and the Havens outfit walked off the turf with a 14 to 10 victory. It was the third consecutive triumph for Western Maryland over Georgetown.

The Hill-toppers last whipped a Westminster team in 1932 by a 12 to 6 score.

December 7, and the day everyone waited for. The opponent, Maryland. The two teams were to meet in the Stadium to decide the football title of the state. The Terps had generously agreed to turn over their entire gate receipts to Western Maryland for the new field house. Maryland had a powerhouse team this season. A team of large, rangy veterans. They had won six games, tied two, and lost two prior to the meeting with the Green and Gold. Only the juggernaut of North Carolina and the Hoosiers from Indiana had taken "Jack" Faber's men. "Charley's" men were the under-dogs, but hope ran high on the Hill. In the first half the Terrors led by a score of 7 to 0. Campbell, fading back to his own 35 yard line, tossed the pigskin 55 yards to the waiting "Stan" Benjamin, and the agile end easily eluded pursuers as he dashed ten yards to score. But in the second half the Terps got busy. "Bill" Guckeyson, "Charley" Ellinger, Coleman Headley, and John Gormley led the running and passing attack on the Terrors. They ran up three touchdowns, one field goal, and one extra point. When the final whistle blew, the score was Maryland 22, Western Maryland 7, and the state title went to the College Parkers.

When the All-Maryland selections were announced, there were four Terrors picked on the first team and several more on the second. Louis Lassahn was rewarded for his consistent play over the entire season and was given one wing berth, while "Lou" Ennis of Maryland nosed out the sensational Benjamin for the other. Captain "Nick" Campofreda was named for a tackle position. The center berth went to "Bill" Rieth, who played a fine game for Havens all year. And in the backfield Leroy Campbell was placed at a halfback post along with Ellinger and Guckeyson of Maryland and Apichella of Mount Saint Mary's.

During the season the Terrors won six games and lost five. They amassed 134 points in scoring while limiting opposition to 89. "Cliff" Lathrop led the Terror scorers with 30 points, and "Stan" Benjamin was runnerup with 24. The young team gained valuable experience as the season progressed, and "Charley" Havens deserves lots of credit for the good showing he made in his initial year at the helm. Although the percentage of games won and lost is only slightly over the .55 mark, "Charley" Havens and Western Maryland can safely call 1935 a successful season.

One of the largest freshman football squads of recent years functioned on the gridiron for Western Maryland this year. The squad, numbering two complete teams and a few men over, showed excellent promise in the few games in which it did participate.

Five games were scheduled for the yearlings. In the first two contests the Baby Terrors won easy victories. Then as the competition grew more difficult, they found it harder to push over touchdowns and tied two of their last three games. The other one they dropped by a one touchdown margin.

The frosh opened the season against Dickinson Seminary, meeting the Pennsylvanians in their own bailiwick. A few bumps and injuries here and there for the first year men, but they came home with Dickinson's scalp. The score was 13 to 0.

The next game was a mere "breather." The Baltimore Firemen came to Westminster for their battle with the Terror yearlings. The final score of 19 to 0 does not begin to tell the account of the game. The frosh toyed with their opponents, giving them breaks and opportunities as they would not have done against top-notch opposition. Every man on the squad broke into the lineup. A good line on the men could not be obtained because of the weakness of the opposition.

Fort Meade proved a tartar for the Baby Terrors to meet. The soldiers were big and tough, and they gave the frosh a good fight. At the end of sixty minutes of play the score was deadlocked 6 to 6.

Playing the preliminary game to the varsity tilt with Catholic University, the frosh met their first loss of the year. The Cardinal backs and linemen packed a little too much power for the Terrors, and the Washingtonians won a hard-fought 14 to 7 victory.

The finale of the year was against the frosh of George Washington, and the two yearling teams battled to a 7 to 7 tie.

This short season proved something to the Terror coaches. It proved that Joe Lipsky, frosh coach, had some good men under his wing, men that will eventually fill prominent places in the varsity lineup in a year or two. Lipsky did a good job of teaching the Western Maryland style of play to the freshmen, and they caught on to the system quickly.

The men who comprised the frosh squad of 1935 include Reinhard, Westerville, Edmonds, Lesinski, and L. Adriance, ends; Oleair, Horner Dickson, and Green, tackles; Fagan, Zavada, Radatovich, Sherman, and Hansen, guards; Lytton, Peters, and Tomichuk, centers; and Bender Drugash, Thomas, Mujwit, Maholchic, Uvanni, Schimp, Janus, and Lanassa, backs.

Soccer

WESTERN MARYLAND'S praises and tributes for athletic accomplishments during 1935 go unquestionably to the soccer team. The strongest and most courageous squad of booters ever to don the Green and Gold elevated the name of Western Maryland to a high place in the soccer world. Coached by Peter Grimm and captained by Wayne Strasbaugh, the Terrors won the state championship and came to be recognized by all followers of the sport as one of the foremost college teams in the East.

The Green and Gold booters first gave evidence of their power when they swamped the usually strong Bucknell Bisons at Lewisburg. A first half attack netted the Terrors five field goals. The Bisons rallied, and made one goal as Western Maryland took things easy, but the game ended with a four point advantage in favor of the Green and Gold. Blue Ridge College was scarcely a test for the Terrors as they ran roughshod to an 8-0 victory. The next game was with Towson Teachers College at Westminster. The Teachers, with an undefeated record stretching over a period of three years to defend, barely managed to eke out a 2-2 tie with a last quarter rally. But in the return engagement at Towson their splendid record was broken as the Green and Gold booters outplayed them to win 3-1.

Next, Gettysburg College, fresh from a good game with Navy the week previous, fell by a score of 2-0. The following week Franklin and Marshall, at that time leaders in the Pennsylvania Conference, was toppled from the undefeated ranks in a close battle.

Three days later the Terrors had their first and only defeat of the season. West Chester State Teachers College, beaten only three times in fifty-seven games, brought its formidable team to Westminster. The two teams were about evenly matched and played a spectacular game of soccer. But the Teachers, probably a little more experienced than the Green and Gold, won the game 4-3 with a last minute drive. Suffering a let-down from a series of hard contests and badly jolted by an accident enroute, the Terror booters next met the Cadets at West Point. Sluggish play on a soggy field kept Western Maryland on the defense after an early score. Only a determined last minute attack averted a defeat. Two extra periods, played in fog and approaching darkness failed to break the 2-2 tie. At College Park, University of Maryland bowed to the Terrors 3-1. The Green and Gold then went after the scalp of the strong Johns Hopkins booters. Captained by Janna Randle, 1934 Terror captain, Hopkins put up a stubborn fight but it finally succumbed to a 2-1 defeat. Salisbury Teachers College was unable to stop the Terror onslaught in the final game of the season, and took the short end of a 6-2 score.

