Through this portal . . .
The perennial greeting—“Hi”,
Almost painless.
Endless lines, not so painless . . .
Back on the Hill—
The season opens, new Greeks,
All night discussions, non-academic pursuits;
The echo of summer remains . . .
The daily academic quest—
We approach truth,
Forsake it,
Then approach it again.
If only we had more time . . .
Burrowing into the fact-world of our books;
Skimming for information;
Fighting the nameless interruptions
That thwart our studies . . .
Pressure from within, without,
Cracks the veneer of our assurance.
Solitary reflections beyond the self . . .
Wild, loud nights
We spend escaping ourselves.
Dreams scattered in the profusion
Of paper cups;
Where has privacy gone?
Gone to those somber moments...
Seeking a multitude of escapes
With only fleeting contentness;
We reach out to books, to...
Friends . . .
Returning to those surrounding us,
We seek our friends—
They listen . . .
They accept,
They just are.
The secret of large numbers—
We go to see, to be seen.
Mirrored in the image of the crowd,
Hoping that some shred of our identity
Will evolve
Socially acceptable.
Beneath the outward conformity—
Wheat-jeans and frat jackets,
Madras and weejuns,

Remains the private world
Behind our eyes . . .
A private world to share with one—
Then are the alive feelings
Of lengthy phone calls,
Of walks past the tennis courts,
Of mirroring oneself in another.
Sometime
During our four year moratorium—
Foolishness mixed
   With serious study,
Unanimity
   With individuality,
Comes unconscious preparation
To meet the "outside world."
The first boundary
Was Westminster,
With its VO and Bud,
“Haunts” and “retreats . . . .”
The last hundred days—
Amid job interviews, weddings;
Never spoken
But now aware
Of well-worn paths
Soon to diverge . . .
In church we talk of love, and fellowship and brotherhood; and then go out... Oh God, forgive me. This world in which I live is what I make it, and others like me, all the world around.

—“Silver as Sterling”
Something to take home, not to be forgotten after exams, or neglected after committee meetings. Something to take with us—purpose. The man to whom we dedicate our yearbook has, himself, shown us a dedication and purpose—the man in the baseball cap and clerical collar—a man involved.

A MAN Involved—in me, you, the world, God.

Being just as at home on the football field, or on the Student Life Council, or writing for the Gold Bug as in the pulpit.

Whose door is open to everyone, anytime.

Innovating—art on chapel programs, realistic confessionals, even a taste of jazz.

Who went to Mississippi and saw, and went to Selma to act for what he believes—that all men are brothers.

Rising above the Hugh Heffners who are content to skim the surface of life.

Having insight to find in Madelyn Murray a vital, positive force.

Who asks us to think.

Who knows the growing experience of honest doubt, making us ponder our existential existence, and then to go beyond the despair of it all.

Asking of us the most difficult task of all—self-acceptance.

Teaching us the meaning of humility.

Whose presence has made a difference to us and in us.

With enthusiasm and respect, the Class of '65 dedicates the 1965 Aloha to a man, one in a minority, who has the courage of his convictions—Dean Ira C. Zepp.
James D. Witherspoon, B.S., M.S., Ph.D
Recipient, Distinguished Teaching Award, 1963-1964.
Those having torches will pass them on to others.

ADMINISTRATION and FACULTY
While the freshmen laboriously attack the realm of biology and the seniors trudge on toward Graduation, one individual on the Hill is contemplating problems of a greater magnitude—those of the President of a college. Yet, amid all his projects and problems, Dr. Lowell Ensor manages to attain a rapport with his students and faculty.

He is involved. In the quiet confines of a wood-paneled office, the daily correspondence is reviewed... a quick consultation with architects to examine plans for the new Lewis Hall... last minute details for a trip to Japan to preach... a personal letter dictated to an active alumna who has a friend who has a son... a capable and admirable defendant for our case in court... messages, appointments, meetings, speaking engagements. He is involved in all the formal duties of a college President.

The big white Colonial house becomes a home for eight freshman women... lower button for Ensor, top button for third floor... an afternoon to review the ROTC... a reception for seniors, and faculty in the spacious new addition... a Trumpeter tapping on the lawn... no lawn, just mounds of dirt and a big hole... a cup of sugar for the cake of a neighboring McDaniel House resident... loud, enthusiastic cheering for home games... a round of golf... sharing his basis for a belief in God with those who will doubt... contemplation of a sunset in the shadow of the Chapel. He is a part of all that is vital—all that is Western Maryland College.
Dr. Mak, our omnipotent Dean of all deans, presents the stern image of an academic guardian angel as he strides across the campus with pipe, hat, and vigor. His letters strike pride or paralysis in the hearts of the fortunate or the fated recipients to whom he doles out just reward. From students and faculty alike, this austere, but genial Saint Peter commands respect and compliance.

The Deans of Men and Women, of Vice and Virtue, hold fast in their hearts the keys to chastity, temperance, and moral fortitude. We are grateful, however, that they are willing to share these vanishing ideals with those desiring to be pure, and that they are further willing to enforce them upon the many in danger of straying to the paths of iniquity (i.e., alcoholism, prostitution, or body odor). For the good of the campus reputation, may they continue in their undying vigil of the appropriate.

The Dean of Chapel has the modest job to save us from the Hugh Hefners by religious logistics and from Hell by sincere prayer. His inspiring services, meaningful articles, and relentless perseverance for Christ's sake provide a buoyant lift to the atmosphere of our sometimes apathetic college. We inwardly wish him success since outwardly many of us still feel obligated to maintain our coolness.

ART DEPARTMENT

After having long been cramped in the small quarters of the Art House and now permanently located in the old library building, the Art Department can at last enjoy its proper perspective... Art class rooms, galleries, nooks and crannies for the temperamental to create in privacy... Expanding and developing to still greater dimensions... Collections from death masks to works of contemporary Maryland artists... The big four—Elaine, Dennis, George (Yuri), and Mara—present their masterpieces... "Vell, I tink you are a C student, but you may get a B."

Mary L. Shipley, A.B.

ENGLISH DEPARTMENT

Cherry Blend and Tweed . . .
"I really shouldn't have bought this text of Byron, but" . . .
Ancient Mariner a la Burton,
English tea . . . "Just to mention one critical work" . . .
Spring recess with John Milton . . . "The proper study of mankind is Man" . . . "What fools these mortals be!" . . .
Boswell in a weekend . . . "Shoures soote??" . . . Vindicate the ways to English majors.
CLASSICS

Tragos, tragos . . . "Identify the mythology in this picture" . . . Aristophanes (censored) . . . "O, antique fables, beautiful and bright" . . . Absentees on the blackboard . . . "Tell me, O Muse, of the ingenious hero."

LIBRARY SCIENCE

The nightly prom from 6:30 to 9:45 P.M. . . . magnificent, but mysterious microfilm . . . "In what book can you find information about Muscle Shoals?" . . . snow fence comes before snowbird . . . "shelving, anyone?" . . . Mrs. Barker and the eternal search for her glasses . . . The Little Red Caboose and other grim favorites . . . reserved: twenty-five cents for the first hour and a dime for each hour thereafter . . . Mr. Gallo, a thorn among four roses.
DRAMATIC ARTS

DEPARTMENT

Miss Smith and Mr. Tribby, to whom all is owed ... He, nimble, grey overalls running from stage left to stage right, tugging at scenery, wielding a brush or hammer when needed ... Never let it be said that he asked anyone to do what he would not do himself ... “Oh, really (snark, leer, ho-ho)!” ... Even a play a day, two papers, and absurd tests ... She, frail flower of the illusive art ... Her gentle insistence and delicate constitution shame even the lazy into producing ... Little aproned figure huddled with script and flashlight in an obscure corner backstage, never seeing one of her plays until this year with the advent of the two-night run.

