THE 1959
ALOHA

WESTMINSTER, MARYLAND

PUBLISHED BY THE SENIOR CLASS

ALOHA

REVIEWS 4 YEARS OF BUILDING

We, the Class of 1959, dedicate this our ALOHA to a professor who is a true architect in our lives. To us he is three persons in one.

Our advisor . . . who in his interest in raising campus "tone," academically and socially, has made our senior year more enlightened.

Our professor . . . who spreads enthusiasm for his subject and has a storehouse of patience and understanding for his students.

Our friend . . . who enjoys work and makes work enjoyable, who loves fun as well as seeing others have it, and who is never too hurried to talk or to listen.

Our professor is a man of stature—physically as well as mentally. He possesses a philosophy which in three short years has given him insight and sympathy with both student and faculty problems. With sincerity he aims for a greater college unity. Indeed, he has participated in both the first Annual Leadership Conference and the first Faculty Forum.

Personality-wise our professor is tops. His warmth becomes evident at picnics on his farm or in work with the Student Christian Association. Academic hurdles become less impossible when he listens and suggests. He even likes to chat about his farm and his family . . . his wife, daughter, two sons and a large, white Persian cat. He can be as eloquent on the trials of raising cattle and sheep as on a sociological problem. He has a humor which cuts through life's complexities.

With appreciation we, the Class of 1959, dedicate our ALOHA to you, Dr. Leonard E. Griswold.

Dr. Griswold poses his family amid the splendor of the Rocky Mountains.

FOUNDATIONS FOR THE FUTURE

This ALOHA is our cornerstone. It holds mementoes of a college-time of growing and building . . . building our foundations for the future.

The Hill's horizon illustrates this theme quite dramatically. Old Main, once the campus hub, is fast fading into sentiment and memory; for this painted brick sentinel, built in 1867, has finally been leveled. The new landmark is Baker Memorial Chapel, whose steeple can be seen by Carroll Countians for miles around. Another dream realized is the Student Union Building with its modern grille, post office, lounges, and other campus centers. Also built within our past four years is the men's dormitory, Daniel MacLea Hall. And near it are six new, all-weather tennis courts. Finally, a recent, though not new acquisition, is Elderdice Hall which was formerly a part of Wesley Theological Seminary. The dimensions of the horizon's change are great!

Yet, foundations are built with intangibles as well as bricks and mortar. In college we are provided with architects and blueprints to follow . . . our professors and their teachings. Often they are our friends and more than often, our ideals.

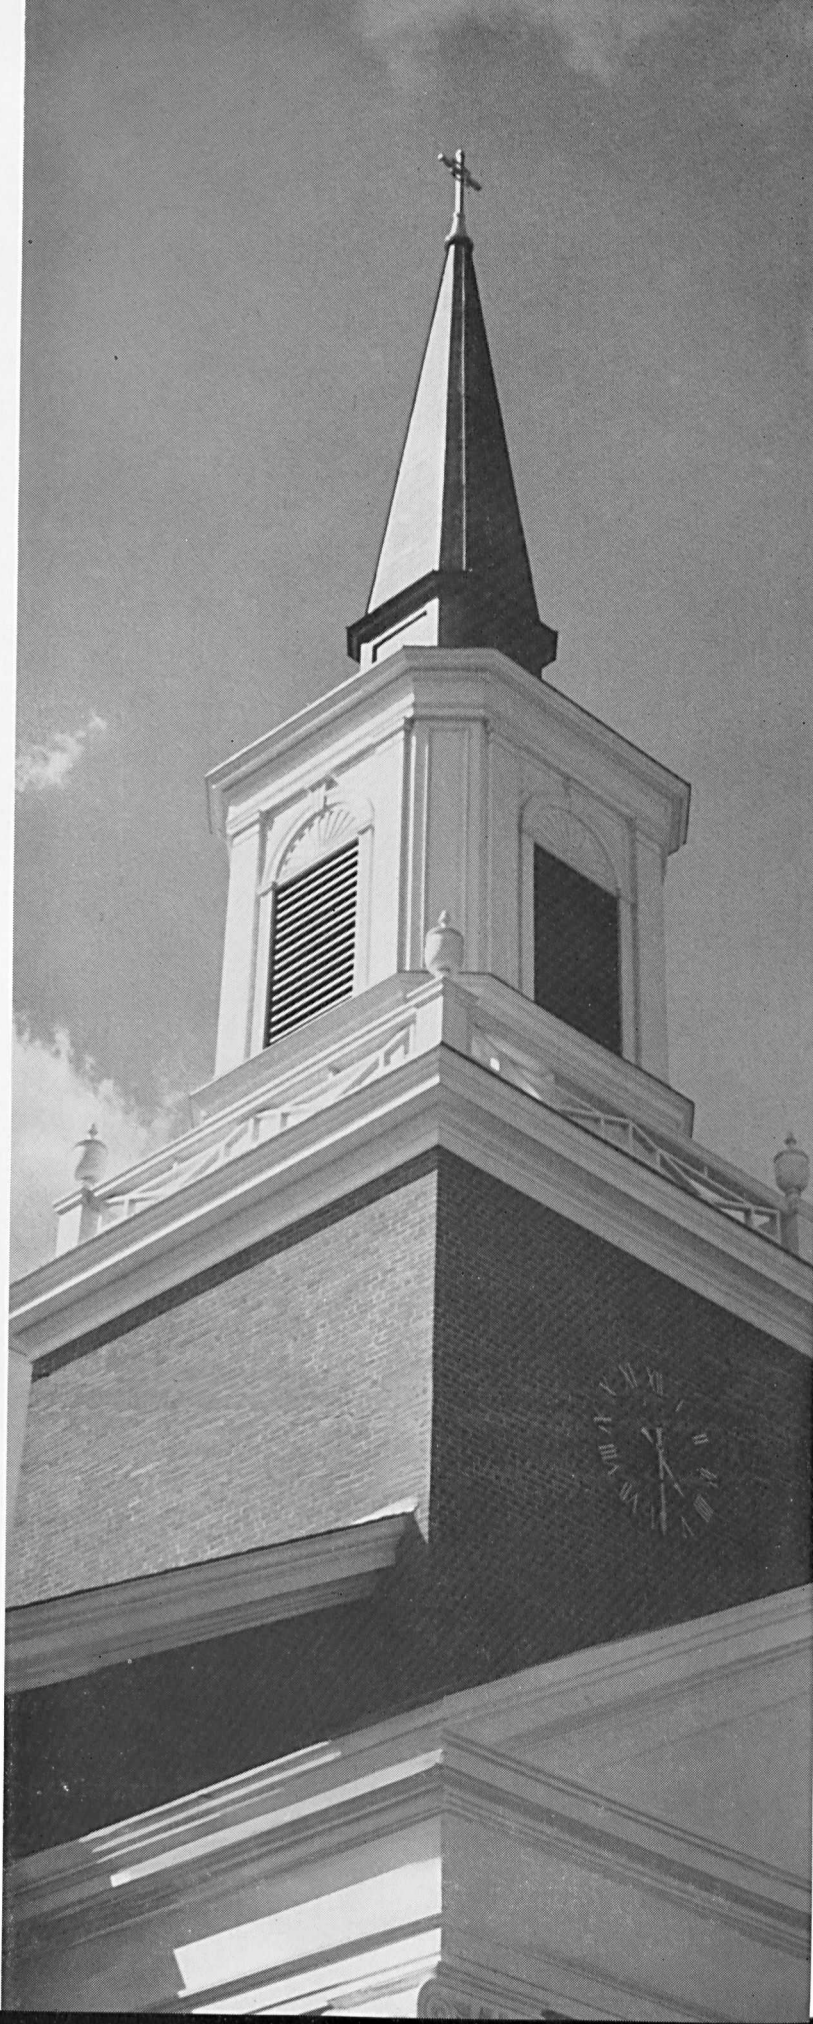

It is their philosophy of living that gives inspiration to our college goals and our personal ambitions . . . they suggest the design of our building.

We become the builders. We are busy in a scaffold of courses and activities: as individual workers we pursue a problem in physics or English; as a team we attack a junior follies production or some fighting Blue Jays; our breaks we devote to songs and serenades. Work leads to a strength which cements the structure. And we pause often in this labor to give praise and thanksgiving for the opportunity to create our own foundation.

We will grow, each of us, into a completed building—independent, responsible, curious, and humble. In four years we have collected many memories to tuck into this, our cornerstone . . . the laughter and chatter of the grille, the excitement of a dance, and the freedom of a walk over the Hill. We remember the “love matches” as well as the debates—whether or not to study! We studied, but what we learned wasn’t always in books. Now we graduate, and a new horizon is ours.

Here in the ALOHA our foundation is reconstructed . . . as we continue to build for tomorrow.

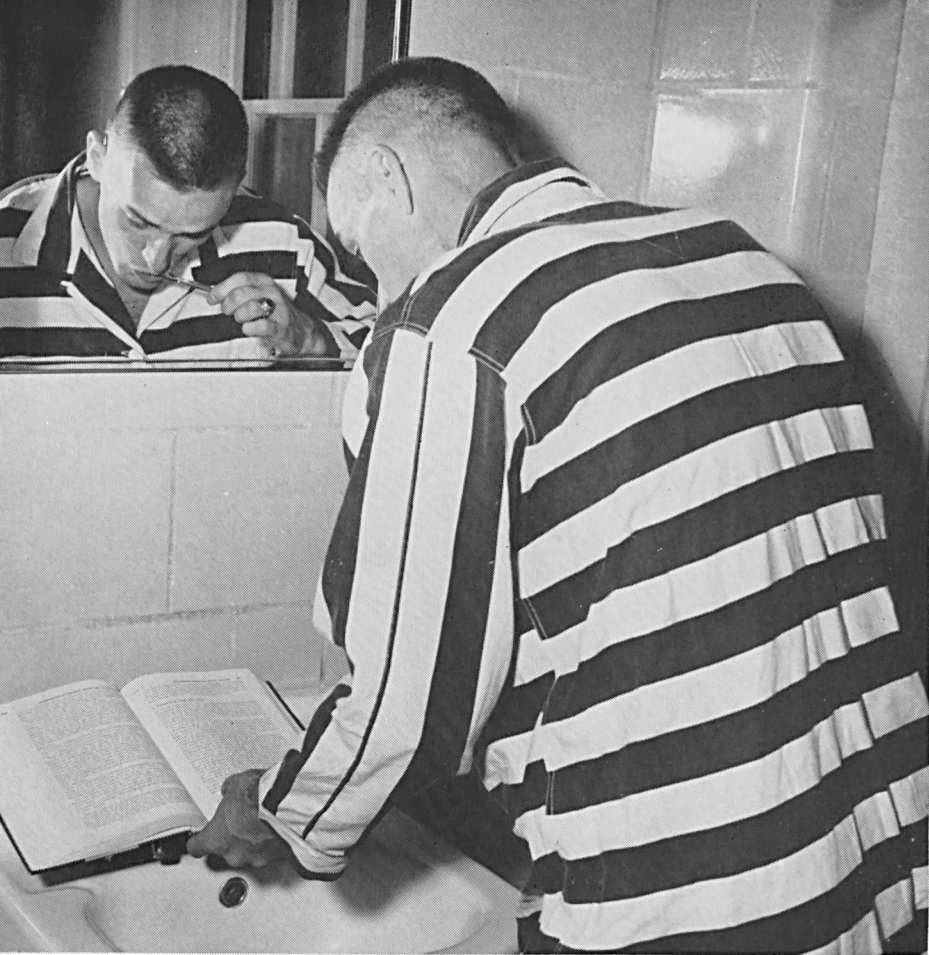

Patterns of our heritage and our modern age . . .

Combine with our college goals . . .

As well as with our personal ambitions.

Daily, we pursue learning . . .