There can be nothing but praise for the accomplishments of the soccer squad. A large amount of that praise goes to Coach Grimm who voluntarily assumed the position of coach in addition to his studies at the college. Coach Grimm worked long and hard with the team throughout the season. The winning of the state title was only a just compensation for those efforts.

Captain Wayne Strasbaugh and John Elseroad, voted by his fellows the most valuable man on the squad, also deserve considerable credit both for their skill as players and for the splendid examples of determination and spirit which they set.

Finally, each man on the squad comes in for his share of the honor. For it was only through their stick-to-itiveness and cooperation that a winning team was possible.

As one looks back upon this victorious team one notes with considerable satisfaction that only five members of the squad will be lost by graduation. Those men are Captain Strasbaugh, "Duck" Elseroad, "Bob" Brooks, Proctor Messler, and Edwin Zimmerman.

A good nucleus for another strong team, consisting of Fowble, Reckord, Wallace, Al Moore, Belt, Martin, Barkdoll, Church, and Gompf remains to defend the title.

Boxing ..

AS far as boxing is concerned, the year 1935-1936 is one of those years that must necessarily happen in any sport. These "off years" seem to circulate in all athletic circles and return with regularity to plague each team, school, and athlete just after a very successful season. The boxing season can best be summed up as one of building for the future and forgetting the results. Certainly no one, unless he were a radical optimist, would place the 1936 season in the category of success.

This year the varsity had five meets scheduled with other colleges and universities in addition to competing in the Intercollegiates. Of these dual meets, the Terror ringmen won one, tied one, and lost three. In addition, the Freshman team journeyed to Lockhaven Teachers College in Pennsylvania and took the decision from the future pros.

At the outset of the season, ring prospects looked pretty good. Four members of the 1935 team had departed, but the remaining quartet were veterans of known quality. Charley Havens, who took over the coaching of the mittsters following Dick Harlow's transfer to Harvard, had two excellent men in the lower weights and two more in the upper. "Bob" Bennett, a fast, hard-punching 115 pounder, was back for his last year of boxing. Rusteberg, 125 pound boxer of 1935, and all the various men who fought in the lightweight class were lost through graduation. But in the welterweight class there was Rodman Haynes, a devastating puncher but a man dogged by a hard luck jinx. "Chuck" Kaddy, "Don" Keyser, "Andy" Gorski, and "Bernie" Kaplan, all men who had made history in the squared circle for Western Maryland, had faced their last collegiate opponents. Nevertheless the 175 pound class and the heavyweight division were represented by capable men. "Tony" Ortenzi, the former Southern High School boy with the granite jaw, graduated into the vacancy left by the mighty Kaplan. And in the heavyweight class

"Tom" Pontecorvo, Intercollegiate champion, was ready to swing his deadly right another year for the Green and Gold.

Several new men were groomed to fill the places that were open. Paul Brengle, John Reifsnider, and William Skeen divided the assignments in the 125 pound class. Each of the former two fought one fight, and Skeen represented the college in three dual meets and the Intercollegiates. Clayton Gompf opened the season as the 135 pounder, John Warman finished it, and Franklin Crowe went to the Intercollegiates. "Bill" Willoughby fought most of the season in the 155 pound division and then gave his place as the Intercollegiate representative to George Spiegel. The 165 pound class was handled by Clinton Walker the entire season, except for the Penn State meet.

The Terrors opened the season by meeting Penn State in a dual meet at the latter's home floor. The Nittany Lions copped a 6 to 2 decision, winning five bouts and getting two draws. "Bob" Bennett did not fight against his foe, "Russ" Criswell, because of injury. His place was taken by Goldberg, who was no match for the Penn State captain. Brengle showed up well in his fight with R. Donato, although he dropped the bout to the Pennsylvanian. Frank Goodman, conqueror of "Art" McGivern in 1935, won by a technical knockout from Gompf. Haynes managed to get a draw with his man for the first Terror score, but Walker, who fought in the 155 pound class, lost to S. Donato, and Ritzie beat Skinner so badly that the latter was forced to have the towel thrown in to save him from needless punishment. Ortenzi defeated Sawchak by decision, and Pontecorvo drew with Richter.

After this fight the Terrors journeyed to Annapolis and accomplished the wonderful feat of not losing to a Navy team on its own floor. The score was 4 to 4. "Bob" Bennett, "Clint" Walker, "Tony" Ortenzi, and "Nick" Campofreda won their fights. The last named, fighting his first bout, knocked out the mammoth Midshipman, Lewis Tamney, in 30 seconds of the opening round. After the Navy fights Campofreda retired undefeated.

A strong Catholic University team was the third foe of the Terror mittmen, and the Cardinals had no difficulty in winning by a 6½ to 1½ score. Goldberg accounted for the half tally when he gained a draw, and Pontecorvo assured the Green and Gold of a marker by trimming his man handily.

The fourth meet was with Army at West Point. The Cadets won by 6 to 2. Only Rodman Haynes and the consistent Pontecorvo won their bouts. The latter kayoed Sternberg in the second round, while Rodman pounded out a decision. Cadet Barksdale, 125 pounder, and Cadet York, 155 pounder, were the kayo artists of the evening, putting Skeen and Willoughby respectively away for the count of ten.

In the only home meet of the year the Terrors defeated Villanova by 5 to 3 at the Armory. Bennett won from Rodriguez on a technical knockout, and then Pantaleo, of the Wildcats, evened the count by stowing away Skeen for the count with a long right. Then Warman, Haynes, and Willoughby decisioned their men to run up the score, but the visitors came back when Jarosik stopped Walker, and Captain Sala defeated Ortenzi in a close, hard-fought bout. But the inexperienced Mulvill was no match for Pontecorvo, and the Pennsylvanian heavy-weight was halted midway in the second round.

In the interim between the Villanova meet and the Intercollegiates, the Terror Freshman team, plus Crowe, Spiegel, and Musselman, upper classmen, journeyed to Lockhaven and defeated the Teachers 5 to 4. Most of the new men showed up surprisingly well.

Of the seven teams entered in the Intercollegiates at Penn State, Western Maryland finished sixth. The Terrors got three third places, one of the worst showings in several years. Penn State, defending champs, retained their title, while Syracuse was runnerup. Harvard was third, Villanova, fourth, Army, fifth, and the Terrors, sixth. M. I. T. scored only one point and was last. All the Green and Gold entrants suffered first round defeats save Ortenzi, who received a bye into the second round. Pontecorvo lost his only fight of the year when Richter of Penn State decisioned him, and then went on to win the title by beating "Tiny" Brown, Syracuse mammoth. There were only three entrants in the unlimited class. The other thirds were gotten by Haynes and Ortenzi.