SARA E. SMITH, A.B., A.M., Ed.D.
Assistant Professor of Education
LANGUAGE DEPARTMENT

Russian, German, French, and Spanish played (or plagued) a part in the lives of many WMC scholars this year, as usual. The language department, which is taking on a decidedly more foreign flavor, is fast expanding and enthusing.

The language laboratory—the bane of many students' otherwise pleasant encounters with foreign languages—ran full-tilt, with even night shifts to meet the demand made by de rigeur lab periods. Only one significant change was made in the departmental procedures: instead of the students keeping his own record of lab attendance, his lab visits were recorded on his IBM card by the lab assistant's punch, another step forward in WMC automation.

Characterized by advancement . . .
Dr. Griswold's IBM set-up automates the campus . . . “Soon all the college procedures will be done through IBM, including dating” . . . Dr.
Hazareesingh joins the staff to explain social change (where’s Mauritius?) . . . See a cast of thousands at the Anthropology spectacular for your audio-visual enjoyment . . . “I see a pattern emerge” . . . Case workers write 20 studies . . . Interaction: The social process . . . Sociopathic and honorable deviants . . . The crime problem . . . Comprehensive calamity
. . . It’s a great life revisited.

PHILOSOPHY AND RELIGION DEPARTMENT

Friar Tuck, Bonnie Prince Charles, and Dr. Holthaus . . .
Existential neo-orthodoxy . . . Playboy, the Bible, and ethics
. . . “Why is ‘good morning’ a value judgement?” . . .
Monastic cells in Baker Chapel . . . Galatians, Corinthians, Colossians and good grades in New Testament . . . “Religion 106? Yes, that was an easy course” . . . Score: Drew, two, and Boston, one . . . “In my own humble opinion” . . .
BMC 102 . . . “Maybe after this class, we’ll scare a few of you out of here.”
PSYCHOLOGY DEPARTMENT

New signs of expansion as Benjamin Hayden joins the staff with the "experimental" approach... Dr. Miller moves to a larger office, newly decorated and including an aquarium of Black Mollies (perhaps a Thonatas symbol?)... Big gold Psi sign proclaims our existence... Dean Robinson’s in the psych department?... New ficher-fusion apparatus, Holtzman inkblot tests, Hayden’s pipe... Sykesville symposium and Therapeutics’ “Saturday Morning at the Movies”... Fastest growing department on campus.

Assistant Professor of Psychology
ECONOMICS DEPARTMENT

Old battles to be won with new opponents as the econ department presented a complete face lift to those daring to engage in a few skirmishes with it . . . Waving a terrorist banner, Dr. Bob Coleberd (Jr.) was a genial, but dangerous, foe who always produced a secret weapon guaranteed to unplug anyone's umbilical cord from the flower of capitalism at that day of reckoning . . . Prof. Warren and Mr. Mack also proved trying to those who thought them untried . . . Like, compare the standard deviation of weights of Western Maryland football players to the distribution of Zsa-Zsa Gabor.
MATHEMATICS DEPARTMENT

F(S) plus F(L) equals the Mathematics Department . . . Solve any problem with the Spicer Special—the ingenious device . . . "Just do the problems, just do the problems" . . . Lightner’s Ladies learn how to defend themselves in the classroom . . . Nobel’s Ring . . . "Negative, not minus" . . . Land of opportunity where two credit hours equals six credit hours of work and where a 95 average can equal a B . . . Precision, abstraction, differentiation, summation.

HISTORY DEPARTMENT

Any questions about that? . . . As Mr. Hook would say, it’s not whether you’re right or wrong, it’s whether you win that counts . . . It’s too bad no one has put a bomb in the Supreme Court . . . The answer to every Democrat’s question is to spend more money . . . The difference between George Washington and Jefferson Davis is that one of them won and the other lost . . . That is to say . . . In other words . . . "Early and late" . . . "And in conclusion" . . . "We’d better push on!" . . . Neatness and organization with a New England accent . . . Late for next class . . . Power makes rights.

BIOLOGY DEPARTMENT

Have you heard the news about Biology? ... "There are no trick questions on these tests" ... "We regret to inform you that (a) you must repeat dogfish lab, (b) the micro lab has been quarantined and your room-mate has the plague, (c) all that you learned last year has been proven incorrect—'isn't that exciting'!?" ... We biologists have learned that observation is the best method for observing.
CHEMISTRY DEPARTMENT

Anyone can do well in freshman chemistry, and the only background that you need is: algebra and some trigonometry, plus twelve years of differential calculus . . . That smell? Oh, that's nothing, a little mustard gas prepared by the organic class . . . No, he didn't shave his eyebrows, his flask blew up yesterday . . . This is my fifth qual analysis, and I'm sure I've discovered a new element . . . "Laboratories in physical chemistry could be interesting if we did hormone analysis . . ."

PHYSICS DEPARTMENT

"Is the period over?—Just one more thing . . ." . . . Lab reports and semester break . . . Or is it the museum? . . . Roll your own cigarettes . . . Therefore . . . And we have . . . Good eyesight or optics labs . . . And we can show that . . . Large classes . . . Apply this to get that . . . The "French" influence . . . "Just this one thing more . . ."

MEN'S DEPARTMENT

"I had this boy in my class once" . . . "The secret to the somersault is to pull your head in and—Oops!" . . . "Remember you can't apply a tourniquet to the neck" . . . "I contend that" . . . "Yea, but what happens if a kid should break a leg in MY class?" . . . "Always remember, fake left and go right—All through life?"

PHYSICAL EDUCATION DEPARTMENTS

WOMEN'S DEPARTMENT

From folk dancing to tap dancing to interpretive dance to the frug? . . . "That Notebook" . . . Formulae in physical education? . . . "No, we don't offer aquatics" . . . "Miss Todd, will you be a fullback?" . . . New uniforms at last . . . "Oh, she referees, too" . . . Labs versus intramurals . . . "True or false, is she the Peach or the Apple?" . . . Not to mention field hockey, basketball, volleyball, tennis, badminton, golf, archery, fencing and bowling for the "well-rounded" athlete.
Here today and gone tomorrow.

CLASSES
A class is just a class, but for us, four years ago, it was more—here we were, bedazzled, bewildered Freshmen, individuals asked to become a group, yet always warned against conformity—how could we fit? Would we? Why should we? Freshman year ... Beginnings ... formerly the highest, suddenly lowly Rats; daring to dance in the Grille; conforming to well-worn traditions, or rather some of them; the beginning of the diversity that would carry us through. Sophomore year ... Becoming victims of upper-class rush and “Sophomore Slump”; making decisions and writing acceptances; walking with that confidence that comes only to the wise fools. Junior year ... The year that exacted the most from us—so much that we failed to have a May Day float; a year dominated by responsibilities and by the production of the Follies; learning to cram and remember cues simultaneously, eyes staring sleeplessly around Alumni Hall and frequently not focusing; the banquet when we went Greek in our own classic style—“What a Credit” to us rang in our ears as we left for our various summers with a sigh of relief and yet anticipating that final return.

