Dedication

The Class of '64 dedicates the '64 ALOHA to a person who is a symbol as well as an example of the future of Western Maryland College—a future that is new and alive and vibrant—a future that stirs the students as well as fills them—a future full of enterprise and meaning—of comraderie and purpose—of innovation and dedication—of intellectual understandings and human understandings—of values and commitments—of ability and versatility.

We dedicate the '64 ALOHA—to a man who is as much at home playing basketball with the students as with discussing our problems, and he does both well;—to a Ph.D. to whom picking peaches comes as naturally as leading a stimulating discussion in the classroom;—to a speaker who stirs us to re-evaluation from the chapel pulpit and who stirs us to laughter from the Alumni Hall stage in a faculty skit;—to the only professor on campus who inspired forty students to travel thirty miles to hear a guest speaker at another college; and—to a father who gave three lambs to his four young children to play with on the living room floor.

Meaning... innovation... dedication... comraderie... purpose... understanding... ability... versatility—the words we have used to describe the future of our college we use to describe this popular professor and fine teacher. A symbol and example of the future, he is the future—for it is professors like Dr. William G. Miller who will make the future of Western Maryland College.

Homecoming

Bare float platforms awaiting their dressings... gowns hanging on dorm room doors, flowers on order, football uniforms laundered and ready... all the night before Homecoming... a cool swift breeze and a snapping warm bonfire... enthusiasm mounting...

Soldiers in parade cadence... chicken-wire and tissue paper bumble bees... feminine tractor driver... alumni and parents snapping pictures... waves and smiles and hands in pockets... a cool swift breeze...

Milling around the gravel track... small children and hotdogs... Win, Western Maryland... rifle-twirled pathway for the Queen... half-time tradition... favorable scoreboard tally... old-timers sipping cider on alumni hill... car horns and radios... red flags and chains... chrysanthemums and Yellow Jackets... roll up the score... clouded sun and a cool swift breeze...

Fraternity banquets welcome graduated brothers... black velvet sheaths... boutonnieres and dark suits... Lester Lanin, colored lights, The Grand Ball, knights’ shields and a slippery floor... myriads of feet and refined voices...

Clothes strewn in empty dorm rooms... lights burning late... there’s always an extra bed for an off-campus date... stay out till the last minute... a swift good-night in the cool, calm breeze... someday we’ll be back.

Snow Carnival

The frolic architecture of the snow.

Emerson
In an effort to earn money for the SGA, secure pictures for the ALOHA, and “make this place collegiate,” the Finance Committee suggested having a Snow Carnival at the “next big snow.” Despite a few objections on the basis that “the Hagerstown Almanac predicts a mild winter,” the SGA senate carried the motion, and campus groups paid their entry fees and organized committees to build snow sculpture on twenty-four hours’ notice.

Early in February the snow came, and the carnival was proclaimed. Scholastic activity ceased as students spent the afternoon constructing their sculpture, which included entries from Venus to a thalidomide baby. A pyramid and sphynx appeared, not far from a deceptively real-looking toilet. The Argonauts constructed an owl which bore a striking resemblance to Dr. Makosky, and a whale, elephant, and seal upset the frequency of albinism in North America.

Patterned along the lines of the Dartmouth Winter Carnival, the festivities included winter sports—sledding on dining hall trays and a co-ed snowball battle on what was formerly the library lawn. Even the “Castle Painted White” proved an inadequate defense as WMC males hurled trays of snow at their opponents. At the evening mixer the first prize for snow sculpture was awarded to the Freshman Class for Snoopy and his doghouse, a favorite entry.

It wasn’t Dartmouth, but then Dartmouth never had a pink dragon (winner of second prize).

Consensus is that the carnival was a success. Everyone had a good time, the ALOHA got its pictures, and only twenty-three colds and two cases of double-pneumonia were referred to the infirmary.

The SGA netted one dollar and fifty cents.
Variety Show

Tapping deep unknown wells of hidden resources, the IFC-ISC Variety Show easily proved itself a gusher. Featuring verve, humor, and even talent, everyone who was not already in the production applauded heartily in attendance.

From folk songs to rock 'n' roll, from original dance numbers (Little Green People?) to slapstick comedy, from Miss Maryland playing the “Warsaw Concerto” on the organ to the faculty quartet making a heroic attempt to pour enthusiasm into the college fight song, the show didn’t lack for variety.

The climax of the first half was the screamingly successful performance by “Ringo” Liebman and the Rhomanics. Greeted with shouts, wails, and a hail of jelly beans, the bewigged four with the Dixiefied Cockney accents were easily the most vocal group west of the Thames.

A faculty skit parodying SGA elections provided a penetrating critique of the college and administration, as well as some memorable lines (“Operator, this is Number One. Give me Number Two. Hello, Lowell?”). “Freddy Witless” Tribby, “Ban the Butt” Miller, and “Culture Kick” Kerschner proved their versatility extends far beyond the classroom.

Emceed by George “Ed Sullivan” Klander and Doug “God knows I’m sorry” MacEwan, the two hours of liveliness finally came to an end. With a chorus of “Lord George,” “There’s No Business Like Show Business,” and the inevitable pie in the face, came the end of what—it is hoped—was the first annual IFC-ISC Variety Show.
"I'll Be Damned!"

"I'll be damned, at this happy conclusion . . . to this period of confusion . . ."

The title song of the Junior Follies is an apt description of the efforts of the Class of '64 to put together a new and different type of show as well as of the success of the students attending the mythical Pennypacker U. in saving their football field from being bisected by Highway 115.

When rumors that Dottie Beck and Nelson Sheeley were planning an original musical comedy began to circulate, the campus was doubtful. "That little class?" they asked, and bought tickets out of curiosity. When the show was acclaimed a rousing success, some thought the Class must have sold its collective soul to Mr. Twig, in the style of Wilbur, Pennypacker's student-turned-hero.
"No references to Western Maryland" was the only stipulation in preparing the show. The rest remained uncensored as descriptions of the under-side of typical college life burst forth in dialogue and song. "We are through with those odious men!" junior girls sang in rehearsal and in the dorm. "Don't let her seduce you," "Wilbur" Creamer was advised by his friends.

"Anyone can learn to dance," faculty director Byron Avery informed a dubious cast at an early rehearsal, and for the next several weeks taught an incredulous chorus the contortions necessary to modern choreography.