In spite of an "off year" the Terrors profited in the field of experience, and the team of 1937 will benefit by the errors and hard bumps suffered by the team of 1936.

Basketball ••

INTO the hands of Bruce Ferguson, a former Western Maryland cageman, was thrust the task of piloting the Terror basketball team through the 1935 season. It was no easy matter that lay before Ferguson when he issued first call for the hoopsters early in December. He was facing odds, odds comparable to those faced by the football coach, "Charley" Havens. And, like Havens, Ferguson turned in an excellent job, making a strong, belated finish after a disheartening beginning.

The 1935 Terror team needed rebuilding from the bottom. Four of the mainstays of the 1933 and 1934 teams had played their last game in Green and Gold spangles. No more would the magic names of George Ryscavage, "Pete" Mergo, "Horse" Kaplan, and "Bill" Shepherd grace the lineup. Only two men from the 1934 team were left. "Sheriff" Fowble, fast, tricky, and elusive forward, and "Stan" Benjamin, sensational freshman center of the previous year, were the lone veterans on whom the new coach could rely. Both men had had good seasons in 1934, and Paul Menton, that able connoisseur of basketball in this state, was high in his praise of both men.

Fortunately for Ferguson, the Freshman class proved to be a gold mine for new players. Not many men were uncovered, but those who did come out showed both class and ability. The recruits came along fast, and by the time the season opened, there were certain men on whom "Fergy" could count in the varsity lineup. The new additions to the team were "Joe" Uvanni, a man with a reputation that he set out to uphold and did; "Walt" Reinhard, a smooth floorman; John Tomichuk, steady, dependable, and consistent guard; Frank Lesinski, "Joe" Drugash, Lee Adriance, and John Green, all men who knew what to do and how to do it. In addition to them, "Fred" Coe and Charles Millard, reserves of the 1934 team, were retained.

The season opened against Westchester State Teachers, and the Terrors dropped a 37-26 decision. Then came days of headaches for Ferguson. Unable to hit their true stride, the team lost eight consecutive games. Fortunately only one of them was a Maryland Collegiate League game. The boys could do little on the floor, and they had no semblance of teamwork. Georgetown swamped the Terrors 46 to 13, and then Villanova shellacked the Green and Gold by 32 to 16. High Point College of North Carolina stopped in Westminster long enough to annex a 42 to 32 victory, and then passed merrily on its way.

Then the tide turned. The boys still lost, but they lost by close scores now. St. Joseph's of Philadelphia found a last-minute rally necessary to eke out a 38 to 37 triumph. The league season opened then for the Terrors. They travelled to Chestertown and finally succumbed to a powerful Washington College team by a 41 to 35 count. The Sho'men knew at the finish that they had been in a real game.

At length the great day came. After dropping a couple more non-league tilts, the welcome news came. At last the Terrors had won a ball game. They had whipped Johns Hopkins in an extra period game by 42 to 38. This was the first league victory for Ferguson's men, and it was only the beginning. From that time until the end of the season, the Green and Gold won eight games and lost but four. Two of those four losses were by the closest of margins.

The league season was now under full sway. St. John's, featuring the shifty Johnny Lambros, journeyed to Westminster, and in the Armory an infuriated Terror five defeated them in an extra period game. The score was 43 to 38. This game produced four heroes for the home team while Lambros and Ross starred for the Johnnies. Then came a trip to Loyola and the Greyhounds beat the Terrors 34 to 31. Mt. St. Mary's defending champion, also tacked a defeat on the Terrors' record by winning from them 33 to 21 at Emmittsburg.

But winning ways came back to the Green and Gold banner. Ferguson took his team to visit University of Baltimore, and the boys amply repaid the Bees for an early season defeat. 36 to 26 was the score, the Bees being helpless the entire first half. Loyola then came to Westminster, and again the Terrors gained revenge. The visitors found themselves on the short end of a 34 to 24 tally. And to cap it off, the five went to Annapolis and met St. John's in a return game. Uvanni, Benjamin, and Co, ran wild as they snowed the Johnnies under by 44 to 25.

That Mt. St. Mary's jinx refused to be broken, and the upstaters eked out a 33-32 win over the Terrors in the Armory. But the Terrors gained vengeance on Washington College with a 32 to 30 victory and then whipped a fast Bucknell team by the same score. To close the league season the Green and Gold toyed with Hopkins, winning 49 to 30. A final trip to Bucknell, where they lost by 44 to 34, and the season was over.

The men who played over the entire season were Reinhard and Uvanni at the forward posts, although the latter alternated at center with Benjamin at times; Benjamin at center; Captain Fowble and Tomichek at guards. Millard, Lesinski, and Lee Adriance saw some action, and the other reserves broke into the lineup occasionally.

The Terrors finished third in the league, tying with Loyola for the post. Each had six wins and four defeats. Washington College and Mt. St. Mary's finished with seven wins and three losses apiece. It is very probable that had the season started in February the Terrors would have come home first with a leg on the trophy.

Paul Menton gave due credit to Ferguson's men for their excellent work. "Stan" Benjamin was rated the All League center, and Fowble was given a guard position on the alternate team. Only the fact that he was a freshman kept the high-scoring "Joe" Uvanni from a post on the first team. Freshmen are not considered for league berths.

An ignominious start, a mid-season spurt, a glorious finish—that is the story of the 1935 team.

Baseball

LIKE most of the other sports at Western Maryland this year, baseball had a new coach. In place of "Molly" Twigg, former Terror athlete of repute, "Joe" Lipsky guided the destinies of the team. "Joe" will be remembered by former fans as an all-round man, capable behind the bat, on the mound, or in the outfield. His hitting was one of the major factors of the team's play in the 1935 season, his last as a player here.

This year the baseball schedule was larger than it has ever been before. A total of fourteen games with leading colleges in this section of the country were listed. The Terrors were entered in the Maryland Collegiate Baseball League, a loop which contained Washington College, Mt. St. Mary's, Loyola, St. John's, and Hopkins in addition to the Westminster institution. Unfortunately, no provision for playing St. John's College was made, and so the Terrors finished the season without meeting one of their league opponents. Not only was the schedule much greater than in other years, but it was more representative. Lipsky's men met Georgetown, George Washington, Penn State, and Shepherd College in addition to their league rivals. All games except those with Penn State and the Hoyas were played on a home-and-home basis.

