DEFINING MOMENTS

By themselves, single pieces of colored glass are beautiful, but when they are combined, they form a unified artwork, and its power is awe-inspiring. In much the same way, each of us is a part of this complex community, capable of working together to achieve great things; our cooperation is just as beautiful as the art of the stained glass designs. Each of our victories, no matter how small, is a defining moment in our collective history as a generation. And like the stained glass, we shall leave an awesome legacy.

But what is our "lifestyle"? Can you put a finger on it? Are all college students really the same?

Some may choose to think so. But we know that we are clones of one another just as much as we are clones of our parents. And maybe that's the best part about being here.

Many first year students, upon their arrival on campus, begin to discover things about themselves and their world that they did not know before. Maybe they have never encountered someone whose native language is something other than English. Maybe they've never shared a room. Certainly they've never experienced anything quite like Glar. But these are the things one learns about after class lets out.

And what types of activities are offered to students on the Hill? What exactly does one do outside of the classroom? WMC sponsors many organizations which, in turn, provide activities for students. These range from blockbuster films and fascinating lectures to theatrical and musical events to parties and dances held throughout the academic year. This wide range of offerings is designed to appeal to everyone. Whether you're interested in the history of Little Baker Chapel, which is 100 years old this year, or if you're just interested in having a good time, there is something on campus for you. This way, everyone can get involved, whether it be in the planning, execution, and/or enjoyment of these activities.

But even all of these goings-on do not round out our definition of Campus Life. Campus Life means hanging out with your friends. It means lounging in the grass around Red Square on a sunny day. It means calling the information desk on a dark and blustery winter morning to find out if your professor is stuck in the snow. It means doing homework. It means getting along with your roommate. It even means going to class now and then.

Campus Life includes all those things that one learns in his or her first days here: that the dining hall is called "Glar," that it's okay to check your mail six times a day, that the quickest way to dinner from Daniel MacLea is through Rouzer, and that you probably shouldn't be in such a rush to get to dinner anyway. These are the things we'll remember; these are the things we'll talk about at our reunions.

So, as you flip through the following pages, be enlightened! Discover what really goes on up here on the Hill, and get involved. These, after all, are our defining moments.

Homecoming '94: Sharing the Memories

Parties, Parades and faces of the past! All three are essential parts of a successful Homecoming. Western Maryland's 1994 Homecoming had it all and provided a great weekend for faculty, students and alumni alike!

Homecoming weekend began on Saturday, October 14th with a very special treat. Because it was the 75th anniversary of Army ROTC at Western Maryland, the Army's Silent Drill Team came to the "Hill" and put on a show not to be forgotten. The next activity on the agenda was the Homecoming Parade down Main Street, Westminster. Participants ranged from fraternities and sororities to campus clubs. The winner of the Best Float award was the Black Student Union. The day continued with the WMC Terrors taking on Dickinson College in the much awaited Homecoming Game. Unfortunately, although the team had enthusiastic support from students and alumni, they were defeated.

Maybe the best part of the weekend was that it gave graduates a chance to renew old friendships, meet the next generation of Western Maryland College and visit the alma mater they grew to love during their college years!

So what has been going on lately?

"So, what has been going lately?" That was one of the most asked questions during Welcome Back Weekend. This was the weekend that the whole student body was back on campus. Many different things were going on: friends getting together to reminisce about their summers, sharing gossip about old friends that had moved on to bigger and better things. But, whether you were partying with old friends, getting to know your new roommate better, or just trying to get adjusted and fit in, one major thought was quickly spreading through campus. It was time to face the reality that free time was over and get back to work!

HALLOWEEN: A Frightful Night

Who said Halloween is just for kids? This year, many students got dressed up in costumes and danced the night away at a party sponsored by the International Club, held in the basement of Daniel MacLea. Also, during that night of howls, creaks, and things that go bump in the night, Alpha Psi Omega, the Theatre Arts honor society, put on a Ghost Show and a Haunted House in Alumni Hall. These horrifying WMC traditions attracted not only many students and faculty, but residents of Westminster and the surrounding area as well. A frightfully good time was had by all!

Hi Mom...  Hi Dad, what's up?

Preparation for the weekend of September 30, 1994 was keeping all the students busy, doing laundry, cleaning, and making themselves and their dorm rooms look presentable. What was all the fuss about? Parent's weekend of course. After assuring themselves that their "babies" were alive and well, the parents threw themselves wholeheartedly into the weekend activities. Friday's activities included a family dinner and comedian. On Saturday campus tours were given, a picnic lunch was set up, a number of receptions were held, and Jazz Night kept toes tapping well into the evening. A golf tournament, a church service, and a brunch on Sunday concluded the weekend. A little stress for the students was definitely worth it. The students and their families had a great time and the weekend was a definite success.

Want to go Into the Woods?

That's right! On Nov. 11, 12, 13, 18, 19, and 20 the WMC theatre department put on its annual fall production. This year, the department staged a musical that told the story of six classical fairy tales that intertwine with one another to create a series of horrors and magical mayhem. The show was directed by Elizabeth van den Berg with musical director Dr. Margaret Boudreaux. This was the first show in the newly renovated Alumni Hall. Yet, once again, the theatre department put on a fabulous show.

Welcome to your new home.

The dorm: can it really be called that anymore? Or, should it be called home, since you will spend about nine months here away from your parents. Dorm life is a big part of the college experience; whether you go greek or not, the dorm is just as important as the classroom. Your own private space is valuable for many things, like studying for classes or just hanging out with friends while you gain some independence from your relatives. So, have fun and, for probably the first time, live the way that you feel like living.

What to do? Where to go on the weekends?

What to do and where to go? These two important questions are asked by students all the time as the great weekend approaches, and they are always baffling. If a student lives close enough to home and is lucky enough to have a car on campus, he or she may decide to go home and see parents, siblings, or more importantly, a boy/girlfriend. Other students may opt to go to Baltimore or D.C. for a night or two. But, for those students not lucky enough to possess a car on campus, there are a few options that they still have open. For starters, if you are of legal drinking age, there is always Champs, Tully's, or The Westminster Inn, all in convenient walking distance of campus or at least close enough to ride along with friends. If not, there is always Cranberry Mall, with many types of stores and a movie theatre. Or, if you are not up for walking or driving to the mall, you can always stay on campus; there is usually something happening. And last, but surely not least, a student here at college could always use the weekend to catch up or even try and get ahead on all of that homework!