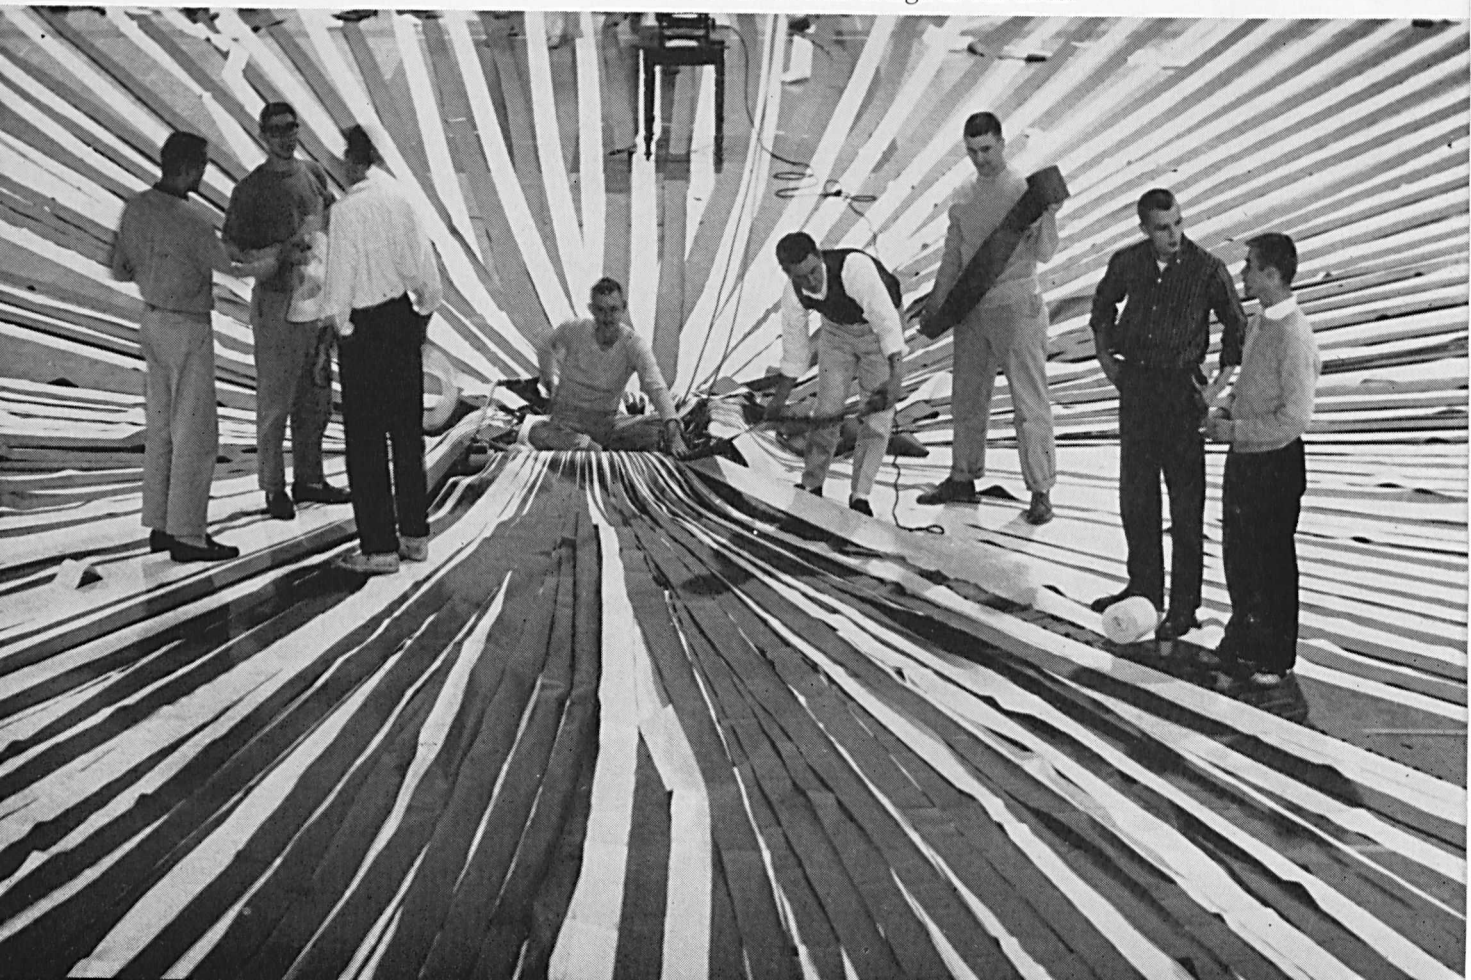

And we also learn to pursue.

"Love" matches with our hopes . . .

And "work" builds the overall design of our lives.

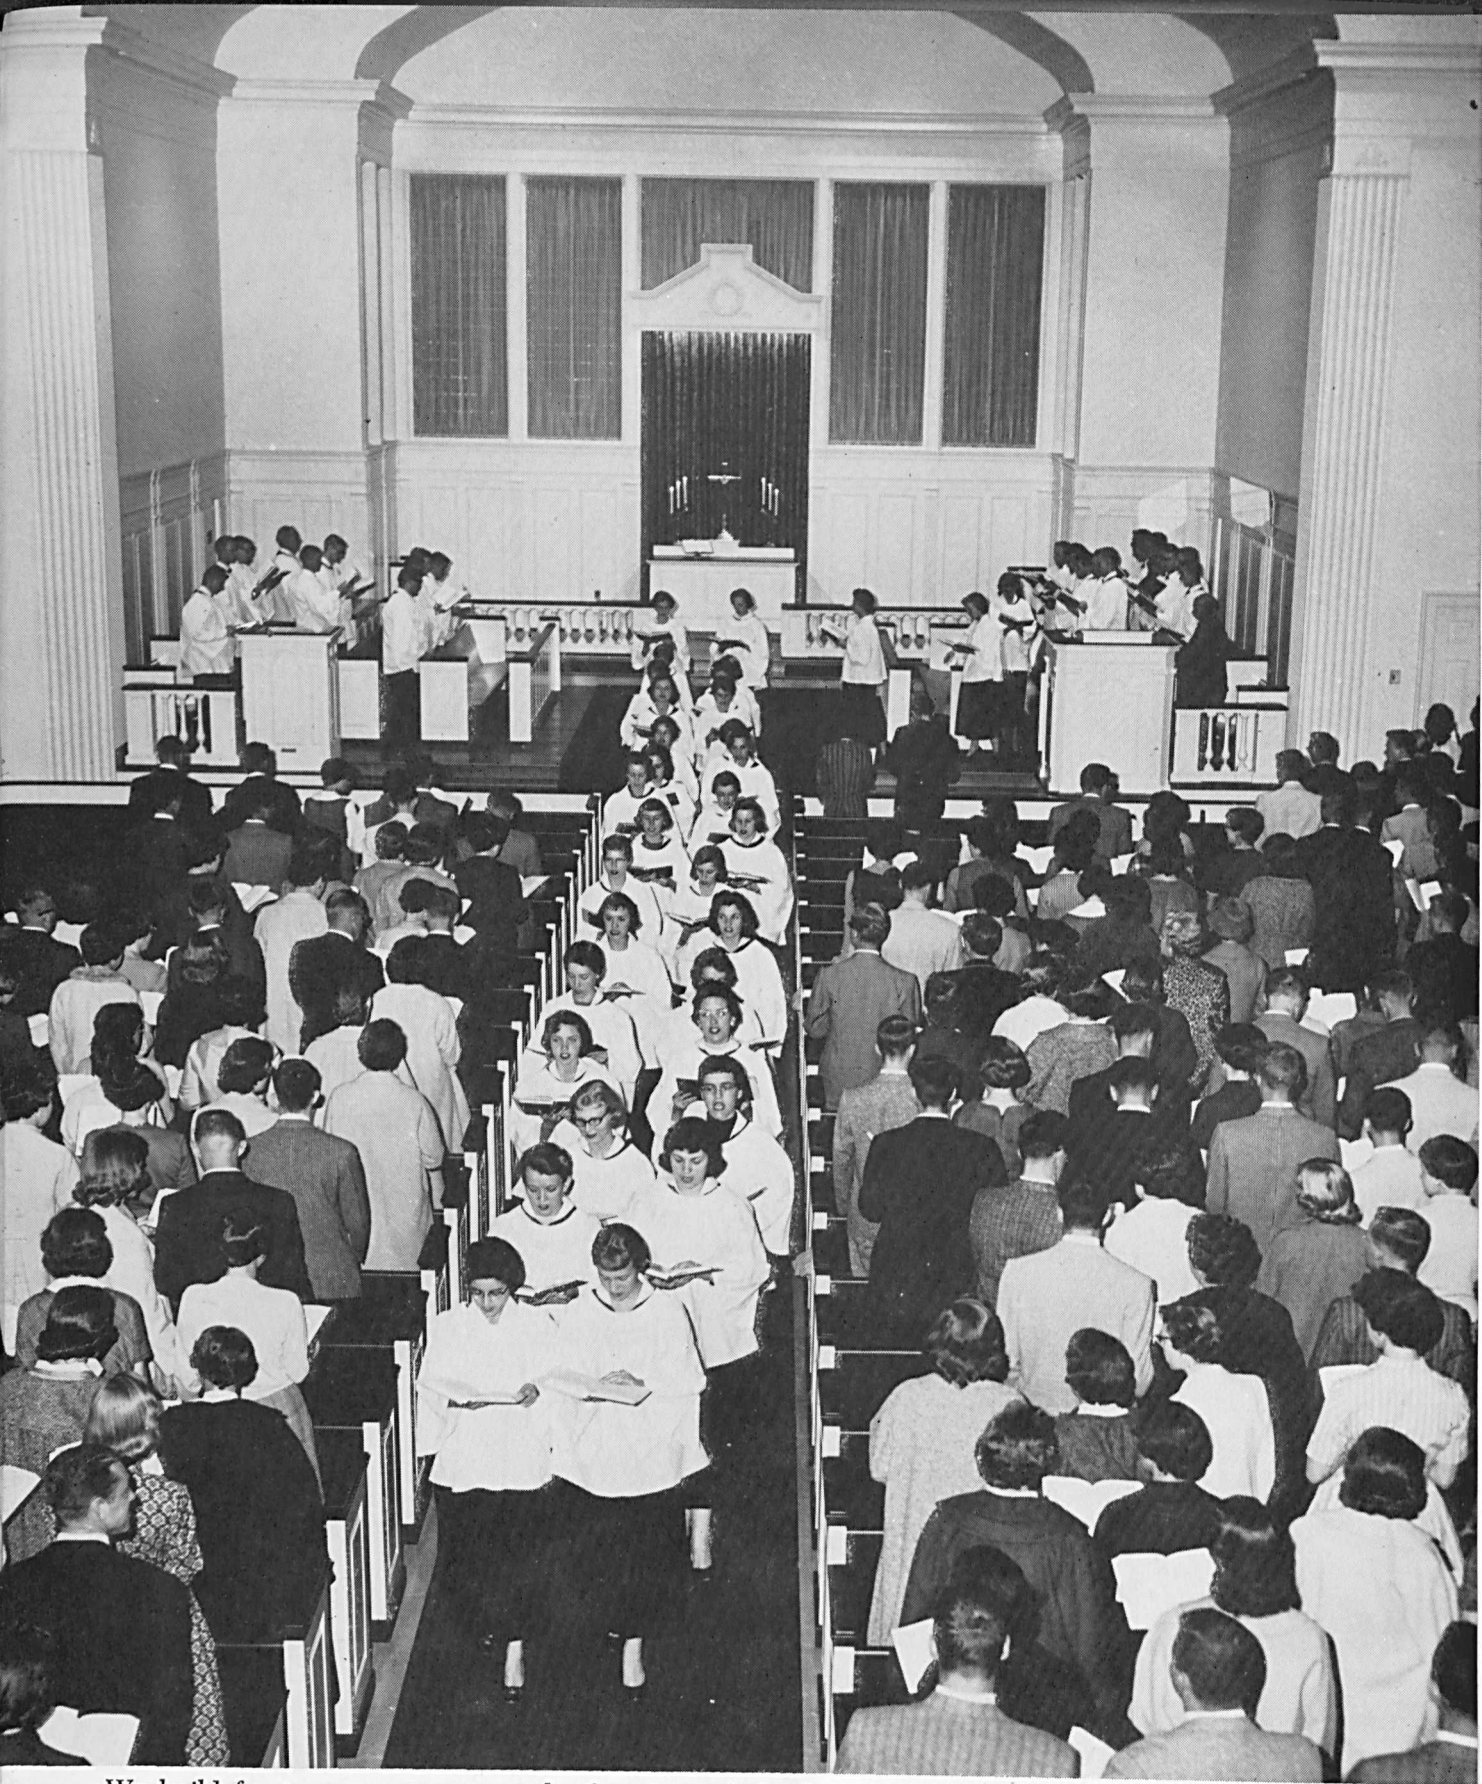

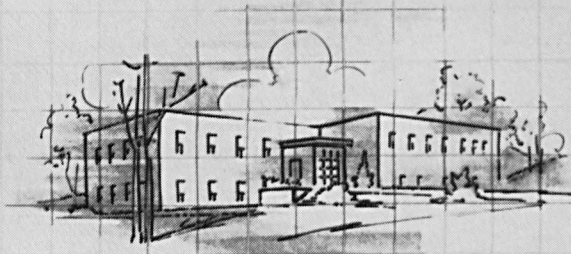

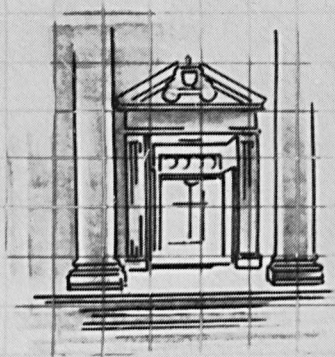

As workers we pause to sing and . . .

To serenade our sweethearts at the end of the day.

We build for tomorrow upon a rock of praise and thanksgiving to God, the Master Builder.

President's Message

Congratulations to the Class of '59! At this time of your graduation from college, you are successfully passing one of the major milestones of life. After Commencement your paths will lead you in many divergent directions—the Army will claim some for awhile, others will go to graduate and professional schools, others into business and industry, and most of you will embark upon the sea of matrimony before very long.

Whatever may be the various pathways followed by the members of the class, I sincerely wish for all of you success. I would define such success not only or primarily as the accumulation of material possessions (may you have your share), but rather as the satisfactory achievement of the goals you have set for yourselves. May you be successful in using effectively the knowledge and skills Western Maryland has helped you acquire during the years spent on "The Hill!"

LOWELL S. ENSOR,
President

*We are the Class of '59,
Upon the Hill we'll always shine . . .*

A speculative glance back to our freshman year reveals our class, greener than the grass we could not walk on, making our first shining impression on the campus. Even the yellow buttons atop our beanies glowed in humble obeisance to the sophomores' persecution. But Homecoming loosed the chains of subservience, and the newly-formed Pep Club made certain that the freshmen were being heard. Uniting solidly around our first major goal, we amazed our small community by collecting over $4,000 for the G. Lee Fischbach Memorial Scholarship Fund.

*We have blazed new paths along our way,
But our loyalty will stay.*

We tried not to walk in the same old paths! Our enthusiasm was directed toward new interests in our sophomore year as most of us pledged the Greek letter clubs, and worked to make our club the best on the Hill. But we never really became divided, and the Class of '59 was always well-represented in the parades and other campus activities. We tried our new ways but remained loyal to Western Maryland's cherished traditions.

And when our college days are through We'll ne'er forget the friendships true.

Junior year climaxed with the follies when we burned down Old Parthenon and built our Prudence Grunion. We paid formal tribute to the Class of '58 in an "Hawaiian Paradise" bidding them a fond Aloha and perennial invitation to come back and see us. Investiture, elections, May ceremonies, and graduation made us realize that we were finally seniors.