At the time of this writing Western Maryland has played but three games. They bowed to Georgetown in the opening tilt of the season by a score of 10 to 0. Skinner and Millard pitched for the Terrors while the batsmen were helpless before three rival hurlers. The second game was with Penn State, and the Lipskymen dropped this contest, 6 to 5. Very poor fielding and miserable base-running were responsible for the loss, for Western Maryland outhit the Lions, 15 to 7. Frank Sadowski went the route and was opposed by Simoncelli and Boho. The third game was also recorded on the losing side of the ledger when a strong George Washington team came to Westminster and shut out the Terrors, 3 to 0, behind the excellent hurling of Bobby Woytych. Millard matched his opponent on the mound in every department except strikeouts, but the Colonials took advantages of breaks and a miscue to gain their runs, only one of which was actually earned.

The squad which bore the colors of the Green and Gold was probably one of the smallest in the State. There were only about fifteen men who comprised it, although at the beginning of the season there were about two dozen men trying for positions. Those men who played all or part of the season included "Bull" Draper and Fred Coe, catchers; George Skinner, Frank Sadowski, Charles Millard, and John Barkdoll, pitchers; Sterling Fowble on first base; Emil Edmond on second base; Stanley Benjamin in the shortfield; Cliff Lathrop on third; Marlowe Cline, utility infielder; and "Augie" Roberts, LeRoy Campbell, and Ken Adriance, outfielders. Tony Ortenzi served as manager.

In spite of the fact that they dropped their first three games, the Terrors were not a bad team. On paper they did not look like much, in spite of the fact that most of the men were veterans of one year or more experience. On the field the boys displayed potential batting strength and potential pitching, but the defense was the weakest department of play. However, Western Marylanders have always been noted as slow starters who hit their stride in midseason, although this was more true of basketball than baseball. The 1936 team was of the type that hasn't enough material to win a pennant but has plenty of say in producing the ultimate winner. And with such a team, a season is successful even though the winning percentage may be below .500.

Tennis

TENNIS had a major share in the enlargement of the spring sports program at Western Maryland this year. Not only was there more activity on the courts than in past seasons, but a new interest was manifested by the students. There was a feeling that tennis was just beginning to come into its proper place at Western Maryland.

In his second year as coach, Professor Frank B. Hurt made the most of the experience gained in the previous year to develop some of the less experienced men and to round out a well-balanced and willing team. Rodman Haynes captained the Terror team and played in the number one position. He consistently set the pace for his team mates with his hard-driving game.

The team faced the largest and most representative schedule in several years. Several new teams appeared on the schedule. Matches were played with Saint Johns College, Johns Hopkins, University of Maryland, Catawba, Catholic University, Gettysburg College, University of Delaware, Towson Teachers College, Loyola College, and University of Baltimore.

Coach Hurt had as a nucleus for this year's team several experienced players remaining from the 1935 squad. Only John Manspeaker and "Bill" Reith were lost. Pershing Volkart, sensational freshman of last year returned to take over the number two position and to act as Captain Haynes' partner on the number one doubles team. John Elliott, Frank Brown, Worthington Belt, "Curt" Thomas and Charles Baker were other members of the 1935 squad who returned. To these were added a number of promising freshmen. One of these, "Alex" Ransone, earned a regular position on the team. Other first year men on the squad were Trago Brust and "Bill" Cronin.

Handicapped by a minimum of early practice, due to the bad condition of the courts and the lack of a suitable indoor floor, the net team fell before Elkridge Country Club at Westminster in the opening match by the score of 7-2, and before Johns Hopkins at Baltimore by a score of 6-3. The team hit its winning stride, however, when it took the measure of Saint Johns at Annapolis by the score of 5-4. Haynes, Volkart, Elliott and Ransone won in the singles, and Belt and Brown and Elliott and Ransone won in the doubles as the Western Maryland Team showed strength in turning back Catawba on the local courts by the score of 6-3. In these early season matches the consistent play of Haynes, Volkart and Elliott was encouraging and gave promise to a successful season, for the Terror netmen.

As the season advanced the whole squad began to display a far better brand of tennis than it had shown in the opening tilts. A strong Hopkins team defeated the Terrors 6-3, but Haynes and Volkart again revealed their ability by winning easily in their singles matches.

A close victory was gained over St. John's, 5-4, with the Terrors showing up very well in the singles, although a doubles win was necessary to clinch the match.

Loyola was defeated in an abbreviated match, 6-1, but a tartar cropped up in Gettysburg College. The "Bullets" smashed out a 7-2 victory over the Hurtmen, but it is felt that with a few of "the breaks" the score might easily have been more in Western Maryland's favor.

After that setback the Terrors regained their winning form in stopping Catholic University and thus began the second half of their schedule with a spurt that they hope will place Western Maryland high among the State tennis teams.

Track

FOR the first time in many years Western Maryland was represented on the cinder path. With the return of "Goose" Doughty, football star of several years ago, the Terrors at last had a man capable of coaching track.

Doughty was handicapped throughout the entire season. In the first place his men were all inexperienced runners whose total experience had been limited to intra-mural competition. These men had to be taught the rudiments of the sport from the very beginning. A few of them showed promise, but there were too many who had more ambition than ability. Another thing that hampered the new coach in his work was the poor weather which prevailed during the first half of the month of April. Workouts were infrequent and short, and not much could be accomplished at first.

The first competition of the year was with Washington College on Hoffa Field. The Sho'men had no trouble in walking off with the laurels to the tune of 72½ to 35½. The Terrors managed to take three firsts, all of them being in the field events. Lou Lassahn led the javelin tossers with a mark of 161' 7". Frank Lesinski proved to be the best discus thrower on the field, although Al Lutt closely pushed him for honors. And Stan Benjamin, all-around athlete, won the shot put by heaving the pellet 36' 7½". The runners were helpless before the flying feet of Young, the Sho'men's star dash man, and MacMahon, ace long distance runner. The former took four first places and a second for 23 points, while MacMahon annexed three firsts.

The Terrors sent a quartet of runners to the Penn Relays in Philadelphia, but the Aloha went to press before the result was obtainable. The four men who ran for the Green and Gold were George Moore, Francis Thomas, Alvin Moore, and Stanley Benjamin.

Two other meets were scheduled for the Terror speedsters. Doughty entered a team in the Mason Dixon Intercollegiate Track Conference meet and also stacked up against Catholic University. The Western Maryland trackmen gained much-needed experience in these meets.

Although the squad did not fare so well in intercollegiate competition, the experience and knowledge gained by some of the key men of the team will prove valuable next year, and this year's team will make the framework of a renewed track program at Western Maryland College.