This year has been a special one in more ways than one for ROTC. The program has increased its enrollment to the highest it has been in the past five years, and placed eleventh out of thirty-one teams at the Brigade Ranger Challenge Shootout, a major feat for one of the smallest programs in the country. Most notable, however, is that this year marks 75 years of ROTC at WMC.

ROTC does not only provide exceptional instruction in the field of military science, but also provides a wide array of activities for its members to choose from. Some of the favorites: Color Guard, Adventure Training, Ranger Challenge Competition, Rappelling, Gettysburg Tour, Field Training at Army Posts, Parachute Training, Helicopter Assault Training, Rifle Marksmanship, and more.

15 Years of Sisterhood and Service.

Alpha Nu Omega, one of two local sororities on campus, is the newest here on the Hill. The sorority was founded in September of 1979. Today, the sorority is home to about 45 sisters and over 250 alumni. The Omegas are involved in numerous philanthropic activities including Boy Scouts of America, The American Red Cross, and the American Cancer Society.

Just recently, the Omegas celebrated fifteen years of pride and unity on the Hill. Within these fifteen years here at WMC, the Omegas have laid claim to several honors and achievements, including the James Brant Memorial for excellence in a Greek organization, first in overall Greek academics, and countless others. The Omegas take great pride in their sorority. The friendships gained through the sorority will last a lifetime.

Lights, Camera, Action!

Robin Williams, Jack Nicholson, and many others come to WMC every couple of weeks to showcase their acting talents in Decker Auditorium. Well...that isn't exactly true, but many top rated box office hits do come to WMC throughout the year to provide students with some entertainment. In most cases movies screened on campus are the average student's best bet for quality films. CAPBoard sponsors many films for viewing by the entire campus community.

And, lacking the bucks for Cranberry Mall or the video store, the price is always right: usually one to two dollars. These great offerings constitute the best sort of movie watching for the average college student on The Hill.

From Classical to Jazz:
WMC Means More Music

Although not the biggest department at WMC, the music department is alive and growing. A great number of students, music majors and those of every other discipline, take private lessons in brass, percussion, woodwind, and string instruments, as well as voice. Concerts put on by the campus bands and choirs are well attended by faculty, students, and members of the community. Directed by Margaret Boudreaux, the Campus choir welcomes everyone and meets once a week. The Madrigals perform in period costume and are often found performing in Westminster and the surrounding area.

While voice is a popular choice for the musically minded, instrumental music is also very strong. Students are active in the Concert and Jazz bands, as well as Jazz Workshop and many other less formal and smaller instrumental ensembles. The Concert band more than doubled in size second semester and included community members. There were two Jazz bands this semester, as well as the Jazz Workshop, and all the students who were involved thoroughly enjoyed the opportunity to jam with the dedicated members of the music department faculty. There is no doubt that Western Maryland will always have music ringing throughout campus!
Students go Global

Over Jan term this year, a number of students as well as professors went outside of the United States to broaden their knowledge of the world. Such was the case with Dr. Mohammed Esa of the Foreign Language Department. He took his students over to Germany, Switzerland, and Austria to sample the different cultures and take in some of the beautiful sights as well. Along those same lines and on the same continent, Dr. James Lightner took his biennial trip to England to show students where great artists like William Shakespeare wrote their wonderful works. For those who wanted a warmer climate to gain credits, Mrs. Sarah Sayre, Dean Sayre's wife, took her group of students down to the Bahamas for a tropical Marine Biology trip. Even for those who were unable to get away, Jan term still offered a variety of classes and much needed time to unwind.

On April 7, 1995 WMC held its annual All-Campus semi-formal. The dance took place on the Spirit of Baltimore down in the inner harbor. This was a time for students to forget about all of the end of semester work that they still had to do and just to have fun for a couple of hours. The dance lasted from 11 PM to 2 AM, and by the time it was over and the ship was tied back up to the pier, most students had had a really great time and were glad they had gone. The semi-formal was definitely a defining moment that many college students will carry with them forever.

Leading Double Lives
Professors who teach & write books too

Welcome to your friendly neighborhood bookstore. Inside you will discover many items of interest such as stickers, food, sweatshirts, and oh, yeah—books! If you look carefully enough you may even recognize a few of the titles as books you were supposed to buy for classes. But upon further review you may actually notice that some of those entries up for sale are works of art by our very own Western Maryland faculty. Yes, there is life beyond students, exam booklets, sports, and graduation ceremonies. For these professors, instructing their pupils in theory and practice is just not enough.

Dr. LeRoy L. Panek is well known for his teaching of British Literature in the English department, but he has also published several books about Elizabethan drama, Central European literature and made commentary on such authors as Emerson and Poe as well. In addition to writing about his field of expertise, he finds the time to write crime/suspense novels, one of which won the prestigious Edgar award. With so many books already on the shelves, it is a wonder where he finds the time to do quality writing, as well as provide outstanding instruction here at WMC!

Dr. Kathy Mangan is also a literature instructor here on campus, but in her other life away from Western Maryland, she takes the time to collect her thoughts and put them to paper. In her new book, Above the Tree Line, she expresses her feelings about life and the world around her. It too has received critical accolades. For now, she is happy instructing here at WMC.

One additional entry on the shelves is that of Dr. Mona Kerby, who during the day teaches children's literature. At night, her alternate career kicks in as a children's literature author. She is sure to be penning many more books in the future but her students always come first.

As our tour concludes of our campus bookstore, remember the names of your professors. Someday in the near or distant future, you may very well see that name again on the top of the New York Times Bestseller list and in Waldenbooks. Leading a double life as a professor and as an author is no easy task, and we are very lucky to have these talented people and the many others like them who teach here.

Sun, Fun, Music, and Food

The weather was great and the weekend could not have been better. Friday April 28th and Saturday April 29th were the dates of Western Maryland College’s annual Spring Fling. There were many different things to do, ranging from the outdoor movie, Interview with the Vampire on Friday night, to an American Picnic dinner in the quad on Saturday. There were tons of food, including funnel cakes, provided Beta Beta Beta. CAPBoard planned a lot of different activities, and overall everyone on The Hill had a enjoyable weekend.