Our class: The class of the rotating presidents, the genii, the care-nots, the young idealists, the Angry Young Men, the practical down-to-earth pluggers who sweat it in a dozen organizations at once ... The class that introduced the twist and dropped it; impressed profs, in various ways; and brought new life to the old place. Vigor—we've got it. Talent, ambition, and in each individual a distinctive style that has left its mark on everything we have done.

The four years almost finished, 1965 is a solid part of us now, never to be discounted or forgotten. Although our life at WMC is ending, our class is not finished. We're just beginning.

"Over the horizon . . . the land of milk and honey."

All at once I knew a little bit about why.
I was out from under the suffocating mass of knowledge;
there was a direction to go,
a way to do it, and I knew the way.
I did know, had learned.
There was the door, the handle to turn, the latch to lift—and all these years I had been finding, acquiring, filling my pockets with keys.
Already the doors are opening. Through how many shall I finally pass?

"Well, my mother trusts us!"

If you ever came to a place
Where the people were like this
You might form a conclusion
That they're just headed amiss

That they're not concerned with pomp and circumstance,
Work and thought are mere coincidence
But I know in my heart
That they just can't go wrong.

Now you can make a mistake
And think that they're just rakes
But I know that they're noble
A thing you just can't fake

You can watch them work and see them forge a path
Never stopping to do wrong or wrath
I tell you, you just can't beat
The type of people here.

I've seen them do plenty of things
In trying to progress
And they're filled with ambitions
That no one dares to repress

What a credit to themselves in all they do
Trying hard to make their dreams come true
Their lives always depend
On a great and noble end.
The echoes of the conductor’s call rang above the chugging train which announced the debut of the Junior Follies, 1964. At last we saw our dream of a musical comedy become a vivid reality. We were overwhelmed by the great panorama in which Joyce’s costuming, Jim and Mara’s scenery, Dottie’s make-up, Jeff’s orchestra, and our own various contributions built into a whole that was larger than the sum of its parts. The music clicked, Sherry’s dancers were synchronized, the chorus was in tune, and the characters had become real people. Forecrest college came alive that night.

Tom, Bobbi and Mr. Tribby could breathe again as they saw the blood, sweat, and tears of a whole class materialize into confidence and enthusiasm. When we sang the closing bars of “What a Credit,” we realized that we were a credit to ourselves, to our class. In fact, for the first time, we WERE a class.
1966. Nineteen sixty-six. A big number. But Junior College days are over. We suddenly realize we have to graduate. Those of us who are still here, anyway. We are becoming a snobbishly select group. We are becoming refined. Like sugar. Well, not exactly. Perhaps our smiles are too floury. As we pass through the grist mill of College Life, we wonder.

Culture—the world outside Western What? . . . some of us have found it. . . . Some of us have escaped the rigorous socialization process (Watch it)—some of us don't know what it is . . .

But think of what we have done together, to say nothing of having survived three years of Basic Training at Fort Western Maryland. This year alone has seen two major events handled egregiously by the Junior Class, and they were Parents' Day (Well, my mother actually didn't get her invitation until the day before, but at least she seemed to know what was going on. No, I don't think it was merely from experience.) and the Junior Follies (They laughed at Fulton, so we were pretty sure they'd laugh at us.).

We have become especially well-known for our sense of humor, or rather, marked by it, a sort of desperate insanity clutching in vain at the straws of reality. Excitement fills the scholastic air as new and different, socially acceptable expressions of panic and the death wish manifest themselves. Yes, we are, or think we are, the Class of Nineteen Sixty-Six, and said year is drawing frighteningly near.

Out of biology and into English 209, psychology, genetics, and religion... and we thought freshman year was tough! ... E Pluribus Unum: Out of Many, One... just about the ratio between the number of members in the class and the number of "eggheads"... most don't really care if there's a test because tomorrow will take care of itself, and chances are it wouldn't do any good to study anyway... dynamic, socially adept, and bored with most of their studies... bored with their class and consider class government no big thing... first loyalties to go to their newly-pledged fraternities and sororities... second loyalties go to the valiant, if not misguided, effort of getting as much out of WMC without really trying... frat parties, dances-all damp, but not dampening to the spirit of the sophomores who mostly thrive on human companionship and laughing and frugging... footloose and frantic to be accepted, looking to peers for equal status... the utter importance of being with it and often sacrificing being with yourself... the great big red balloon of thinking that you know it all... the quick prick of in-rushing humility as the sophomore slump sets in, cigarette purchases increase, and deep self analysis heralds the end of a paper-maché year.
King Sisco I rules over the mighty tribe of '68 whose members have packed their wigwams, loaded their ponies, and after sending final smoke signals to the braves and squaws left behind, travelled up the mountain trail to the great reservation on the Hill. "Ugh," said the brave warriors of this mighty tribe. "Ugh," said the maidens in answer, and they all went off to pray to the Bio god.

But great is the wrath of the Bio god who took many scalps before returning to his cave. In dismay the children of the savage plains looked to the skies for help, but none came . . . but, wait! With a cloud of dust and a hearty heigh-ho silver, the noble masked professor from the flat lands of a distant Western Civilization came prancing across the quad to aid the heathen. But alas and alack and psaw, all he could offer was an "ugh," two silver gigs, and the feather and egg laid by the Holy Ghost.

No longer are the tribesmen of '68 warm in the lodgings of their elders. No longer will they be fastened to the rawhide of their mothers' loincloths. They must hunt the buffalo alone, strip his hide for clothing, and chew his flesh for nourishment (for no other can be found on this reservation). They will spend many moons to come in their teepees, burning the midnight bison fat and dreaming of the day that they can step from the reservation to the land of their fathers as full-feathered braves and squaws.

And there, stealthily climbing Stony's Cliff, is one of the agile tribesmen who raises his arms to say—you should only ask, so what can I tell you?—"Ugh."
They can because they think they can.
—Virgil
FOOTBALL

Gridders Dethroned in M-D and M-A-C

The Western Maryland gridmen gave a valiant effort to the 1964 campaign, but in compiling a 4-5 record they were dethroned as champions in the Mason-Dixon and Middle Atlantic Conferences.

When football camp opened on September 5th, “Green-Terror” followers were very optimistic about the approaching season and their hopes fortified by a 14-0 scrimmage game defeat over Juniata. On opening day, however, the hopes were dimmed as Wagner, who later went undefeated, thrashed the home boys 34-16.

This first loss was not enough to kill the spirit but it was enough to dampen it. The squad was unprepared for Penn Military, the weakest team on the 1963 schedule, and again the ‘terrors’ were defeated 24-14. This game was not a total loss because it revealed Rex Walker as a good running quarterback but it showed that W.M.C.’s famous defense was in for some revitalizing.

W.M.C.-13, Randolph-Macon-12

At this time the “Green-Terrors” turned to the South and looked forward to Mason-Dixie competition. Southern hospitality was good in Ashland, Va. as it presented Western Maryland with a 13-12 victory over Randolph-Macon. This brightened the hopes for a possible championship and it showed that Art Renkwitz was a qualified place kicker as his point won the game. John Giesey, Frank Kidd, Gil Smink, and John Trainor proved that they could still play defense but the game was costly to Co-Captain Ben Laurence and End George Harmeyer who suffered serious injuries.