Intra-Mural Athletics

NINETEEN THIRTY-FIVE AND NINETEEN THIRTY-SIX has been a significant year for intra-mural sports at Western Maryland. The definite improvement noted this year in the program of "a sport for every man and a man for every sport" seems to be a favorable indication of advancement in this branch of the college athletic programs. Competition between the various fraternities and the various classes is rapidly becoming a vital part of the athletic life on the Hill.

All intra-mural activities are directed by an Intra-Mural Committee, headed by H. Barnette Spier, Physical Education Instructor, and Paul Ritchie of the class of '37, committee chairman. Each class and fraternity chooses representatives who sit in at the meetings. The committee fixes the schedules for the different sports, determines the eligibility rules, and provides the officials.

Points are awarded to each organization which enters a team. The winning team and the runners up are awarded additional points. A silver loving cup is presented to the fraternity or class which has amassed the greatest number of points. This year a further incentive was offered when President Holloway announced that he would donate a cup or trophy to the organization which displayed the best sportsmanlike conduct on the playing field. The winner of this award is to be selected by a neutral committee.

The intra-mural sports program includes, touch football, basketball, handball, wrestling, volleyball, tennis, track, and baseball.

Intra-mural athletics has accomplished much for students at Western Maryland. It has built up interest in more sports and has increased the number of participants in these sports. It has been estimated that upward of 90 per cent of the male student body has competed in some form of intra-mural athletics or other during the school year. It has developed the latent ability in a great many persons and has provided an excellent means of keeping the men in shape. Then too, the competition given was of a higher brand and raised intra-mural sports to a greater level than it has enjoyed during the last three or four years. With a program of expansion and with directors who have the welfare of sports at heart, the intra-mural athletic program will eventually be built up into one of the leading extracurricular activities at Western Maryland College.

Women's Athletics

THE women's physical education department at Western Maryland College is one of the best of its kind in Maryland. This was the first college in the state to offer physical education to women students. Desiring to bring womens' athletics up to the acceptable standards of other institutions, this school introduced an intra-mural program, which, through the development of student interest and leadership, has attained at the present time, we are told by a national association, a higher percentage of participation than that by any other school of its size in the country. This is due to two factors—the first is better facilities and equipment and the second, which is partly dependent on the first, is a wider elective program.

In the four years that our class has been on the 'Hill' we have seen very definite improvement and progress in this department. Golf, archery, and swimming have been added to the spring program. This last year has seen the addition of a new and larger gymnasium with an office for the instructors, a rest room, a class room, an equipment room, and a shower and locker room. These facilities are very much better than anything that we ever had before. Equipment has been obtained for ping-pong, badminton, and shuffleboard. Reference books have been added to the library to be used in the study of health and physical education. The hockey field and baseball diamond have been transferred from the space between McKinstry Hall and the Seminary to Hoffa Field where there is ample space for a regulation size playing area. The athletic program for sophomores has been altered to provide for the wider interests of the students. This change, which has been the aim of the department for several years, was made possible this year by the purchase of additional equipment. In the freshman year it is required that all girls learn the different games such as hockey, basketball, baseball, tennis, etc. In the sophomore year the girls were given a choice of several activities. The choice in the fall was from a field including tennis, golf, and archery. In the winter months tap dancing, folk dancing, and indoor games were scheduled. The spring program was similar to the fall program. The primary purpose of these classes is to increase skill rather than to afford amusement. Thus the program was made "to fit the girl" rather than "the girl to fit the program." Gradually we have come from a physical education program of calisthenics to this highly organized and selective program.

The required courses for a physical education major have had wide variations and applications this year. It is necessary to get ten hours of practice teaching in physical education in order to be certificated. Our last year of college has seen marked improvement along this line. The coaching class of juniors sent a representative to the Armory every Tuesday afternoon during basketball season to coach the Girl Scouts. They helped the Scouts with various techniques of the games, refereed, and arranged a few games for them. Besides this, the juniors got experience by refereeing all "B", "C", and "D" team games. The senior class majors refereed all of the Carroll County girl's basketball games. This is the first year that this county has conducted a tournament and the Western Maryland referees did all that they could to foster a spirit of good sportmanship, clean play, and friendliness among the members of the various teams and between the players and the officials. On March 7 the junior and senior majors went into Baltimore to assist the Playground Athletic League in the winter carnival held in the fifth regiment Armory for girls from Baltimore City and surrounding country. These senior girls also helped the P. A. L. officials at various county meets or county field days or rally days as they are now called. These rally days are very similar to winter carnivals and are the kind of things that the girls will meet when they teach in a Maryland high school. Thus the majors made practical application of the principles and theory learned in the classrooms.

The women students have formed a self-governed and a self-supported organization known as the Women's Athletic Association which has a system of awards covering the sports for which there are facilities. It is the purpose of this organization to promote athletics and to foster the ideal of good sportmanship. It aims to make every girl like athletics on the campus and off and to be interested in the game techniques so that she will strive to improve her own individual skill in the various sports.

Membership is open to every girl who engages in any point-giving activity, hiking included. Every girl who comes out for a sport is placed on a team according to her ability which is decided by the coaches, the manager of the sport, and the class manager. Faithful attendance at practice is the first requisite for a place on a team. An important factor in the placement is the player's knowledge of the rules, for no one can play an intelligent and skillful game of ball who does not understand the technique.

This organization is financed by the members who pay fifty cents a year to cover the expense of awards, trips, and visiting teams. The association gives special awards to anyone who earns the required points throughout her four years. The class numeral is the first award. The second is the monogram. If a girl makes the first team in every sport and hikes a hundred miles she can receive this at the end of her sophomore year or the beginning of her junior year. When twelve hundred and fifty points are amassed a girl can get her "M." During this school year the "M" was changed from a gold chenille letter to one with a green edging on a gold felt background. This was done in order to distinguish the girls letter from that of the boys'. The girl with mediocre ability can work hard,—come faithfully to practice,—make a team, and in the end win her monogram;—but only the skillful athlete,—the girl who enters into every sport, will be able to win an "M."

In addition to these awards that are based on points, a special award is given to one or more seniors who are "M" girls. A faculty committee whose members are unknown to the student body, convenes and selects the winners of this award. To qualify for this honor a girl must be an all-round athlete, must perform service on the campus, and must be in good scholastic standing. These three things are characteristic of the woman who wears a blazer with the seal of W. M. C. on the pocket—the highest award. This year that went to Elizabeth Hagan and Catherine Hall seniors who had exemplified the qualities of good sportsmanship and good citizenship.

The intra-mural program can be divided into three seasons—the first from the time of enrollment until the Christmas holidays—the second from Christmas holidays until spring vacation—the third from spring vacation until the close of school. The second division is played indoors entirely, but the other two are conducted outdoors. During the first season the co-eds can hike and play hockey. There are various regulations covering hiking which the manager, Cora Virginia Perry, handles very expertly. This sport is not confined to seasons, however, but extends throughout the school year.