Leaders, followers, scholars, "pluggers," workers, complainers, enthusiasts, the soft-spoken, the athletes, the fans—they are members of our class. To you we sing again and again:

*Our class of '59
We're all for you!*

In Memoriam

Junior Class

In our junior year, we could see clearly emerging the progress and goals of each of our classmates. The year ahead loomed as a busy one and proved to be just that. Eagerly we paddled our friends into sororities and fraternities—glad to be the paddler instead of the paddled. Thanksgiving followed quickly in the wake of an exciting Homecoming, and before we were back into the routine of campus life, it was time to leave again for Christmas. The night we brewed hot chocolate and kept the seniors awake to go caroling climaxed the pre-Christmas activities on the Hill.

The days passed quickly, crammed full of work and fun. Spring soon arrived and we began our biggest project to date—the Junior-Senior Prom. While still trying to catch up on our studies and sleep from this ordeal, the Follies hit us, and we abandoned the idea of resting. At Rose Cup, we showed our talents for acting as we paid tribute to our graduating senior women. Time was fleeting, and we wished we could make our third year last longer.

A feeling of regret crept into our thoughts as we remembered we were approaching the end of our stay here. We still had one more year, but this is a short time at Western Maryland. The traditions were becoming more meaningful; they were a part of us. We led our scheduled lives and realized the search for greater knowledge and self-improvement were not easily acquired.

As the college grows, we look forward to new surroundings, a larger student body, and better things for us as a college community. We, the juniors, will help these dreams become a reality. We have been a part of the old and anxiously await the new. The face of the college may change, but the spirit and friendliness will remain among us and in us long after we depart. We face the challenge of our senior year. We hope to build like those before us a real contribution to Western Maryland, to gain insight into other actions and foresight into our own future.

No longer at the bottom of the totem pole, we returned to school last fall, confident that we must know almost everything. If this feeling prevailed up to the first round of tests, it was dropped abruptly soon after.

While our classmates were enjoying the last few days of sun and salt water, some of us were returning to "the Hill" to welcome a new batch of freshmen. Recalling the problems of our own first year, we tried to help them adjust to their new surroundings. A week later, however, we were regarded with mixed hostility as we dealt out punishments for rat rule infractions.

Watching the freshmen, march off to biology lab with lab manuals, we realized that we had left behind an important phase of our college career. There was little time for reflection, though, as sororities and fraternities claimed much of our time and energy. Our loyalties were now divided, but the unity of our class remained unbroken.

With a greater feeling of security and belonging, we participated in campus activities wholeheartedly. We planned our floats, nominated our beauties, and joined numerous organizations. In our "spare" time, we burned the midnight oil and struggled over classes of increasing complexity.

We were one step higher—looking to the future with hopes, looking back on the past with sighs. As the year drew to a close, we became juniors and wondered when we said, "So long, Seniors, and good luck," whether they did not envy us.

Freshman Class

Will we ever forget the first week we spent at our alma mater—the assemblies with inevitable speeches, formal and informal receptions and placement tests? We heard legends of seventh green, worried about the “three dates and you’re steady” rumor, and learned that it was the thing to complain about the food, cram the night before tests, and sleep through breakfast. Though Rat Week soon robbed us of our high school senior superiority, the upperclassmen extended the right hand of fellowship to ease the adjustment process.

In those first weeks, we found our place in the college, heading a pep rally, lending some of our own to the cheerleading team, and filling the athletic field. Working together on our homecoming float brought us closer together in spirit and produced a float which proudly proclaimed our talent and initiative. After electing our class officers and finding success in campus activities, we were encouraged to begin projects of our own. Our Christmas decorations added holiday cheer to the dorms and Carpe Diem.

Our first exposure to exams was sufferingly survived, and we made our mark academically on the Hill. Suddenly spring was here. There was midnight serenading, spring football, and drill in the open again. In rapid succession came sorority teas, rush parties, follies, and May Day festivities. In between we learned more about our college heritage as we honored the senior women in the traditional lantern chain ceremony.

All too soon we were on our way home for summer vacation leaving behind friends and cherished memories.

"For if the Trumpet gives an uncertain sound, who shall prepare himself for battle?"

Center front, clockwise: J. Filbey, J. Robinson, K. Helbig, S. Phelps, Dr. I. Isanogle, J. Trabucco.

The Trumpeters, an honorary organization of senior women, are chosen each spring by the graduating members. Selected on a point system basis for scholarship, character, citizenship, and leadership in extra-curricular activities, they are tapped during a ceremony on President Ensor's lawn. Representing a wide variety of activities, the Trumpeters are more an ideal than a functioning organization.

Each year these girls present the Christmas banquet, a festive meal in the dining hall that bubbles with holiday spirit. A special menu, entertainment, and decorations all add to the atmosphere.

Dr. Isabel Isanogle, advisor for the group, helps to keep the Trumpeter activities continuous from year to year.

Argonauts

Search for truth

Borrowing their name and purpose from Greek mythology, the Argonauts continually seek academic achievement, symbolized by the golden fleece. Juniors and seniors acquiring a cumulative average of 2.1 or better, are elected to the society as associate members and inducted at a special ceremony in October.

One of the main events of the year is the scholarship tea held in February honoring the underclassmen who have the necessary average, but not enough semester hours to become associate members. Another highlight is the spring banquet at which those associates who have completed seven semesters' work with a cumulative average of at least 2.2 are inducted as Fellows. This year, in addition to the induction ceremony, the banquet featured Dr. Clarence Long, Johns Hopkins economics professor, as the key speaker.

President Roy Kennedy was assisted in the year's work by Joanne Filbey as vice-president, Beverly Bosworth as secretary, and Robert Otto as treasurer.

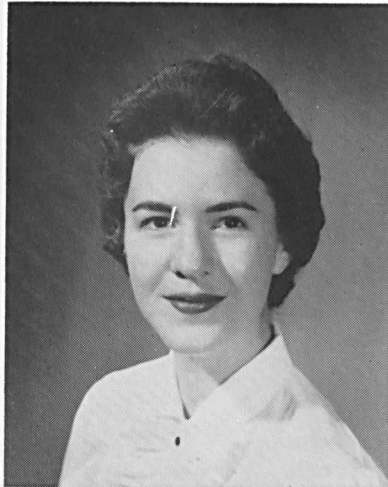

Don Lowe is welcomed to the Argonauts by President Roy Kennedy as the other officers look on.

Not only to live but to know living

Beta Beta Beta, a national biological society, joins together those students excelling in biological studies in order to disseminate scientific knowledge and encourage sound scholarship. This organization is affiliated with the national society and sends representatives to the regional meetings.

A new project for the group this year was the conversion of one of the classrooms in Lewis Hall into a seminar room for use as a meeting place and a study lounge. In keeping with their aim to promote biological research, many of the students conduct special projects in their particular field of interest and report their findings to the society. Field trips are also taken to nearby places to investigate certain phenomena. One of the major social events during the year is a picnic in May at one of the State Parks.

"Well . . . we could always hide it under the bookcase."

Officers for the 1958-59 session were the following: Manfred Joeres, president; Ellen Richmond, vice president; Sue Warren, secretary; Norman Davis, treasurer; and Anne Voshell, historian. Dr. H. P. Sturdivant acts as sponsor for the group.

Delta Omicron

Continually striving we attain.

They call this "Music for Dreamers Only."

Delta Omicron, a national, professional music fraternity in this, its second year on the "Hill", continues to strive to develop the highest degree of musicianship. The members of the organization, who are music majors or minors with a certain scholastic average, are elected by the fraternity.

During the 1958-59 session the Omicron Eta Chapter conducted two recitals and entertained at several local institutions. Several times the members of the fraternity held their meeting at the home of their advisor, Mrs. Gerald Cole.

Patricia Garcia as president was aided by other officers: Karen Helbig, first vice-president; Evangeline Grim, second vice-president; Carol Dixon, secretary-treasurer; Katherine Zeller, chorister; and Evelyn Todd, publicity.

Freshman Advisory Council

Cooperating with the Deans and the S.G.A., the Freshman Advisory Council was quite busy spreading the welcome mat in September for the new students. Their work began in the spring of '58, when many meetings were held to organize an effective advisory system. A first for this group was a newsletter sent to the new women students with information pertinent to everyday life on the "Hill". The Council helped the freshmen become acquainted with W.M.C., its life and traditions, and assisted in other ways to aid their adjustment on the "Hill". Patricia Cooper and James Lewis acted as co-chairmen of the Council.

Sophomore Welcoming Committee

The Sophomore Welcoming Committee, officially a first this year, came back to school early to help with Freshman Orientation Week. To this group fell many of the odd jobs that must be done before the upperclassmen arrive. Helping to mark tests, getting the biology equipment out of the corridor in Lewis Hall or carrying freshman girls' suitcases were a few things that helped to make their days pass by quickly.

Members of the committee included ten sophomore men selected by the Men's Advisory Council and several sophomore women chosen by Dean Howery.

Contrast

A literary magazine established in 1957, CONTRAST provides a showcase for creative writing in order to encourage original composition. The staff, publishing two copies a year, invites all students who have a flair for journalism to submit copy. Many of the articles published have been written by campus members who have no direct connection with the English field. Copy submitted is judged by the literary board before it is accepted for publication.

Student Government Association

President Gilmore and Vice-president Phelps work together to spark S.G.A. action.

Representing the voice of the campus, the Student Government Association meets every Monday night to discuss current problems. Elected last spring by the entire student body, to the presidency and vice-presidency respectively, were Allen Gilmore and Sherry Phelps. This year Bea Gill acted as secretary, and William Achenbach filled the treasurer's position.

The Association's scope of business includes every aspect of campus life. The first evidence of their work is the green blotters which are found in every student's room. Orientation week, Homecoming, Christmas tree lighting ceremony, as well as responsibility for the rec hall, traffic problems, reporting maintenance troubles, and planning special activities, are a few of the major aspects of their work.

The voting body of the group is a cabinet consisting of male and female class representatives, dormitory presidents, and Intersorority and Interfraternity presidents. All students are encouraged to attend the meetings.

Judicial Board

The Judicial Board was formed last year as a step toward promoting student self-government. In addition to handling any matters referred to it by the Men's or Women's Council, one of the major problems of the board is that of academic dishonesty.

There are four students and four faculty members on the board. The two junior and two senior students are selected for this position by the cabinet of the S.G.A.

Student Life Committee

A new addition to our list of campus organizations this year is the Student Life Committee. Representing all phases of campus life, the Committee deals with problems of an extra-curricular nature as well as academic. The group considers possible ways of improving the programs of the clubs, sororities, fraternities and intra-mural sports on the "Hill".

Other areas of campus life which the committee has discussed are plans for a college radio station, student uses of the various college facilities, sponsorship of movies and suggestions for the new Student Union Building.

Members of the committee are the president and vice-president of the S.G.A., the Dean of Men, the Dean of Women, two current faculty members and three members of the student body selected by the S.G.A.

Dormitory Councils

Representing the resident students, the members of each dormitory council strive to manage the problems which arise in their dormitories.

Each dormitory is headed by a president and a council elected by the residents of that hall. In the women's dormitories a girl from each class serves on the council. In addition, fire wardens are elected to arrange drills and acquaint the students with fire regulations. This year Carmela "Butch" DeFlora acted as president of McDaniel, and Joan Robinson filled the position in Blanche Ward. The women's dormitory councils are in charge of "sitting up" for late leaves and handling minor cases of lateness. They also sponsor dorm parties to welcome the freshmen and a combined Christmas party.

Members of the men's dormitory council are representatives of each dormitory section. Albert Norman Ward's president this year was Robert Fothergill, while Stewart Dorweis headed the council in Daniel MacLea.

Future Teachers of America

The Future Teachers of America, with over one hundred members on roll, meets once a month to discuss topics pertinent to their aspired profession.

The Alvey M. Isanogle chapter once again served as host for the Leadership Conference. The club is affiliated with the Maryland F.T.A. and the national association. Upholding a fast growing tradition, Western Maryland students were active in the state organization again this year. Beverly Bosworth served as state F.T.A. president and brought national recognition to the college as S.N.E.A. third vice-president.

Headed by Marianne Shears, the cabinet for the year included the following: Joanne Filbey, vice-president; Ruth Ann Runkles, secretary; Carol Pettersen, treasurer; Mary Cay McCormick and Joanne Trabucco, program chairmen. Dr. Joseph Bailer is the chapter sponsor.

French Club

The French Club, open to all interested students, meets monthly to promote a better understanding of France, her people and her language through fellowship and fun.

The group sponsors two orphans who are presently in Brittany and Lorraine and remembers them particularly at Christmas with packages and letters.

A French movie is featured in the Fall, and this year a film of the chateau country was chosen. Each Christmas the club presents a memorable program of carols and narration in French commemorating L'Enfance du Christ. Games and dancing added to the merriment of the festive Mardi Gras held in February. The year was concluded with a series of French plays performed by French students.

Mlle. Margaret Snader is the sponsor of the group. Officers for the year were the following: Patricia Cooper, president; Marianne Shears, vice-president; Dorothy Gross, secretary; Barbara Bell, treasurer.

Home Economics Club

The Home Economics club, composed primarily of girls in that major field, sponsors many meetings of interest to all girls. The "better living" emphasis in their programs is highlighted by speakers and demonstrators.

During the year various projects are promoted to raise money for the group. Note paper with an original sketch of the new chapel on the cover was sold for the first time this year along with the Maryland Cookbook. The group also sponsored a movie in town during the spring.

At the November meeting, one of the Maryland homemakers gave a demonstration on Christmas decoration. A fashion show of clothing made in the sewing class was held in the Lounge in January.

The club is affiliated with the A.H.E.A. and the M.H.E.A. President Helen Twining was assisted by Jean Leatherwood, vice-president; Malinda Burgess, secretary; and Phyllis Cassetta, treasurer. Miss Helen Gray, the club sponsor, assists in the planning of the programs.

Classics Club

In its seventeenth year on the campus, the Classics Club continues to unite students of the classics in an inspiring and educational fellowship. Striving to develop a general interest in the classics, as well as to study ancient cultures and their influence on modern life, the group holds monthly meetings in McDaniel Lounge.