In what proved to be a showdown battle for the M-D title, the “Terrors” next met Hampden-Sydney on a rain and wind swept Hoffa Field and were edged 14-6. Two third period touchdowns erased W.M.C.’s 6-0 half-time edge and the game presented Hampden-Sydney with the championship.

W.M.C. 26, Shepherd 6

“When the going gets tough the tough get going” was a familiar phrase uttered by Head Coach Waldorf and it provided the inspiration on Homecoming Day as Western Maryland romped over Shepherd 26-6. Al Ingalls earned a starting position at halfback by scoring twice and time after time the “terror” defense stopped the Rams’ hard running Sammy Taylor.

Moving back into M.A.C. play, Western Maryland gained a 17-14 decision over winless Lycoming as a field goal by Renkwitz proved to be the winning margin. In the next two weeks, however, the “terrors” were defeated by Dickinson 7-0 and Drexel 34-6. Franklin and Marshall became the new conference champs as they went undefeated and Western Maryland eyed only the last game with Johns Hopkins.

W.M.C. 35, J.H.U. 12

It cannot be denied that the “terrors” were up for this game because so much was at stake with the traditional rivals. W.M.C. exploded with the potential they were supposed to have all season as our arch rivals were subdued 35-12. Although it is not easy to go through a losing season, the boys who played for Western Maryland during the 1964 season should remain proud because they gave their best and upheld the traditional spirit of American Manhood.

For the first time in many years, only two seniors participated in this fall sport. Neal Hoffman, who was selected by his teammates as the best defensive player, and Don Schmidt, senior co-captain and excellent ball handler, added the invaluable component of experience.

This was the year that a new coach, Homer Earll, emerged to shape a young and promising team. Those who braved the chilly winds, enjoyed the fine offensive power of Scott Joyner, the team’s leading scorer. Scrappy Bill Spangler, junior co-captain, provided the spectators with sparkling offensive and defensive maneuvers. Coaching maintained excellent morale, and although they lost more games than they won, the team managed to outscore their opponents by 22-25 goals.

It has long been a tradition at WMC that our soccer teams, including a number of All-Americans, are composed of individuals who excel while maintaining integral team interests. The outstanding spirit which all of the members manifested is a tribute to their ability to rise above defeat and keep fighting.

After a hectic start, the Rifle Team came on in the second half of the season to gain some long deserved recognition. For the first time in many years the team, coached by Sergeant Wahl and Captained by Andy Harmantas, won the Maryland State ROTC Tournament with wins over Loyola, Morgan State, and Johns Hopkins. Participating in the NRA Sectional at the Naval Academy, the “Snipers” Bill Feezer took the top ROTC award with a score of 286. This respectable team also placed high in the 1st Annual Wood County Trophy Match and the 2nd Army Match.

The team’s number one shooter was Freshman Gordon Shelton who consistently outperformed the veterans. Other “Hairy Birds” were Bob Creighton, Pete Reiker, Lee Bailey, Bill Freezer, Jim Morgan, and Andy Harmantas. Bill Carter, assisted by Chris Mattison, served admirably as manager, score keeper, recorder, and performed numerous other back-breaking jobs.
The 1964-65 wrestling season was one that many WMC fans would like to forget but for Coach Dave Blizzard and the boys who put their hearts into each and every match it will long be remembered.

The Green-Terror matmen were so hard hit by injuries and academic difficulties that Coach Blizzard made an urgent plea to the student body to keep the team functioning. Two veteran grappers, Bob Basye and Mason-Dixon Champ Ron Garvin were lost to the team for the entire season so that only a few experienced boys remained.

By the middle of the season five freshmen were starting, several of these had little or no previous experience. The freshmen were Tom Fowler (130), Bob Hibbard (137), Al Starr (147), Dana Huseman (157), and Bob Moore (177).

JOR VARSITY

Coach Clower, using the nucleus from last year’s team and adding two outstanding players, freshman Ralph Wilson and transfer student Skip Shear, who led the team in scoring this year and was named to the second team All Mason-Dixon, gave WMC one of its most successful seasons. Co-captains Sam Leisure and “Country” Shaw continued to hustle and score consistently all year. Rounding out the starting five was Richie Eigen who was among the leaders in both scoring and rebounding.

The team finished the season with a record of 14-8, the best season since 1961. Among the many accomplishments was the winning of the New Bedford Seafood Tournament over the Christmas vacation; Skip Shear was named the outstanding player of the entire tournament.

An unusually fine JV team was coached this year by Ralph Smith. Composed primarily of freshmen and sophomores, the team finished the season with a win-loss record of 7-7. It is here that the boys gain the experience needed to compete on the varsity level.

The Lettermen's Club, while being new in age, has begun to establish lasting tradition. It is necessary to accord to our superior athletes recognition for a job well done. The outstanding men who compose this organization seek to achieve a co-ordinated approach to athletics on the Hill. Under the leadership of Tony Magnotto, the "M" club has begun a number of projects aimed at helping others. The Ernie Davis Fund which they initiated is an example of their desire to become more than just athletes—to become more mature individuals. We look forward to the bright future of this club as a medium wherein all athletes can meet and discuss common values and achieve a closer unity between all sports on the Hill.
Not everyone receives a letter...
"Each girl shall have the opportunity to participate . . ." This is the objective of the Women's Athletic Association, the coordinating body for women's athletics on the Hill. Intramural sports form the backbone of the program, with varsity athletics an outgrowth of the intramurals. Every girl is urged to become a member of the association and to participate in as many activities as she chooses.

The WAA has revised its constitution this year to meet the increased demands of a growing college community. A new point system was introduced, and a greater number of activities were included. The sports now offered are field hockey, badminton, basketball, tennis, volleyball, archery, and golf.

The women's athletic program is expanding, not just in its offerings to the students, but in actual participation by the students. With skilled leadership and coordination, the Women's Athletic Association will continue to serve capably the women of Western Maryland College.

Cold, crisp air, eleven flashing sticks, the charge downfield, the shot. Goal! The game is over. We won, we lost, no difference. The spirit of good sportsmanship rings out in a cheer for the opponent.

This is field hockey at its finest—as Western Maryland girls play it. Our Teroreettes, sporting new uniforms and a great deal of enthusiasm this year, wound up a very successful season with a 2-2-3 record. After gaining advanced skill knowledge from a visiting English instructor, the girls took to the field and demonstrated the zeal and cooperation necessary for effective team play. Many freshmen turned out, and were added to the nucleus of the “old guard.” Through capable leadership, such as that provided by Sherry Fischer for the past several years, this aspect of women’s athletics will continue to be an exciting fall event on the Hill.

Strange sounds echo from the basement of Blanche Ward. Thump, thump, thump, swish, loud cheers. Who can sleep on the floors above? Who can study? Who wants to? The girls’ basketball teams have taken the court, and the 1965 season should prove to be the best yet.

As weeks passed, the prediction came closer and closer to being a reality. Four seniors, having played together since they entered college, formed the nucleus of the varsity squad. Although practice was limited, the girls displayed great skill and morale, breezing by five teams and dropping only two close contests. The junior varsity team, composed almost entirely of underclassmen, showed much promise, and each girl looks forward to filling the shoes of a graduating player.

The spirit and determinism evidenced on the court this year will be the key to success in years to come.