The weather was extremely favorable for hockey this year, and consequently the tournaments were completed without any games having to be played on cold days. The scores of the first few games were quite close—the sophomores defeated the freshmen 2 to 1 and the seniors were victorious over the juniors 1 to 0. However, the competition was not so great as time went on, for the seniors showed improvement and easily defeated the freshmen and sophomores to win the tournament. On Saturday, November 9, the honorary varsity hockey team traveled to the University of Maryland to a play day. Marjorie Webster Schools and American University were also present. The round robin tournament was not completed, so a winner was not chosen, but in the two games that Western Maryland played, the co-eds from the Hill defeated University of Maryland by a 2 to 1 score and were in turn defeated by Marjorie Webster by the same score.

Between the end of the hockey season and Christmas holidays the W. A. A. inaugurated a games tournament. This included competition in handball, hand tennis, paddle tennis, bowling, ping-pong, shuffleboard, and deck tennis. Julia Berwager and Thelma Yohn, freshmen, won by the margin of three points.

The basketball tournament was the most closely contested of the sports this year. There was a three-way tie when the freshmen beat the seniors 19 to 18, the seniors beat the sophomores 22 to 14, and the sophomore beat the freshmen 27 to 24. The juniors were defeated by the other three teams. In the play-off the results were the same. Since time was short and since an agreement had been made before the play off to provide for such a situation, the points scored by each team were counted. Upon this basis the seniors were victorious with a total of 41 points. The sophomores and freshmen were tied with 31 points each. Interest was high and competition was keen, so that when the team from Farmville State Teacher's College came to our campus there was unusual excitement among the women. Our honorary varsity defeated this team by one point. The score was 24 to 23.

Volleyball season followed upon the heels of basketball. Practice was short and snappy. Teams were picked and the tournament was under way before many of us caught our breath. Again the seniors won, defeating the freshmen 23 to 14, the sophomores 33 to 2, and the juniors 18 to 12.

After spring vacation there was more participation in sports by a greater number of girls than at any other time of the year. Baseball teams were chosen, and they played on a 60-foot base line instead of on the 45-foot base line of last year. Another novelty was the change from an outseam ball to an inseam ball. This made the game faster and more technical. Golf and archery were practiced and special classes were held after four o'clock for those desiring instruction. Tennis was played as usual, each girl arranging her own schedule for practice and competition with this exception—a girl can now make points in baseball and tennis at the same if she makes a team in the former sport and wins a game in the latter. Last year Jessie Mae Morris now a senior, won the silver loving cup offered to the women's tennis champion of the school.

Last spring the W. A. A., with the assistance of the physical education instructors and the deans of women, rented a swimming pool some distance from the college. Arrangements were made for transportation so that girls who did not have classes could go out in the afternoons. This plan was adopted again this year to the satisfaction of all concerned.

These spring sports with the exception of swimming and the addition of volleyball were brought to a climax when we invited the University of Maryland, Marjorie Webster School, and American University to be our guests at a play day. This was the first thing of its kind to be undertaken by us, but we felt that it was a success in that it gained us friendly relations with these schools, offered recreation to the participants, with an opportunity for good sportsmanship and warm hospitality. Thus it helped fulfill the aims of the women's athletic department.

The Y. M. C. A.

THE Y. M. C. A. has purposed this year to carry out the following principles: To be definitely, personally, radically Christian; to join in the endeavor to make real among students the life, principles, and teachings of Jesus in relation to individual lives, to racial, political, economic, national, international, and other aspects of our modern society on the campus and in the world; to give loyalty and commitment to Jesus Christ as preeminently the revealer of the character of God.

We have attempted to achieve these aims through discussion groups, reading of books, bringing to our campus speakers and leaders who are well versed in their respective fields, exchanging programs with other schools, devotional meetings, conferences, and our fellowship suppers.

The "Y" has earnestly strived to develop the three sides of its triangle: namely, the mental, moral, and physical sides of life. Our weekly meetings have been planned to develop the mental and the moral sides of life. Our participation in intra-mural athletics has furnished the development of the physical. We have aimed for the well rounded Christian Life.

The Y. W. C. A.

MARY BARBOUR DIXON
President

THE Y. W. C. A. is an organization to promote the social and spiritual welfare of the girls on the Hill. In addition to the development of character, the "Y" has, also, an important social function. Even before students arrive at college they come into contact with this organization through the letters they receive from their "big sisters." These "big sisters," who are chosen under the auspices of the "Y," make the freshmen feel that they are real Western Marylanders. One of the first social events of the freshman's year is the "Y" picnic. In spite of the fact that rain made it necessary for this year's picnic to be held in the "Y" room, the freshmen consider it as one of their first "good times" at college. The second important day on the "Y" calendar is the night of the "Kiddy" Party. This is the night when the most sophisticated co-ed may yield to her latent desire to come forth in pigtailed and short dresses.

Equally zealous, but more serious, is the "Y's" attempt to make its annual bazaar better each year. The bazaar this year was notably successful.

The "Y" holds weekly meetings in the "Y" room. It attempts to send delegates to all important youth conferences. This year a student was sent to the Quadriennial Student Volunteer Movement at Indianapolis.

The Sunday School

THE William G. Baker Sunday School Class, founded as a unit of the college church in February, 1933, received the impetus necessary for its beginning from the guiding genius of the late Dr. Albert Norman Ward. The class takes its name from William G. Baker of Baltimore for whom Baker Chapel was also named. At the time of its conception and organization the class adopted the very fitting and worthy motto, "Finding God on the Campus."

All students and faculty members are eligible for enrollment. The membership consists of one hundred and ninety-eight students. The class is divided into competitive attendance groups headed by captains. There are ten captains among the women and nine among the men. The guest teachers who aided in conducting the class were Dr. Fred Garrigus Holloway, Dr. Lawrence Little, Professor C. L. Shafer and Professor L. H. Brumbaugh.

The Baker Sunday School Class has been an important participant in the affairs of the college. It aided the College Church by supporting the presentation of the Christmas entertainment. The class was host at a valentine party in McDaniel Hall Lounge. The guests were the members of the winning attendance group. On Easter Sunday it presented a sunrise service at the summer house. Among the other activities of the class were the annual Sunday School Picnic, which was held at the Harvey Stone Memorial Pavilion. Incidentally the Baker Sunday School Class was largely instrumental in the building of that memorial.

As long as the William G. Baker Sunday School Class is in existence excellent guidance in the religious side of college life is assured. The class is one of the most powerful and important factors for the building of christian character on the Hill.