Officers for the year were Joan Schaefer, president; Rebecca House, vice-president; Dorothy Gross, secretary-treasurer; Carmella DeFlora and Eva Lallas, publicity chairmen.

College Octet

The College Octet is composed of eight girls under student leadership who want to share their enjoyment of music and singing with others. Their repertoire includes music for chapel services, the Christmas banquet, the annual dorm party and several other college programs. In addition, the group performs for various organizations in Westminster. Membership in the Octet is open to all girls.

The Men's and Women's Glee Clubs are composed of any campus students who enjoy and gain fellowship in group singing. Regular weekly rehearsals are scheduled and membership is open to all. "If you're too busy to sing—you're too busy!"

The Women's Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Margaret Wappler, participated in the annual Christmas Program with the Dramatic Art Department and also entertained at the Christmas Program of the American Association of University Women.

The Men's Glee Club, directed by Mr. Oliver Spangler, sang for many service clubs in Westminster. Both groups presented a program at a spring assembly.

College Choir

The College Choir, under the direction of Professor Alfred de Long, began its program this year with a performance at a convention at Salisbury State Teachers College. Cherubini's Requiem Mass was sung in dedication to Mrs. Nina Venables Veale, a native of Salisbury.

The highlight of the Choir's college year was the performance with the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra at the Lyric Theater held this year on February 7th. The program consisted of the music of Jerome Kern under the direction of Herbert Grossman.

Handel's Messiah was presented as the annual Christmas program. The Choir continued its weekly appearance in the Chapel services, providing soloists and group anthems. The final performance of the Choir this year was participation in the annual Baccalaureate and Commencement services.

Setting the beat for the Homecoming parade, the College Band circles Hoffa Field. The twirling squad of majorettes steps quickly before them.

College Band and Orchestra

The Western Maryland College Band and Orchestra was officially organized in September, 1957. It is composed of thirty-two members, and membership is open to the whole student body. Under the direction of Mr. Frank Petroulis this year's officers were these: president, James Worden; librarian, Donald D'Angelo; secretary, Bess Adamska; assistant-librarian, Brady Roberts. The twirling squad of majorettes consists of Beverly Schott, leading and followed by Jacqueline Cook and Carol Westerfield. These girls add their high-stepping talents to parades, pep rallies, and halftime activities at the football games.

The aim of the band is to provide a means of personal expression through musical performances. This is carried out during the fall semester by a marching band which works hand-in-hand with the pompom girls and the cheerleaders to provide support for the football team. Following the football season, the band joins with other students, forming the College Orchestra. Highpoints of the year include the student conductors' program and the spring concert.

Patricia Garcia leads the orchestra in preparation for its January concert.

The S.C.A. cabinet welcomes new members at the candlelight service.

Student Christian Association

The Student Christian Association is organized to serve the needs of all students in a search of deeper faith and maturing religious experiences in daily living on and off the campus. The theme for the year, "Conscience on Campus", was carried out through a varied program under the direction of the faculty advisors and student officers.

The S.C.A. is subdivided into denominational groups, Sunday Fellowship, the Wesleyans and Wesleyettes. Projects for the year include monthly firesides, spring and fall vespers, the Halloween "Goblin Hop", Christmas Communion Service, Interdenominational Christmas parties, W.U.S. Bazaar, Lenten Communion, Easter Service and play and spring picnics.

This year the S.C.A. has taken great pride in having sent several delegates to the National "Y" Student Assembly in December, at the University of Illinois. Much prayer, work and money went into this project.

The sponsor of the S.C.A. is Dr. Charles Crain; the Administrative advisor is Dean Helen Howery; and the Faculty Advisors are Major Alfred Clark, Dr. Karl Lockwood and Dr. Earl Griswold. This year's officers were president, Allen Spicer; vice-president, Melba Lou Nelms; secretary, Esther Upperco; and treasurer, Thomas Albertson.

The Wesleyans is a group of Christian men who meet every Friday night in Baker Chapel. The meetings provide a fellowship where the problems facing men preparing for the ministry may be discussed.

The activities include preaching deputations to local churches. The Wesleyans took the services at Westminster Methodist Church on January 11. The Wesleyans also raise money for the G. Lee Fischbach, Jr. Memorial Scholarship Fund.

The officers this year were President, Edward Thigpen; Vice-President, Wayne Conrad; and Secretary-Treasurer, Robert Harris. Dr. Charles E. Crain is the faculty advisor.

Wesleyanettes

The Wesleyanettes is a non-denominational religious group of college women who express their Christian ideals by helping others and sharing their experiences with them. Their ideals are expressed in three words: Worship, Service and Fellowship.

The group makes stuffed animals to send to children's hospitals, aids needy families throughout the year and sponsors a Brownie Troop in Westminster.

The Wesleyanettes meet twice a month at the home of their advisor, Mrs. Charles Crain. The officers this year were president, Norma Bell; vice-president, Mina Kirby; secretary, Betsy Newell, and treasurer, Lorena Stone.

Baptist Student Union

The Baptist Student Union strives to offer spiritual unity and Christian fellowship among Baptist students. Some of the memorable events of the year include spring and fall picnics and Christmas packages for their adopted family. The establishment of a place to worship in Westminster for all Baptists became the major goal for the group during the current year.

The B.S.U. is also affiliated with the Maryland State B.S.U. and participates in their fall convention, annual spring retreat and other projects.

Canterbury Club

The Canterbury Club is organized to provide a period of fellowship for Episcopalian students in which they may learn more about the church and gain spiritual inspiration from guest speakers.

Projects for the year include weekly services for all students in Baker Chapel, the annual spaghetti dinner and Communion breakfasts. The club is affiliated with the National Canterbury Association.

Officers for the year were the following: president, James Thomas; vice-president, Dorothy Holland; secretary, Doris Miles; treasurer, William Kerbin; editor of the "Canterbury Tales", a bi-monthly newspaper, Helen Denham. Father White of the Ascension Church serves as sponsor.

Lutheran Student Association

The Lutheran students on campus unite in worship, study and fellowship under the name of the Lutheran Student Association. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schaeffer act as their sponsors, and Rev. Dr. Elwood S. Falkenstein of the Grace Lutheran Church serves as their advisor and guest speaker several times during the year.

The high point of the group's activities each year is the North Atlantic Regional meeting at Buck Hill Falls in Pennsylvania. Other projects include a hike to Cunningham Falls and a spaghetti dinner in the spring.

Dorothy Mathias served as president this year with Patricia Welk as vice-president, and Bea Ackerman as secretary-treasurer.

Methodist Student Movement

The Methodist Student Movement promotes Christian fellowship and ideals among Methodist students. Its meetings provide opportunity for study of Methodism and acquaintance with others of the same denomination.

This year the M.S.M. held a benefit banquet for Margaret Whitfield, a missionary in Japan. A student directory was published for the first time this year. Annual projects include a Christmas party for underprivileged children in Westminster, spring and fall hayrides, a square dance and picnics held at the home of Dr. Earl Griswold, their advisor.

This year's officers were president, Ann Kinney; secretary, Barbara Bell, and treasurer, Ed Thigpen.

Westminster Fellowship

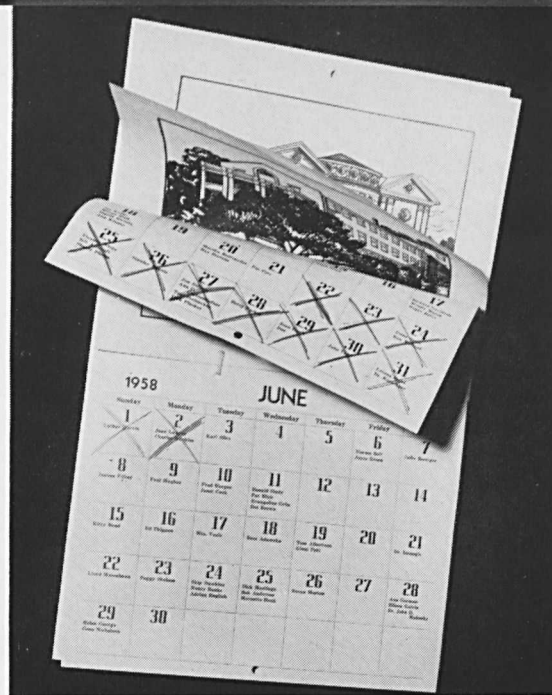

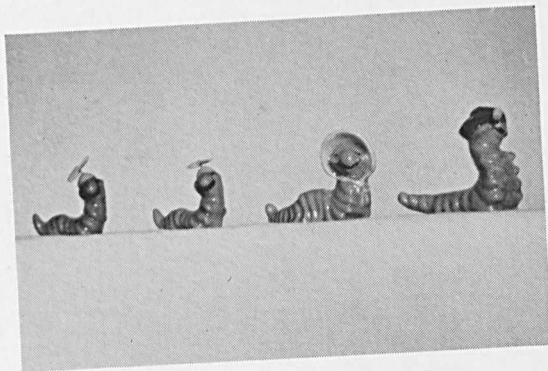

The religious group for Presbyterians on the "Hill", the Westminster Fellowship, meets to bring interested people together for fellowship, worship, fun and service. The aim of this group is to give Presbyterians a "home" youth group.

The activities of the Westminster Fellowship this year have centered around helping the new Presbyterian church in Westminster. Their annual Christmas party was held at the home of the sponsors, Dr. and Mrs. Karl Lockwood.

Virginia Pott served as president this year, with Harriet Whitmore as vice-president, and Ann Palmer working with Susan Wheeler as program co-chairmen.

Intersorority Council

Friendship, unity and understanding are promoted among the sororities by the Intersorority Council. Standards of procedure for bidding, teas, rush parties, tournaments and other social events are regulated by this group.

The council sponsors a movie to raise funds for many projects. The senior breakfast, refreshments at May Day and a spring picnic are paid for in this way. Loving cups are awarded to the sorority winning the basketball tournament, bridge tournament and achieving the highest scholastic average.

The officers for this year: president, Betty Reid; vice-president, Joan Robinson; secretary, Karen Helbig; and treasurer, Gail Armstrong.

Interfraternity Council

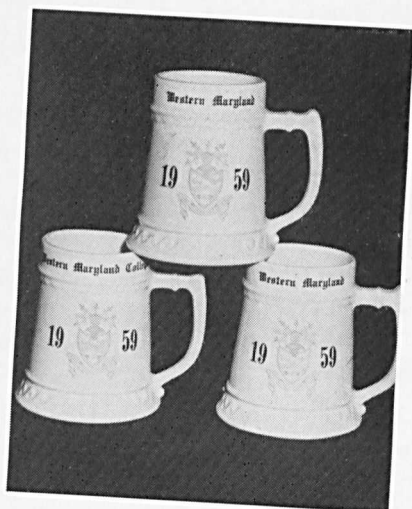

Striving for a high degree of cooperation, the Interfraternity Council acts as a meeting ground for the fraternities, the administration and the faculty.

This council coordinates pledging activities and organizes the assignments of concessions, dance dates, parties and pep rallies alternately sponsored by the fraternities. This year many new plans have been brought before the council for action. One which was considered and passed was the minimum academic average for fraternity membership. This average is the same as for athletic participation.

The officers for the year were: president, Harold Taylor; vice-president, Stewart Dorweis; secretary, Allen Wortz; and treasurer, Samuel Cook.

Twenty-one "Baby Delts", dressed in gala costumes of Valentines and 29'ers, began this year's activities for Delta Sigma Kappa. The fall semester was marked by such memorable events as a Halloween party, an informal roller skating party and bowling parties. The interior decorating committee, continuing its work from last year, bought new sectional sofas for the clubroom. At the Christmas party, where gifts were exchanged, the Bachelors, their brother fraternity, also gave the Delts an upholstered bench.

The Delt Church Sunday plan was continued this year, as Delt sisters visited various churches in the community. As a service project, a needy family was adopted and given food, clothing and other essentials. The Delts also offered help to the administration when willing hands were needed, and supported a "keep the campus clean" campaign.

The new year ushered in many more activities for the Delts: basketball and bridge tournaments, a January rush tea, the Birthday banquet in February and a rush party late in the spring. Another year was brought to a close with the senior farewell banquet in May. It was at this banquet that the senior Delts became most conscious of the meaning of Delta Sigma Kappa. Delta signifies justice; Sigma signifies unity; Kappa signifies good fellowship.

The oldest sorority on the "Hill" is building greater sorority spirit than ever before. Iota Gamma Chi is also striving to form a closer bond of friendship between its members and other campus organizations. Service projects include the sale of stationery and the giving of gifts to an adopted family at Thanksgiving and at Christmas.

This was the first year that the Iote pledges became buccaneers. All during Hell Week, hungry students outside the dining hall heard them singing and enthusiastically waving their black pirate flags. On Homecoming these same pirates quickly took second prize for their clever display.

The Christmas season brought many parties, and through the doors and windows of the clubroom magically appeared the "workshop of Santa." In the spring, the Iotes held an Alumnae banquet and their own member banquet. The year was ended with the senior farewell party, sad but memorable. For these hard working girls, the significance of red and black will always remain deep in their hearts.

"Castle painted purple, castle painted white" are popular words for the fifty-nine members of Phi Alpha Mu sorority. The purple cow "bowers", members of the campus community since 1923, spent a year actively engaged in many social and service events.

In September, twenty-four calves with aspirations of becoming cows, toured the campus. After becoming fully initiated, they helped their sisters sell sandwiches to raise money for the support of their adopted war orphan. The sorority also remembered a needy family in the community at Thanksgiving and at Christmas with baskets of food. At their Christmas party, in keeping with previous customs, the girls gave toys to each other which were later passed on to a children's home. Another project, which the group undertook, was the visiting of wards at Springfield Hospital, as often as possible, to entertain the patients.

On several occasions, Mrs. Richard Pugh, the sorority sponsor, entertained the girls at her home. In the spring, the rush party, with a fantasy theme, was held to allow the present sorority members and the freshmen women to become better acquainted.

