* mnemonic (nĭ·mōn·ĭc) adj.
pertaining to aiding or designed to aid the memory.

one

and one . . .

two corresponding things designed for use together.

This is the place. Stand still, my steed,
Let me review the scene,
And summon from the shadowy Past
The forms that once have been.

The Past and Present here unite
Beneath Time's flowing tide,
Like footprints hidden by a brook,
But seen on either side.

Henry Wadsworth Longfellow

ralph candler john and western maryland . . .

dr. john with his wife dorothy.

. . . a new pair.

the class of 1973 wishes to dedicate mnemonic '73 to dr. john as he completes his first year as president of western maryland college.
dr. john, may your experiences here be rewarding for both you and whimsical isle!

while we were here . . .

we came as the class of '69.
how strange '73 sounded.
the beanies were queer but most of us survived rat week.
they told us homecoming called for a float.
campbell's cream of tiger won the prize.
and we marched the first colorguard . . . all freshmen.
money hungry wolves organized the slave auction.
we sold our best.
january brought the first interum term at wmc
and women's council fought for better hours.
we made a hundred lanterns and chained
the class of '70 to the football field.

the first thing we had to do this year was abolish rat week.
thank you mr. hogan.
dr. ensor became ill and dr. mund stepped in.
ah! curfew was extended fifteen minutes.
we were eligible for rush.
our class unity ceased.
they built new golf holes and moved the seventh green in body only.
somebody said they didn't want homecoming.
there was none.

the sound of '73 was comfortable now.
we were half through.
we inquired about a new grille, etc. and instead what is that red giant behind the gym?
the pi-men went big time.
it got tiring climbing in windows so everyone got keys.
open house reach a delightful twelve hours.
only twelve more to go.
something had to be done to restore the class,
so we got together and tried to civilize whimsical isle.
baker 100 sprouted 20 palm trees
and near-naked natives shimmied beneath them.
the campus laughed. we learned each other's names.
may weekend became a carnival.
dr. ensor retired a well-respected man amid lobster tails and steaks.
25 years.
something told of change in the air.

seniors.
not yet, that's impossible.
a large man appeared on campus.
we named him big john and built our last float.
reality set in.
job applications went out.
we sent out two brigades of student teachers.
what do you know? the campus was finally wet.
there was talk of getting those other twelve hours.
dr. makosky put in for dean-retirement #2.
and we hear the ridington's are leaving with us.
we came back after christmas to find george's in ashes.
two past presidents died.
and a horrible war ended.
long term mrs. fry was no longer mother of mcdaniel.
there was no pinning-in at all this year.
the 93-days party was held as usual.
the spring inaugurated dr. john.
we became the victims of lantern chains.
and paid for diplomas and g.r.e.s.
permission for an outdoor graduation topped it off.
the yearbook tried to reminisce.
the list only skimmed.
the class of '73.
quite used to the sound of that now.

why did i want to be s.g.a. president? i guess, because i really like this place, for some odd reason and because i was pretentious enough to feel that i could make a difference. it must be an outgrowth of my desire to work with and for people. i felt i could learn something from the experience . . . and i have.

buddy orndorff

being in athletics has afforded me the opportunity to meet many diverse personalities. i feel i have been lucky in that i have learned to work and pull together with these people in times of need. we have laughed together, sweated together, and felt pain together. there aren't many situations in which this is the case. some may think that fraternities serve this opportunity, but i question fraternities and their purposes. too often they are used against each other. the die-hard fraternities who dislike others because they don't wear the same colors are hurting inter-fraternity relations. no one is asking anyone to give up their fraternity, just to be more friendly and open toward other fraternities.

pancho the sportsman (and an american sportsman he was) went on a hunt for ants in the town of hiroshima. when he appeared there he stopped at the face of a peperoni pizza. it was an exciting day; melting in the quad and flying the supersonic skys . . .

western maryland was a tiny cosmos, a sanctuary which sired a scene that has influenced me and others beyond measure. i feel sorry for the intellectual cripple who equates grades with learning and report cards with achievement. anybody who was in attendance at an ice palace party or a scene knows better.

there are times when i need to be alone to absorb the frustration and pain which are often a part of living. i always hope that i learn something from these times so that i may bring a better understanding to the next difficult situation i encounter . . . if you could read and understand me and i, you, we both could gain; maybe our world would be a little better . . .

