

McDaniel College Senior Memories- 2013

Looking back on my four years at McDaniel, it's almost impossible to pick a favorite memory of mine. From ultimate spoons to suite pranks to not-so-fun all-nighters studying Comparative Anatomy, McDaniel has been everything I hoped for. One memory that does stand out is when I made that decision to join in conversation at Glar with two random freshmen during my Orientation week. Four years later, they are still my best friends. My college experience would have been far less ineffable without them, so I guess I would say they are my favorite McDaniel memory.

-Rebekah James

My special memory of McDaniel was freshman year during Snowmageddon. Glar couldn't receive food shipments and we were all worried that they would run out (although they assured us that it would not be a problem). I decided to eat Coco Puffs and chocolate soft serve amidst the panic for some reason, and a beautiful food combination was born that I sometimes still try to replicate if I'm Glar and all the ingredients are right. -Rachel Hoffman

> My favorite memory of McDaniel is during a summer internship when I got to see the "biggest curtain of water in the world" which is also known as Victoria Falls. -Clara Burgess

When I was a freshman in my second week of school, I was all stressed out because my FYS had assigned a research paper on two musicians that needed like twelve primary sources each, and that afternoon I called my parents saying, "I'm DOOMED, I want a do over button, I'm so stressed, etc., They told me to "give it time," so I called my brother who was a junior in college down in Florida and he replied rather nonchalantly, that "School wasn't so bad once you get used to it."

Yeah, their words weren't really helping.

So I'm sitting in the hallway of Whiteford (so I won't disturb my roommate) and I'm crying my eyes out, and I'm pretty sure I had snot running out of my nose.

And a girl who lived on my floor, who had hung out in my room briefly during orientation (my roommate and she had the same FYS) saw me crying, and sat down beside me, and told me how she'd been homesick when she first went to Boarding school in high school.

And then she said, "Sometimes, I get so stressed out my friends have to tell me Lisa BREATHE!!!" And then she let out the funniest honking exhale I'd ever heard, and I suddenly burst out laughing.

The next week after my dad visited for breakfast, he asked me what else we were going to do. According to him I said, "Well, I've got laundry to do, and then my FYS research paper to work on, so I'm kinda done with you."

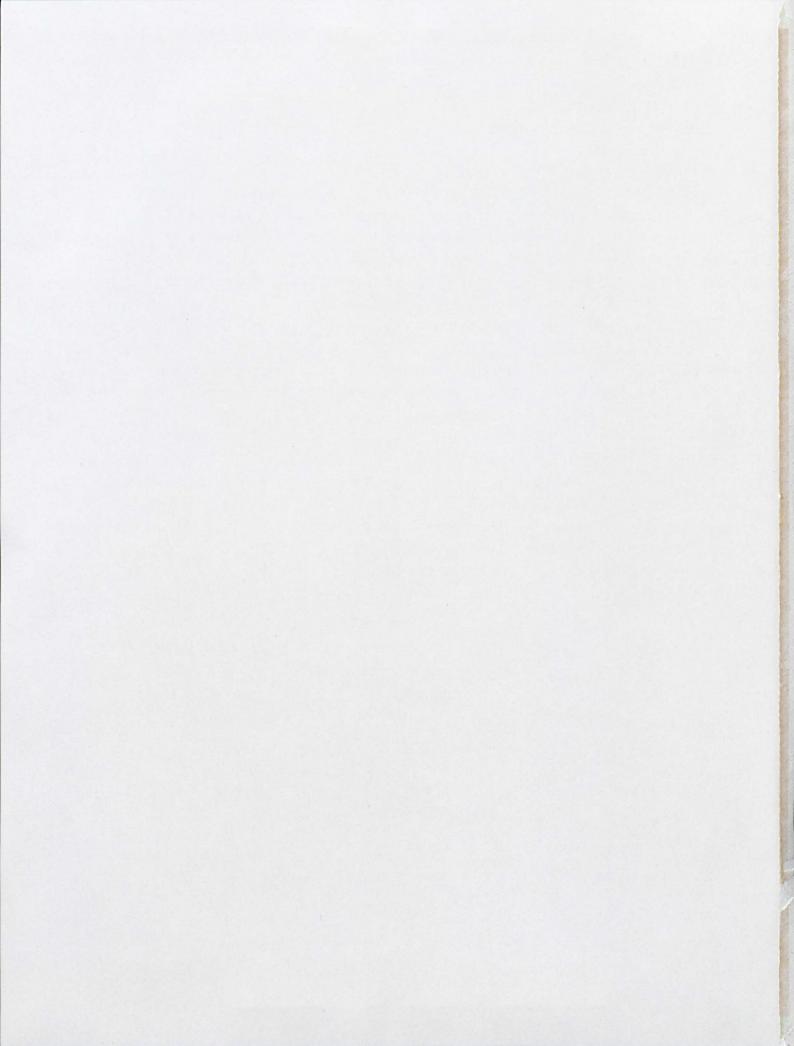

He told me later that he knew I'd be fine.

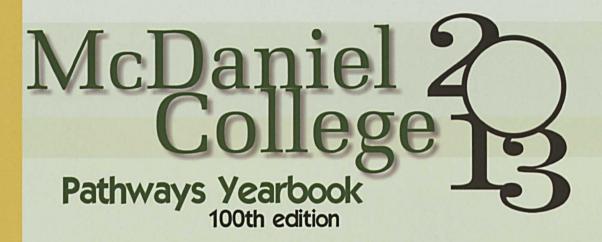

As a senior, I have found that regrettably the responsibilities of life that inevitably increase as we age, leaves me less time to see my friends than I was able to as a freshman. But as stressful as that afternoon was during my freshman year, it was also one of my best, because that girl named Lisa Starr who sat beside me and made me laugh, became my best friend from that day forward. That was the day I realized that McDaniel College really could and would become a second place for me to call home.

-Maria Brooks

Several favorite memories are: My first snow, I took Ana Salverda with me to go frolic in the snow. Being from Minnesota, she had plenty of advice and stories to share. Another was going to Winter Formal 2010 with Lisa Starr and Taylor Thompson. Also when Lisa Starr invited me to her house in NYC for Thanksgiving in 2010 and we went to a Starbucks where we met up with one my friends from high school and finally late night studying for finals at the library with my boyfriend (Angel was in the Class of 2013 and transferred at the end of last year. He is now studying to become a Respiratory Therapist at Universities of Shady Grove, doing a satellite program from Salisbury University)

-Carol Vieira