Go Terrors! School spirit is helped along by the Pep Club. Led and organized by Meredith Hobart and enthusiastic freshmen, this informally organized group does “undercover” work for the other school spirit organizations on campus.

The ultimate goal of the Pep Club is to stir up more spirit, especially for some of the less publicized sports. This is accomplished by holding pep rallies, such as the one for Johns Hopkins (where John Trainor received the WCTU award and Eric Wagner received the WOB award for perfect attendance), decorating for these pep rallies, putting up posters, even making a hoop to use at basketball games (perhaps you will see more of it next year—it took all semester to find a male to make the hoop), and winning minor victories (selling the most candy at Parents’ Day) as well as helping our teams to win major ones.

HOMECOMING 1964

Homecoming means rush ... the rush to select a queen and attendants ... float committees start to plan ... coeds rush to find cocktail dresses ... Pom-Poms and Band practice half-time show repeatedly ... Terrors practice forcefully with hopes of victory ... campus men don't rush to find dates ... school spirits march to bonfire ... the Captains speak, and Shepherd is tossed to the flames ... Preachers rush to decorate gym ... Greeks rush to find best spot for display ... the scurry to line up for the parade ... floats, Pom-Poms, cheerleaders, band and singing carloads of girls excitedly escort the Homecoming Court through Westminster ... prizes for floats and displays ... the National Anthem, then the Kickoff ... "Let's go, let's go, let's go, let's go, go" ... Terrors charge up the field ... "Let's fight, let's fight, let's fight, fight, fight" ... cheerleaders stir crowds to a high-pitched frenzy ... "Let's win, let's win, let's win, win, win" ... Terrors rush to score and score and score ... "Hit 'em again, harder, harder" ... Victory! ... crowds rush to the tea and fraternities rush to banquets ... coeds quickly dress and are whisked off to Magic Moments ... the Drifters hurriedly sing a few songs ... "I could have danced all night" ... Lovely Queen Judy and her court are presented in formal gowns ... curfew and the rush back to the dorm good-nights ... cars in confusion ... wild shrieks, exchanges of confidences, dresses flung ... RUSH RUSH, Rush, Rush, rush ... sigh.

"PEACE ON EARTH . . ."
What genius we females possess!!

Even Mr. Hering smiles upon Christmas 1964 . . .
Taking up the hue and cry of BNE (Big Name Entertainment), the Inter-Fraternity and Inter-Sorority Councils joined league with the classes and the SGA to bring Ian and Sylvia to WMC. These lively, folk-singing Canadians, known all over the country for their unique counter-point style, entertained a packed Alumni Hall and brought down the house with their outstanding performance. The quiet prettiness of Sylvia and the casual commentaries of Ian combined with their excellent music repertoire to produce unaffected polish. Whether crooning love ballads, dealing out a dry college brand of humor (enjoyably raunchy at times), or blasting comedy numbers such as “Finnigan’s Wake”, the husband and wife team showed us what BNE really means; in fact, we dropped our suave completely when our entertainment-thirsty applause brought the couple back for three encores, and proved conclusively that if we think BIG . . . we can have BIG.

The IFC-ISC Weekend came to a dramatic close the following night at Frock’s, where Bobby and the Martel’s almost brought in the vice squad with their tasteful rendition of “See that girl, dressed in green . . .” Beer, pretzels, sandwiches, and dancing mixed well, however, and most were able to stalk a late wine, er, walk a straight line, home. Best of all, the morning after the night before, it was discovered upon regrouping with the aid of aspirins and tomato juice that we had come out financially even, and all contributing organizations could be reimbursed. Eureka, and long live BNE!
The Leading Question: What is the SGA? After being shot down at our own leadership conference, it was a serene year for the SGA as we finally accepted the fact that most students could really care; so we set out to perfect our meager apportionment of campus administrative duties. Being a highly esoteric organization working under the relative secrecy of the CIA, a small core of SGA diehards performed their tasks diligently, often at the risk of losing life, limb, and virginity.

With Machievellian glee, the harrassed social chairman organized Homecoming, blackmailed local farmers for tractors, cornered the white light market in Westminster for the Christmas trees in front of the Chapel, and dared campus groups to enter the Snow Carnival. (In Memoriam: To our beloved Mike Schlee who would have gladly given one of his nine lives for the SGA, but felt that the tar-and-feathers incident was a bit much.) Action presented movies for the Band Uniforms and nearly blew its cool when the projector was late, but was resurrected with the success of the ICBM, the Ride Board, and the between-semester Book Sale.

"Grant us the courage to change that which can be changed, the serenity to accept that which cannot be changed, and the wisdom to know the difference."
Never fear for Student Buildings and Grounds Committee was near with transportation lists, ride surveys, safety inspections, and many sessions with the Director of the Physical Plant. Meanwhile, Publicity was quietly meting out menus, filling poster requests, blotting out social insecurity, promoting culture, and subversively undermining campus apathy. Human Relations was abandoned as impractical and irrelevant in our mechanized existence, and all abnormals were being handled adequately by the Psych department anyway. The Constitution suffered its annual revision and was almost eliminated when we found it impossible to marshal a quorum of student votes until we discovered the Student Link.

The Eternal Flame dimmed and even went out for two days, leaving us all in the dark behind the security-sealed doors of the SGA office. But with the installation of new lightbulbs, progress continued, and the beauty courts were elected, polls taken, carols sung, hot chocolate served, Buildings and Grounds improved, and all were had by a good time. Heading this puppet government was Ron who pulled the strings, Dianne who resigned (herself), Ruthie who took verbal stands, and Dan who passed the bucks.

It was the best of times; it was the worst of times. It was the era of critical self-evaluation, indignation, articulation, recapitulation, and final resignation.

ALOHA

For the Class of 1965 the Aloha will be looked upon in the years to come as a source of many memories of days which have been hectic, but for the most part happy. For the staff, however, it is this and much more. Deadlines, decisions, dilemmas, sounds of “Where is Maurice?” and “It was due yesterday” echoing from the student lounge office, a sometimes harried editor, a business manager who managed everything from the money to fixing broken drawers, and conferences with Mr. McWilliams, the legacy of Dottie and Dave. Out of this and a mass of ash trays, papers, Look magazines, rulers and late-burning lights has emerged the 1965 Aloha.

Somehow the theme we are presenting should emerge as well—themes are usually nebulous, and this one is no exception. But in various ways throughout the book, we have tried to show the individual: who he is, where he is, even why he is, and how he reacts among the traditions of Western Maryland College. Everyone is an individual—we hope that you will find your picture here somewhere.

“Fake a smile for the photographer, Warren; you can yell at me later.”
The past year has seen the evolution of the Gold Bug from a dry tabloid to a more vital and sometimes controversial part of WMC life. Under the frisky leadership of Bobbi Love, first semester, the staff was hammered into shape by the strict regime of deadlines, planning, and layout. An astonishing number of people (by WMC standards) were interested in contributing articles, ideas, and help. In fact, there were even a few times when the majority of the articles due were actually submitted on time!

Always out to best previous efforts, the second semester staff started out by staging a major revamping of the Gold Bug office. Linda Mahaffey organized her staff and gave instruction on better newspapermanship.