"Barb, we need a picture of Hitler," Nelson decided, as he planned the interlude of slides illustrating college life. "Dottie, we need fifteen more verses for Bill's song. And will someone please teach Kay to dance like a boy?"
If the going got rough at times, if Kay couldn’t put the right inflection into “Leeonnaaaaarrrrdd!” and if Marilyn couldn’t put enough “feeling” into the final kiss with Matt, there were always Bob Vickery’s rousing tunes to spark the cast. Soon every junior was whistling “Pennypacker U.,” “Highway 115,” and “Words of the Wise.” Dottie was often found muttering “If you’re in a fix, if you’re on the spot . . .” while the optimistic Sheeley countered with “It’s just a matter of confidence!”

Confidence or soul-selling, the cast did learn to dance, Dottie did add fifteen verses to Bill’s song, Bob did orchestrate the music in time for opening night, Barb did produce a slide of Hitler, Kay did dance like a boy (and Bill like a girl), and Marilyn and Matt did put “feeling” into their final embrace.

The Class realized there was a good deal of partiality in remarks like Dr. Ensor’s “It would do credit to Broadway,” but there was no mistaking that the audience thoroughly enjoyed the performance. “Better than anything I’ve seen in Alumni Hall in the fifteen years I’ve been here,” said one faculty member, and in an argument with a conservative colleague, another staunchly defended the ribaldry on the grounds that “farce is the proper time to roll in the dust as well as ascend to the clouds, and this show did both.”

Now the campus looked with new respect at the Class of ’64, and joined with the happy juniors in a very sincere utterance of “I’ll Be Damned!”
Fight, men of Pennypacker U.,
Push on ahead.
Fight on for our colors true,
The fuchsia and the red.
Fight hard for victory,
Push right on through;
Fight for Pennypacker University,
Fight on for old P.U.!
Here stands the Class of Sixty-Four,
Give us a cheer!
We have reached the top once more,
And crowned another year.
We've made a change or two
And friendships galore;
We're the class with pep and unity,
The Class of Sixty-Four!

Job
The 1963 football season was one that will long be remembered in the annals of Western Maryland College athletic history. The Green Terrors not only ran off with the Middle Atlantic (Southern Division) and Mason-Dixon Conference championships, but they also produced the Mason-Dixon’s Most Valuable Player in quarterback Torry Confer. Although the team compiled a respectable 6-1-1 record, Coach Bob Waldorf and his staff rarely found a moment for relaxation, and the anxiety of one close game after another produced a fervent need for those “old reliable tranquilizers.”

After being held to a 0-0 tie by usually impotent Bridge-water, it appeared that the Terrors might be in for a dismal season. But after a two-week layoff, things brightened up considerably as Penn Military was crushed 31-6. Western Maryland demonstrated that it had a potent scoring punch, and the starter and shock defensive units proved they were the best in the conference. Torry Confer returned to his old running form, and Rick White began to earn a reputation as one of the stronger fullbacks in the conference. Dennis Amico showed that the shock offense had something to offer, as he scored two touchdowns and mixed his plays well.

Returning to the Mason-Dixon Conference, the Green Terrors faced their toughest opponents in two Virginia foes, Randolph-Macon and Hampden-Sydney. Before a large Homecoming Day crowd, quarterback Confer scored 2 touchdowns to provide WMC with a 12-0 victory over Randolph-Macon.
Here once again the defensive units and their now-famous “goal-line stance” proved effective as stalwarts Renkwitz, Bowman, Stevens, Kulick, and Trainor proved more than equal to the cause. Pearson, Sunderland, and Giesey were also tough on the shock defense, and Harmeyer and Haines boomed long punts to keep Western Maryland out of trouble.

The most exciting game of the season was played at Hampden-Sydney, when Confer threw the winning TD pass to John Markovich on the last play of the game. The 15-12 victory gave WMC another M-D championship.

In the only non-conference game of the campaign, Western Maryland’s bid for an undefeated season was thwarted as Shepherd College eked out a 14-10 victory. Will Wrightson’s field goal had given the Terrors a 10-7 lead, but a last-minute touchdown by Shepherd produced the season’s only loss.

Returning to Hoffa Field, WMC stomped Lycoming 18-6 as fullback Rick White scored all three TD’s in performing before his parents on Parents’ Day. The game was highlighted by a 95-yard run by White on the last play of the game.
In the last two home games, both in the MAC, Dickinson fell by the score of 12-0 and Drexel was edged 7-6. The Drexel game, featuring strong running by Laurence and Shaw and key defensive efforts by Kidd and Bowman, was highlighted by a near-brawl and the hijacking of a Drexel “horn.” Due to a national tragedy, the final game with Johns Hopkins was never played, but the MAC coaches awarded Western Maryland the Middle Atlantic championship that it so much deserved.

The selection of Torry Confer and Tom Bowman to the All-Mason-Dixon first team, and honorable mention elections of Sterling Haines, John Trainor, Art Renkwitz, Rick White, and Ben Laurence shows that these boys were highly respected. It was a fitting tribute to the coaches and players who never gave up and always came through with a whole-hearted effort.

Wrestling

For the first time in the history of the school, our grapplers had a winning season, and they almost went all the way to a first place in the Mason-Dixon Conference and a tourney championship.

The season showed what enthusiasm and hard work can do. The boys who won matches for us are ones who developed from rather poor wrestlers to rather good ones over a three-year span. Coach Sam Case, in his first year at the job, used his knowledge of the boys to draw out their best. The large percentage of underclassmen on the team indicates that next year should be even more exciting.

Rifle Team

EXPOSE: That red light in back of Gill Gym is actually over the door of the basement rifle range, in which unimpressive but comfortable environment the rifle team practices some six months of the year.

Perhaps the most unpublicized sport in the athletic program, this varsity team has the distinction of carrying the largest number of events, the longest season, and the best consistent record. But lack of recognition is compensated for by the sense of individual pride and achievement each member experiences after firing his string—not to mention the rewarding “food and fellowship” after every away match (next year the team plans to have these sessions after home matches, as well).

