and most of the above

as man reaches out in an effort to fill the void of his existence, he finds his neighbor reaching out for him.

he is shocked, scared, angry, delighted, but he reacts.

he communicates.

he can be alone in expressing his feelings, or he can be part of a mass.

it can be an active communication or a very passive one.

yet in all cases he is letting others see him in his solitary moment of honest reaction, one moment which can be glimpsed for a fraction of a second, and then is lost forever.

ode to the streakers (with apologies to joyce kilmer)

i thought that we should never see a streaker here at wmc.
a student whose physique was bared against the campus' gaping stare.
a streaker who would doff his clothes facing the elements 'til he froze.
a streaker who would face the task of running cross-campus with only a mask.
a streaker who'd remain unnamed knowing his feat would forever be famed.
poems are made every day of the week but nothing on earth can beat a streak.

a brief look at intramurals . . .

"God gave you a life to live, and that's the greatest gift in the world, and people spend it bullshitting."

barry white

i think what i am leaving behind and what i am taking from western maryland college is inter-related and can be summed up one word: relationships. i could just say friends and friendships, but that would not encompass all that i wish to include. i will take with me, and remember for a long long time (as a surviving mechanism), the difficult times i encountered with some of the people and situations.

i am leaving behind a few very wonderful people, including students, faculty members, and others whom i have been able to meet. if it had not been for these individuals, i would have transferred after my freshman year, and every year afterwards. these few individuals really made the four years at wmc worthwhile. they helped me to realize what type of person i was, where i was heading, and the vast amount of goals that could be mine.

on the other extreme, a few individuals caused my years at wmc to be painful and insecure. the "games" that were carried on readily come to mind, as do the cliques and narrow-mindedness of people. granted, some people feel the need for security in a group; there is nothing wrong with this feeling. but, if some individuals do not need the security of groups, others shouldn't reject or wonder why that particular individual is different; afterall we are not the same. somehow or other, people on this planet were not made exactly alike. therefore, we should not scorn or ridicule others for their differences, but learn to accept the fact and learn from these individuals.

this is not to say that i came to this school with these feelings, but i have learned, primarily through experiences, that the world and people in it are not supposed to be exactly alike, but different, and should be appreciated, not condemned.

criticism and change are initiated by individuals who care deeply for the survival of our society. be they black, red, brown, yellow or white, these individuals want improvements that are best for all of this planet's inhabitants, and not be stifled by apathy and rhetoric.

cheryl irving

This time next year I'll be alumni. Big deal.
What was it for?

For those moments spread over the past four years that I've given someone a stab of anger—

a hug of warmth—

a tear of anguish—

a laugh—at anything,

because those are the moments I've felt my aliveness.

Maybe they're the only ones that are worthy of looking back on—
—or looking ahead to.

Sherrin Roby

I hope to impart enthusiasm for and understanding of economics. I want to make my students better informed and more analytical regarding issues pertaining to my field. For those going more deeply into either the study of economics or into related jobs, I would like for them to be well-equipped to meet the challenge. I wish to help make this excellent school even better!

What I hope and expect to get, based on experiences at WMC thus far, is a great satisfaction both from making some contribution to the discipline and (most especially) from seeing my students—my friends—grow, develop, and thrive, partly as a result of my efforts.

Alton D. Law

I am guilty of not having done enough during my 33 months at WMC. I left the procrastinating Joe. I took with me an aggressive, determined "go-getter" but still a free luncher Salang!

Joseph Salang Gandom

Coming to Western Maryland was the first big decision in my life and also my first step toward independence. I realize now how much I've grown since I first came. It was not very hard to be myself here because I found so many others like myself. However, it was hard to fight against being labeled. I was determined not to be put in a box. I soon found out that the way to avoid being labeled is to look behind the labels put on others and accept them for who they are. I may still be put in a box by some people but because I've been accepted by others, I feel free.

I spent a lot of time re-evaluating my priorities. Often, I felt pressured and smothered by my studies. I felt I just couldn't take time to live. After four years, I've decided my top priority is to "choose life." This may sound broad and nebulous to others but that's just it—only I can decide what is life giving for me. It's a personal decision I have to make a hundred times a day.

It has been the people here that has meant the most to me. I believe I'll take with me a little bit of every person I've known at WMC. They are a part of me because we've shared so much of each other's lives. My hope is that I'll be remembered and kept alive in the minds of the friends I've made here.

Susie Squires

Reflecting on the past four years at WMC, one of the most valuable lessons my friends taught me was that you can have success through failure. Whether you flunk a test, lose a sporting event, or fall in your faith; if you seek and find the correct answers to the test, if you improve on your athletic mistakes and become a tougher opponent, or if you analyze your fall in faith and consequently grow stronger in it, you will have accomplished a great victory through your failure. I will always cherish this lesson and carry it with me, and I only hope that I too can relate it to others around me. I also hope that sometime while attending WMC I brought a little joy or happiness to those I came in contact with—even if it took one of my "funny" jokes to do it.

Joe Booker

What will I retain from WMC days?
Probably: Ruth, a habit of being on the edges instead of in the middle,
a dislike for any rules but my own,
a love of cats and blue jeans, some friends, and some bits of wisdom from stories and songs:

"People want to be nice, haven't you noticed? They don't like being shits, that much; but you have to find a way out of it for them."

John Updike

"Some folks trust in reason, others trust in might. I don't trust in nothin', but I know it comes out right."

Robert Hunter

"Some are bound for happiness; some are bound to glory; some are bound to live with less. Who can tell your story?"