Throughout the year the Gold Bug was consistent in coverage and format. The staff is looking forward to the time when they may receive college credit for their hard and time-consuming work.
Why Contrast? Because this is a magazine dedicated to the talent of the students here at WMC, talent that varies from person to person, from year to year. Contrast, because in snatches of poetry and prose many different views of life are presented. Contrast, because it is always different, always original. For the literary genii of the college, this is a way to satisfy the writer’s craving to see his work in print; for the artistic members of the community, a way to illustrate and improvise with a given idea. The magazine grows slowly each year, beginning in the imagination and the dreams of individuals, building out of their own experience, translated into patterns of thought, put down on paper, handed in, sometimes forgotten by the author until he sees it again in May. The work is shaped, illustrations are added, the magazine is put together and printed. Then in May suddenly there are issues of Contrast everywhere, some collecting dust under beds, some prized on the desks or bookshelves, some stopping the wind in the hole in the windowpane, some read and reread. Contrast, a showcase of student ability.

The Psychology Club is the newest of the groups on campus especially designed for department majors. Still in its elementary stages of organization, this club has extensive plans for the future which include visiting nearby institutions, inviting speakers here, and becoming a chapter of the national honorary society for excellence in the field of psychology, Psi Chi.

The first visible contribution of the Psych Club has been to blow the horn of its department with the impressive gold shingle displaying the Psi symbol and the names of the faculty members. Under the guidance of Dr. Miller, the club has been formed to bind together the students of psychology and to broaden the scope of their experience while at the same time stimulating interest and scholarship in the science of the human mind.
“You mean that the Argonauts are actually doing something besides giving teas?” Yes, the Argonauts have at last decided to justify their existence and have ended their esoteric past with a year of progress. Mr. Tribby started the ball rolling with a scathing dissertation on “Why don’t the Argonauts . . .” at the induction ceremony early in the year, and amazingly enough the membership responded to the challenge led by a quartet of dynamic (and we might add, female) officers.

The Argonauts led the slate of extracurricular events with a series of timely and stimulating functions: a group of visiting Russian agrarians spurred interest in international relations; a brilliant young engineer discussed the Gemini space project; the members went to a play in Washington together and listened to a distinguished psychologist at their banquet; the sorority and fraternity with the highest academic average were presented with a scholastic cup.

At the onset the usual snide remarks were cracked about the “grade nuts”, but by the end of the year the group had risen from disdain to distinction, hopefully introducing a new trend of active intellectualism on the Hill.

As the 1964 election campaign accelerated to mud-slinging pitch around the nation, the Western Maryland Galloping Poll indicated that Johnson's Great Society was favored 2-to-1 to Goldwater's Reactionary State. Despite the fact that nobody seemed to really like Johnson and that certain "key campus intellectuals" supported Goldwater, the masses arose and voted in their own. Campus-wide and nation-wide Johnson won by a landslide and proved that 50% of all those kicked out of the Air Force Academy for cheating could still be President.

—A Key Campus Intellectual

Editor's Note: The opinions expressed on this page are not (necessarily) those of the entire staff. In your heart you know she is right (wing)!
With our green and gold welcome posters, we ushered the freshmen into Orientation Week by helping them carry in belongings, settle their rooms, and reassure misty-eyed parents. Their normalcy and eagerness to adjust destroyed our dreams to be arm-chair psychologists, as forewarned by the Dean and his counseling staff, but we proceeded with undaunted vigor to indoctrinate our charges, officially and unofficially, into life on the Hill.

At the colloquium sessions we discovered that these freshmen came equipped with critical minds and sat back in awe as they told us about Socrates. During the mixers, sports events, and the picnic, we found our senior assurance infected with their enthusiasm and discovered a new sense of appreciation within ourselves for a campus slightly dulled by our three-year familiarity. New faces, new blood, new ideas, new personalities—they didn’t really need our advice as much as our friendship, which we willingly gave them. We, the teachers, were retaught the excitement of college life.
ROTC—Some remember only the cold sweat before the annual IG inspection and the oily smell after cleaning that M-1; others felt a true sense of pride and responsibility at the command of “Present Arms” preceding the Star Spangled Banner; a few recall that tingling feeling as a spats-clad unit rippled to a Queen Anne’s salute before the Homecoming Queen. The advanced students are often heckled and mocked by frat brothers, just in jest, but they are $40.00 a month richer.

Since 1919, the Hill has sent second lieutenants to the Orient, the Continent, some good, some average. Realization of responsibility and self-confidence, whether in mastering the manual of arms or in escorting a sponsor to the Military Ball, is instilled in each graduating cadet. Some will remember the Gap, both its test and its instruction; some will never live in a barracks or experience the regimented life, except for two required years as a MS. Yet, said or merely thought, Duty, Honor, Country is not just a corny cliche.

The cans of Bresee, Kiwi shoe polish, cleaning solution are ROTC. Shining brass, leadership, dedication are ROTC. The letters from alumni in Germany or on the 38th parallel tell of the travel, the maturation to the men who had those most important bars pinned on their shoulders at Graduation. To the campus, ROTC is a drill unit in the parades, a band at basketball games, a sea of green every Tuesday. Yet, the ROTC Department is also the fifty-starred flag, slowly ascending the mast to the apex, where it overlooks the Chapel, Western Maryland College, a self-chosen way of life.

Greek life is what we make it . . .

Just a social organization? . . . Bidding sessions which go on and on and on . . . Think long, hard, and objectively . . . Amid cheers and tears, new sisters . . . Hell week: Humility is our motto—superimposed . . . Strange attire and stranger skits . . . A pin, a serenade . . . “Here’s to you, and here’s to me.”
When we say goodbye to college hill . . . Will it seem more than a passing phase? . . . Have we grown . . . Sisters ever loyal, ever faithful? . . . We've been a part of it for three years . . . Or it's been a part of us . . . or both . . . Have we listened and heard and learned from each other . . . The answers are ours, to each one alone . . .

The three cups we've earned stand on the shelf . . . Tenaciously we hold them to prove ourselves . . . To whom but ourselves . . . Perhaps here is the lesson to be learned . . .

And the approaching end . . . Thoughts to the future . . . Thoughts of the past . . . Time to remember and think what it meant.

THE SPIRIT OF LOVE AND LOYALTY
"Iota Gamma Chi, we stand up and cheer you"

Grown in two years from one member to 42 members. Changed colors, mascot, emblem, and traditions. Served the campus each February with a bookline mixer to dissolve the boredom of buying books. "We'll cherish your memory our whole life through".

Cherish Christmas parties, autumn banquets, freshman teas, roller skating, rush parties, and spring picnics. "The fun and fellowship, the laughter and smiles, cheer us in our troubles and all of our trials".

Fun: decorating floats, baking tea cookies, Hell night antics, and Christmas party capers. Fellowship: autumn banquet with dates, uproarious meetings, rush party preparations, and charity efforts.

We are cheered in times of exams, personal loss, bidding depressions, and romance troubles.

"With sisters and friends". More than just a friend, an Iota sister is a morale-builder, an advisor, a critic, a fellow-sufferer, an understanding comrade, and a trustworthy confidante. She helps you with Econ and Stat, lends you her clothes, teaches you to knit, listens to your problems, and even tries her hand at matchmaking. She may be intelligent, attractive, athletic, campus-spirited, "nice", funny, tolerant, courageous—or an oddball.