Renovations Give Older Buildings New Life & Look

WMC is getting a new look! Directors of the Western Maryland Renovation Project have slated most of the buildings on campus for either immediate or future improvements. The buildings included in immediate plans are Memorial, Peterson, Lewis, and Levine Halls, as well as Little Baker Chapel. With an estimated cost of $10 million, fundraising efforts are going strong. A special loan from the state government of $3 million must be used to restore historically significant buildings such as Memorial, Peterson, and Little Baker, and donations from alumni and friends of the college are expected to provide the rest. $1 million was given by longtime friend of WMC, Mrs. Peterson, specifically for improvements to the Fine Arts Building, which was rededicated in her honor. Also undergoing major renovations is Memorial Hall. As the project ran significantly behind schedule, many students were introduced to the library, where classes were held during the 1994-1995 school year. In addition, a new roof was put on Little Baker Chapel and Alumni Hall was made handicap accessible.

There are more plans in the works. Plans to redesign Englar Dining Hall are in progress, and set to begin in the late summer of 1995. A brand new science lab building and dorm improvements are also on the drawing board.

It's almost time...

Yes, seniors, it's almost time to walk across that stage and get your degree. But, first WMC wants to let you know how much we all appreciate the hard work you have done. Senior Week is a time to take part in all kinds of fun activities ranging from a Faculty/Student Softball Game to the Fells Point Pub Crawl, along with other great events in the making. An Orioles baseball game, along with other trips, makes this time truly fun and relaxing, and it can't hurt that all those pesky underclassmen have gone home! Senior week is the time when the class of 1995 gets to look back on all its experiences and the bonds made by soon-to-be alumni during their four years here on The Hill.

Four years down, a lifetime to go.

Four years down, and a lifetime to go. That is the meaning behind Graduation Day: four long years of all-nighters, fifteen page papers, and math problems no one really wanted to do. The events of May 20, 1995 were best summed up by the College Choir, when they sang the song Good Morning. As the crowd listened, the graduates realized that this is the beginning of a new day, the first day of the rest of their lives. As the 383 names of people who received degrees were read off, the past four years came back in a flood of emotions: the good, the not so good, the hard, and the not so hard. Many friendships and other bonds were formed and hopefully will last the test of time. Yet, one of the things perhaps overlooked by graduates on commencement day is the people they will leave behind, and all of the unspoken words by the professors and fellow students they knew. But, from all of us still on The Hill, to the class of 1995: Good Luck and Best Wishes.

And what purposes we have. They are differing in content and in scope. We gather into groups for diverse reasons, and affect various and sometimes conflicting outcomes on our environment and our community.

But in the end, we gather together so that we can do good things: for ourselves, our friends, our neighbors, our planet. We organize ourselves around similar beliefs, convictions, and questions. We want validation, and we want answers.

Organizations do not have to be formal. They do not have to have presidents and vice presidents and treasurers, although they often do. But always they have leaders, instigators, pushers, who strive for each member of the group personally, and the organization collectively, to reach his, her, or its goals.

Service organizations, religious groups, Greek societies, publication staffs, music groups, art and language clubs, and every other organized group in the WMC community makes a difference everyday on this campus and in this world. These forces are too numerous to count and cannot all be represented on these pages. We have, however, gathered some of the most influential and prestigious organizations which Western Maryland College has to offer and have profiled them here. We hope you will consider joining one or more of these groups in the coming years at WMC—AB : )
The Arts at WMC

Students find outlet for creative expression and appreciation in several organizations at WMC. Publications such as Contrast, Crossroads, and The Phoenix offer both the opportunity to have one's work showcased and to gain experience in the technical field of publishing. Contrast, WMC’s creative arts magazine, accepts for publication any original poetry, prose, artwork and photography from the campus community. The staff of the yearbook, Crossroads, works throughout the year to produce an annual publication which can be treasured as a remembrance of time spent on the Hill. Finally, Lisa T. Hill, Editor of The Phoenix, a biweekly, student run newspaper, cites its purpose as informing “the student body and the campus community about newsworthy events that are important to their lives.”

Music groups are also central to the arts at WMC. Musicians are at work all around us. Some of the more visible groups on campus include the Jazz Ensemble, Jazz Workshop, and the WMC Pep Band. According to Becky Duex, a member of both the Jazz Ensemble and Workshop, these two groups “explore various means of musical expression in a relaxed, enjoyable environment.” By way of contrast, Micah Humbert and the rest of the Pep Band go for the opposite effect. He says that at every home football game, where they perform from the stands, the band sets out “to amuse, confuse, and enthuse the WMC Terrors by rallying the crowd into a euphoric jubilation via a motley collection of music, cheers, and chants.”

Finally, rounding out the arts at WMC, Gallery One, directed by Chester Stacy, is open for both the campus community’s and the public’s perusal. Chester says that the Gallery is designed “to provide display of regional artists to enrich reach of information and comparison for on campus artists and the public.”

GREEK ΣΟΞΙΕΤΙΕΣ
(GREEK SOCIETIES)

If you asked, as I have, each Greek society at WMC to state its purpose, you would get the same three-fold answer all around the board: friendship, academics, and service. These three ideals seem to be those which bind both fraternities and sororities at WMC.

There are a number of these groups on the campus, and they are very visible. The fraternities include Alpha Gamma Tau, Gamma Beta Chi, and Phi Delta Theta, while the sororities on campus are Alpha Nu Omega, Phi Alpha Mu, Phi Mu, and Phi Sigma Sigma. Some are national and some are local, but they all seem to share some of the same goals.

As an example, the Phi Alpha Chapter of the Phi Mu Fraternity works for such philanthropic endeavors as Project Hope and the Children’s Miracle Network. Alpha Nu Omega strives toward its goals of sisterhood through unity, diversity, and friendship. According to president James Felton, Phi Delta Theta “promotes brotherhood, as well as excellence in academics, and philanthropic services.” These are just of few examples of the responses I received.

In addition to the individual societies, there are two larger organizations which serve Greeks and the campus as a whole. The Panhellenic Council is designed to foster relations among the sororities and to organize and oversee rush. The Inter-Greek Council, according to its president, Donna Munson, promotes “the ideals of the Greek system to the WMC community, as well as to insure harmonious relations among the Greek organizations.”

The final and most permeating purpose of the Greek societies at WMC is to have fun, so if Greek life seems right for you, you are urged to get involved.