As a special tribute to the seniors, The Torch, the Phi Alpha yearbook, was published. The underclass members honored the seniors with a waffle breakfast and a farewell banquet. Tearful goodbyes, with promises to cherish Phi Alpha memories, came from the seniors as the sorority year drew to a close.

Skunks seemed quite prolific in September when thirty-six new Sigmas gathered around the flagpole bawling their lowliness. Much help was available for the year ahead when the skunks became full members, bringing the total membership to seventy-four. Homecoming meant extra work but brought its rewards with a second prize ribbon for an outstanding float.

For the second year in a row, the Sigmas retained the scholarship cup, winning over the other sororities with an overall group average of 1.905. One of the big projects for the sorority itself this year was the refurnishing of their clubroom. Mrs. Uhrig helped the group formulate the plans and carry them to completion.

Intersorority basketball and bridge tournament, as well as the sorority tea for the freshmen, kept the group stepping during the first months of the second semester. In April a circus was in full swing as the Sigmas entertained the freshmen girls at the annual rush party. For the first time in several years, the Sigma yearbook, The Silver Lining, was published.

During the year, parties and picnics were shared for good times with the Sigmas' brother fraternity, the Black and Whites. On several occasions, the Baltimore Alumnae entertained the seniors in Baltimore. The year was brought to a close with a farewell banquet for the departing seniors.

Alpha Gamma Tau

From cannibal to esteemed Bachelor, Hell Week was a quick transition for the forty-eight members of Alpha Gamma Tau. To the "lilting strains" of "Hoya Hoya, Alpha Gamma Tauya" the boys marched through the campus in "memorable" costumes. But the handshake after being paddled was not quite so fine as the handshake of brotherhood after formal initiation.

The fall season was busy but successful for the fraternity. The intramural football tournament resulted in a Bachelor championship for the second year in a row. The Homecoming events were climaxed by the dance with a football theme, which called for much cooperation and work from all the brothers. Considering all this work, the fraternity even entered a float in the Homecoming parade and won honorable mention.

In January, the Bachelors engaged Mr. Alfred Blum, a prominent Baltimore lawyer, to show his slides on Shooting the Colorado River. During this month a social party at the Agriculture Center was held to salvage the last moments of relaxation before exams. The winter and its snows came soon after more mid-semester pledges braved "the week". And spring and its thaws seemed to dissolve any icy atmosphere for the May festivities.

The "Drinking Song", the mugs and the Alpine hats hold many memories never to be forgotten by these members. Somehow they unite all of Alpha Gamma Tau in one brotherhood of fun and comradeship.

"When dear old Delta Pi Alpha fell in line" this year, there were twenty-five new members, making the total membership fifty-four. The campus was livened with their colorful costumes and serenades. It seemed for a while that a new song might even replace the old stand-by, but when serious competition came from other singers, the old words automatically won out.

One of the annual events of the fraternity was the selection of the Delta Pi Alpha sweetheart. In October, the "Preacher Glee Club" surprised Miss Kay Payne with a serenade under her window proclaiming her as their sweetheart. At Homecoming the Preachers constructed a first-prize display which showed an Indian moving up and down a high totem pole.

Their unusual float which carried a huge whale was seen in the parade.

The big event of the spring season involved preparing for the fraternity sponsored dance on May Day. Secret preparations took many hours, but seeing the results made the members feel that it was well worth all the work. During the year Mr. Richard Clower, physical education instructor, continued as advisor for the club. This was his second year in this capacity.

Purple and gold seemed to multiply around the grille throughout the year as Preacher spirit grew. United in this brotherhood the graduating members always will be important to Delta Pi Alpha.

Gamma Beta Chi

"Red and blue forever, friendships ceasing never" are proud words for the members of Gamma Beta Chi. Even pledges finally come to realize this. In October, sixteen new pledges bowed thirty-six times to the tune of "Pop Goes the Weasel" before being fully initiated. When the burden of Hell Week had passed, the Gamma Bets found more time to be active in many other campus organizations.

Both in the fraternity and in the college community, the members strive to uphold the ideals of comradeship, scholarship, sportsmanship and loyalty. At Christmas and at Thanksgiving, baskets of food are sent to a needy family. Regular campus events include a pep rally, social parties off campus, banquets and serenades to their sister sorority, Phi Alpha Mu.

At the '58 football games, the Gamma Bets could be seen increasing their treasury as they tested their salesmanship with football programs. On several occasions the colors of their fraternity and their sister sorority literally flew over the field, as one of the members circled in a plane. And as the scores mounted, the blue and red bell rang clear over Hoffa Field. At Homecoming the Gamma Bets captured first prize for their float, the second time in three years.

At Christmas busy members prepared for the dance, "Silver Bells", planned with a touch of the modern. Indeed these members did not cease to be busy throughout the rest of the year.

Time slipped by, and when May arrived, the frozen campus emerged like a butterfly from its cocoon and even more coeds became members of the "Upside-Down Pin Club", a non-fraternal group.

With these memories as a common bond, the brotherhood of Gamma Beta Chi seems to be one which "farewells" cannot weaken.

Pi Alpha Alpha, better known on campus as the "Black and Whites", upheld in faithful tradition again this year their ideals of fellowship, sportsmanship and scholarship.

Their pledges arrayed the campus during Hell Week as beekeepers, spacemen and hunters, but one pledge stole the campus eye as the Hunchback of Notre Dame. Surely one of the memories of the 1959 pledge week will be that ghastly green face and terrorizing growl.

Hot dogs, cokes and hot chocolate were peddled in the stands and along the sidelines at the sports events this year. Much of the fraternity's revenue came from the handling of these concessions.

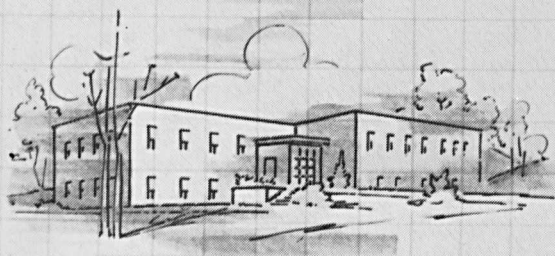

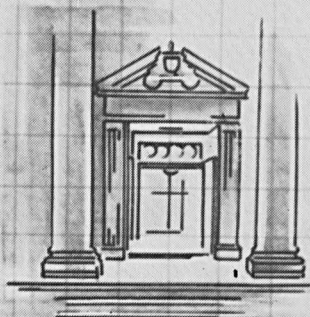

Homecoming came and went with the usual hard work that goes into putting together displays and floats. At Christmas, the Black and Whites were hosts to their Sigma sisters at a holiday party.

Ideas for the fraternity's dance were being formulated as early as September, but the real work began soon after Christmas vacation. There were many hours spent on the fine details of decorations for the Sweetheart Ball, which they were sponsoring in February.

During the year the fraternity made several visits to the Strawbridge Home for Boys and at one time gave a square dance for the boys. Another one of the group projects was to help finance some of the furnishings for the Wills Seminar Room.

Again this year the Black and Whites retained the Scholarship Cup for having the highest scholastic average among the fraternities. Interfraternity sports (football, basketball, and baseball) found the boys with a lot of fighting spirit to give real competition to their opponents. The annual spring parties, and banquets with warm handshakes for good luck extended to the departing seniors, brought the year to a close.

Women's Athletic Association

The aim of the Women's Athletic Association is to create an athletic program in which all interested girls may participate. Through an informal program, the girls try to uphold competition, sportsmanship and responsibility. Each member of the board is in charge of one sport, and two members are selected "at large" to assist with sports and the award parties.

This year the annual fall party was held in December, and at that time letters and numerals were awarded to those earning them. The spring party was held at Harvey Stone Park, with food, entertainment, awards and the installation of the officers for the coming year.

The officers for this year were: Anne Clemmitt, president; Norma Lee Etzler, vice-president; Joan Robinson, secretary; and Betty Reid, treasurer. The sponsors, Misses Marie Parker and Roselda Todd, assist in all the club functions.

Fall party . . . Watch the birdie, Linda!

Senior Women Shine in Sports

"We are the class of '59!" yell the senior women proudly, as they review their accomplishments in intramural competition over the past four years. Indeed, with a record of twenty-three wins in twenty-nine games played since their freshman year, the senior women have a right to be proud!

Even as newcomers to the campus, the sports-minded girls in the class of '59 rapidly gained recognition for their skill and spirit from their upperclass opponents. As freshmen, after a fair showing in hockey, they captured second place in interclass basketball competition, losing only one game. In volleyball they displayed remarkable teamwork and won the championship.

During their sophomore and junior years, the women athletes in the class of '59 formed an unbeatable combination, scoring a total of fifteen collective wins in hockey, basketball and volleyball, and tying only one game in hockey. Their string of victories brought them the intramural title for six consecutive sports seasons.

This fall eleven determined freshmen players succeeded in snatching the hockey championship away from the class of '59. The "grand old seniors" mildly rebuked those who suggested jokingly that they were becoming too dilapidated for athletic competition by exclaiming, "We're not grandmas!", and then proving their statement with spectacular performances on the basketball court.

The senior women who have participated on their class A teams during the past four years have won the respect and admiration of their opponents, not merely because of their individual playing abilities, but because of their spirit and unity as a team.

Hockey

Ground, sticks — ground; sticks — ground, sticks! The women's fall sports program had begun, and field hockey intramurals had become a subject of conversation in the dormitories. Experienced and beginning hockey enthusiasts alike plodded out to their new field on "Seminary Slope" to develop skills and teamwork techniques. Competition between the class teams was more acute than usual, with the freshmen women finally seizing the championship in the last game of the season.

After intramurals were completed, the Women's Athletic Association Board selected an honorary hockey team, consisting of outstanding players on the class teams. Seniors chosen were Ann Clemmitt, Carmela DeFlora, Diane Deland, Norma Lee Etzler, Katherine Mitchell, Carol Pettersen, Betty Reid and Anne Voshell. Juniors Beverly Hill, Charlotte Prevost and Joan Wood, and sophomores Mernette Houck and Rhea Ireland were also selected. Rounding out the team were freshmen Sue Beeler and Janet Pricer.

Basketball

Whistles blowing, balls swishing through nets and girls shouting encouragement to their teammates in Blanche Ward gymnasium all give evidence to the fact that basketball—whether in a class, sorority or on the inter-scholastic level—captivates the interest of W.M.C. women. The school team this year had a busy and successful season, playing St. Joseph's, Notre Dame, Goucher, Mt. St. Agnes, Villa Julie, and Towson State Teachers College. Competition was keen but friendly, and "coketails" were often held after the games.

Interclass contests were highlighted by displays of expert hook and set shooting and also by precision teamwork. Veterans to the basketball court mixed with newcomers as each player tried to bring victory to her class team.

The Women's Athletic Association Board elected eight intramural participants, who excelled in class competition, to the honorary basketball team. Forwards selected were seniors Ann Clemmitt, Norma Lee Etzler and Anne Voshell and junior Beverly Hill. Guards making the team were seniors Carol Pettersen, Betty Reid and Joan Robinson, and junior Charlotte Prevost.

Cheerleaders

Go - Terrors - Go . . . was the familiar phrase heard from the enthusiastic cheering squad! Headed by their co-captains Diane Deland and Kay Payne, this squad did an excellent job in arousing school spirit. This college spirit was a result of the much improved pep rallies . . . Blanche Ward Gym and Alumni Hall rang out like never before.

Highlights of the year 1958-59 . . . Stiffness after the first game due to overworked muscles . . . the election of two excellent freshmen girls and another boy to the squad . . . and the jubilant cheering during the unexpected but glorious defeat over Johns Hopkins.

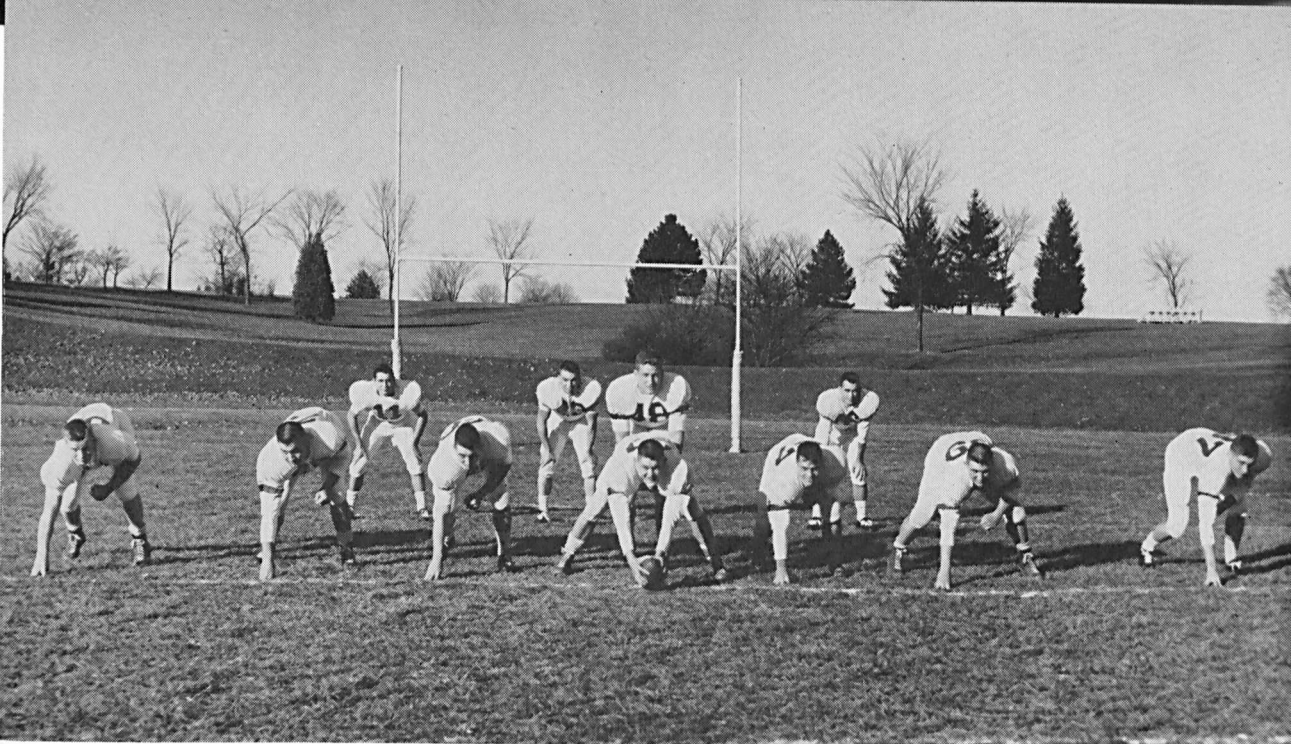

A new addition to the squad this year was Mrs. Carolyn Jones. Her interest in sports shows her worthiness of being the squad's first sponsor.