The rifle team is composed of a seemingly incompatible group of characters who in no way resemble the supposed stalwart, immobile, and morally straight individuals capable of attaining consistently high scores. This year’s team captain was Jerry Baroch, who had the honor of shooting his way into the top five of every match fired this year. Another star was senior veteran Matt Creamer, who shined this season with a tie for the school record of 290. Junior Andy Harmantas shot his seasonal high of 286, despite a late start due to injuries; this early loss was made up by the fine sophomore shooter, Bob Creighton, this year’s ROTC team captain. An outstanding brace of new shooters also lent depth to the team.

Because of Sgt. Young’s transfer to Germany, the Terror riflemen were coached by Sgt. Wohl, aided by Sgt. Benko. These men proved the impetus and guidance necessary to keep schedules straight and shooting true for the season. With only two shooters graduating, the rifle team should continue its fine record and give the school another successful season next year.

Basketball
This year’s roundballers, one of the youngest teams the Hill has seen, acquitted themselves with more honor than was expected of them. Coach Jim Bragonier, subbing for Dick “Corky” Clower, laid the foundations of a fine future squad. Rich Eagen played good team ball in the latter part of the season and still managed to lead in points and rebounds. Sam Leishure turned into a steady offensive threat as well as a stellar defensive man; Country Shaw increased his hundred offensive and defensive moves by fifty per cent or so; Stan Makover injected a sure, calming hand into the backcourt; Ron Shirey looked smoother than he ever has; and freshman Buck Kelley gave promise of stepping into the shoes of WMC Great, Tom O’Malley.

A strong bench was one reason why our roundballers ran as well as they did this year. Jim Reck, Bill Kubat, Tony Magnotto, John Emens, and Bill Penn stepped in confidently and with success for the top men.

Nor can one forget the JV men. These players may be the heart of our future teams, for Wilson Beacht, Jack Bentham, David Carrasco, Roland Creitz, Gordon Diggory, Charles Nolon, and Leonard Owens pushed the “V” boys hard.

And a special place should be reserved for Ed Scheinfeldt, Fred Wooden, and Jack Harman, who assisted so ably as managers.

Together the entire team should grow steadily into another successful era of WMC basketball history.

Lettermen's Club

Born in 1962, the Lettermen's Club now claims thirty members and is supposedly recognized as an "honorary society" of campus athletes. Not everyone is aware, including some of the members themselves, that the purpose of the organization is the development and continuance of mutual understanding between the athletic program, the administration, and the rest of the campus. Of course the usual essentials of a varsity club are emphasized: good sportsmanship, service to the college, teamwork, and scholarship.

This year the club has functioned more actively. To create more student interest and enthusiasm in sports, the Lettermen showed films of the Green Terror football games, stepped up the publicity for intercollegiate athletics, sponsored a Spring Sports Carnival, and, perhaps most important, served as a center for debating the effects of intercollegiate athletics on the students. What do the students want? How do the athletes themselves view our sports program? Some proposals have been discussed that could expand the functions of the group: taking over the awards assemblies, improving regulation of awards for all sports, and officiating the intramural games.

Cheerleaders

Win, Western Maryland, roll up the score;
We're here to win again, just as we have before;
And we will march on to victory, never give in;
We will fight, fight, fight for dear old Western Maryland,
To win! win! win!
Pom Pom Team

Days before tryouts vocalized renditions of the “Washington Post March” reverberate through the girls’ dorms as candidates practice coordinating music, feet, and arms. After the selection of the new squad, practice sessions are less competitive but just as motivated. The kilted squad strives for military precision in maneuvering the rustling green and yellow bouquets of paper strips.
Majorettes

Fiery batons added a unique flashiness to the Western Maryland twirling team this year. Trying not to scorch the grass, the majorettes performed at halftime during football season, finding no need for the Westminster volunteer firemen. They took their usual position as van-guards of the parades at Homecoming and May Day and sparked enthusiasm at the pep rallies in Gill Gym.
The girls' sports program began in typical fashion this year as freshman women came in large numbers to fill the ranks of two or three intramural teams.

Field hockey was especially good this year. Following the International Hockey Games at Goucher, our hockey enthusiasts here supported first a clinic and then a very successful extramural season. Managed and coached by Sherry Fischer, the team had a 5-2 record.

Basketball was again the most popular sport, but was highlighted by the coaching of the new physical education instructor, Miss Joan Weyers. Pam Bobbett, basketball manager, led the predominantly junior team to an excellent season.

The junior class seemed to dominate the sports scene. First Sandy Roeder won the fall tennis tournament, and then the Junior A intramural teams, in a double repeat performance, won the first place title in both field hockey and basketball.
Intramural Sports

This year's intramurals started out with flying elbows, knees, feet, bodies, and occasionally a football, as the Bachelor eight broke a long-standing domination of the championship by the Preachers and went on to win the title. Paced by Jim “Country” Shaw and George “Schvog” Fulton at ends, and the strong throwing arm of Sam Leish-ure, the Blue and White rolled over most of the competition.

The Gamma Betes, led by quarterback Ron Hibbard and end Bruce “The Knee” Falkner, placed second in the standings for the cup. The Preachers, with Bruce “Fetch” Read and “Eirch” Wagner, held down the third spot in what was obviously a rebuilding season. Ed Welch and his Black and Whites placed fourth for the cup behind a strong Freshman team, starring “Cokie” Sothron and Charlie Seabron.

Again when it came to round ball, it was a greatly superior Bachelor team that took the cookies. Led by Bob Hollywood, “Cat” (temper, temper) Reger, Jerry Morse, and several other boys of Varsity calibre, they raced by everyone in the league. Gamma Beta Chi placed second for the cup, due to the performance of Bruce Falkner, Long John Law, and Slammin’ Ralph Smith. Bruce Read, Frank Kidd, and Wilford (No, Will) Wrightson clinched the third spot for Delta Pi Alpha; and Ed Welch poured in many for the Black and Whites.

The main attraction of the wrestling intramurals was the Heavyweight bracket, where Hans Himler, Frank Kidd, and Stan “Chipmunk” Sunderland shook the gym with many a grunt and groan. The Chipmunk “won,” defeating “Dirty” Frank by a fall. Delta Pi Alpha placed first, the Freshmen second.

Bowling

A new way for WMC’s men and women to waste their time was added to the intramural program this year—bowling! Everly Friday the school’s best (and worst) ball-chuckers hit Westminster Lanes to try their fortunes on the ten pins. The tempo of the league was set when the Phi Alph team, led by Marilyn ("WOW!") Van Scoter, beat the Preachers.