A Sense of Self

When attending a college as diverse as WMC, many say that they enjoy and take advantage of the opportunity to experience new cultures and value systems. Nevertheless, it is important to consider one's own religious and ethnic identity. There are a number of groups on campus which are designed to cater to this need. Several faiths are represented including Judaism, Baha'i, and Christianity.

The Christian Fellowship is one such organization. Amy Sheriff says that the groups purpose is "to provide a group fellowship for Christian students, and to reach out to non-Christians." Everyone is welcome to join Happy Hour every other week, where there are games, singing, and a speaker. There are also fellowship meetings, carpools to church, and activities planned off campus, such as Christmas carolling at a local nursing home.

The WMC Catholic Ministry is a new group on campus this year, headed by Ms. Mary Ann Friday. The Ministry offers Masses on campus and "promotes Catholic values to the Community."

Cultural identity is just as important as religious identity for many students. The Black Student Union, according to President Calvin Lineberger, works "to unite all African-American students of WMC and foster an understanding of our culture to the WMC community."

The BSU has worked hard this year to counter the deplorable racially-motivated vandalism and harassment which unfortunately took place on campus this year.

Finally, the Spanish Club works to make everyone aware of the Hispanic culture. Members share an interest in the language, and put on many foreign films throughout the year.

Self-Definition
Interest and Service Groups

Students at WMC have a variety of interests and concerns. There is a corresponding large number of organizations which center themselves around these interests.

The WMC Pom-Pon Squad is a group of talented women who provide "dance performance during half-time entertainment" at Green Terror football games, according to leader Sally Hall. Their routines are always unique, fun to watch, and showcase the athletic ability of the squad's members. They make it a bit less tempting to head for the hot dog stand at half-time.

The Cheerleaders, on the other hand, work during the entire game, and not only for football. Captain Julie Esher says that the goal of the Cheerleaders is "to support Western Maryland College and its sports teams." Their spirited cheers, as well as death-defying pyramids, throws, and other gymnastic feats of daring make any sport more fun and exciting.

While the Cheerleaders and the Pom-Pons are working on the field, WMCR, our campus radio station is working off the field, selling Football programs. This is one of the station's biggest fundraisers during the year, and it allows them to continue bringing the latest hits to campus, via the your AM dial, or channel 3. Working as a deejay can be a great outlet for overly stressed students.

Finally, there are a great number of service groups on campus. One such group is C.A.R.E., Children's Activities and Recreational Events. C.A.R.E. provides fun and wholesome activities for local children, and it serves "to increase the awareness in young children of college life." President Amy Luebhenhuen says that, "by experiencing activities on a college campus, college will hopefully be a reality to [these children] in the future."

linked by one of the most important aspects of each of their lives: Western Maryland College. For most of us, living here seven months of the year, or maybe more, inevitably causes all of our lives to become intertwined to the extent that one person is linked to dozens of others. If we drew it out, it would look like a spider's web, catching memories like dew drops at dawn.

One person's actions cannot help but affect another's life. Each class shares a special bond as it rushes toward graduation. Everyone helps everyone else so that no one will not fall too far behind. We share laughter and smiles, sadness and tears, as well as groans of frustration, all the while finding out a little bit more about ourselves in the process.

Just walking across campus, one can see this bond we share, this common interest that helps us make it through our years here at Western Maryland. The questions and problems may change, but human nature does not. And, of course, there are still classes, papers, tests, Friday and Saturday night parties, athletic events, and hanging out with friends. This, we share.

Whether watching or playing, sports provide a diversion from the everyday hassles of academic life. At Western Maryland College, there are opportunities to participate in twenty-one varsity teams. Intercollegiate competition fosters a strong sense of school spirit. This competition leads to team solidarity which encourages friendships on and off the field. Solidarity is key when facing tough competition, and WMC has used this to stand up to its challenges with some memorable victories. Together, the WMC athletes have provided a great deal of excitement around campus. Everyone has memories of that one defining moment when everything was put on the line for the taste of victory.
Davis, Freshmen Women Top Teams

A trip to the NCAA Division III championships by Greg Davis, and strong performances by a pair of freshmen women were the highlights of the 1994 Western Maryland cross country season.

Davis became the first Green Terror male to compete in the history of the Division III championships. The sophomore earned the honor by placing fifth in the Mideast Regional race a week prior to the national competition, earning All-Region first-team status.

In the national meet at Lehigh University, Davis finished 60th in a field of 184.

The Western Maryland women fielded one of their largest squads in recent years, with at least eight runners competing in all the regular-season events.

Freshmen Laurie Cicero and Emily Shenk joined senior Erin Jenkins as the leading female runners. Cicero was 23rd and Jenkins 28th as Western Maryland was fifth of 10 teams at the Centennial Conference championship.

The Green Terror women fielded a complete team at the Mideast Regional for the first time in 11 years, and ended up 15th out of 33 squads. Jenkins led the way for the Green Terror, coming in 58th out of 194 finishers.

Western Maryland was seventh in the nine-team Centennial men’s championship, with Davis ending in eighth place.

Emily Flemming, Jennifer Light, Erin Jenkins, Laurie Cicero, and Emily Shenk are off to a strong start.

Overall Record 9-5

The defense gets set for the penalty play.

Heather Seburg reaches to block the shot on goal.
A strong finish enabled the 1994 Western Maryland field hockey team to tie the school record for nine wins in a season and produce an impressive turnaround in the program.

The Green Terror concluded the year with four wins in its last five games to post a 9-5 overall record and tie the 1987 team (9-4) for most victories. It was Western Maryland's first winning season since the 1990 squad went 6-5-2, and a six-game improvement over the 1993 mark of 3-11.

A steady offense, outstanding defense and two fine freshmen goalies all contributed to the resurgence. Sophomore Kellie Mitros topped the Green Terror, which notched at least one goal in each game, in scoring with seven goals. She was an All-Centennial Conference (CC) first-team selection after earning second-team honors as a freshman.

Junior Heather Seaburg was a leading player at both ends of the field, scoring two goals and assisting the defense in registering six shutouts. She was picked to the All-CC second team, while second-leading scorer Amy Grocki (3 goals, team-high 5 assists) was an honorable-mention selection.

Freshmen goalies Melissa Price and Ali Forman each posted two solo shutouts and teamed with another teammate in a third.