Pom Pom Team

Yellow, Yellow, — Green, Green, is called by the newly elected captain, Barbara Long, and the Pom Pom girls begin their routine. Smart precision from the girls has been recognized by the entire student body. The girls perform during the pep rallies and during each home game. This year they performed, with one exception, at half time for all the home games. Homecoming day, a circus theme was presented, and during half-time of the Hopkins game, a theme of model cars. Color, smiles and enthusiasm are the trademarks of this marching team.

"The Greatest Soccer Coach in the history of W.M.C.!"

The 1958 soccer squad did not win the conference championship, but it did win the hearts of Western Maryland fans. The team, though small in size, managed to achieve a 6-6 record against "elevens" that included some of the top powers in the East. Four of the six victories posted came at the end of the season from a team that "never said die." Four of the season's losses were by 2-1 margins. Sparking the Terrors on defense, co-captain, Bruce Lee, and fellow senior, John Waghelstein, played their last season for the Uhrigmen. Junior Lloyd Musselman proved outstanding in the goal area. On offense, center forward, George Varga, fired eleven goals into the net in the last four games. He was rewarded by berths on the All-Southern, Mason-Dixon and Middle Atlantic Conference teams. Bruce Lee also represented the school on the All-Southern and Mason-Dixon squads.

Team play marked this year's efforts by the soccermen. This quality was not better evidenced than in the decisive victory over arch-rival Johns Hopkins. Surprising the "Blue Jays" by a score of 5-2, four Terrormen shared the scoring honors. The play on the field was exciting, but the sideline performance of "Count-down" Harris, team manager, was indeed an addition to the games. Mentor Philip Uhrig, for nine years a player or a coach with the Western Maryland booters, praised the squad for its battling spirit. At the Athletic Awards assembly in December, Coach Uhrig was honored by his team and the rest of the student body, receiving an engraved cup from the players and a sincere and rousing ovation from all.

Wrestling

Western Maryland's wrestling coach and light heavy-weight, Kenneth Mohlhenrich, faced a rebuilding job in his third year with the matmen. Edwin Filer and Frederick Rheinhardt were among several promising freshmen to bolster his six returning veterans. The team had a rough start by losing to conference crown holder, Galludet. Outstanding for the Terror squad are Lou Price (133 lbs.), "Elvis" Ward (147 lbs.), Frank Street (157 lbs.), and "Mighty Mo" Mohlhenrich (177 lbs.). The green and gold grapplers intend to make the experience gained this year a springboard for future success on the mats.

Basketball

This year marks a rebuilding span for Coach Clower's "hoopsters", as it is for other sports on the "Hill". The team found rough sledding for the first six games. But spirits rose as the Terror cagers defeated the Alumni 79-64, as well as trimming Towson State 70-63. The Alumni game marked the return of such Terror stalwarts as "Bill" Spaar, "Walt" Hart, "Jerry" Phipps, "Ed" Eliot, and "Buzzy" Lambert. David Martin's twenty-one points led the varsity against the Alumni, as did his twenty-eight points against Towson. Martin, a freshman, is expected to prove a strong nucleus for future Terror teams. Martin's seventeen point average at the start of the season was supplemented by David Sullivan's 10.2 mark. Sophomore Jim Brown also exhibited fine hustle in the early season tussles. Amusement was added to the games by referee Charles Eckman, former N.B.A. official and coach of the Fort Wayne Pistons. It was he who named coach Clower's second string unit "Chinese Bandits II" and "Pony Express".

Rifle Team

The rifle team on the "Hill" has guns and has traveled far toward rebuilding the great squad it had in recent years. The loss of top rifleman Wayne Holter and Dick Brawley with graduation last year has been somewhat offset by the promising performance of "steady" Ron Poore and Sophomore Jan Seihler. Diligently coached by Master Sergeant Crawford Coyner and managed by Charles Pugh, the team became the third Terror aggregation to defeat Hopkins in sports in the fall of 58! Sergeant Coyner instituted the "coach and pupil" method of practice, having hopes that it will pay dividends in the future. Meanwhile his standout performers, the team captain Carlton White, and high point man Ken Nickoles, continued to pace the squad. Nickoles, a senior firing as high as 285, finished out a noteworthy career in collegiate marksmanship. His performance is one of the reasons we can well be proud of our rifle team.

"Learn Today and Lead Tomorrow." This motto, so familiar to all members of the Cadet Corps, is the goal of all college training. As college men depart from college life, they will take with them more than a college degree; they will take with them an intangible often called the "mantle of leadership" — and their country will look to them with anxious eyes to fulfill its promise and obligations.

The R. O. T. C. program is designed to develop those qualities of leadership required in both military and civil enterprise. It helps its graduates discharge their dual responsibilities — as citizens first, and as military leaders in time of national need.

THE YEAR THAT WE BUILT

Spring

Budding Genius . . . Blossoming Romance
. . . Balmy Days . . . Bloomin' Idiots

With a burst of creative construction, the present Senior Class, in the spring of 1958, began to lay foundations for its final year on the "Hill". Combining cooperation and spirited endeavor, the class courageously set to work on the Junior-Senior Prom and the Junior Follies, two major landmarks of the college year. From the realm of ideas, "Prudence Grunion" was built in follies fashion; from crepe paper and chicken wire bloomed a Hawaiian Paradise.

A late April found the campus turning green, while sunbathers acquired varying shades of red and bronze. Spring fever was much in evidence, amateur athletes vied for a spot on the tennis courts, and young men developed an increased interest in young women. The stag line migrated from the gloomy depths of the Rec Hall to the sunny curb outside, a better vantage point for watching the girls go by. Outside the Grille, tables blossomed with bridge games.

Work of all sorts was regarded as the cruellest drudgery. Teachers lectured to sparsely populated classrooms, while librarians found themselves governing an empty library. A few enterprising individuals did manage to combine studying with the great outdoors, but in most cases the last few weeks before exams were spent in a siege of inspired and remorseful cramming.

While some pulled . . .

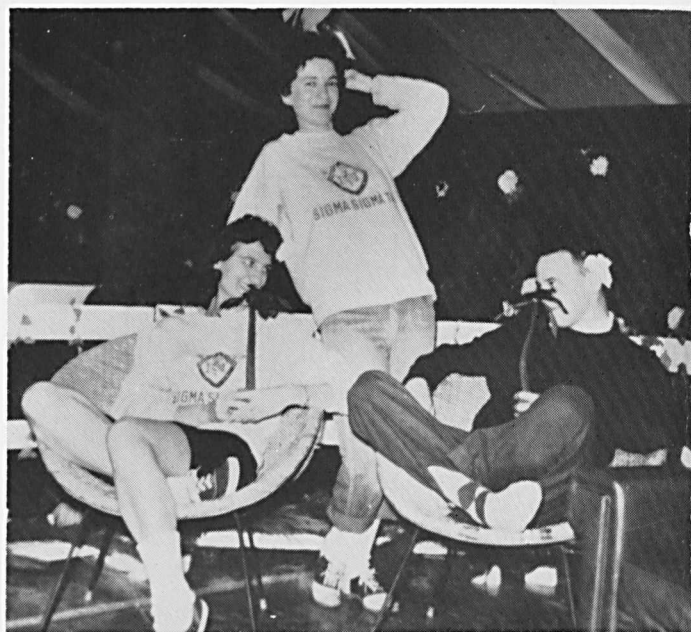

Planning and building a Hawaiian Paradise absorbed much time as the Class of 1959 prepared to pay its respects to the Class of '58. Overnight Gill gymnasium was transformed into a brilliant tropical garden—a miracle performed with more than the usual amount of fun, foolishness, and frustration.

To an acute observer, only one incongruity was noticeable. Many genuine “evergreens” could be seen among the palm trees and flowers, but these were the only natural greens which the search party was able to locate in the cold month of March. Members of the decorating crew will also recall an incident which almost brought severe repercussions. Some prized white birch logs belonging to an esteemed member of the college “hierarchy” were mistaken for driftwood, and during the chaos of decorating, were painted violent shades of the sunset.

On the night of the dance, couples found themselves whirling about gigantic trees beside a beach bathed by the setting sun. Large baskets of tropical flowers and numerous coconuts topped off the "South Seas" atmosphere. (These same coconuts were eaten in the dorms weeks later.)

With nostalgia, graduates of '58 took the traditional walk through the arch and each coed received a garland and a kiss. A certain heartache was felt by all, as they passed through the portal which bore the farewell of "Aloha."

A traditional contribution to college culture was '59's Follies, The Making of Prudence Grunion. Long months of writing produced a script, and remarkably few rehearsals revealed deeply hidden talents. Togas became fashionable in the classic setting of an ancient Greek acropolis (which bore remarkable resemblance to a certain college "Hill".)

At the time of the autumnal equinox, gods and goddesses in caps, gowns, and Phi Beta Kappa keys descended from Mt. Olympus and welcomed new candidates for citizenship to the city state of Dianopolis. After speaking a few "brief" words of happiness and well-being, the great God Zeus advised the candidates: "Blaze new paths to new places and new paths to the same old places. You too may be chosen a Pathfinder."

The candidates were duly inspired and soon learned of the need to build Prudence Grunion, a building where citizens could socialize and hold bigger and better orgies. The structure was to be dedicated to Prudence Grunion, a beautiful "babe" who had never been built.

A struggling Candidate, Ulysses Smith, quickly gained prestige by "volunteering" to head a committee responsible for erecting the building. Sweetonius Youngus Thingus, better known as Max, immediately fell in love with this brave hero and offered to stand behind him in his endeavors and to be known as the girl who made him.

After sampling social life in Dianopolis, Ulysses began his search for Prudence Grunion. Being advised to go to Hell, the hero's quest soon took him to the throne room of the mighty Pluto, god of the purse-strings. Here he encountered many candidates on other missions. Complaints regarding faulty plumb-ing, "required Temple" on weekends, and the presence of the celestial chain blocking the entrance to the Elysian Fields, were refused attention in a gusty roar by omnipotent Pluto. Not being aggressive, our hero found himself at the end of a long line of complainants. His case was a worthy one. The old Parthenon was falling down, the steps were sagging and even the bats and rats had left; the only remaining forms of life were the Vestal Virgins. As soon as Ulysses' request was spoken, Pluto thundered "NO! . . . Traditions are cheaper than improvements!"

Arriving back in Dianopolis, the one-time hero found himself a friendless failure. In an attempt to worm his way back into the good graces of the inhabitants of the city-state, Ulysses agreed to keep a bonfire blazing at a "pep orgy" scheduled for the eve of the Olympic games. On the night of the big orgy, loquacious Ulysses became so engrossed in talk with the guys that he neglected Max and the bonfire. Suddenly amidst the revelry, flames appeared. Old Parthenon was burning down!

Our Hero found his weakness . . .

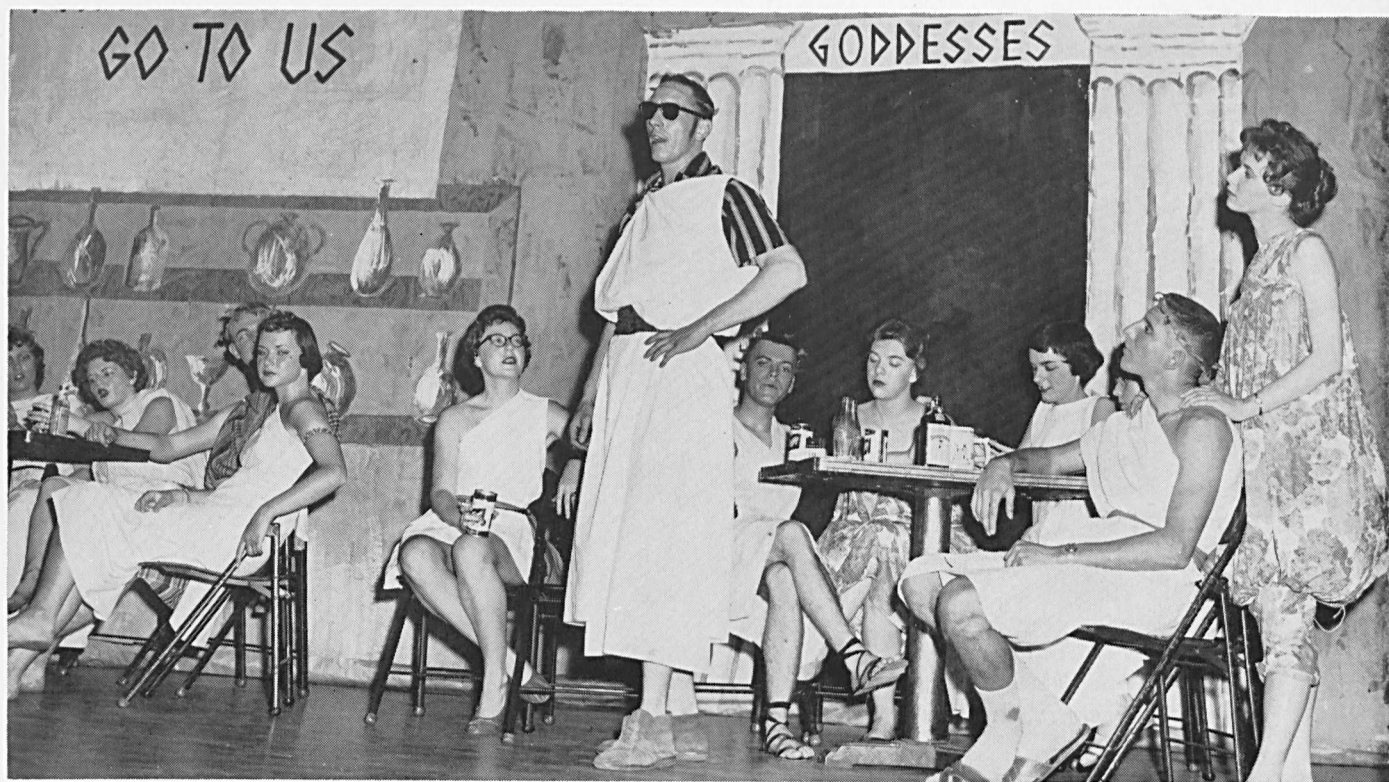

Realizing that he had "muffed" his opportunity to gain citizenship, Ulysses prepared for a hasty departure. While Max helped him pack his things, they reminisced about past happy days, days of Dunster Poe's debut of Neonothingism, of water bombs and disappearing flag-pole ropes, days when chariots were out of commission due to heavy snows, and a time when portraits of late benefactors turned up in strange places.