Week after week our stout seekers of leisurely indoor athletic excellence rolled that big black ball at those ten exasperating pins, suavely sipping cokes, enjoying cigarettes, and (covertly) “watching the scenery.” After it was all over, the boys proved their ability to cope with distraction and take the top spots in the league. The Bachelors hit the jackpot with a first place, followed by an outstanding Freshman team.

All in all: the gleeful reaction of everyone concerned was—We Want More!
The world is full of willing people; some willing to work and the rest willing to let them.

Robert Frost
Operation Philippines

The job seemed an immense one when first proposed to the campus by the Student Opportunities Service early in 1963, but enthusiasm soon animated nearly the whole student body toward acting for a cause—something a visiting lecturer had challenged college students to do. The task: to collect five-thousand books and five-thousand dollars to set up a library in a book-starved area of the world. After much research, the organization selected a small town in the Philippine Islands.

The return from spring vacation brought cartons of books from home bookshelves, dusty attics, and damp basements: reference works, novels, children’s classics, scientific journals. Some old, many new, books poured in and were stored temporarily in the bound-periodical room of the college library and in a garage on the farm of Dr. Earl Griswold, faculty advisor to the project.

The next several weeks found over forty students busily selecting books for a versatile, basic library, and classifying, cataloguing, cleaning, and packing their choices. Two days before graduation they sighed in happy relief as the last book was crated.
Meanwhile a speaking team was set up to handle the pecuniary side of the problem. Students addressed churches and service clubs in the Hanover, Baltimore, and Washington areas to tell of the project's unique challenge and to seek the necessary funds. The members of the team nervously donned their best clothes and whetted their personal enthusiasm to the high pitch necessary to impress the Rotarians, Lions, and Kiwanians of the significance of the project. They usually returned home having received reward of a good steak dinner as well as the essential pledges of money and books.

Dr. Griswold was always at hand with ideas, encouragement, and concrete help. He procured transportation for the "library" to the Philippines, where an annex to a municipal building, built and furnished by the U. S. Navy, had been designated for the books by the town of San Narciso in Zambales Province. Seven SOS workers were rewarded for their hours of effort by being chosen to go to the Philippines—for more hours of hard work.

The arrival of the crew was reason enough for huge celebrations by the people of the village. The students were greeted with banners, banquets, and town string bands and were treated like State Department emissaries by the local officials.
When it came time to get down to the task at hand, the crew found many willing assistants as the Filipinos eagerly volunteered to help unpack and carry books. They expressed great surprise at seeing our five hearty girls joining their two male counterparts in lifting, carting, perspiring—and still smiling. A spirit of real comradeship developed between hosts and guests—maybe Americans weren't all the “Ugly” type!

Returning to campus in the Fall, the seven presented several programs to show their colored slides, relate anecdotes, and introduce their distant new friends. The whole student body shared with them the elation of the completion of a successful mission, the first project of its kind to be consummated with such pride, devotion, and industry on the part of any campus organization.

With this assignment now a part of its history as a service unit on campus, the SOS is working on plans for its second project. Keen interest in “providing opportunities for students to be of service throughout the world” will continue to be the underlying spirit of the Student Opportunities Service.
It is well to give when asked,

but it is better to give unasked, through understanding.

College Players

From the first experience ("You are a puddle of water") to the culmination of dramatic excellence ("You are the village idiot") in a few short years... Moments and plays never to be forgotten... The fabulous Tribby sets... "Hold up your heads—I can't see faces"... From Chinese morality to contemporary mystery... Steve and Nelson, the Hardy Boys of the WMC stage... "Honey, I just know you've got your character"... Extended rehearsals and the suspenseful Mousetrap... Old-age make-up... Collateral readings... On-stage criticism... Another round of Junior Plays... What will the Commencement Play be?... Scene shop meets in the afternoon... Sloping stage and running entrances, narrow wings and running exits... Problems with lighting... A new curtain?
Senior members of the College Players presented over six plays in experimental settings ... in the Chapel with A Sleep of Prisoners ... The avant-garde in McDaniel Lounge Zoo Story and The Maids ... Three full years of practicing “Ho-ho’s” ... Charles Laughton’s stool ... “Use a black pencil!” ... “The following are assigned to the prop committee—” ... “It’s the senior exam: we know who we are, but we don’t know who the other person is. Then we meet and make up this story—” ... Graduate school? ... Twelve-foot flats and loose bolts ... “That wig has got to go!” ... The incomparable Miss Smith ... The eternal worries: “We’ll never make a play out of it in just one week!” ... And yet we always do.
The applause, delight,
the wonder of our stage!

College Choir

"Hallelujah! Hallelujah! Hallelujah!"

The congregation standing in respectful tribute to Handel's "Messiah" as the College Choir concludes the Christmas Service . . . Another magnificent performance is brought to an end . . .

Sixty joyful hearts . . . Sixty clear young voices blending together in inspired harmony under the magical direction of Prof. deLong . . . Sixty voices raised in praise of the Lord.

This is the Choir.

Nervous freshmen waiting for tryouts . . . Fitting robes . . . Haphazard sight-reading—at times you’d think Handel was spastic—gives way to more serious rehearsals . . . Sunday evening anthem rehearsals (who’d believe they only practice each one twice?) . . . Gilbert and Sullivan . . . Graduation and seniors’ last performance . . . Turn in your robes.

This too is the Choir.
Only the flint of a man's mind can strike fire in music.

Freshmen Advisory Council

We returned in the fall of '63 feeling quite certain that the incoming freshmen could, under our expert guidance, make a set of mistakes entirely different from any ever made by any other class. We initiated them into both the legal and the illegal aspects of college life; we presented them with a legacy of helpful hints, dodges, and sneaky tactics which we had found successful; and we introduced them to the local resources for off-campus “relaxation.”

After one week of intensive training, we gave them up to the mercy of the faculty, where they would remain (hopefully) for the duration of four years. From here on they must play it by ear.