Western Maryland's 6-3 mark in the Centennial was good for third place in the 10-team league.
FOOTBALL
Strong Stretch Produces Winning Season

Five wins in a span of six games in the middle portion of the 1994 schedule enabled the Western Maryland football team to climb over the .500 mark for the first time since 1990 with a 5-4 overall record.

The Green Terror opened the year with a heart-breaking 21-20 loss at Juniata, after leading 20-7 with under five minutes to play, followed by a 35-14 defeat to Gettysburg. The turnaround started in the third game, when senior Dung Dinh booted a 32-yard field goal with two seconds remaining for a 22-20 win at Ursinus.

WMC followed with victories over Muhlenberg and Randolph-Macon. before falling to eventual Centennial Conference champion and NCAA Division III playoff participant Dickinson. A tight one-point win followed at Franklin & Marshall, with a more comfortable triumph over Swarthmore clinching the first winning season since the 1990 squad ended up 6-3-1.

The Western Maryland passing game was in high gear for the second straight season, and three of its key components made the All-Centennial team. Senior Alan Pietkiewicz tied his 1993 single-season record for catches with 59, and was awarded a first-team spot. Junior quarterback Brian Van Deusen completed over 58 percent of his passes (180 of 309) last season for 2,312 yards and 17 touchdowns. Senior Butch Schaffer was on the receiving end of 51 balls overall, including a school record-tying eight for touchdowns, resulting in 833 yards, a new WMC mark.

Also making the All-CC squad were senior tackle Rob Nightingale on the second-team offense, and junior tackle Joe Krcma on the honorable-mention defense.

One-Goal Losses Prove Frustrating

After a promising start, the 1994 Western Maryland men’s soccer team found the going tough as it finished the year with a 4-12-2 overall record.

The Green Terror lost its season opener to Carnegie Mellon, which earned a berth in the NCAA Division III playoffs, before going 3-0-1 in its next four contests.

Western Maryland then went exactly one month without a win or a tie. The stretch included nine consecutive losses, including five straight by one goal. The final defeat in the skid was another one-goal heartbreaker at home to Centennial Conference (CC) rival Johns Hopkins, the eventual Division III runner-up.

A 2-2 conference tie versus Washington ended the frustration, and the Green Terror got a shot in the arm with a 3-2 upset at Gettysburg in the final week of the season. The win was Western Maryland’s first over the Bullets since 1988, and knocked Gettysburg out of the Division III playoff picture.

Seniors Chris Kaplan and Matt St. Jean were All-CC second-team selections. Kaplan topped the Green Terror in scoring with seven goals, and St. Jean posted a goals-against average of just 2.06. Matt Massey, another senior, and sophomore Mac Wilson were All-CC honorable-mention picks.

The Green Terror ended the Centennial portion of its schedule with a 1-7-1 mark.
Women's Soccer

Late Surge Leads to Second Place

After its first four Centennial Conference (CC) games of the season, the Western Maryland women's soccer team was just 1-3. However, the Green Terror finished with a flourish, going 3-0-1 in the second half of the conference schedule to grab a share of second place after finishing in a tie for last place in 1993.

Western Maryland’s late-season rally, which included wins over Johns Hopkins, Dickinson and Muhlenberg, lifted it to a 6-9-1 overall record. The Green Terror’s 4-3-1 CC mark left it knotted with Dickinson for the runner-up spot behind Gettysburg (8-0), which barely edged Western Maryland 3-2 in Westminster.

For the second consecutive season, Western Maryland featured the All-CC first-team goalkeeper. Freshman Julie Backof earned the honor in 1994, following the graduated Sarah Kephart the year before. Backof stopped 180 opponents’ shots and managed a stellar 1.76 goals-against average.

Included on the All-CC second team were senior co-captains Christa Mose and Paula Moyer. Mose, who moved up after being an honorable-mention pick in 1993, scored two goals and two assists, and Moyer chipped in one goal and one assist in addition to playing top-notch defense.

Another member of the defense, sophomore Missy Baldwin, and leading scorer Erin Kelly (9 goals, 1 assist), a freshman, qualified for All-CC honorable-mention status.

A group of six seniors finished their Western Maryland volleyball careers in fine fashion, earning a share of the Centennial Conference (CC) championship.

Senior Denise Spangler was the leading Green Terror in kills with 396, attack attempts with 1,085 and attack percentage at .208. She was selected to the All-CC first team this year, and placed second in the balloting for the conference's Player of the Year honor. Spangler was an All-CC second-teamer in 1993.

Krista Shaffer, another senior, played in all 42 matches for the Green Terror. The outside hitter topped the team in digs with 358, and finished second in kills with 273, attack attempts with 952 and attack percentage with a .182 mark. An All-CC second-team pick in 1994 after earning honorable-mention status last season, she added 29 service aces and 29 blocks this year.

Co-captains Spangler and Shaffer also were picked to the American Volleyball Coaches Association Division III All-Middle Atlantic Region team.

Earning All-CC honorable-mention recognition was senior hitter Jen Jensen, who along with Shaffer, Spangler, and classmates Anne Plunkett and Tineka Ilyes helped the Green Terror compile a record of 115-48 in their four seasons.

MEN'S BASKETBALL
15-Year Playoff Drought Ends

The last time a Western Maryland men's basketball team qualified for postseason play, most of the student-athletes on the 1994-95 team still associated the word 'bird' with winged creatures in the sky and 'magic' as something performed by a bearded man in a long black cape.

The year was 1980, Larry Bird and Earvin 'Magic' Johnson were rookies in the National Basketball Association, and the 1994-95 Green Terror players ranged from ages three to seven. WMC placed second in the Middle Atlantic Conference (MAC)-Southwest Section, but lost its first playoff game in the conference's Southern Division semifinals to Ursinus (Pa.) College 68-64.

Bird and Magic have since fashioned legendary careers in the NBA, and WMC has left the MAC for the Centennial Conference (CC). And this season, those boys of 1980 made the Green Terror's first playoff appearance in 15 years.

WMC finished second in the CC-Western Division with a 7-6 conference mark to earn a trip to the conference semifinals. Unfortunately, the playoff stay was a brief one, as CC-Eastern champion Muhlenberg blew open a close game down the stretch for a 78-54 victory.

Western Maryland compiled an 11-14 overall record, with five wins in its final seven regular-season games fueling the second-place divisional finish.