Women's Debating

WEBSTER, perhaps, would have been startled to hear the co-ed debaters this year!

He would have been startled, perhaps, to hear four squads of women debaters upholding the affirmative or the negative side of the Pi Kappa Delta and Delta Sigma Rho debate question: "Resolved, that Congress should be empowered to over-ride by a two-thirds vote decisions of the Supreme Court declaring acts of Congress unconstitutional."

He would have been even more startled, perhaps, to see the number of men in the audiences when the women debated such universities and colleges as Penn State College, Bucknell University, Ursinus College, Drexel Institute, and the University of Maryland.

Debates have been, whenever practical, on the Oregon plan, and many exciting cross-examination situations have arisen. Debates, too, have been non-decision, because a fair evaluation of this pertinent topic, rather than debate strategy, was the aim of the debaters.

The squads have been comprised of the following women:
Affirmative: Sally Price and Ethel King, Zaida McKenzie and Virginia Roberts; Negative: Idamae Riley, manager, Miriam Whitfield, Bernice Robbins and Ethel Lauterbach.

Men's Debating

JOHN WARMAN
Chairman

OTHER activities having taken their toll, seven of the varsity debaters of last season were missing at the first debate meeting in December. However, Professor Makosky, serving his first season as coach, was confronted with aspirants of all sizes and shapes from heavyweight "Joe" Oleair to 115 pound "Al" Goldberg. As all the candidates were more or less experienced in the art of debating the period between December and the opening of the season was devoted almost entirely to amassing material. During that period Doctors Whitfield and Schempp and Professor Hurt spoke to the debaters on the historical, economic, and governmental aspects of the question. Although the season itself was ushered in by a sleet storm it could not be called a "freeze out." The schedule was not arduous and the debates were enjoyed by those who participated. Most of the debates were of the non-decision type and also, unfortunately, of the "non-audience" type. The question debated this year was: "Resolved: that Congress should be empowered to over-ride by a two-thirds vote decisions of the Supreme Court declaring acts of legislation unconstitutional." Oleair, Goldberg, and Williams upheld the affirmative side of the question and Tyrrell, Nelson, and Warman the negative.

Home Economics Club

ANY girl in the college who is taking a Home Economics course is eligible for active membership in the Home Economics Club. The three objects of the club are: to train young women to be active and efficient leaders in home and community life, to furnish an opportunity through organization for social and intellectual life, to form a closer relationship among those in the Home Economics Department. Although each meeting this year has been enjoyable, the meeting at which Mrs. Morris, a member of the faculty, gave a highly instructive talk on Art in the Home, and that at which Mr. Oda of the Seminary demonstrated the preparation of a Japanese dish were of special interest. At another outstanding meeting a senior presented Christmas suggestions. One of the principal aims of the Home Economics Club of Western Maryland is to become a member of the National Home Economics Club. Owing to the fact that its membership is increasing yearly, it seems likely that the club will achieve that purpose.

The Orchestra

The College Orchestra, directed by Mr. Philip Royer, enjoyed another successful season and made its usual integral contribution to the musical program of the college. It rendered two major recitals. The first was given in Smith Hall with students conducting. The other was presented in Alumni Hall under the direction of Mr. Royer. The programs this year consisted of selections from the works of famous composers and of well known overtures and symphonies.

The Choir

The College Choir under the direction of Miss Ruth Sherman Jones extended its already recognized reputation as a talented vocal organization during the past year. The Choir is an integral part of the Sunday chapel services. Its rendering of oratorios on the Hill and in Washington and Baltimore have brought praise to both the choir and to the college. The foremost achievement of the Choir this year was the rendering of Handel's "The Creation."

THE Inter-Sorority Council was organized on May 20, 1924, by the women's social clubs on the Hill for the purpose of discussing and settling satisfactorily all matters of mutual concern. It was provided that the offices of the organization should rotate among the three clubs.

On February 29 of the past school year, the Council sponsored a Leap Year Dance in the new girls' gymnasium. It proved to be a success as well as a novelty. The girls made the dates and proved capable of providing an effective and energetic "stag" line.

In the spring, the Inter-Sorority Council presented a tea in honor of President Holloway. The members of the faculty, their wives, and the members of the fraternities were invited. In May, the council joined with the Inter-Fraternity Council in presenting a Pan-Hellenic Dance.

Such social functions have been stepping stones in reaching the goal of the organization—a sisterly spirit, and cooperation among the clubs for their mutual benefit.

THE Inter-Fraternity Council was formed in 1932 by the four fraternities of Western Maryland College to promote by their united efforts a better understanding and a higher degree of achievement among them. It functions in the governing of rushing, pledging, and other matters held in common. The council consists of two senior members and one junior member from each club. The officers rotate annually among the clubs.

During the past year, the council framed and adopted a new constitution better fitted to meet the changing needs of the growing fraternities. Steps were also taken to provide a means for encouraging higher scholarship among fraternity members. The council also, in conjunction with the Inter-Sorority Council sponsored a renewal of the Pan-Hellenic Dance on May 9.

On the whole, the council advanced towards its goal of a more friendly and unified spirit among Western Maryland's four fraternities—Alpha Gamma Tau, Delta Pi Alpha, Pi Alpha Alpha, and Gamma Beta Chi.

Tau Kappa Alpha

WESTERN MARYLAND is proud of the establishment of the honorary speaking fraternity Tau Kappa Alpha, one of the oldest and largest of the honorary fraternities in this country, upon its campus.

Plans were laid for the petition to T. K. A. during the debating season of 1933-4, but all conditions could not be complied with during that year. Under the leadership of Dr. Wills and Coach Rush, in the season of 1934-5, all conditions were fulfilled, and late in the spring of 1935 word was received that the charter had been granted to found a chapter of the fraternity at Western Maryland College. The charter was presented to the college by Dr. Herbert Wing, chairman of the Pennsylvania Council of Tau Kappa Alpha, at a banquet attended by the debaters and a number of guests of honor. Dr. Albert Norman Ward, late president of Western Maryland, made the speech of acceptance. The banquet was followed by initiation ceremonies under the direction of Dr. Wing. The charter members of the newly formed chapter were: Dr. George S. Wills, Professor John D. Makosky, William W. Bratton, Thelma M. Chell, Charles R. Daneker, Cynthia E. Hales, F. Kale Mathias, George F. Needham, Kenneth M. Plummer, Sally K. Price, Charles E. Read, Idamae T. Riley, Virginia D. Roberts, S. Harold White, and John B. Warman.