We wish the best to the Class of '67 and hope that they will treasure and someday transmit to other unspoiled undergraduates this precious body of unwritten and written law which we have bestowed upon them.
Artists
Anonymous

A sophisticated poster club, the A.A. has sought to incorporate any talented and clever artists into a unit. President Mara Dilson and the other four active members in the organization accept commissions to provide colorful, imaginative advertising to remind the usual handful of interested students of a panel discussion or to announce to the socially conscious the next open fraternity party. Having weathered some mid-year financial difficulties—like being unable to buy pencils because of customers with questionable credit ratings—the little group is still the only creative agency willing to sacrifice so much time for so little remuneration.
Every two weeks sixty-eight of us gather in an old room to decide who will take charge of gathering the blood. Twice a year we gather at conventions to compare projects. Most of us spend our time laboring in smelly rooms—truth must be learned, knowledge passed on. Speakers from outside bring us news of newer techniques and new discoveries. We have been known to draw blood from over 200 fellow students, and to dine on insect delicacies of chocolate ants and fried caterpillars. Twice a year we select an interested group to join us in our intrigue.

Beta Beta Beta in reality came to Western Maryland in 1932. It is a biological honor society, headed this year by John Kressler and Helen Terry, as president and vice-president respectively. Meetings this year were devoted to a walking blood bank project for the Carroll County Hospital, talks by several well-known scientists, movies, initiations, and an annual picnic.

Sponsor Dr. Jean Kerschner is also the regional director for fifteen colleges, and Dr. Harwell Sturdivant is the national president of the organization.

Beta Beta Beta has a three-fold program: stimulation of sound scholarship, dissemination of scientific knowledge, and promotion of biological research.
Aloha

There's no book so bad that something good may not be found in it.

Cervantes

As with several of the other campus organizations, we decided to discard the traditional formal pictures of the ALOHA staff in favor of several candid photos of the group at work. When the deadline arrived, however, we discovered that among the 3,762 pictures we've handled, all we have of ourselves besides this innocent-looking picture of a not-so-innocent business staff are two pictures of the editor standing on the desk, one of the photographer in the waste can, and one of the staff spurring the economy of Westminster by visiting one of its more popular establishments. (Actually it's just as well we’re not pictured: now all the other organizations we treated informally can’t complain.

It is also a mistake to dignify our little group by calling it an “Organization.” It was the night before the final deadline (after three postponements) and we still weren’t organized. But we don’t fit under the other categories, either, except maybe “Sports,” if you want to count the tangerine battles we had in the office.

This has been a year of ALOHA firsts (or perhaps ALOHA lasts). It is the first ALOHA to be printed on offset, the first to tell the truth about Western Maryland, the first to use metal in the cover, and the first to have two supplements (which you'll have to glue in yourself). It is the first ALOHA staff to work all night (three times), the first to finish with a surplus of five hundred dollars, and the first to surpass the SGA as the most spastic organization on campus. We are also the first to entirely ignore consistency in punctuation.

The glory of our success (?) must go to Bill Penn, who, as business manager, conjured up money like Midas. Ably assisted by Jane Allgire, Bill Chase, Pebble Willis, Streett Broadbent, Barry Lazarus, Carole Richardson, A. Weller, Barb Owens, Dennis Quinby, and Marilyn Van Scoter (a staff of people who took deadlines with frightening seriousness), Bill ran business meetings according to parliamentary procedure. (The editorial staff was not run at all; it just sort of functioned).

Credit for meeting deadlines at all must go to Clair Pond, who, with Judy Firestone, relieved the editor of such minor tasks as organization and such major tasks as prodding.

Credit for compiling anything with which to meet said deadlines must go to photographer Dave Robson, who took, cropped, and laid-out ninety-eight per cent of the pictures in the book (assisted by a retinue consisting of layout editor Shirley Stauffer and her staff of Carol Davis, Diane Simpson, a few dozen others, and The Family of Man).

Sue “make it creative” Gordon had the thankless job of scrounging up copy to fill in around the pictures, and Marilyn Van Scoter and Betty Roeder did the dirty work of typing and proofreading. Editor Dottie Beck typed copy, posted slogans on the office wall, arranged the furniture, licked stamps, and refereed the tangerine battles.

So here it is, the 1964 ALOHA, the result of seven months of labor, love, and laughter. We hope we've gotten your picture in it somewhere—any mistakes will be corrected in the next edition.
Student Government Association
If we cannot secure all our rights, let us secure what we can.

Jefferson

That instrumental, monumental, sentimental, accidental organization known as the Student Government Association has continued its function on campus and expanded itself into new areas of endeavor and responsibility: centralization, reorganization, redecoration, and abbreviation. Members of the Senate maintained the humor needed to cope with business meetings, which were usually adjourned ASAP (As Soon As Possible), and particular interest was spurred early in the year by the overwhelming response to reject a bid for Greek-letter voting.

The SGA found itself stepping on all sorts of toes both on campus and off while trying to do an effective job of coordinating school and town relations; but it also managed to accomplish some aspects of public service—opening its door to others than the esoteric group of campus "leaders."

Menus, curtains, a folk singer "next Monday," plans for spring and winter carnivals ("We will open this meeting with a prayer for snow"), The Railing, and better faculty-student communications were some of the worthwhile efforts of this year's group. Perhaps the era of SGA thumbtacks is finally coming to its end.

Student Campus Relations Committee

The Student Campus Relations Committee, a small group of well-adjusted underclassmen, serves to disseminate favorable propaganda to potential recruits in Maryland and surrounding states and to explain to the curious that Western Maryland is not a teachers' college, girls' school, or branch of the University of Maryland.

French Club

Cette année le Cercle Français a fait des progrès sur "la Colline" en recrutant de nouveaux membres qui sont venus en grand nombre à quelques programmes.
Le Cercle a profité de l'importante contribution apportée par le talent de Monsieur et Madame Derasse. Présidé par Mary Ellen Hemmerly, le Cercle a présenté des chansons folkloriques Française, un programme de Noël et quelques diapositives et films Français, and even a spicy cartoon!
International Relations Club

Trouble spots erupt around the world! Viet Nam, Berlin, Panama—and Western Maryland’s International Relations Club was right in there focusing its attention and armchair solutions on the crises. Members of the Department of State, including representatives from the Bureaus of Southeast Asian Affairs, Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs, and European Affairs, spoke about these current newsmaking areas. Other speakers this year included Raphael Mayamona, our Congolese student, and Dr. M. H. Gopal, of the economics department.