Sophomore Daeviid St. Rose, an All-CC second-team pick, was the leading scorer for the Green Terror and fifth in the conference with a 15.6 points-per-game mark. A 6-foot-3 forward, St. Rose also topped the WMC rebounders (5.7 average) and came in second in blocked shot (21).

Senior Pat Young earned All-CC honorable-mention status. He was second on the team in scoring after contributing 13.6 points per contest. The 6-foot guard also topped the Green Terror in assists (4.0 per game) and steals (1.9 per game).

In addition, Young set WMC single-season records for three-point field goals made (64) and attempted (166). He also holds the school career marks in those categories with 194 treys in 528 attempts, and concludes his career in ninth place on the Green Terror career scoring list with 1,163 points.
GOLF

Freshmen & Sophomores Key Success

Repeating the efforts of last year's unit, the 1995 Western Maryland golf team placed second in the Centennial Conference (CC) championship tournament behind two-time champion Gettysburg.

Three Green Terror golfers placed in the top 10 at the CC tourney, contested at Eagle's Landing Golf Club, just outside of Ocean City, Md. Freshmen Mike Diehl and Tony Worm tied for the seventh spot, and senior Brian Gallizzo concluded his career with a 10th-place finish.

Diehl turned out to post the team's lowest season average with a mark of 82.1 strokes per round. Freshman Matt Harding and sophomore Greg Hebding, who finished in a tie for 11th at the CC championship, also shared a final per-round average of 82.8 strokes. The future holds much promise as Gallizzo was the lone senior on the 13-player team, which also had no juniors.

Another high point of the season was the Green team coming in second, just one shot off the lead, and the Gold squad third, just one more stroke back, at the 17-team WMC Invitational on the College course.

14-9 overall

Katie Haley looks to pass the ball to an open teammate.

Kristen Drapalski goes for an easy two points with a lay-up.
The 1994-95 Western Maryland women’s basketball team was thought to be too inexperienced to compete successfully in the Centennial Conference (CC). Out of the 10 players on the team, five were sophomores and four were freshmen.

So, much to the surprise of many observers, the Green Terror not only posted a winning record but nearly secured a spot in the CC playoffs. All that separated WMC from a postseason berth were a three-point loss to Dickinson and a two-point heart-breaker to Gettysburg in its final two games. The tight defeats left the Green Terror with a 14-9 overall mark, 9-5 in the CC.

The offensive attack was a fairly balanced one, with three players averaging in double figures. Leading the way was sophomore Sandi Dejager, whose 15.7 points per game earned her a spot on the All-CC first team. Freshman Katie Haley quickly made her presence known, contributing 13.0 points and 8.2 rebounds per contest to finish second on the team in both categories.

Concluding her career in fine fashion was senior Denise Spangler. The forward topped the team in rebounding, pulling down 9.9 boards per outing, while adding 10.8 points to the attack. Spangler leaves WMC as the third-leading rebounder in women’s basketball history with 640.

Patrolling the middle was sophomore center Heidi Snyder. The 6-foot-4 Snyder blocked 3.6 shots per game to place in the Division III top 10 for the second consecutive season.

Having a good all-around season was sophomore Erin Murphey. The speedy guard averaged 9.8 points and 4.5 rebounds, in addition to team highs of 4.1 assists and 2.2 steals.
Swimming
Record Book Takes a Beating

If a swimming team’s success can be measured by the number of records it breaks, then the Western Maryland squads of 1994-95 were simply outstanding.

The Green Terror men posted nine new school records, seven of them coming in the Centennial Conference (CC) championship meet at Swarthmore. Sophomore Peter Fuller set new marks while winning the 200-yard individual medley, and finishing second in the 100 breaststroke and fourth in the 200 breast.

Fuller’s classmate, Mike Welter, was seventh in the 100 backstroke and eighth in the 200 back while setting new Green Terror records. Finally, senior Paul Matkovic set new marks in the 500, 1,000 and 1,650-yard freestyle events, with the record in the 500 coming at the CC meet.

Matkovic, Welter and Fuller joined with Kevin Lundell to set the 800 freestyle relay record at Swarthmore as well, as the Green Terror men placed fifth out of seven teams.

Senior Buffy Burke concluded an outstanding career for the Western Maryland women by winning the Centennial 500 freestyle title in school-record time. She went on to place second in the 200 free and third in the 100.

Karen Alexander duplicated Burke’s Centennial effort with a first place in the 200 backstroke, a runner-up finish in the 400 individual medley, and a third in the 100 back. The junior then earned NCAA Division III All-America honorable-mention status by garnering 14th place in the 200 back and 15th in the 100 back at the divisional championship at Wesleyan (Conn.) University in March.

The Green Terror, who were sixth of eight teams in the Centennial meet, went 8-4 in the dual-meet season. Western Maryland’s men were 5-6.

Wrestling
Record Affected by Lack of Lightweights

With only 10 weight classes in collegiate wrestling, a team can ill afford to give its opponents free points via forfeits. Unfortunately, the 1994-95 Western Maryland team had no one to fill the 118 and 126-pound divisions the entire season, and the 12 points that went to the other teams played a large role in the Green Terror finishing 4-14.

Despite the poor dual-meet record, several team members had outstanding seasons for first-year head coach John Lowe. Topping the squad in wins was Phil Simmerer with a 12-6 record in the 167 and 177-pound classes. The sophomore joined freshmen Steve Smiddy and Jeff Kellmer as third-place finishers in the Centennial Conference championship tournament.

Smiddy, the team’s 134-pounder, went on to place fifth at the NCAA Division III East Regional and end his first season with a 10-10 mark. Kellmer wound up 9-10, splitting his time between 190 and heavyweight.

The highest placewinner at the Centennial championship was junior Joe Flemming, who was the 177-pound runner-up. He went 11-6 on the year.

Tying for the team lead in pins with five were junior Justin Mikulski and sophomore Rick Estes. Each member of that duo also won 10 matches.

Western Maryland placed fifth out of seven schools in the Centennial tournament which determines the conference champion.

Joe Flemming’s concentration is apparent as he practices with Jeff Kellmer in preparation for the upcoming match.

4-14 overall
Western Maryland made an impressive debut on the Centennial Conference (CC) track scene in 1994 by sharing the women's outdoor championship, and placing second in both the men's indoor and outdoor meets.