Sadly, Ulysses passed through the portal at Dianopolis only to be greeted by a mob of Dianopolitans led by Zeus himself. Expecting nothing short of annihilation, he learned that they had come to "honor, not to bury him." Congratulations were given him for sticking to his task, for burning down Old Parthenon, and thereby getting enough insurance money for building the Prudence Grunion Building. Cheered by members of the crowd, he was raised triumphantly onto their shoulders.

In a grand finale the entire cast of this classic production proudly announced "We are the Class of '59; upon the Hill we'll always shine."

And Scandalonius spread the news.

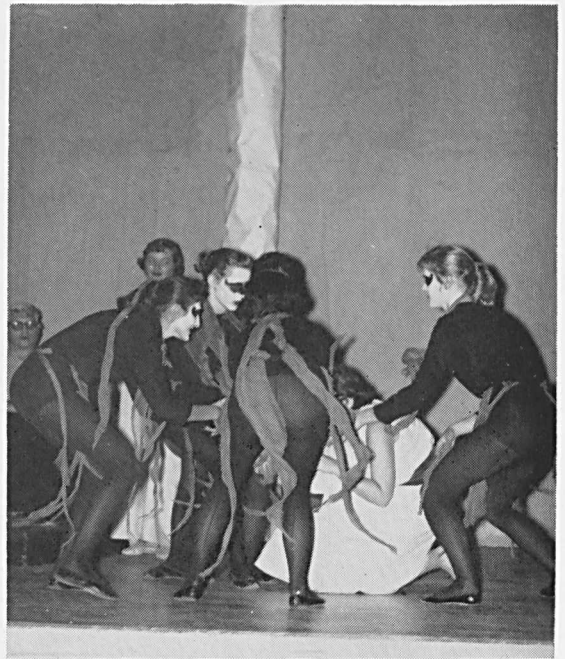

A "real gone Greek" told a "cool" tale . . .

But the scene warmed up with a classical version of the Rockettes.

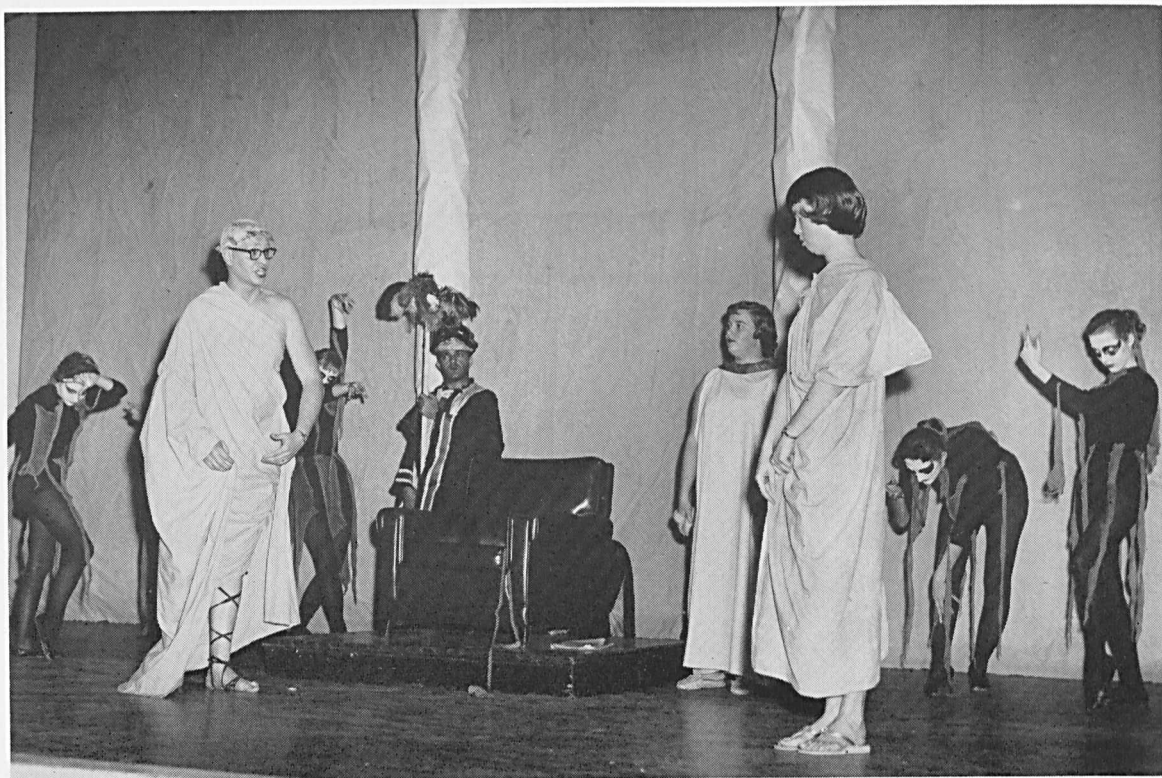

Greeted with "Bow down before Pluto" . . .

And awed by the Furies and their contortions . . .

The Vestal Virgins petitioned the ruler for help . . .

But he just said NO . . .

So, orgying they will go.

Fall

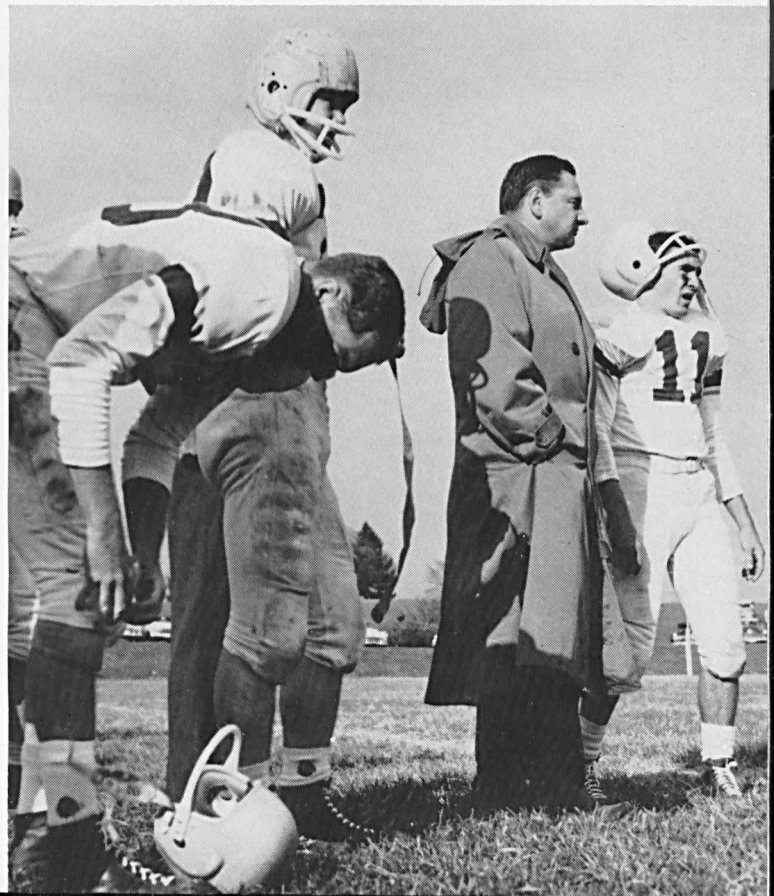

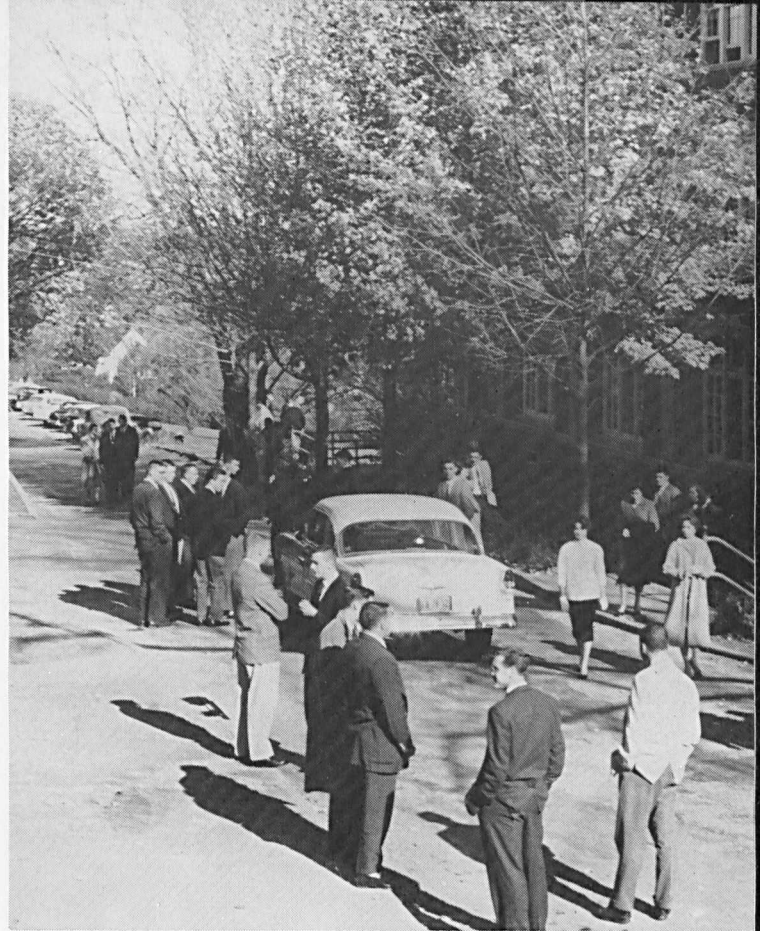

Turning Over A New Leaf . . . Along Flirtation Walk
. . . Energetic Engineers . . . Tackling Turf

Fall came late to the "Hill," following a long Indian summer. The beginning of the 1958-1959 school year was a time for renewal of old friendships and the formation of new ones, as living quarters changed, and a new crop of freshmen arrived.

For a short time "Rats" were the center of attention, unsuccessfully attempting to avoid sophomore persecution. Soon unusual antics were undulating from other quarters as Greek letter groups vied for attention.

Blazers, football programs and occasional umbrellas were the signs of the season, as the "Hill" appeared in fall hues of orange and brown. The football season was accompanied by a siege of optimism and pep. Social events were climaxed by a cool and brisk Homecoming weekend, as returning alumni saw the Terror team bow to its opponent. The loss on Hoffa Field was quickly forgotten, however, and Gill Gym that evening was packed with whirling couples.

As fall events drew to a close, the Thanksgiving Play, presented by the senior dramatic art students, preceded a mass exodus to the highways heading toward home, sleep, turkey and more sleep.

Freshmen had their helpless moments . . .

While many were taking advantage of the last few days of the summer vacation, Western Maryland was swinging into action for another academic year. Student leaders and representatives of the faculty and administration returned to campus early to inaugurate the first annual Student Leadership Conference with the theme "Helping the Hill." Concentrated discussions resulted in a statement of proposals designed to improve the intellectual tone and general morale of the campus.

Three days later confused freshmen swarmed over the campus, ready to be oriented into a new way of life. A service provided to freshmen girls only was that of baggage patrol. This was rendered by a wolfish-looking group of campus veterans who thus had the opportunity of sizing up the date material. After rapidly establishing themselves in their new environment, frosh were introduced to the "hurry up and wait" routine. A welcoming battery of tests and meetings, and a barrage of propaganda served only to confuse them, but they quickly learned such vital facts as the combinations to their mail boxes and the route to the movie theater.

But the "leaders" tried to make life a bit easier.

Returning upperclassmen critically surveyed the newest batch of green freshmen and then turned their minds to registration. After hearing numerous complaints about the number of eight o'clocks, schedule changes, increased tuition, and price of the text books, the Registrar and staff retired to nightmares and tranquilizers.

Enrollment reached an all time high of 691 as the college prepared to embark on a new year. The changing skyline of the "Hill," along with a considerable amount of rearrangement, provided a greater student capacity. Even veterans of the college found themselves asking freshmen the whereabouts of a certain biology department, which had vanished from its accustomed locale.

The first day of classes came. Freshmen rushed to breakfast at 7:15 carrying all their books for the day. Upperclassmen crawled out of bed at 7:50 and sauntered to class at 8:00 carrying a pencil. The uninitiated were easily recognized by a small green hat topping every outfit, and which, after a few weeks, seemed to be an outgrowth of the head.

Though freshmen complained of severe persecution, seniors felt a distinct change in the Rat Week policy. "Air raid" no longer sounded, not a single freshman was seen carrying a water pistol and chair in case of fire, and beanies were no longer sported until a late November Homecoming.