Student National Education Association

As initiates into the sacred art of instruction, we learn our profession before we become professionals. The Student National Education Association, by means of skits showing the trials and tribulations of practice teaching and lectures by guest speakers, shows us that teaching is more than methods, materials, and controversial issues. We are imbued with a code of ethics and with the picture of ourselves as part of a national force. But more important, we discover that “He who teaches, learns.”
Campus history claims that Western Maryland has one of the oldest and finest ROTC units on the East Coast. And the fact that every year cadets from WMC take top honors in summer camp and go on to successful Army careers supports this boast. Even those who take only the two required years are bound to be the better for the experience, even if they only learn to get regular haircuts and shine their shoes occasionally. The advanced cadet receives invaluable leadership training, helpful, regardless of career choice, and, of course, that wonderful and long-awaited $27.90 a month.

Pacifist or gung-ho Prussian, whether you like ROTC or hate it, it’s pretty hard to be indifferent to it, and it’s almost guaranteed that you will remember it.

Who could forget an M-1 thumb? And how many of us can claim we’ve never had one? How can you erase the memory of a 35-pound overcoat, or of standing at attention, sweaty and with knees knocking, waiting for the first (or second, or third) big inspection?

How many hours have been spent spit-shining shoes and boots, or polishing brass? And how many times have hundreds of green-clad warriors trudged through mud and snow to drill, dodging the verbal slings and arrows of outrageous pre-meds and other conscientious objectors?
I don’t know what effect these men will have on the enemy, but, by God, they frighten me!

Duke of Wellington

How many hours’ worth of gigs have been worked off by the simple expedient of getting “Ski” a cup of coffee or a pack of cigarettes? How many times has the weapons board been signed (with or without cleaning the weapon)?

Freshmen will remember trying to put all the parts back together again, flag detail, the Colonel’s immense pipe, and the nervous anticipation of the first drill. Sophomores recall that bitter-cold map problem and how they got lost three times. Juniors could never forget what seemed like fifteen classes a week, the officers who filled the man-sized shoes of “The World’s Greatest Machine-Gunner,” and over-sized fatigues. Seniors remember the mock court martial and the grind of summer camp; the attitude checks and the relief of being done with it.

As for the young ladies and the non-participants, they will just remember the boys in green every Tuesday, and maybe the Military Ball.

But we all remember that ROTC was here.

Argonauts

Analogous to the quest of Jason and the Argonauts for the Golden Fleece, the academic honor society on campus continues its quest for truth through pursuit of knowledge. Many of the Argonauts dedicate themselves solely to their studies, while others display the versatility of participating in extracurricular activities as well, but all of them excel academically.

Interested not only in personal excellence but also in overall high standards, the Argonauts sponsored the sorority and fraternity scholastic cup in an attempt to provide incentive for study on a social campus. During the SGA Snow Carnival, they constructed the erudite owl who gazed out of black spectacles upon passing academic dissenters in solemn reprimand.

Second semester the group honors new eligibles with the Argonaut tea, the social highlight for the campus intelligentsia. Faculty and students mingle as colleagues, and brownies are always served. Receiving an invitation to the tea is almost as exciting as receiving a treasured sorority or fraternity bid. The members also treat themselves to an annual banquet, where the Monday morning assembly speaker is invited to give a stimulating talk of high-brow pertinence.

Anchors aweigh!
Phi Alpha Mu

Phi Alpha Mu, we are dreaming . . . Purple cows, purple moo juice, purple cow-bells, purple Hell Week . . . Back into childhood with Peter Pan, Mother Goose, wooden soldiers out of step, Snow White and Cinderella, even Eloise . . . “Castle painted purple, castle painted white” (Does anyone know what casipated means?) . . . Diversified with some campus leaders, always the loud-mouths, a few best-dressed, the outrageous, naughty, nice, serious, smiling, crying, brains, brawn, beauty . . . Misty-eyed elegants at our first fall formal . . . Beer and pretzels mingled with Red and Blue brothers whose loyalty overwhelms us . . . “NE-E-E-T!” . . . Working on floats, selling sandwiches (“Are you sure you wouldn’t like a ham and cheese sandwich?”), posing for the composite, putting out the Torch, trips to Springfield, fines for not cleaning the clubroom . . . Enthusiasm and new pledges, the hard-core juniors, nostalgia and seniors . . . Helen’s heart of gold . . . “Going for six dollars, do I hear six-fifty? Six-fifty, do I hear seven dollars? Seven dollars. Going once, going twice, sold—One Phi Alph for seven dollars!” . . . “Does anyone have a purple sweater? I’m going up to fourth floor” . . . Diamond rings and chocolates for the meeting . . . A sorority sister is someone who’s bound to you by an intangible tie, as strong as a smile after an argument, which there often is, and as meaningful as the tears at parting, which there often are.
Silver pins and scarlet bows, candlelight and hushed alumnae, chocolate milkshakes and smashed eggs... Shoes piled outside door... No kidnap this year... Gray walls, red couches: clubroom transformed with wall-to-wall carpeting. “Hope Joanie likes it”... Peppy scarlet, modest silver... “Where will we get enough money?”... “No, CARE gets all the calendar collection... Dirty gray sneakers and red perspired faces—Radar’s workouts brought fatigue but primary groupness... Silver cups and red dresses... Perfumed pipe cleaners and red cake... Silver bell and red ribbons, red tinsel and silver tree; eleven children—sign up for one... Where are the old ukes and tissue strip skirts?... Silvery flash of Pat’s camera... Hearty red glow outside the window... Popcorn and pinwheels, lionsuit and leotards, ringmaster and Rabbit Frump... “What will you do with that gold brick?”... Linked arms and a silver tear, red throats singing while cleaning up... “Doesn’t anyone have a car?”... “Steak or fried chicken?”... “Don’t forget the candles”... “And to Dilman I leave...”

Silver: modestly carefree, femininely unsophisticated, scintillating and outspoken, some shy, some forward, prudish or prudent, individuals pledged together.

Scarlet: spirited, spiritual, electrically enthusiastic, success after college, too—Peace Corps alumnae, blushes and engagement candy, courtly junior beauties.

“... the love for the one thing from which we ne’er shall part...”

Yup, that’s us!
Fools rush in.

Pope
Alpha Gamma Tau

The hairy Purple and Gold SMOK-bird flew forth with its usual vigor this year, as Delta Pi Alpha soared higher and higher to the strains of “My God, how the money rolls in.”