UNDER the leadership of Dr. Lloyd M. Bertholf and other members of the faculty, tentative plans were drawn up last year for an "honors" society which would correspond to the scholarship clubs of other colleges. Since it was felt that such a society would be the logical outgrowth of the new graduation honors system, the embryonic organization decided that those graduates of 1935 who attained graduation honors should be the charter members of the society.

According to the constitution, the society has a three-fold purpose: to promote sound scholarship on the Hill, to recognize those who attain high scholastic standing, and to provide opportunities for fellowship among scholars from the various departments.

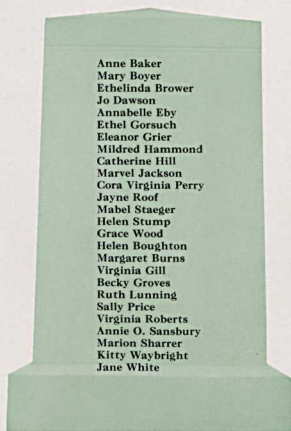

Membership in the society is open to three groups of persons. The first classification is that of fellows, those who, by faculty action are to be graduated with either cum laude or summa cum laude graduation honors. Those in the second group are called associates, who are of two kinds: candidates for graduation honors, and other students, not candidates for graduation honors, whose scholastic average is "B" or above. The final group consists of honorary members who, again, are of two classes: graduates of this college who have attained scholarly distinction in their respective fields, and members of the college faculty.

Taking its name "The Argonauts" from the name of Jason's crew which sailed in the Argos in search of the Golden Fleece, the society is symbolizing in its name and insignia the quest of scholars searching for the Golden Fleece of knowledge.

J. G. C. is a club open to all of the women of Western Maryland who have reached their junior or senior year. It was constituted by a small group of women of the class of 1894 in their senior year for the purpose of binding the members in a closer sisterhood. The club has constantly carried on with this purpose in mind. It has endeavored to create a more perfect chain among the women graduates of Western Maryland and has given each one who has attained the required scholarship, the opportunity to become a link in this chain. Since its beginning, J. G. C. has been shrouded in an air of mystery. Only those who enter its stately portals are able to penetrate the depths of its meaning.

Beta Beta Beta

BETA BETA BETA, National Honorary Biological Fraternity, was organized in 1922 for the purpose of supplying for the biological sciences an honorary undergraduate fraternity. Membership comes as a reward for active interest in the study of biological sciences, and as a recognition of attainment above the average in the courses offered in the curriculum. Aside from stimulating scholarship by reserving its membership for those who meet certain scholastic standards and requirements, Beta Beta Beta has additional objectives, namely: the spread of biological information, and the advancement of science by new discoveries.

Since its organization in 1922, about thirty-five chapters have received national charters, including our own Alpha Mu chapter, which received its charter in 1932, and including three chapters in colleges in China.

None of us will soon forget the delightful Friday afternoon sessions together where, at the close of a busy week, we relax over the teacups and listen to a report on The Advance of Science, or The Next Hundred Years, or Man the Unknown. Nor will we forget the speakers at our monthly meetings: Dr. C. E. Burnside, Dr. E. B. Jarrett, Dr. C. A. Perry, and Dr. John Evans.

Features

The inauguration of a new president of the College, May Day, dances and other social functions, life in the dormitory, life on the campus, the unusual and the spectacular—those are the things that we wish to remember, the things that we call features. Used in this sense the word features would include the entire of this book. Only a few things that would not fit logically into the book elsewhere would be left for what is designated as the feature section. And so it is.

Women's May Day

IT was 'way back in the early 20's . . . when the May Pole was placed between the Seminary and McKinstry Hall and dances were held around it . . . when the old girls' basketball court was the stamping ground for milkmaids and shepherdesses . . . then the annual May Day Fete was established as a tradition at Western Maryland College.

A beautiful tradition . . . a gesture of welcome to summer . . . a tribute to beauty . . . a herald of commencement festivities on the Hill. A college newspaper account of one of the early festivals records that "the party and the subsequent supper was a success qualified only by the poor efficiency of the serving of the supper . . ." For the mention of May Day conjures up visions, not only of flowers and dances, but of sandwiches and ice cream eaten on the lawns. To many, May Day on the Hill is a symbol of campus life . . . of the bond between the roses and the bread.

Building the program this year around the theme of "A Peasant May Day of the Early Eighteenth Century," those in charge of the occasion selected several features for the court's diversion. A play, "Two Slatterns and a King," by Edna St. Vincent Millay was accompanied by dance and musical numbers.

Rosalie Gilbert, of the class of 1936, was selected by the Women's Student Government to reign as May Queen.

To Classes—Winter

Do you remember the difficulties we had in getting about the campus last winter? . . . biting cold . . . driving sleet and snow . . . chapped faces . . . red noses . . . ice on top of snow . . . snow on top of ice and snow . . . frequent “spills”—scattered books . . . attempts to dodge falling limbs of trees as they broke under the weight of ice formations . . . stalled cars . . . attempts to “navigate” by clutching at railings or friends . . . bursts of laughter, cries of distress, shouts of delight, all blended . . . remember?

Around Campus—Winter

Yes! we had a lot of snow last winter . . . and incidently we had a lot of fun didn't we? . . . remember how wool caps, fur coats, galoshes, gay mittens, and other winter "what-nots" were dug out of moth balls after the first snow . . . and how snowballs filled the air . . . shrieks were common too as a well-aimed shot found its mark or as some co-ed had her face "washed" . . . there was sledding, tobogganing, and skiing on back campus . . . long walks in . . . drifted snow . . . ice skating for a few . . . sleighing for others . . . remember?

To Classes—Spring

This is us going to classes. Remember? If we look closely enough we can see ourselves registering for classes on the first day of school. And without straining our eyes we can see some of us lined up and looking as we looked when we received our "sheepskins." Between those two momentous occasions we walked around the campus with books in our hands or stood in front of buildings or sat on steps and looked at them. Remember?

Seen Around Together

Here we see a few of the many persons who were "that way about each other" at the time the Aloha went to press. There is at least one Mr. and Mrs. among them. Perhaps more. Who knows? At any rate each of us is reminded of times when we too strolled about the campus with someone by our side, or sat in McDaniel Lounge, or went to a show, danced, played cards, or "what would you." Remember?

Dormitory Life

One might call the photographs on the opposite page "A Picture of a Dozen Girls in a Dormitory." But it is really more than that. It is a picture of several hundred girls in the dorm and club rooms of McDaniel and Blanche Ward. Those pictures are typical of several phases of life in the dormitory. Radio? Perhaps . . . Reading? Yes . . . Study? Sometimes. Knitting? Uh Huh. Loafing? To be sure. Gossip? "And how!"