The 1995 Green Terror squads proved that last year's efforts were indeed for real, as the men again finished second in both meets and the women came in fourth outdoors.

One of the big reasons the WMC men were able to maintain second place behind Haverford were the impressive performances of Donte Abron. The sophomore won the 55-meter dash and long jump at the CC indoor meet. He then was selected the Male Performer of the Meet outdoors after winning the 100 dash and triple jump, and placing second in the long jump.

Also capturing a CC indoor title was senior Bill Tyrrell in the 55-meter hurdles. Outdoors, Kent Lightboum was a repeat winner in both the 400 dash and 400 hurdles, Tyrrell won again in the 110 hurdles. Carl Von Tobel posted his second straight victory in the javelin, and the 400 relay unit of Abron, Tyrrell, Lightboum and Alejandro Welch also was victorious.

The women's effort was headed by Erin Murphey and Jenny Spahr. Sophomore Murphey placed in the 100 (4th), 200 (3rd), and 400 (2nd) dashes, while freshman Spahr was third in the 100 and fourth in the 200.

Von Tobel then capped WMC's fine year as the runner-up at the NCAA Division III championship at Carleton (Minn.) College with a school-record toss of 217 feet, five inches. For the junior, it was the third All-America recognition of his career. He placed eighth in the Division II javelin event in 1993 while at Bloomsburg, and moved up three spots last year for WMC.

Abron (100 dash), Tyrrell (110 hurdles) and Lightboum (400 hurdles) also competed at the Division III meet after reaching qualifying standards at some point during the season, but did not place.

The 1995 Western Maryland women’s lacrosse team loved playing at home, but did not find playing on the road nearly as enjoyable. The Green Terror finished 7-5 overall, with all of the losses coming to Centennial Conference opponents away from home.

WMC also found the conference to be loaded with outstanding teams. Johns Hopkins and Ursinus advanced to the NCAA Division III playoffs, while Gettysburg and Franklin & Marshall earned invitations to the ECAC post-season tournament. Those four squads, along with Swarthmore, all defeated the Green Terror to give WMC a 5-5 CC record.

Denise Sarver fashioned another impressive season on offense for WMC. The junior, who scored a school single-season record 60 goals in 1994, added 47 more to go along with 15 assists this year. She was picked to the All-CC second-team attack.

The only other Green Terror to make the all-conference team was junior Heather Seaburg on the honorable-mention defense. In addition to playing outstanding defense, Seaburg contributed four goals and two assists to the Green Terror offense.

The 1995 Western Maryland men’s lacrosse team faced some stiff competition, but held its own on the way to a 7-7 overall record.

Five of the Green Terror losses came to teams which were ranked in the final Division III top 20 poll of the season. Included in that group were Centennial Conference (CC) foes Gettysburg, Franklin & Marshall and Washington, along with St. Mary’s and two-time national champion Salisbury State.

Leading the way for WMC on offense were attackmen Dean Coccia and Matt Hoppe. Coccia, a junior, topped the team with 40 goals and 33 assists for 73 points to earn All-CC second-team honors for the second consecutive year.

Hoppe transferred to WMC for his sophomore season, and responded with 33 goals and 33 assists for 66 points. He was named to the all-conference honorable-mention squad.

Joining Coccia on the second team was senior defenseman Keith Abel, who also on occasion jumped up into the offense and added six goals and one assist.

WMC went 3-3 in the Centennial for the second straight year.
Recovering from a four-match losing streak, the 1995 Western Maryland women's tennis team won two of its final three matches to reach the .500 mark at 7-7 overall.

The Green Terror edged Muhlenberg 5-4 in the last match of the year to even its record for the season. In the Centennial Conference (CC), WMC finished 3-7.

Mirroring the team’s finish in singles play was Karen Fulton. The junior also went 7-7 to lead the Green Terror in singles victories. Earning six wins each were senior Anne Plunkett, and juniors Amie Chilcoat and Becky Duex.

Duex and Chilcoat were the top doubles combination, capturing seven of their 10 matches. Chilcoat also won two more doubles with different partners. Plunkett and junior Callie Thompson also teamed to win seven times.
MENS TENNIS

The Western Maryland men's tennis team of 1995 struggled, winning just two of 11 matches overall and all seven of its Centennial Conference contests.

Sophomore Jay Junkin posted the best singles record on the team with a 4-6 mark, an improvement over his 2-10 freshman-year performance. Sophomore Matt Roff, and freshmen Mark Rohme and Craig Eckard each won three singles matches.

Eckard teamed with senior Colin Clark for the most wins in doubles play with three. Junkin and Rohme were two-time winners, as were Roff and sophomore partner Kevin Bernhardt.

Head Coach George Dix confronts the umpire on a questionable call.

Pitcher Jenny Stewart tries to strike out a Washington College opponent.
The 1995 Western Maryland softball team, which finished 19-6 overall, earned a share of its second straight Centennial Conference (CC) title after the Green Terror and Ursinus posted 12-2 CC records.

The conference race came down to a showdown between WMC and Ursinus, with both teams entering the final doubleheader of the year with 11-1 marks. The Bears rallied to win the opener 3-2, before freshman pitcher Amy Allen blanked Ursinus 3-0 in the second game to produce the co-championship.

Named to the All-CC first team were catcher Jen Prowinski, center-fielder Kari Thompson, third baseman Sandra Johnson, and second baseman Julie Backof. Representing WMC on the second team were pitcher Amy Allen, right-fielder Carolyn Kelsey, and designated player Jenny Stewart. Earning honorable-mention status was first baseman Kelli Bowen.

Thompson, a freshman, set new WMC records for at-bats (94), hits (43), runs scored (34) and doubles (10). She also had a team-high .457 batting average.

Prowinski repeated as the All-CC first-team catcher. The junior batted .439 with three doubles and four triples, in addition to scoring 28 runs and driving in 22. Johnson concluded an outstanding career by hitting .391 with nine doubles, one triple and two home runs. The four-year starter, who was an All-CC honorable-mention pick in 1994, is WMC’s all-time leader in hits (130), at-bats (318), runs scored (100), runs batted in (89) and doubles (27).

Backof, also a freshman, batted .438 with team highs of four home runs, 31 RBI and a .750 slugging percentage. She also slammed seven doubles and three triples, in addition to scoring 28 runs. Allen was WMC’s winningest pitcher, going 8-1 with a 2.19 earned-run average.