Under the sterling leadership of loose Bruce Read, the hardy knights infiltrated almost every phase of campus life. Bruce “ROTC” Knowles took up boxing (on the football field), cherubic Bo shot his arrows and even joined the Argonauts, Rick White ran touchdowns, and Dave Blizzard prayed for deliverance from fleshly lusts while burning the Delta's chair. The other brothers carried on their nefarious activities, too numerous to mention, with the gusto of a whole pack of hound dogs.

Many ears turned pink when the ugliest pledge class in Preacher history serenaded the young ladies with such dandy ditties as “Puff, the Faggot Dragon.”

The noble traditions of the frat were upheld in style. Pubic Pete became crash number three on a midnight ramble to New York in roomie’s car, and “Nose” Amico won the Lover of the Year award. The Preacher parties were greater than Nero’s orgies. The dining hall five played (?), “Dirty Dave” Eaton sang, and brothers did the bird, the dog, the monkey, and the whole menagerie until the cops came.

While Fuhrmann counted more than four million maggots on campus, the brothers changed forever the Western Maryland concept of a social event with the Christmas Dance at the “Hideaway Ski Lodge.” A good time was had by all, but when the HouseRockers showed up, even Dean Howery started to swing, proving that nothing will ever dampen the spirits of the passionate Preachers!
Gamma Beta Chi

... Pledges and parties and Phi Alphs and paddles and beer and joining the “Fans of the Tube”... Banjos, guitars, pianos, basses, and drums... Ping-pong and stalking and the Turkey Snap and Harold’s Club...

And a big blue and red ball... Not insights, but outside appearances, yet part of Gamma Beta Chi.

“Banquet and Parties” and “The Cherry Family”...

Pebble’s Pot Bellies... Denny the Pin... Matt’s Rolling Package Store... Bill Penn, also of Follies fame... Bullet Bob’s reports... Don Nelson, our favorite actor... Streett of the Sigma crowd... Schelzel and “It’s the greatest”... Jerry Walls, the Gamma Bete’s answer to 4-H... Smilin’ Howard Mooney... “Buster” Klander, our esoteric Bunny... Stu the Sexy... Ted the Ubiquitous... A shouted “Good Luck!”, a remembered sad farewell to our seniors from the brothers of Gamma Beta Chi.

Brotherhood that means mutual support, admiration, a listening ear, advice, knowledge of self seen in the reflection of an undistorted mirror... Insights into the heart of Gamma Beta Chi.

“Coolness?”... That may lie in the eye of beholders.

“Sophistication?”... Define that term—it may well apply.

Members of Gamma Beta Chi individually members of the campus... Gamma Beta Chi a larger member of the campus... “Brothers, how are we met here?”...

As Brothers.

There is a germ of greatness in this microcosm... a germ to develop in the womb of futurity.

Once upon a time, in the land of high schools, we were superior seniors—at least nine feet tall. We travelled to the far-off village of WMC, only to be “shot down” to dwarf size by the inhabitants of this strange place, the “spastic sophomores.” This extraordinary breed introduced us to a quaint custom of turning freshman into rats at the touch of a magic upperclassman.

The ruling elders, referred to as professors, taught us a new game called “Freshman Colloquium.” The only rule was to THINK, and, strange as it may seem, we quickly learned that this rule applied to everything in this new land.

“Daring dragons” called upperclassmen snatched up our fairy princesses at every mixer. In order to protect ourselves from these fierce monsters, our courageous warriors challenged them to a test of physical strength and bravely won. We picked leaders under whose careful guidance we displayed the valor and determination which discouraged future aggression.

Since we were more than visitors, we shared our ancient culture with WMC. The imagination and originality initially revealed during Homecoming decorating earned for us the right to become members of this select society. They soon disclosed age-old legends and traditions in which we were allowed to take part. Of course, we would rather have been kept in the dark about the legend known as “Ye Old Bio Tests!” Learning the language was somewhat easier, however, for it was based on a single word, “Hi!”

As we’ve gradually come to know this fairy tale land, it has become real to us as a means of achieving our dreams and living happily ever after.
Two years, now, completed . . . Two years yet remaining . . . We are the Class of 1966.

No cool, suave, sophisticated class—we pray not that . . . rather, a warm, friendly tightly-bound class—that we pray, that we are.

Through pledging, Hell Week, mixers, exams, vacations, convocations, the big chapel Sunday evenings, some Thursday evenings the little chapel . . . Together. Some in band, some in orchestra, more in choir; working in student government, student committees, working for Western Maryland and the sophomore class . . . Together and spread out, our influence felt, yet together as one class, each one of us a part of the class, the class a part of each one of us . . .

Two years, now, completed . . . two years of mutual respect, appreciation, consideration . . . two years of work, two years of fears of failing, joys of success, achieving . . . two years of mutual support . . . two years of taking stock and changing majors, two years of wonders and of wondering . . . two years now and forever past.

Two years yet remaining! What promise hold those years! What new heights, new aspirations, new ideas! Yet, these also will all too quickly pass . . . But ere they do, our mark will be felt.

Two years, now, completed . . . Two years yet remaining.

We are the Class of 1966.

Disorganized, disinterested, disentangled ... We always manage to get things done, barely ... A group of individuals whose personalities blend together as musically as a wrong note ... Some like it hot ... “I nominate Barb Petschke for president” ... Led (on) by the girls ... Due to tremendous latent brain power and cleverness, will always pull through at the last minute, to the amazement of themselves and everyone else ... Bunny’s beauty and Bo’s biting tongue ... “Has anyone seen the junior float?” ... Always offers a consolation prize to SGA losers ... Brash, loud, fun-lovers who started the twist in the Grille and had two class presidents flunk out ... Known for opinions, big time Charlies, and many Argonauts, in that order ... Striking, rebellious, daring, and don’t give a damn ... Some study, many don’t, most luck out ... Absolutely COOL in that we could care ... Most of our “firsts” were frowned upon and resigned to ... Remember Snyder? ... A class of high school leaders who have never really had their ego knocked down a peg, which is why they always vote for themselves and every election is won by plurality only ... Our virtues do not include Christian meekness, sugar sweetness, or toleration for the weakness of others, which fact is probably our greatest forte ... In the long run, we will make our mark ... you’ll see.

V.I.P.'s
It is good to rub and polish your mind against the minds of others.