Neil Young

What will I leave behind?
Probably: most everything else, whether I want to or not, which leaves me feeling two ways..

"Love lost, such a cost; give me things that don't get lost"
Neil Young

and

"all you got worth livin' for is what you left behind.
Robert Hunter
like being sad the last bottle is empty and glad the next one is full.

Scott Shanaberger

Somewhere over the rainbow
 Way up high
 There's a place that I've heard of Once in a lullaby.
 Somewhere over the rainbow
 Bluebirds fly
 Birds fly over the rainbow
 Why oh why can't I
 Someday I'll wish upon a star
 And wake up where the clouds are far behind me
 Where troubles melt like lemon drops
 Away above the chimney tops That's where You'll find me.
 Somewhere over the rainbow
 Bluebirds fly
 Birds fly over the rainbow
 Why oh why can't I?

Mike Gosman

What am I taking with me into the Real World? A good library and a pile of notes, many good memories and experiences—the best and worst I've had, and some friends for life. The good and bad experiences have taught me most of what I know, I can look up the rest in my notes and books, and with my friends I can recall the memories. I wouldn't ask any more than that.

What am I leaving? Maybe I'll have to come back later and find out. Bob Dylan says in "Wedding Song"

It's never been my duty to remake the world at large, Nor is it my intention to sound the battle charge"

I haven't done anything earth-shaking. I hope that I leave some good memories for whoever remembers.

Ruth Shanaberger

Looking back on these past four years, I have gained certain tools that will prove invaluable in the future:

A sense of independence which is the foundation for being an adult.

Pride, knowing that I went to a good college and received an excellent education.

Confidence, because of my background, that no one is better prepared than I to confront a job or difficult circumstance.

The knowledge that a person can only get out of a situation what he has put into it.

A satisfaction for going on when there was a great temptation to quit.

Patience, to listen to people and bear with their idiosyncrasies.

Besides taking these reflections into the world, I have memories and good friends to keep with me. With graduation, I realize I am leaving behind a whole era of my life. Gone are the times of parties in the dorms, serenades, sledding back campus on cafeteria trays, and having my friends just a few feet away. All this play must stay at Western Maryland because it is unique to campus life, and unfortunately, not a part of the real world.

Kathy Blazek

I think I hear the School Song—it is Western Maryland, as it is to all who love their Alma Mater. Then, again, I think of "America, The Beautiful"—of the words "from sea to shining sea" and "for patriot dream that sees beyond the years." For the efforts of those who instruct and who come to be instructed in their experiences and influences will stretch from sea to sea and their knowledge and experiences will reach through the years to those yet unborn.

As I project my thoughts ahead in the years of my retirement, I will often think of the friendliness and kindnesses I have experienced from all those whom I have known on the Hill. The "Hi, Miss Dix" from not only my own girls in Blanche Ward, but other student boys and girls on the campus. And not only have I experienced the friendliness of the students, but all those others in campus life—faculty and staff have been most kind. Too, I shall remember the Hill in the different seasons of the year—the joy I have experienced in the beautiful dogwood trees, the well-cared for stretches of lawns and gardens, the snow and ice storms that have given the Hill a magic of their own.

All these things have brought a particular color and joy to the heart of one who says to Western Maryland, "Hail, all hail."

even though we called this place a rose garden more often it was like crab grass.
we'd wiped out the last of the few dying traditions such as comps, the pin-in board, and lantern chain.
and jobs.
we found out how much the liberal arts education was worth.
too bad it took four years to find out.
it was rumored that some people relieved the pressure in odd ways.
exactly how much good does an obscene phone call to THE BACHELOR SECTION at two-thirty at night do?
chuck says the pit is losing its best customers, and even streaking didn't do the trick.
the seventy-four days party added a touch of class to an otherwise frocked four years.
those cast parties lasted three months past the time when we realized the party was over.
we were the only class to leave school with more money in the treasury than when we began.
it was difficult deciding how to throw it away.
thank heavens it's over, we say.
we can finally see what the real world is like.
thought the end would never come, we say.

so why was everyone crying at graduation?

commencement: the last beginning father lou spoke the invocation, and dr. john made us forget the rain outside for the last time.

robert goralski tempered our cynicism, and dean schoffield received our respect.

then, so easily, it was all over.

in spite of all the frustrations which the pages of this book carries, i am sorry to see it end. the task that the staff faced in september was a formidable one, and, looking back, i wonder how we ever did it.

we faced a few problems which, to us, seemed complex and sensitive. the question of "what is censorship?" plagued us in several areas. we never really found an answer, but in the search we learned a great deal.

we decided to stick with the name "mnemonic"—for no reason other than that we liked it. but there is no doubt it will change again in future years, and maybe for the better.

there are many people this year's staff as a whole would like to thank: mrs. beard for all the typing she did for the book, the computer center for their help in getting us lists, and chris spencer for the wonderful senior pictures.

and i would like to thank a few people for all the work they put into this book, especially linda lamoreux, and mary-jo joseph who by now have certainly earned their letters in senior section, belinda bonds and barb kohler for running errands and keeping up the spirit when it was sorely needed keeping up, susie blackman for that wonderful letter that really helped out the bank account, demetrios mallios and pat gunther for their sales pizzaz, mike may for plagueing the phys ed department when we needed rosters and schedules, and, lastly, two people without whom this book wouldn't have gotten off the ground:

coy harris, our publisher's rep, and mike gosman, the business manager.

to these two people, the 1974 mnemonic owes its deepest debt, and i my most sincere thanks.