"We stand brave and ready to meet challenges of our sorority". We stand for understanding of people and their problems, for honesty to ourselves and others, for courage to stand up when we think we're right, and for individuality to do what we think is best and not necessarily what others are doing. "Our spirit will live through eternity; Iota Gamma Chi, we salute thee."
Sisterhood is an opened doorway... A room of purple and light... A gasp of surprise... Tears of joy, cries of delight... An embrace... "Look for the purple castle"... Bells, bibs, books of demerits and "Life sure is..."... Giggles, whispers, laughter, "order", meetings of plans, invitations, programs, money... "Will somebody please open a window"... Moveable mannequins in a Queen's Way—a fashion show... Magical moments in a night of elegance—a Fall Formal... The giving of gifts and a Thanksgiving basket, the support of a foster child, a Christmas program for Springfield, a guiding hand to the children of Union Street... Bids on a "Moose head", Seagrams 7, blue and white double trouble, a cottage weekend, a car-wash a la Riviera, and a Phi Alph for a day... "I'll buy that"... Bids into fantasy and a world of make believe... Mother Goose, the seven dwarfs, Prinderella, Lollipops, sugar castles, childhood dreams of purple and white... "When you wish upon a star"... boisterous, brazen, serious, silent, lively, loyal, naughty and "neat"... "She wears a pin"... Sisterhood is an opened doorway... And the Country Squire comes through with another new dance... Wags: the man with a camera... Sound-off—Alpha, Gamma, Tau, the Bachelors!
The most fabulous rush party of the century enticed 36 healthy, lustful, loquacious young souls to reach out for the Purple and Gold... The rush party floor show threatened to devour the shrubbery surrounding the Rod and Gun Club... The frat band upstaged the evening attraction (the incomparable dining hall innumerable)... Brotherly love brought us together on the sunny dunes of O.C., N.J.—a good time was had by all... During the course of the long, hot summer Ben and Gregg discovered Mr. John Layton... September came and Delta Pi Army formed up on the Hill... Being ever in need of love, we selected the lovely and charming Miss Pat Jones as our one and only sweetheart... News of Loose Bruce terrifying Arizona... Homecoming and the band came “drifting” in late... Little Bo beeps away from home... Employment agency for Wobs... Noble did the latest dances... The night before Christmas the frat was almost wiped out as Tassey dropped his date for a trash can and little Horn surrendered to fate... John found love in all its forms... Time marched on to take us to a tour of the Carling brewery and an unprecedented (and controversial) round of parties as we healthfully, lustfully, and loquaciously groped blindly towards our fraternal destiny.
"We the Members of Gamma Beta Chi, in order to form a more perfect Fellowship" . . . Those words have rung out once a week somewhere on the Western Maryland Campus (or maybe it was over the Tavern when fraternities weren’t approved), for over forty-two years. The Fraters of Gamma Beta Chi have met as Brothers in almost every conceivable place on campus, the Elderdice basement, Alumni Hall, MacLea Hall, etc., etc., but one thing has never changed, they are Brothers.

"Establish loyalty, elevate sociability, insure honesty among the Student body" . . . A fraternity changes and times change, but deeply ingrained in every Brother of Gamma Beta Chi is a feeling of Brotherhood which has been earned, and once earned is cherished with a feeling of pride that lasts when many other things fail. Proof of this is that Gamma Beta Chi has lasted through a depression, a world war, and a Korean conflict. Gamma Beta Chi lasts because its Brothers are enduring, and because its Fraters have long recognized the fact that survivability is synonomous with progress and change.

"Promote the highest type of sportsmanship in athletics, insure higher scholastic standing" . . . No fraternity or college ever meets these standards with the ideal, but Gamma Beta Chi in the framework of the Western Maryland atmosphere has always been close to the top. In the memories of the graduating Brothers are seen two SGA presidents, four generations of follies writers, two IFC presidents, the founders of ODK, as well as other brothers who have held every major elected office on campus—sometimes all in the same year.

"And to promote the hearty cooperation with the college and all its interests . . ." Intimately intermingled with the life of Western Maryland College as a whole, Gamma Beta Chi has offered much to many, and has stood in the light of many images, but above all else Gamma Beta Chi stands for men . . . not for wealth, rank, or honor, but for personal worth and character.
"Well, if we can get an inside stairway and the stove hooked up, I guess it's a good idea" ... "You mean my roommate and I have to split up after three years?" ... "Are you sure you can get it?" ... "All I know is that the Dean said ..." ... "They just want to keep us under their thumbs" ... "What if we can't fill all the rooms?" ... "Sign the list on the bulletin board" ... "Will someone please explain the new system of pledging?" ... "We can always cut a hole in the floor" ... "I move we sell the stove" ... "We scored!!" ... "$75.00 profit" ... "O.K. ORCHESTRA Music finds its outlet of expression in many ways on the Hill from the juke box in the grille to the National Symphony concert. Another part of its expression can be found in the college Orchestra and Band.

Under the able direction of Mr. Kersey, our John Philip Sousa of WMC, the Band has progressed steadily upward in quality and quantity during the past few years. In the rain of October or the brisk cold of November, the big brass sound of "Win Western Maryland" serves as a spark to chilled fans and team members. This year produced a further wave of enthusiasm with the drive for new uniforms, which will hopefully improve the appearance of our "ragtime" Band. Led by an energetic president, Mary Ellen Heggan, by gung-ho Gary Crowell, and with the help of many interested groups, the Band sold candy bars at 80,000 calories each and urged various money-making projects in support of the cause. Larger, louder, and hoping to someday be lovelier—the Western Maryland Marching Band!

The college Orchestra also showed promise and artistic skill this year under the faithful direction of Mr. Royer as they presented their annual concert in Alumni Hall. From classical to pop hits, the Orchestra showed that quality is not necessarily dictated by size. In the spring, the student conductors tried their hand at conducting and proved as adept at waving a stick as they were with their instruments.

Adding choral holiday cheer at the Christmas banquet is only one of the numerous presentations of the Octet. With a repertoire from religious selections to clever folk songs, these choristers perform before various civic and women's clubs. Under Joanne Crawford, student director, and Prof. A. de Long, faculty advisor, the Octet is an integral part of the campus musical tradition.

The Women's Glee Club added its special note to the Christmas season with a concert including Benjamin Britten's "The Mass" and Schubert's "The Lord Is My Shepherd". Under the direction of Dr. Miriam K. Whaples, the glee club presents special programs for the women's clubs in Westminster. The spring recital included special selections from Fletcher's contemporary fantasy in music, "Alice in Wonderland".
DRAMA

Drama — the spiritual dance of mankind. Rooted in the primitive ritual of ancient tribes is man’s attempt to fulfill an experience by crystallizing its essence in an illusion of reality; it is the most basic of the art forms — shattering, fragile, quixotic. Plumbing the depths of the human story and dragging forth ugliness, beauty, suffering, and joy, drama captures the Truth — the universal and the unique — of life.
The preparation begins with readings in the quaint little room that none of us will ever forget—the incongruity of the furnishings with its faded rug, odd figurines, bare stools, desks, mirrors, reproductions of rare paintings, and the hundreds of playbills and posters—the little room which seems attuned to instant change for, as the readings progress, it becomes our imaginary set, giving us so much that the jolt to the actual set upstairs is hard at first, not quite as we had pictured it would be. At length the blockings and reblockings become smoother as we adjust to real furniture, doors, rooms, and telephones. The techniques, the methods, have given us everything—stage presence, correct follow-through of action and gesture, well modulated voice—except our character. Two weeks before curtainup the joking stops, and only occasional nervous laughter breaks the tension of concentration. Alone, each of us rereads our parts; we attempt to analyze its psychology, we experiment, we loosen up, we try control. A misty figure taunts us, focuses slightly for a moment, goes laughingly back into the shadows of our mind, and then one day steps forward with authority. Now we can relax and submit our faculties to the soul of the character. Make-up, costumes, props, lighting, a deep breath, and the curtain rises.