Montaigne
The President
While the students and faculty of Western Maryland are busily creating their own concentric circles and then frantically running around them, another individual is no less assiduous in his work in and for the college. Dr. Lowell S. Ensor is probably the man with the most diversified set of projects and problems of anyone here.

Unlike the rest of us, who are able to follow something resembling a routine, Dr. Ensor is steeped in a mass of various activities. The glimpses of him as a chapel speaker or as “the man with the last word” tend to distort the picture of the president as the representative of our school and as a sensitive individual.

The man who knows almost all the students by name begins his workday in the early morning silence of a carpeted office where he looks over his correspondence ... letters from industrial firms donating funds to supplement students’ share of tuition, from the Carrol County National Bank, of which he is a director, or from members of his committee on the problems of annexation in Westminster ... a telephone call to Mr. Baggs about the expansion program ... another call to Washington ... messages and appointments delivered by Miss Ohler ... a trip to Annapolis to testify in a hearing scheduled for three and begun by five-fifteen. On the way home there may be a speaking engagement or an oyster roast. Back on campus the faculty club meeting is a final obligation for a hectic day.

That is the official Dr. Ensor.
As a good-humored, affable man, Dr. Ensor doesn't lose interest in the students, but frankly regrets that his contact with them is so limited and that he has so little opportunity to visit and joke and enjoy the youthful company around him.

Realizing that complaints accompany students and that complaining is a privilege of the students, Dr. Ensor recalls with ease and a hearty laugh his days as a student, with gripes, grumbling, and campaigns about such things as dining hall management.

Although he has been here since 1947, Dr. Ensor sees little change in the student body as a whole—shorter skirts, different slang, but basically the same in that students are here to do a job and are, for the most part, accepting their portion of the responsibility.

Spring has that special appeal to Dr. Ensor as well as to the other winter-weary members of the college community. He looks forward each year to the Rose Cup Ceremony and Trumpeter Tapping on his lawn, and finds time for a round of golf or puttering in the rose garden, or for a few minutes of contemplation on the Hill at sunset.

Four years ago 175 comparative strangers were gathered together on the Hill with the common purpose of spending four years getting an education and, incidentally, to function as a “Class.” At that time senior year seemed light-years away, and it was great fun to incredulously imagine “someone in our class as Student Government president, or Homecoming Queen, or Gold Bug editor!”

It seemed hardly less incredible to the upperclassmen. In our first week on campus we were tagged, at best, as “different,” and, more generally, simply “bad news.” The smallest and most studious class in recent years, no more out-of-it group could be imagined. In sharp contrast to the ultra-social Class of ’63, we had to be continually prodded by administration and upperclassmen to join organizations and attend social functions.

But slowly and inconspicuously the underdog character of ’64 began to forge a unity as the classmates worked together. Somewhere in the middle of the junior year the class’s latent leadership appeared and the group awoke to the challenge to make a definite contribution to the campus. Beginning a few new traditions and adding a professional touch to old ones, ’64 gave an Italian flavor to the junior-senior banquet, revolutionized the Follies, prepared to send five members out of the country on the campus’s first overseas project, worked with the faculty on evaluating the college, and plotted to overhaul the Student Government Association and the yearbook.

Suddenly the Class of ’64 had a new image. The term “different” was still applied to it, but now it meant an original way of getting things done—it meant making positive changes.

Four years, one Follies, eight floats, and countless mixers from that ignominious orientation week, it does seem more natural, if still incredible, for those of us who are left to be seniors at last. The 175 strangers are now 124 friends—a unity—a Class.

In Memoriam

President John Fitzgerald Kennedy
1917-1963
MY Fellow CItizens:

We observe today not a victory of party but a celebration of freedom—symbolizing an end as well as a beginning—signifying renewal as well as change. For I have sworn before you and Almighty God the same solemn oath our forebears prescribed nearly a century and three-quarters ago.

The world is very different now. For man holds in his mortal hands the power to abolish all form of human poverty and all form of human life. And yet the same revolutionary beliefs for which our forebears fought are still at issue around the globe—the belief that the rights of man come not from the generosity of the state but from the hand of God.

We dare not forget today that we are the heirs of that first revolution. Let the word go forth from this time and place, to friend and foe alike, that the torch has been passed to a new generation of Americans—born in this century, tempered by war, disciplined by a hard and bitter peace, proud of our ancient heritage—and unwilling to witness or permit the slow undoing of those human rights to which this nation has always been committed, and to which we are committed today—at home and around the world.

Let every nation know... that we shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support friend, oppose any foe to assure the survival and success of liberty.

... Let us begin anew—remembering on both sides that civility is not a sign of weakness, and sincerity is always subject to proof. Let us never negotiate out of fear. But let us never fear to negotiate.

Let both sides explore what problems unite us instead of belaboring those problems which divide us.

Let both sides... formulate serious and precise proposals for the inspection and control of arms—and bring the absolute power to destroy other nations under the absolute control of all nations.

Let both sides seek to invoke the wonders of science instead of its terrors...

And if a beachhead of cooperation may push back the jungles of suspicion, let both sides join in the next task: creating, not a new balance of power, but a new world of law, where the strong are just and the weak secure and the peace preserved.

All this will not be finished in the first one hundred days. Nor will it be finished in the first one thousand days, nor in the life of this Administration, nor even perhaps in our lifetime on this planet. But let us begin.

In your hands, my fellow citizens, more than mine, will rest the final success or failure of our course. Since this country was founded, each generation of Americans has been summoned to give testimony to its national loyalty. The graves of young Americans who answered the call to service surround the globe.

Now the trumpet summons us again—not as a call to bear arms, though arms we need—not as a call to battle, though embattled we are—but a call to bear the burden of a long twilight struggle, year in and year out, "rejoicing in hope, patient in tribulation"—a struggle against the common enemies of man: tyranny, poverty, disease, and war itself...

In the long history of the world, only a few generations have been granted the role of defending freedom in its hour of maximum danger. I do not shrink from this responsibility—I welcome it. I do not believe that any of us would exchange place with any other people or any other generation. The energy, the faith, the devotion which we bring to this endeavor will light our country and all who serve it—and the glow from that fire can truly light the world.

And so, my fellow Americans: Ask not what your country can do for you—ask what you can do for your country.

... With a good conscience our only sure reward, with history the final judge of our deeds, let us go forth to lead the land we love, asking His blessing and His help, but knowing that here on earth God's work must truly be our own.