Kelsey hit .311 with seven doubles, 14 runs scored and 20 runs driven in. The senior, who is the runner-up in school history in career doubles (17), also drew seven walks and made only one error all season. Stewart batted .348 with seven doubles, five triples and 15 runs batted in. She also scored 23 runs and compiled a 6-3 record on the mound.

Stewart, a senior, concluded her career in second place in WMC history in six pitching categories, including wins (29) and strikeouts (123). She also ranks in the top five in eight offensive categories, with her 104 hits leaving her in second place behind Johnson.

Late-Inning Heroics Set Tone

A well-known baseball axiom is that good teams find a way to win close games in the late innings. The 1995 Western Maryland team was a prime example, capturing eight victories in its last at-bat to set a school record for wins in a season with a 19-8 record.

The Green Terror played six extra-inning games, including five in a seven-game stretch midway through the year, and won every one of them. Western Maryland was in the running for the Centennial Conference (CC) title until the final day of the season, before losing twice to champion Franklin & Marshall and finishing 13-5 in the conference.

Senior shortstop Jerry Resh was selected as the CC Player of the Year after putting together one of the finest seasons ever for a Western Maryland baseball player. The senior batted .311 with school single-season records of 45 hits, 28 runs scored and 18 stolen bases. He also topped the team in runs batted in (9), triples (4), walks (21), slugging percentage (.716), and on-base average (.600).

Resh concluded his career as Western Maryland's all-time leader in at-bats (347), hits (132), triples (9), and stolen bases (47). His .380 career batting average is the third-best in school history for players with a minimum of 100 at-bats.

Senior designated hitter Eric Landseadel and junior first baseman Scott Rey were second-team selections. Landseadel was second to Resh in batting average (.322) and in walks (16). He added four doubles and three triples, scored 16 times, and drove in 23.

Rey hit .293 with two doubles, 20 runs scored, 12 RBI, six walks and five stolen bases. The sure-handed Rey made only four errors in 194 chances for a .979 fielding percentage.

Making the All-CC honorable mention for the second straight year was junior third baseman Brian Van Deusen. Van Deusen set a new school record for at-bats (112). He had 32 hits, including team highs of nine doubles and three home runs, 28 RBI, 24 runs scored and seven stolen bases.

Another highlight of the record-setting season was freshman George Cossabone throwing a no-hitter against Vassar in his first collegiate appearance during the team's Spring Break trip to Cocoa, Fla.
Scott Rey tags first base for the third out to end the inning.

19-8 (overall)
advertising
Throughout a student's career at Western Maryland College he or she is bombarded by bijillions of advertisements. They are everywhere on campus: in Glar, the Book Store, Lewis and Memorial, Rouzer, Whiteford, McDaniel and ANW, Decker Center, PELC, and even Smith House. Someone is always trying to sell something. The Career Services Office posts job openings on a regular basis. It is impossible to pass through Decker without seeing the bulletin board cluttered with notices: to catch a ride, buy old books, or an apartment to share. The WMC Billboard is constantly advertising on channel three, and who hasn't gone to his or her mailbox to find it empty, except for a purple sheet selling Microfridge food products? CAPBoard is always advertising something and the foreign language suites bring attention to the showing of unique films. But, without these many advertisements no one would know how to locate the services he or she needs. These advertisements keep one connected to the campus, and even more importantly, to the outside world.

The advertising found in Crossroads is not necessarily a means of selling products and services. Instead it is a chance for community entrepreneurs to say thank you to the students who have patronized their establishments during their years at WMC. Many parents have also placed ads in the following pages as a special way to say congratulations and express their pride in their favorite graduates. Thank you to all who purchased advertising. The funds gained from ad sales offset the cost of yearbook production. Without the ads section there would be no yearbook.

Age—3 years
Pre-School 1977

LaKeisha, you have come a long ways since pre-school. Today, you are graduating from college. What an accomplishment! Right now you must be feeling on top of the world because all your hard work has paid off. This is one more indication of the special qualities and the wonderful talents that are within you. It's hard to believe how time flew; how quickly you have grown. I hope I have given you two lasting gifts— one is Roots, the other is Wings. All your life, I have tried to provide roots. Now may God and a favorable breeze help you spread your wings.

Congratulations, good luck and much love.

n. an ordered list of names & the pages where they appear

Invariably, our lives are ordered. We orchestrate them that way. Hours, minutes, and seconds segment our lives like drawers, folders, and pages segment our work space. Each paper is filed in its proper place so that it can be found when it is needed. After flipping through this book when you first receive it, you may find it helpful to use this index to locate your friends. Wonderful! Even if you do not use it now, however, it just may come in handy. Twenty years from now, you'll be blissfully pushing your shopping cart through Produce, and you will hear a voice calling your name. You spin, and find yourself eyeball to eyeball with a college buddy. The problem? You have NO IDEA who he or she is. Then where do you turn? "It starts with a 'C'," you think. Well, you have your index. Even if we won't be there right in the store with you, we'll be sitting at home, on a shelf or in a box, waiting to remind you of the name, and the good times you had, when you get home—:) AB

It is always tempting to take a moment, as one finishes a task as difficult as this one has been, to look back, not only to thank those who have contributed to its success, but also perhaps to reminisce, to congratulate one's self for actually following through. The entire staff of Crossroads 1995 deserves a great big pat on the back for a job well done. Lacking one member of this team would have made this year's yearbook impossible to complete. Thankfully, we have NO graduating seniors to say goodbye to, so we look forward to an outstanding book next year.

Special thanks to Mitch Alexander, Scott Deitch, and Mike Harris who took such a strong interest in our little book, and worked so hard to insure that in got finished somewhere close to on-time.

Also, kudos to LaVita Westbrook, who cheerfully took up the slack when we fell behind, and returned all my late-night phone messages. To Lisa Peltier, my partner in crime, who is now somewhere in the Midwest, thanks for being my calming force during this crazy year. Ray Walker, you are a great listener, and have many wonderful ideas. Chester Stacy, you can draw for my publications anytime. Chris Ashe, you were so wonderful in our crunch. Thanks for all your help.

To those I've missed, you know who you are, and you know all of your hard work was greatly appreciated.

Thanks to all, and great job!

AB :)