. . . as i prepare to leave sugar mountain many of my ideals have been tainted and molded by the light of reality and experience, so that my personal religion of 'people' is far from pure or perfect. but in times of happiness, joy or depression i still grasp for the ideal, a religion for man as man, and hope that i will continue to do so.

"you couldn't say "Skat!" 'cause that wouldn't be right
You couldn't shout "Scram!" 'cause that isn't polite.
So you'd try hard to smile, and you'd try to look sweet
So you'd go right on looking for moose-moss to eat."

Dr. Seuss

i think a person's ability to look around himself and laugh is the most important thing. especially, you must be able to laugh at yourself. as soon as you take yourself too seriously, you're in big trouble. i'm the most ridiculous person i know.

i am sure that these past four years at western maryland will help me and perhaps the few friends i made to transcend the dimensions of racism and enter into . . . "that level of feeling deeper than thought which contains the truth."

people often ask why i came to a school like western maryland. learning of course was one of my primary reasons. having been educated in the public schools of baltimore city, i found living and going to school at western maryland to be a very different situation. going from 9 black students in my freshman year to 7 in my senior year, i sometimes found my existence "trying". however, my experience as a black student on this all-white campus has been a learning one . . .

why did i stay at western maryland college? because when you finally find people who you can relate to and who care about you it's worth more than any other experience you could possibly have. that's what happened to me here and as a consequence my horizons have expanded further than i ever dreamed they would.

i think it's pretty dangerous to judge any situation (or reality) entirely in its own terms—there's a need for some greater context, some exterior grounding point from which we can gain perspective. the question, then, is one of getting outside the given, negating it, rejecting entirely its dictates. the theater is a perfect means of gaining this perspective. the task of the theater is to create a world, not necessarily a copy of the one outside the theater, but a total reality which, through its difference, comments on the ordinary one. the possibilities are many and varied—comedy, absurdism, tragedy, theater of cruelty—but they are held together by the common function of altering or doing away with what we safely and narrowly call reality and confronting us with our naked selves.

western maryland college means a great deal to me in many ways and for many reasons. my seventeen years of association with the college, as a student, alumnus, and faculty member, have helped me to see the rather special nature of this institution: its long-standing tradition and heritage, its firm foundation in the liberal arts, its stress on close student-teacher and student-student relationships, its broad and significant contribution to our society. i think it is precisely because of all of these things (and more) that the college is what it is today; a strong, viable institution which will survive when others around it may fail. i hope that, as the college changes in these 1970's toward larger enrollments and expanded physical plant, it will not lose sight of its basic character and purpose which transcend specific academic disciplines, buildings, policies, and current trends in academia. we need not be like "all the rest." western maryland college is, at least to me, a very special entity. i hope that the students of future years will feel likewise.

hey, it's senior year and i'm thinking back upon all the really stupid and fun things we used to do. remember playing cafeteria games, going to gigs, joining a sorority, setting a record for the most number of hours spent in the library while getting the least amount of work done, surviving all those jet courses, going down-stairs and folding laundry when you felt homesick, wading through spring water battles, celebrating wednesday at the pit because it's the middle of the week, and celebrating thursday because it's right before the weekend? but most of all i remember the really close associations i've made with other people and thinking it's never going to be like this again . . . ever. so what am i going to do when i graduate? probably type.

June 4, 1973

So this is it,
the last page of a book that seemed so long at the beginning.
Now it seems so short.

I am especially grateful to the following individuals who gave their time to mnemonic '73:

Bruce and David for their photographs, Steve Kelly, Chip Rouse, and Linda Lamoreux who did the little jobs which are really the important ones, Chris Spencer for the lacrosse kodolith (spring section), and Larry Wild, for balancing the books, but especially for always having the right words of encouragement. He was capable of turning tears to laughter and of being the strength to turn ideas to reality.