"Hot on the heels of Stanley Underdown..."
"Now listen, Molly, you're being given a great opportunity..."

"TAKE HER, SHE'S MINE"

"I'm just going to post a letter..."
A play—words strung on a cord of silence, actions emitting from dynamic stillness, thoughts flashing from the mind's eye of the actor. The stage, brown boards beneath a colorful facade, breathes a subtle mood, hums a quiet tune. One visible room extends out over the heads of the audience engulfing them in an imaginary world filled with past ghosts parading before the actors in vivid reincarnation. The audience sits in the anteroom of each character's life and is quelled into submission by emotions curling around each personage. This more real than reality traps the on-lookers, and they respond with tears, sighs, laughter, gentle clicks of the tongue, animated hands to the bit of life plucked out of the mainstream for their pleasure. The conflict builds to a peak, collapses to denouement—futility and realism, hope and idealism, or absurdity and surrealism; curtain call.

"We found her on the road by Rahil's tomb.

"THE HEART O' MARY"

"Are you a mother, that you know so surely a mother's heart?"

"Ours is the world..."
RELIGION

Everywhere, day to day. In the faces of all men... A look of reassurance and of doubt; In smiles and tears, In conversation, In solitude.
In the beauty of the campus...
On sunny, flower-filled days
and silent, snow-covered nights;
In the rustling of autumn
and the splashes of spring.
"shall see Him..."
—Kahlil Gibran

In all actions and words...
Of those who stand before us—
guiding, propounding, hindering, helping;
Of those who stand with us—
guiding, propounding, hindering, helping;
In the minutes and hours of each day...
A quiet moment of reflection,
the shouting of a crowd, colloquims,

Sunday evening chapel,
conversations in the grille,
firesides, lectures;
In song and laughter,
discussion and thought.

Ignorance, the heart of darkness which every man must illuminate for his brother. On grounds of neutrality they came to the sleeping, slightly suspicious Puerto Rican communities, aspiring to penetrate that darkness with books. Flying in from the great country of affluence, they entered not as Americans with all the answers, but as warm human beings wanting to help others find their own answers.
To see, but not to know... To observe, but not become a part, to talk, but not really communicate... To travel, but not live with the people. This happens to the average traveler for whom Puerto Rico is not very different from other tourist attractions.

To the eight members of the SOS field team, Puerto Rico became much more than a tourist’s Isle of Enchantment. For six weeks it was our home. We had the opportunity not only “to observe,” but also “to become a part of” the Puerto Rican culture.

Both Puerto Rican communities were built in the shadow of a sugar company and sheltered separate clusters of Puerto Ricans and Continentals who seemed unsure how to relate to one another. In these towns our task was to observe, to learn, to promote good will. Idealistic? Certainly!

Approached sincerely and realistically, these goals came within reach. Puerto Rico gave us the opportunity to participate in the world search for understanding among people.

The libraries themselves culminated a year of work by fifty students. These functioning libraries now in the communities of Aguirre and Ensenada evidence our concern for the people there.

Our concern, however, went far beyond the doors of the libraries. We lived with families; we participated in community life; we were involved in group work with children; we came to know and, to a greater degree than before, understand the Puerto Rican people. Through personal relationships and communication deeper than words, we left more than libraries in Puerto Rico, we left part of ourselves—Friends.
If the world seems cold to you, Kindle fires to warm it!
—Lucy Larcom
Hello, world ....
After we had passed the room, part way down a multitude of corridors we paused, turned about, and listened.

What brought the moment was various with us all, for it came, at first merely as a sort of cataloging which the mind does to convince itself that it is still flexible and full and findable.

It came the second time when some advertisement, some son or daughter, some wind, dropped words of French into our presence, and while the rest of this portion of the world's conversation continued, we remained behind with a memory of a French you could speak and live with her upraised hand that etched expressions out of the lace-work of the air, and a tilted-back head and a stray wisp of hair which, in the excitement, had fallen gracefully from arched brow to ear, and eyes that rolled in laughter and wore mysterious rose in their depths, and a mercurial mouth that forced you to imitate its wonders. She knew why we spoke French in class. It was essential to pronounce it in order to understand it, for it had lilts and curves and songs, and sidewalk cafes, and Sacre Coeur, and Le Petit Prince, and the Tuileries, and all of the banks of Paris bound up in its declensions and conjugations. There was no unteachable student, at least in French, and tone-deaf Americans could sing in French, especially if the French songs were carols; so we learned songs, and sang them, and heard the Biblical promise at Christmas, and it did sound better in French, and helped the spring in the garden by acting in plays and somehow—we did all this all for her, and it was for us. Everything kept coming back.

The third time it came we had long forgotten the room and had run out of corridors and carols and gardens in our living for whatever it was or we were. Yet it came, not so often as the others had, but soon it was all that came—a sudden tumbling over of exhilaration that made us realize that we had chosen for a profession that which and those which we most loved, and we remembered this person who was one of the very few who had ever dared show this to us.

Joie de vivre was her favorite expression. The feeling, I am certain, was mutual.

William L. Tribby
In a memory we admit to an emptiness within—a recognition of something meaningful in our lives which has become a part of the past. Unlike the momentary anguish of a man who has lost his wallet, this emptiness may mellow with time, but it can never wholly disappear. What kind of an attachment is this, the loss of which is so deeply marked within us? There is only one—the attachment to a human being.

Dr. Summers was a remarkable example of a human being whose character and personality generated this kind of attachment. Few men are this, for few men are complete, and few men are so self-sufficient. In a rare occurrence one meets a person who does not show even a hint of the often found craving to be something he is not. Dr. Summers was in the truest sense pleased with what he was. Never wasted was the energy of his brilliant mind in fruitless longings. Always the greatest joys were his tasks of the day. For the rest of us who long and are dissatisfied, we could not help but be drawn to a man who had lived so successfully.

Those who knew Dr. Summers admired him for his thorough command of physics. Those who were more closely acquainted with him were impressed with his knowledge in all fields of learning. But to those who knew him best he was a man whose every spoken word had meaning for the listener.

We no longer see him, pipe in mouth, moving across the campus with his characteristic shuffle, his white hair standing up in the wind, but his image of a person whose remarkable knowledge and creativity led to true happiness will remain in the minds and hearts of his students as a true inspiration for their lives ahead.

Creativity...

...is more than an idea or an inspiration when you have the tools with which to work, and a printer who is qualified and interested.

FOOTE & DAVIES offer:

1. Professional consultation and assistance in planning and preparation of your book.
2. A complete supply of materials and equipment for your use in producing a "customized" book.
3. Expert in-plant coordination of your material with personal attention to every detail.
4. Experienced copy prep personnel who help perfect material and proofread your copy as well as your proofs a minimum of four times.
5. Printing craftsmen dedicated to producing a book worthy of the Foote & Davies label which has appeared on fine yearbooks for over 60 years.

Plan and design with FOOTE & DAVIES in mind.