Sororities and fraternities soon moved into the limelight, pledging a total of 148. As usual, each group tried to outdo its rivals and out-rising at dawn became common practice. The first battery of quizzes came and went, and professors were viewed with mixed emotions.

Occupying a prominent part of campus life was the great sport, football. A revitalized Western Maryland football team played with more skill, spirit and success than had been exhibited in the past three seasons. The display of spirit on the field was reinforced by a new surge of enthusiasm from the stands.

Then, with a mad rush, Homecoming came. For some it meant the ingenious planning of floats and displays, while others spent their time drilling for performances—athletic or otherwise—on the football field. A sudden awakening among those who had put off rounding up a date, resulted in continuous use of the telephone.

Alumni returning on Friday saw the pre-game march on Westminster led by the band, cheerleaders and pom pom girls. The bonfire, blazing on Hoffa Field, warmed spirits as well as hands of the mob. Mixing chaos with culture was the style for the evening. Rooters donned their Sunday best to attend a concert by the Claremont String Quartet, immediately following the pep rally.

Saturday dawned crisp and clear. After last

The football game attracted a crowd of spectators and a strong Lycoming team. The fired-up Western Maryland squad galloped ahead in the first half only to be brought down to a 27-26 defeat. Loss of the well-played game failed to dampen spirits.

Half-time activities featured a circus theme, with the pom pom team and the band setting the atmosphere. The climax was the presentation of chrysanthemums to Mrs. Kale Mathias by Homecoming Queen, Miss Patricia Schaefer.

After the game, Alumni were welcomed at a reception in the lounge, and fraternities and sororities held open-house for their respective grads. Many seemed to prefer a change in menu, and dinner found the dining hall practically deserted.

The Homecoming Dance, "The Football," payed homage to America's great college pastime. Couples danced to the music of the Dellonaires, under a huge football suspended from the ceiling. The Queen was crowned and then, too soon, festivities were over. For some, the week-end left a little heartache—or perhaps a little headache—but for most there were happy memories.

Separate Tables is actually two one-act plays dealing with the same people. The scene is set in a little boarding house in a glum watering place on the Channel coast of England. The manageress, Miss Cooper, is a selfless and sensible young woman who has developed a personal complication with one of her boarders, John Malcolm, a political has-been. Then suddenly Malcolm's ex-wife, beautiful, fear-ridden, and ill, comes hunting him. The manageress chooses a life of independency, and Malcolm realizes that life without his ex-wife is not really "living."

The second play deals with the Major, a retired military man who never lets up about the good old days in North Africa. One day he is charged with molesting a woman in a local cinema. The newspaper reports that he was not a major at all, but only a lieutenant, who had spent the war in a supply depot. This causes further complications, because the resident gossip-monger soon demands that the Major be thrown out of the hotel, even though—or perhaps because—she knows her shy, hysterical daughter, Sibyl, is in love with the old fraud. Through the mediation of Miss Cooper, this problem, too, is resolved, and Sibyl and the Major find new courage to face life.

The universal truth of the play echoed in Miss Cooper's speech of consolation to Sibyl who wishes with all her heart that she were just "normal." "You see . . . the word normal, applied to any human being, is utterly meaningless. In a sort of a way it's an insult to our Maker, don't you think, to suppose that He could possibly work to any set pattern?"

"Other people aren't as sensible as we are, they go and get married . . ."

"Good-by. God bless you."

Winter

Slipping Through The Year . . . On Santa's Lap
. . . Sniffing Christmas Cookery . . . Slick Sliding

A "roaring wind" gave early indication that winter had descended upon the "Hill." With the first blustering breezes, eyes turned heavenward to await fluttering flakes in the sky. The vigil was a long one, but finally snow came. Walking became hazardous due to conditions underfoot and overhead. Dusty sleds were dug out of storage for a tour of duty on the back-campus "hill." Another popular spot seeing plenty of action was the duck pond, where skaters improved their figures.

The two weeks before the Christmas holiday were crammed with celebration. Every excuse seemed good enough for a party, and the air soon rang with Christmas spirit. Carpe Diem looked festive once more with evergreens covering the evidence of a Hopkins visitation. Traditional activities and bedraggled Santa Clauses combined to instill a holiday mood in all.

1959 rang in, and the "Hill" echoed with holiday happenings. Newly acquired diamonds sparkled, lighting up rooms and faces and adding new subject matter for conversation. Then, suddenly, the exam schedule indicated that what had been the hazy future was the awful present. For many, the semester was a successful one, for others special "Valentines" were sent home, requiring evasive explanations of erroneous grading systems.

"Pwepawations are so-o-o important" . . .

That the Iotes began early building of their branch toy store on campus . . .

While Gamma Bets worked late putting finishing touches on the Christmas dance.

Students could dream of a White Christmas, but warm sunshine made seasonal plans seem somewhat premature. Soon after returning from Thanksgiving, decorations began to appear, brightening the campus. Bells were hung from Carpe Diem, evergreens grew in numerous places which they do not normally inhabit, and windows acquired scenic vistas.

The annual tree lighting ceremony followed by an informal reception in McDaniel Lounge ushered in the season. The days ahead were packed with activity, highlighted by the Christmas Dance, parties of all descriptions and the Christmas Banquet. Senior caroling climaxed the merriment with a 4:00 a. m. tour of Westminster.

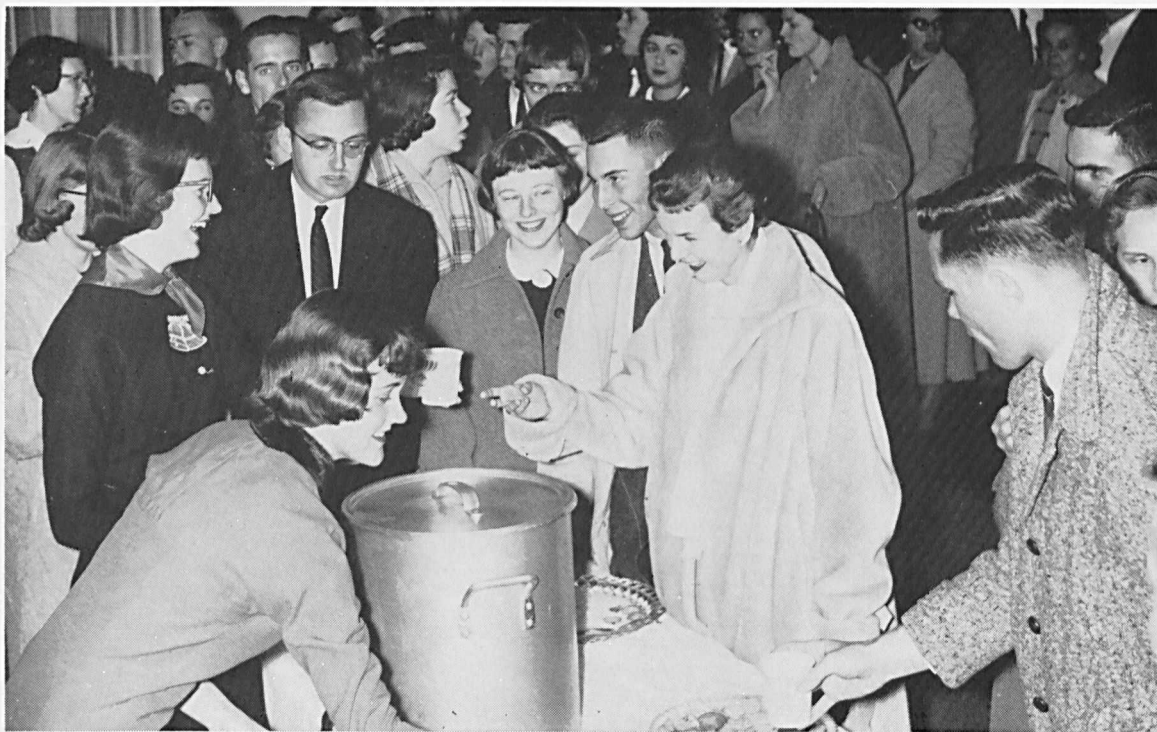

The banquet, for the most part a refined and somewhat elegant affair, was thrown into an uproar by entertainment provided by the waiters and waitresses. "The Twelve Days of Christmas" was presented, complete with props ranging from yellow hula hoops and rubber plants to large and somewhat rambunctious ducks and geese. A rather dilapidated and clean-shaven Santa Claus added to the hilarity. Consensus was that Santa was outdone only by his colleague of the year before, who showed up with two black eyes glowering over his whiskers.

The final night on the "Hill," before taking leave for the holidays, began with a fraternity party, and was followed by a dormitory party for girls. This was the beginning of a long night's vigil for those who had reached the status of senior. What began as a lively group of night-watchers, was by 3:00 a. m. taking on all aspects of a slumber party. Some managed to survive the night without succumbing to the demands of sleep, and these were wider awake for the wee hours of the morning than their "rested" friends. Wake-up cocoa and donuts were served by ambitious juniors before seniors embarked on a long cold journey. Dotted lights glowing throughout Westminster gave indication that their lusty voices were heard. Returning to campus, "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen" rang out before day-break from the quadrangle between the boys' dorms. The songsters then invaded the dining hall to await and entertain underclassmen attending breakfast. Heads nodded in classes that morning, but all were wide awake for the trip home.

The New Year was accompanied by resolutions for improved study habits, necessitated by exams. As the dreaded days descended, the "Fill" seemed to grow more relaxed. Though fresh panicked, hardened veterans sipped cokes unconcernedly in the Grille and waited for pressure to stir them into action. After the first exam, even some of these calloused individuals panicked.

February snows and the new semester enlivened everyone. Indeed spirits were moved; seventeen senior women in migrating to two senior houses started a chain of reaction which resulted in a mass upheaval. The Chandler House and the Management House became centers of fun plus food.

During the course of the school year, collections were made occasionally for worthy causes, as well as not so worthy causes. Perhaps the one receiving the most active students support was that of the CKJSS, otherwise known as the Committee to Help Keep Jan Seihler in School. Seniors began to count the days until graduation, and numbers on the main bulletin board quickly diminished. The cycle was coming into full swing. Three seasons had already impressed themselves upon the cornerstone of our memories. The fourth was yet to come.

After their 4:00 A. M. visitation of Westminster.

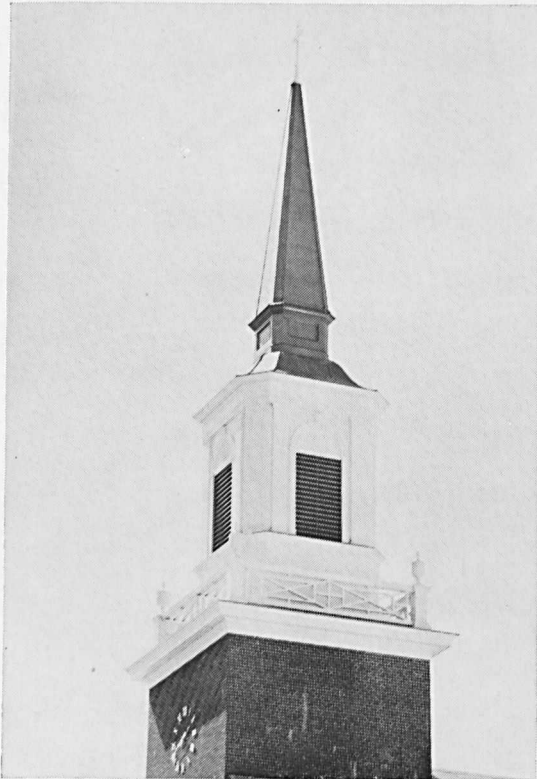

*When our college days are over,
Round our hearts shall cling
Memories of our Alma Mater,
Every day shall bring.*

1959 SUPPLEMENT

It's a sincerely happy line at the President's Reception.

Spring of our last year at W.M.C. was a very special and beautiful season. New greenery was accompanied by a burst of energy in every department from art to zoology, and the atmosphere was "lovely." In February came Senior Investiture and a very forceful and meaningful message from surprise speaker, Dr. Theodore M. Whitfield. As each class moved forward one notch, seniors feeling the first pang of being "has beens," resolved to enjoy fully each remaining sunset and sunrise on the "Hill."

First on the crowded calendar was the Military Ball with Miss Sue Cossabone as queen. March held two Junior productions, the Junior Plays and the Junior-Senior Prom. Beautifully decorated around the Japanese theme, Sayonara, the Juniors wished the Seniors farewell with rhythm and grace. However, that slippery kissing bridge added a slick note of humor to a "favorite" senior custom.

May Day arrived with the robins and cardinals. Sunshine accompanied the parade and helped to crown this year's Queen of the May, Miss Leanne Manning. Leanne and her court were

And may we pass the cup to you to drink before we part, sing the Juniors at the Rose Cup Ceremony.

Outgoing Trumpeters pass on traditions, caps and gowns to their successors.

W.M.C.'s tribute to spring and reigned over a day of singing, sports events, and an evening "Holland Holiday." Lantern Chain ceremony presented by the freshmen women was truly impressive. So were the Rose Cup Ceremony, Trumpeter Tapping, fraternity and sorority banquets, and the Graduate Record Exams!

Commencement week began with the senior picnic at Frock's farm. Traditional festivities continued with the Commencement Play, Shakespeare's The Winter's Tale; and on Saturday, May 30th came the Winslow Student Center dedication. A communion service, given for the senior class on Sunday morning, was followed by the Baccalaureate Service. Monday dawned grey and misty, but cooler weather just made those long, black graduation gowns quite comfortable. (There was only the worry that the mortar boards might warp.) Some tears increased the humidity, but everyone was very happy to be a "bachelor." Weddings and jobs, trips and graduate schools brightened the horizon; yet no matter what new ties are made, the friendships made at W.M.C. will never be broken.

Freshmen songs echoed across Hoffa Field to "the grand old seniors."

A new focus of student activities, The Winslow Student Center, was dedicated the day before graduation.
